PREFACE.

In addition to the statistical and other information concerning international, national, state and local affairs usually given in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book, this issue contains details of many matters of more than ordinary significance. Mention of all of them cannot be made here, but the following may be noted:

Decisions of the United States Supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust cases, together with the dissenting opinions of the late Justice John M. Harlan. The text of these exceedingly weighty utterances is reproduced in full.

Effort of the United States and Canada to establish reciprocal trade relations. The failure of the reciprocity plan does not lessen its importance from a political, economic or historic point of view and for that reason considerable space is devoted to it.

Negotiation of general arbitration treaties between the United States on the one hand and Great Britain and France on the other. This has been regarded by many on both sides of the Atlantic as a long step toward universal peace.

Revolution in Mexico resulting in the deposition of President Diaz and his flight to Europe.

Revolution in China against the Manchu regime and efforts to establish a modern constitutional form of government. The sudden awakening of the people of this ancient empire is thought to be of the utmost importance in the history of the far east.

Outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Turkey over the seizure by the former of Tripoli, in northern Africa.

Other subjects concerning which information is given in this volume include electoral and legislative reforms of the day, pensions in the United States, alien contract labor laws, admission of New Mexico and Arizona into the union, with a digest of the constitution of each; workmen's compensation acts in various states and countries, congressional reapportionment, national and state legislation, and political data for the coming presidential campaign in the United States.

In conclusion it may also be noted that an increase in the size of the book has again been found necessary in order to maintain its standard as a reference work.

CHRONOLOGICAL CYCLES.

Epact (moon's age Jan. 1)....	11	Roman Indiction.....	10	Jewish lunar cycle.....	10
Lunar cycle (golden number)..	13

EXPLANATORY NOTE—The Dominical letter or letters (two for leap year), or Sunday letters, indicate the day of the year on which the first Sunday occurs, the first seven letters of the alphabet being used. Thus, for 1910, the Dominical letter is B, the second letter of the alphabet, and hence the second day of the year will be the first Sunday of the year. In leap years two letters are used, the first being for January and February, and the latter, being the preceding letter, answers for the last ten months, in order to maintain the cycle. The rule for obtaining the Dominical letter for any year is somewhat complicated and for that reason is omitted here. The Golden Number is that number of a cycle of nineteen years which shows how many years have elapsed since the new moon fell on Jan. 1, for in nearly nineteen years the solar and lunar years nearly come together. The chief use of this cycle is in fixing the date of Easter, and in this same connection is used the Epact. The Solar Cycle is the number of years that have elapsed since the days of the week fell on the same days of the year, or when there will, therefore, be a recurrence of the Dominical or Sunday Letter. This would be the case every seven years but for leap year, hence four times seven is the cycle, or twenty-eight years. It is the remainder found by adding nine to the year and dividing the sum by twenty-eight. The Roman Indiction is a cycle of fifteen years and is of no utility except to chronologers. It is the remainder found by adding three to the year and dividing by fifteen. The Julian Period is a cycle of 7,980 years and is the product of the three cycles. Golden Number (19), Solar Cycle (28) and Roman Indiction (15), and hence shows the time when these cycles will coincide, or begin at the same time. The first of this cycle will be completed in the year 2267; it is the year + 4713. The Dionysian Period is a cycle of 532 years and is called the great Paschal cycle, being the product of a completed solar and lunar cycle (28×19). It is the remainder found by adding 457 to the year and dividing by 532, and with the Julian Period is chiefly used by chronologers. The Jewish Lunar Cycle is always three less than the Golden Number and is used by the Jews in fixing the time of their festivals.

THE PLANETS.

MERCURY (♿) will be brightest:

(1) As an evening star March 16-24, in κ , and Nov. 20-27 in η , setting about 1 hour 15 minutes after the sun. On Nov. 20 α will be $2^{\circ} 47'$ north of ν and on March 19 the moon will be $1^{\circ} 47'$ south of him.

(2) As a morning star Jan. 6-12 in η , Sept. 12-18 in α with the Sickle and Regulus $10'$ above or west of him, and Dec. 27-31, in η , and with the red star Antares $10'$ to $15'$ above or west of him and rising about 1 hour 15 minutes before the sun.

Watch for him within the limits of the dates given, looking near the sunrise point of the horizon in the morning, when he is a morning star, and near the sunset point when he is an evening star. The brightest and reddest star will surely be this planet. At all other times it will be invisible. It is worth while to be certain of seeing this planet, as it is the one nearest the sun and the smallest of our planetary family, except those of the group of planet-like bodies or asteroids, which move in orbits between Mars and Jupiter and of which only one (Vesta) is ever visible to the naked eye.

VENUS (♀), the most beautiful and attractive of all the planets, will not reach her maximum degree of brilliancy possible this year, as may be seen by an inspection of the chart "Visibility of the Planets." She will be best seen at the beginning and close of the year. She will gradually fade in brightness as a morning star in the east, at the beginning of the year, to invisibility about July 1, being at superior conjunction with the sun and rising with the sun July 5, after which she will be an evening star.

In the different parts of her orbit Venus presents to us all the phases of the moon and with a far greater change in apparent size and degree of brilliancy than any other of the heavenly bodies. In the annexed figure these phases and changes in apparent diameter are shown, only the concave margins (always on the side away from the sun) will show, when viewed with a small telescope, an irregular outline, due to mountains, etc.

As seen in the morning west of sun.

As seen in the evening east of sun.

Explanation:

- A—Fifteen days before superior conjunction with the sun, or June 18, 1912.
- B—At greatest elongation west of the sun, Nov. 26, 1911, and about July 1, 1913.
- C—When brightest as a morning star Oct. 21-25, 1911, and about May 25, 1913.
- D—Just after inferior conjunction with the sun, or about April 28, 1913.
- E—Fifteen days after superior conjunction with the sun, July 20, 1912.
- F—At greatest elongation east of the sun, or about Feb. 10, 1913.
- G—When brightest as an evening star, or about March 15, 1913.
- H—Just before inferior conjunction with the sun, about April 13, 1913.

Venus' place in the zodiac at the beginning of the year will be in α on the eastern margin of the four sided figure of the brightest stars of that constellation. See Table of the Rising, Setting and Southing of the Planets; also Star Table and Chart of the Heavens. She is advancing or moving eastward past the stars and on Jan. 9 will be 5° N. of Antares, the noted red star in η , and $1^{\circ} 38'$ N. of α . At this time ν , α and Antares will be in a straight N. and S. line, in the eastern morning sky, with the moon high up toward the meridian from them. On Jan. 15 the ν will overtake and pass $6'$ to the N. of ν . During the last week of Jan. and first one of Feb. she will be passing just north of the Milkmaid's Dipper in the milky way; Feb. 14, 6° N. of β ; Feb. 24, $30'$ N. of α in ν and 25° S. of Job's Coffin; March 16, $3^{\circ} 30'$ N. of α ; April 15, occulted by the ν ; April 27, $10'$ S. of ν ; May 15 in τ 3° S. of ν and 10° N. of Menkar, the brightest star in the head of the Whale; May 27 still in τ , $1^{\circ} 7'$ N. of β and 5° S. of the Pleiades or 7 stars low in the S. E. at dawn; June 12 in ν , 10° N. E. of Aldebaran and $28'$ N. of ν ; and June 14, 4° S. of ν . July 5 at superior σ with \odot , rising with him, and for some days before and after that date she will be rendered invisible by the overpowering light of the sun. When next seen she will be E. of the \odot as an EVENING STAR. See Chart. July 14 she will be in κ , 10° S. of Castor and Pollux and 4° S. of the ν ; Aug. 13, 2° S. of ν ; Aug. 14, close to Regulus in α at the end of the Handle of the Sickle and 6° N. of ν ; Sept. 9 on Equator of the Heavens 20° W. of Spica Virginis, in η and $30'$ N. of σ ; Sept. 12 very close to and N. of ν ; 4° N. of Spica Sept. 21-23 and $1^{\circ} 43'$ S. of α ; near Alpha Librae Oct. 7 and $2^{\circ} 52'$ N. of α Oct. 12, near where she was at the beginning of the year; in ν on Dec. 1, 1911, in η and ν in η ; Nov. 11, still in η , 3° N. of α and pointed at by the three lower stars of the Milkmaid's Dipper, near the bottom (upper side of bowl) of which she will pass Nov. 20-23; $1^{\circ} 36'$ S. of δ Dec. 13, when on the boundary between ν and δ , and at the close of the year she will be near the boundary between δ and ϵ and about 10° S. of the λ -shaped figure which marks ϵ and through which the Equator of the Heavens passes. At the close of the year she will be about as bright as at its beginning.

MARS (♂) will not attain his maximum degree of brightness this year but will be most favorably situated for visibility early in the year, shining about equally in the morning and evening hours. After March 5 he will be exclusively an EVENING STAR until his σ with the \odot Nov. 4. During October and November he will be too near the sun to be well observed, being, of course, absolutely INVISIBLE for some days before and after Nov. 4. When next seen he will be on the other (west) side of the sun as a MORNING STAR in the east, continuing such to the end of the year. His movements past the stars will be as follows: At the opening of the year in τ close to and S. W. of the Pleiades; occulted by the ν Jan. 1; $30'$ N. of β Jan. 28, when on a line joining the Hyades (Aldebaran) and the Pleiades; $1^{\circ} 43'$ S. of β Feb. 23 and 2° S. March 25. Through February and March to April 5 he will be advancing past the stars of ν and about March 25 he will be on a line joining the two bright stars which mark the tips of the horns of the Bull. Here he will be surrounded by the brightest stars of the firmament, being midway between Capella on the N. and Betelge use on the S; Procyon S. E., Orion below (south) and Sirius S. E. He will be 3° S. of β April 22 in ν , α May 12, being 1° N. of ν ; 3° S. of β May 20, below Castor and Pollux; Sun in southern portion of dense cluster of small stars called Praesepe; 3° N. of β June 18 in \odot ; 2° S. of β July 16 with Regulus 5° W. of him; close to ν Aug. 20, in α and $30'$ S. of ν Sept. 9.

JUPITER (♃) will be at his brightest the latter part of May and first of June when he will shine all night, rising with the setting of the sun. He will be exclusively a morning star at the first of the year, rising about 4 a. m. in η , 5° above (north of) Antares; σ with ν Jan. 9, being $1^{\circ} 38'$ S. of her, and again on Oct. 7, when α will be $1^{\circ} 43'$ N. of ν ; at W. \odot or 90° W. of \odot March 4, when he will begin to shine in the evening hours also. He will be in conjunction with the ν as follows: Jan. 15, Feb. 11, March 10, April 6, May 3 and 30, June 20, July 24, Aug. 20, Sept. 16, Oct. 14, Nov. 11, and Dec. 9. In all the foregoing cases the moon will pass to the S. of α from 5° to 6° . He will be in ν with the \odot Dec. 15 and therefore practically invisible throughout December. He will be 90° W. of \odot (W. \odot) Aug. 30, when he will cease to shine in the morning hours and become exclusively an evening star to the end of the year or to invisibility in December.

SATURN (♄) will be brightest in November-December, being invisible in May. At the beginning of the year he will be 15° W. of the Pleiades and Hyades in τ , setting about 3 a. m.; at E. \odot Feb. 3, when he will cease to shine in the morning and become strictly an evening star; ♀ 7 S. of ♀ May 27; ♀ 2 S. of ♀ June 2 and in ♀ May 14. His conjunctions with the ♀ are as follows: Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 22 and April 13, in all of which he will be about 4° S. of the ♀; also June 13, July 10, Aug. 7, Sept. 3, Oct. 1 and 28, Nov. 21 and Dec. 21, in all of which he will be about 6° S. of the ♀. His wonderful ring system may be best observed the latter part of the year.

URANUS (♄) will be at ♄ to the sun and brightest July 24. On or about that time very good eyes may see him, in the absence of the ♀, in the head of the Goat (♈), about 4° S. of the brightest stars of that constellation and in line with them. When at or near his brightest he will appear about as the dimmest star the unaided eye can see.

NEPTUNE (♆) will be brightest Jan. 13 in ✕ just below Castor and Pollux. None of the other planets will pass near enough to him at or near the time of his greatest brightness to aid in identifying this, the dimmest and most distant member of our planetary family. Nor will it be near enough to any bright or well known star to serve as a guide to his place. Hence the amateur, even with a good telescope, will be uncertain whether he has seen this planet, unless his instrument is a large one and astronomically mounted so that it can be directed to the exact spot.

The near approaches of the moon to Uranus and Neptune are here disregarded, as the great light of the moon would render these planets invisible even with telescopes.

*Lowest of the year or 57° lower than when highest. †Highest of the year or 57° higher than when lowest. Explanation of signs: ♈ Aries. ♉ Taurus. ♊ Gemini. ♋ Cancer. ♌ Leo. ♍ Virgo. ♎ Libra. ♏ Scorpio. ♐ Sagittarius. ♑ Capricornus. ♒ Aquarius. ♓ Pisces. The place indicated for the planets is for the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Sundays of each month, in the order of the planets. The other signs used are as follows: ♄, conjunction or near approach; ♅, opposition or 180° from the Sun; ♁, quadrature or 90° from the Sun; ♀, Sun; ♁, Earth; ♃, Mercury; ♄, Venus; ♅, Mars; ♆, Jupiter; ♇, Saturn; ♁, Uranus; ♆, Neptune; ♁, Ascending Node; ♂, Descending Node; ♀, Moon, generally.

NOTE—The moon will run "high" from "lowest" to "highest," and run "low" from "highest" to "lowest." The full moon will be highest of the year at meridian passage Dec. 16 and lowest June 22. She will begin to run lower March 21 and decrease in altitude until June 22 and then increase (run higher) until Dec. 21, after which she will gradually get lower until June 22. This is because the full moon must always be on the opposite side of the earth from the sun, and hence when the sun is lowest in declination the moon must be highest and when the sun is highest the moon must be lowest. The inclination of the earth's axis to the plane of the ecliptic (sun's apparent path) being 23½° and that of the moon being 5° to the ecliptic it follows that the total swing from highest to lowest must be (23½+5) X 2=57°.

THE SIGNS AND CONSTELLATIONS OF THE ZODIAC.

Until recently it was taken for granted that the present relationship between signs and constellations of the zodiac was generally understood, as all astronomical textbooks mention their disagreement and explain the cause. The numerous letters of inquiry concerning differences between this data in this almanac and certain others show the necessity for this note of explanation.

Thousands of years ago when the zodiac, that belt of the heavens about 16° in width within which move the moon and planets, was formed and divided into twelve parts or seasons called signs, each containing certain star groups called constellations, each was given the name of an object or animal which never did bear any relationship to the configuration of the stars in that group or division, but which did or is supposed to have reference to certain astronomical or other facts. Thus Libra, ♎, the scales or balance, comes at the autumnal equinox when there is an equilibrium or balance between the length of day and night the world over. Aquarius, ♒, the water-bearer, and whose sign is the Egyptian sign for running water, comes at the season of greatest rains in Egypt, and so on.

Since the time when these divisions were made and named, owing to the precession of the equinoxes, resulting from the differing polar and equatorial diameters of the earth, the signs have moved back west nearly a whole division or constellation and where ♈ was the first, ♋ now is. Hence, though the sun now enters the sign ♈ March 20, it is a month later when he enters the constellation ♈. It must be apparent, therefore, that any supposed influence or relationship which early astrologers attributed to the position of the sun, moon or planets when in certain of these divisions can no longer exist, as the sign now only represents that space or division of the zodiac where the controlling constellation was 2,000 or more years ago, but is not now. Nevertheless some almanacs still give the signs for the moon's place, which is very misleading to those who attempt to follow her in her course among the stars. Hence, this almanac gives the constellation and discards the ancient picture of the disemboweled man as relics of the age of superstition. The sign is retained for sun's place in connection with the seasons and sun's path through the zodiac each month because of its relationship to the equinoxes and solstices.

HARVEST MOON AND HUNTER'S MOON.

The full moon in September that falls near the autumnal equinox (Sept. 23) is called the harvest moon. Because at that time it is in that part of its orbit where it makes the smallest angle with the horizon it appears to rise at nearly the same hour for several nights in succession, thus giving an unusual number of moonlight evenings. The same thing occurs to a slightly less degree at the time of the first full moon after the equinox, when it is called the hunter's moon. "It is true," says Prof. George C. Comstock in his "Text-Book of Astronomy," "that on the average the moon rises and sets fifty-one minutes later each day than on the day before. But there is a good deal of irregularity in the retardation of the time of moonrise and moonset, since the time of rising depends largely upon the particular point of the horizon at which the moon appears, and between two days this point may change so much as to make the retardation considerably greater or less than its average value. In northern latitudes this effect is particularly marked in the month of September, when the eastern horizon is nearly parallel with the moon's apparent path in the sky, and near the time of full moon in that month the moon rises on several successive nights at nearly the same hour, and in a less degree the same is true for October. This highly convenient arrangement of moonlight has caused the full moons of these two months to be christened respectively the harvest moon and the hunter's moon."

It should be borne in mind that the bodies are not always nearest when in σ , but the above data will enable the absolute identification of these planets on or near those dates and when the σ occurs in the daytime. The planets v , b and w are ignored in this connection as usually the σ 's light will render the last two invisible and generally v will be too near the sun to be seen.

VISIBILITY OF THE PLANETS, 1912.

Copyright, 1909, by Berlin H. Wright, De Land, Fla.

Explanation: The light portions show the position of the planet with respect to the sun—whether east of the sun and an evening star or west of him as morning star and the approximate distance from the sun in both hours and degrees of arc. The width of the light space also indicates the relative degree of brilliancy. Each of the small divisions represents approximately one hour of time or 15° of arc. Thus Venus at the beginning of the year will be 3-hours or 45° west of the sun and will rise that much before the sun as a morning star. Mars will be in conjunction with the sun Nov. 4, when he changes from an evening to a morning star, and Jupiter will rise with the setting of the sun or 15° or 12 hours from the sun the last of May, shining all night.

The sun's surface is 12,000 and its volume 1,300,000 times that of the earth, but the mass is only 332,000 times as great and its density about one-quarter that of the earth. The force of gravity at the surface of the sun is twenty-seven times greater than that at the surface of the earth. The sun rotates on its axis once in 25.3 days at the equator, but the time is longer at the higher latitudes, from which fact it is presumed that the sun is not solid, at least as to its surface.

THE EARTH AND THE MOON.

Earth—The equatorial diameter of the earth is 7,926.5 miles and the polar diameter 7,899.5 miles; equatorial circumference, 25,000. The linear velocity of the rotation of the earth on its axis at the equator is 24,840 miles a day, or 1,440 feet a second; its velocity in its orbit around the sun is approximately nineteen miles per second, the length of the orbit being about 560,000,000 miles. The superficial area of the earth according to Encke, the astronomer, is 197,108,580 square miles, of which two-thirds is water and one-third land. The planetary mass is about 256,000,000 cubic miles.

Moon—The moon has a diameter of 2,162 miles, a circumference of about 6,800 miles and a surface area of 14,685,000 square miles. Her mean distance from the earth is 238,840 miles. The volume of the moon is about 1/49th that of the earth and the density about 3 2-5 that of water. The time from new moon to new moon is 29 days 12 hours 44.05 minutes. The moon has no atmosphere and no water and is a dead world.

VELOCITY OF LIGHT.

Light travels at the rate of 186,300 miles per second. It requires 8 minutes and 8 seconds for light to come from the sun to the earth.

ECLIPSES IN 1912.

There will be four eclipses in 1912, two of the sun and two of the moon, as follows:

I. Partial of the moon April 1, invisible in the United States; visible quite generally in Europe, Africa, part of Asia and South America. This eclipse will recur April 12, 1930, which will be its last return.

II. Central and total of the sun April 17. The partial phase will be visible in eastern United States. The sun will rise more or less eclipsed after the first small one on one limb, then follows, at intervals of eighteen years eleven days, the other partial, total and partial again, to the last small one on the opposite limb from the one where the series started, covering a period of over 1,000 years.

III. Partial of the moon Sept. 26. In eastern United States the moon will be setting as the eclipse begins and hence invisible there. Visible as follows:

The figure shows 1, 2, 3 and 4 digits cut off from the sun's southern limb.

throughout most of the southern, middle and eastern states. Invisible west of a line from near Pensacola, Fla., through Memphis, Tenn., to Winipeg. East of a line from near Sag Harbor through Albany to Clayton, N. Y., the eclipse will be wholly visible, but very small and on the southern limb of the sun. Throughout New England the eclipse will begin a few minutes after sunrise and end about 7 a. m. At Chicago the eclipse will be decreasing at sunrise and will end at 5:45 a. m. Only about two digits will be eclipsed in the great lakes region and that on the southern limb of the sun, as shown in the figure annexed. In the southeastern states about four digits will be eclipsed.

The last preceding eclipse of the series to which this one belongs was April 5, 1894, and the next succeeding one will be April 27, 1930, when it will be total and visible in the United States. An eclipse of the sun recurs sixty or seventy times

Size of the eclipse 1.46 digits, as shown in the annexed figure, where the arrow shows the course of the moon through the southern portion of the great dark shadow of the earth from west to east. One more eclipse of this series, only, remains, Oct. 6, 1930. This series began 847 years ago, since which time it has recurred forty-seven times.

IV. Total of the sun Oct. 10. Visible in the southeastern portion of the United States as a very small eclipse on the sun's southern limb. In the gulf states the sun will rise with the eclipse on. Throughout most of North and South Carolina the whole of the eclipse will be visible, just after the rising of the sun, but it will be very small—only about one digit—see figure 1.

This eclipse will recur Oct. 21, 1930, when it will again be total.

NUMBER OF THE STARS.

According to the best astronomers the number of stars that can be seen by a person of average eyesight is only about 7,000. The number visible through the telescope has been estimated by J. E. Gore at 70,000,000 and by Profs. Newcomb and Young at 100,000,000.

CHART OF THE HEAVENS.

1 2 3 4

EXPLANATION—The chart of the heavens shows all the bright stars and groups visible in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and Hawaii. Stars of the third magnitude are sometimes shown in order to complete a figure.

If a bright uncharted body be seen near the "ecliptic circle" it must be a planet. To locate the planets or moon, refer to the tables "position of planets" and "moon's place" in the almanac pages, and the proper signs on the chart on the "ecliptic circle" and an inspection of that part of the heavens, comparing with the chart, will serve to identify the planet and all the surrounding objects.

Because of the earth's motion from west to east (opposite to the direction of the arrow in the chart), the stars rise 4m. earlier each day or 30m. per week, or 2h. a month. The chart shows the position at 9 p. m. Then if the position for any other hour be desired, as for 7 p. m., count back one month, or ahead one month for 11 p. m., and so on for any hour of the night.

A circle described from the zenith on the "zenith circle" for the desired latitude with a radius of 90° (see graduated meridian) will show what stars are above the horizon. Thus Capella is near the overhead (zenith) point on latitude 40° north Jan. 15, 9 p. m., as will be Algenib in the handle of the Big Dipper at 3 a. m. Then from Capella or Algenib all the surrounding visible groups can be identified. The "pointers" being 5° apart and always in sight may be used as a convenient unit of measure; also when visible the Belt of Orion, 3°, or the sides of the square of Pegasus. The observer is always supposed to stand under the overhead point and to face south and north alternately.

Explanation: By the absolute scale of magnitudes stars brighter than Aldebaran and Altair are indicated by fractional or negative quantities, thus Vega 0.2 and Sirius -1.4. As the magnitudes increase the brilliancy decreases, each increase of a unit being equal to a decrease of about two and one-half in brightness.

To ascertain when any star or constellation will be on the upper meridian add the number opposite in the column "For Meridian Passage" to the figures in the following table "Sidereal Noon," taking note whether such figures be "Morn." or "Eve." if Morn. and the sum is more than 12h. the result will be Eve. of same day; if Eve. and the sum is more than 12h. the result will be Morn. of the next day. Having found the time of meridian passage, for the rising subtract and for the setting add the numbers opposite the star in the column headed "For Rising and Setting" and observe the direction as to Morn. and Eve. given for the meridian passage. Those marked (.....) in the last column are circumpolar and do not rise or set in the latitude of New York city. Stars having an asterisk (*) in the last column are only to be seen in the far south and then when near the meridian, as the vapors of the horizon will prevent seeing them when they rise or set. To tell how high from the nearest point of the horizon a star will be at its meridian passage, subtract the star's declination from 90° and if the result is less than the latitude of the place of the observer that star will neither rise nor set, but is circumpolar, and the difference between that result and the latitude shows the star's altitude above the north point of the horizon or below the southern horizon. Or (90°-Dec.)-lat., = alt. or elevation of the star above the nearest point of the horizon at meridian passage for stars of south. dec. Examples:

Sidereal noon, Oct. 30,	9:23 p. m.
Fomalhaut "In Merid." col.,	22:48
	32:16
Subtract,	24:00
	8:16 p. m. of the 31st, time of meridian passage.
Fomalhaut ris. and set. col.,	4:00
	12:16 = 0:16 a. m. of Nov. 1, the time of setting.

Fomalhaut dec., 20° s. 90°-30° = 60°-40° = 20°. Altitude of Fomalhaut in latitude 40° at its meridian passage. To measure celestial distances with the eye keep in mind that one-third of the distance from the zenith to the horizon is 30°. For smaller measurements use the "pointers" in the "big dipper," which are nearly 5° apart—a convenient celestial yardstick because always to be seen. In the case of a star whose dec. is such as to bring it nearer to the zenith than to a horizon at meridian passage. It will be more convenient to use its zenith distance as a means of locating it. The difference between the latitude and dec. is this zenith distance. If the dec. is greater than the latitude then such difference is to be counted northward, otherwise southward from the zenith.

UNITED STATES PASSPORT REGULATIONS.

Passports are issued to citizens of the United States upon application to the state department in Washington. The application must be accompanied by an affidavit, attested by a notary public or other officer empowered to administer oaths, stating that the applicant is a citizen and giving the place of birth and age, and it must be accompanied by the certificate of one other citizen to whom he is personally known that the declaration made by the applicant is true. The application must also be accompanied by a description of the person, particularly as to age, height, complexion, forehead, eyes, nose, mouth, chin, hair and face.

Blank forms are furnished by the state department upon application. The fee for each passport is $1. Citizens traveling abroad may also in some cases obtain passports by applying to United States ambassadors and ministers. Where any person has made a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States and has resided in the United States for three years a passport valid for six months may be issued to him. This passport is not renewable and does not entitle the holder to the protection of this government in the country of which he was originally a citizen.

THE CAPITOL IN WASHINGTON.

The corner stone of the original capitol building was laid by President Washington Sept. 18, 1793. The north wing was finished in 1810 and the south wing in 1811, a wooden passageway connecting them. The original designs of the structure were made by Dr. William Thornton. The two wings were burned by the British in 1814, but were immediately restored. In 1827 the original building was completed at a cost of $2,433,844.13. Extensions of the wings were begun in 1851 and completed in 1859. The dome, which is 287 feet 5 inches in height, was completed in 1865. The capitol stands in latitude 38 degrees 53 minutes 20.4 seconds north and longitude 77 degrees 00 minutes 35.7 seconds west from Greenwich. The area covered by the building is 153,112 square feet.

TIME AND STANDARDS OF TIME.

Various kinds of time are in use in this country:

1. Astronomical Time or Mean Solar Time—This is reckoned from noon through the twenty-four hours of the day and is used mainly by astronomical observatories and in official astronomical publications. It is the legal time of the Dominion of Canada, though "standard" and "mean" time are in general use there as in this country.

2. Mean Local Time—This is the kind that was in almost universal use prior to the introduction of standard time. This time is based upon the time when the mean sun crosses the meridian and the day begins at midnight. When divided into civil divisions—years, months, weeks, days, etc.—it is sometimes called civil time.

3. Standard Time—For the convenience of the railroads and business in general a standard of time was established by mutual agreement in 1883 and by this calculation trains are now run and local time is regulated. By this system the United States, extending from 65° to 125° west longitude, is divided into four time sections, each of 15° of longitude, exactly equivalent to one hour (7½° or 30m. on each side of a meridian), commencing with the 75th meridian. The first or eastern section includes all territory between the Atlantic coast and an irregular line drawn from Buffalo to Charleston, S. C., the latter city being its southernmost point. The second or central section includes all the territory between this eastern line and another irregular line extending from Bismarck, N. D., to the mouth of the Rio Grande. The third or mountain section includes all the territory between the last-named line and nearly the western borders of Idaho, Nevada and Arizona. The fourth or Pacific section includes all the territory of the United States between the boundary of the mountain section and the Pacific coast. Inside of each of these sections standard time is uniform and the time of each section differs from that next to it by exactly one hour, as shown on the map.

*Owing to the eccentricity of the earth's orbit and the inclination of the equator to the ecliptic, the apparent motion of the sun is retarded or accelerated according to the earth's place in its orbit. Hence, to take the actual sun as a guide would necessitate years, days and their subdivisions of unequal length. Therefore an imaginary or "mean sun" was invented. The difference between apparent and mean time is called the "equation of time" and may amount to a quarter of an hour in twenty-four hours. It is the difference between the figures in "Sun at noon mark" column in calendar and twelve hours. The figures on a correct sun dial give the apparent time.

STANDARDS OF TIME.

The following is the table of times, based upon the meridians used by the United States and Canada:

NAME OF TIME.	Degrees.	Central meridian from Greenwich.	Nearest place.
Intercolonial or Atlantic.....	60	4 hours west.....	About 3¼ degrees east of Halifax, N.S.
Eastern.....	75	5 hours west.....	Between New York and Philadelphia
Central.....	90	6 hours west.....	St. Louis and New Orleans.
Mountain.....	105	7 hours west.....	Denver, Col.
Pacific.....	120	8 hours west.....	1¼ degrees east of Sacramento, Cal.
Sitka.....	135	9 hours west.....	1 degree east of Sitka, Alaska.
Tahiti.....	150	10 hours west.....	¼ degree west of the Island of Tahiti.
Hawaiian.....	157½	10 hrs. 31 min. west.	Near center of Molokai.

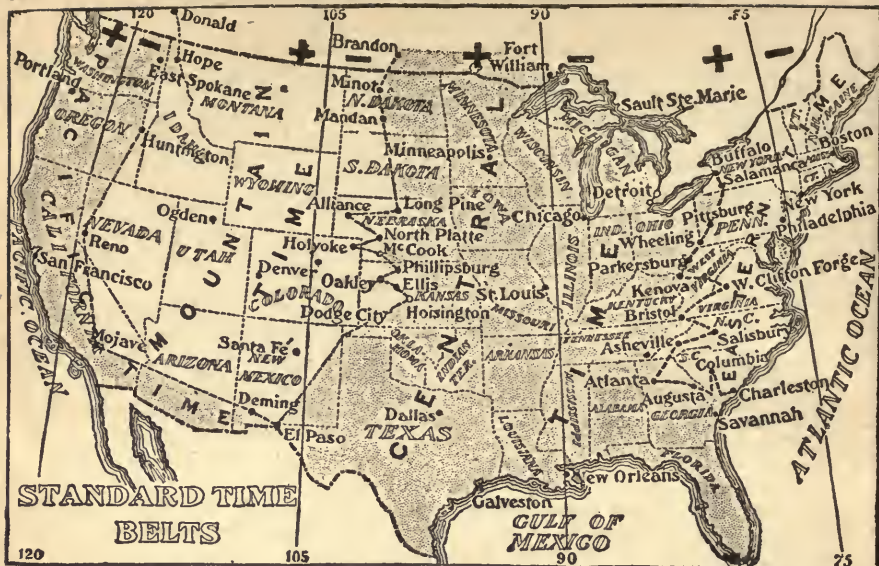

It is obvious that to express the time of rising and setting of the sun and moon in standard time would limit the usefulness of such data to the single point or place for which it was computed, while in mean time it is practically correct for places as widely separated as the width of the continent (see note at bottom of February calendar), and persons having obtained the mean time by the rising or setting of the sun or moon may easily ascertain the correct standard time of any event by making use of the following table and map:

STANDARD TIME TABLE.

All the calculations in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book are based upon mean or clock time unless otherwise stated. The sun's rising and setting are for the upper limb, corrected for parallax and refraction. In the case of the moon no correction is needed, as in the sun, for "parallax and refraction": with her they are of an opposite nature and just balance each other. The figures given, therefore, are for the moon's center on a true horizon such as the ocean affords.

The calculations in each of the geographical divisions of each calendar page will apply with sufficient accuracy to all places in the contiguous

North American zones indicated by the headings of the divisions.

The heavy dotted lines show the arbitrary (standard) divisions of time in the United States. The plus and minus marks on either side of the meridian lines show whether it is necessary to add to or subtract from the mean time of points east or west of these lines to arrive at actual standard time. Example: Chicago is $2\frac{1}{2}$ east of the 90th meridian, therefore Chicago local time $- 2\frac{1}{2} \times 4 = 10$ to be subtracted from mean time to = standard time, and for Boston standard (eastern) time, 16m. must be subtracted from mean time.

SUPREME COURT DECISION IN STANDARD OIL CASE.

SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS.

Suit begun in St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 15, 1906.

Circuit court of United States decides that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is an illegal combination, Nov. 20, 1909.

Decision of Circuit court sustained by United States Supreme court May 15, 1911.

Nov. 15, 1906, the attorney-general of the United States began proceedings against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey under the Sherman anti-trust act by filing in the United States Circuit court in St. Louis a petition in equity against the company and its twenty constituent corporations and partnerships and seven individual persons asking that the combination be declared unlawful and in restraint of interstate trade. Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul was appointed special prosecutor, assisted by Charles B. Morrison of Chicago, Frank H. Poole and J. H. Graves of the department of justice, W. H. Higgins of Minneapolis and C. A. Severance of St. Paul. The defense was led by John G. Milburn of New York. The decision in the case was announced in St. Louis and St. Paul Nov. 20, 1909, the government winning a complete victory. In an opinion written by Judge Walter H. Sanborn of St. Paul and concurred in by Judges Vandeventer, Hook and Adams, with a special concurring opinion by Judge Hook, the United States Circuit court for the eastern district of Missouri declared the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey an illegal combination, operating in restraint of trade, and ordered its dissolution within thirty days. The decree, unless suspended by an appeal to the United States Supreme court, was to be followed by an injunction restraining the company from further continuance of its business under its existing formation.

The defendant company carried the case to the Supreme court of the United States, which, in an elaborate decision rendered May 15, 1911, sustained the decree of the lower court except as to the time of its execution, which was extended to six months. The court further held that in view of the possible injury which might result to the public through the cessation of interstate commerce in the products of the corporation pending dissolution that portion of the decree should not stand.

In effect the decision of the Supreme court, as announced by Mr. Chief Justice White, was that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its nineteen subsidiary companies formed a combination in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The dissolution of the combination was therefore ordered to take place within six months.

Following is the complete official text of the decision:

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
No. 398—October term, 1910.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey et al., appellants, vs. the United States.

Appeal from the Circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of Missouri.

[May 15, 1911.]

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and thirty-three other corporations, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller and five other individual defendants prosecute this appeal to reverse a decree of the court below. Such decree was entered upon a bill filed by the United States under authority of section 4 of the act of July 2, 1890, known as the antitrust act, and had for its object the enforcement of the provisions of that act. The record is inordinately voluminous, consisting of twenty-three volumes of printed matter, aggregating about 12,000 pages, containing a vast amount of confusing and conflicting testimony relating to innumerable, complex and varied business transactions extending over a period of nearly forty years. In an effort to pave the way to reach the subjects which we are called upon to consider, we propose at the outset, following the order of the bill, to give the merest possible outline of its contents, to summarize the answer, to indicate the course of the trial and point out briefly the decision below rendered.

The bill and exhibits, covering 170 pages of the printed record, was filed on Nov. 15, 1906. Corporations known as Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Oil Company of California, Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Standard Oil Company of Iowa, Standard Oil Company of Kansas, Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, Standard Oil Company of Nebraska, Standard Oil Company of New York, Standard Oil Company of Ohio and sixty-two other corporations and partnerships, as also seven individuals, were named as defendants. The bill was divided into thirty numbered sections and sought relief upon the theory that the various defendants were engaged in conspiring "to restrain the trade and commerce in petroleum, commonly called 'crude oil,' in refined oil and in the other products of petroleum, among the several states and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia and with foreign nations, and to monopolize the said commerce." The conspiracy was alleged to have been formed in or about the year 1870 by three of the individual defendants, viz., John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller and Henry M. Flagler. The detailed averments concerning the alleged conspiracy were arranged with reference to three periods; the first from 1870 to 1882, the second from 1882 to 1899 and the third from 1899 to the time of the filing of the bill.

The general charge concerning the period from 1870 to 1882 was as follows:

"That during said first period the said individual defendants, in connection with the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, purchased and obtained interests through stock ownership and otherwise in and entered into agreements with, various persons, firms, corporations and limited partnerships engaged in purchasing, shipping, refining and selling petroleum and its products among the various states for the purpose of fixing the price of crude and refined oil and the products thereof, limiting the production thereof and controlling the transportation thereon, and thereby restraining trade and commerce among the several states and monopolizing the said commerce."

To establish this charge it was averred that John D. and William Rockefeller and several other named individuals, who, prior to 1870, composed three separate partnerships engaged in the business of refining crude oil and shipping its products in interstate commerce, organized in the year 1870 a corporation known as the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, and transferred to that company the business of the said partnerships, the members thereof becoming, in proportion to their prior ownership, stockholders in the corporation. It was averred that the other individual defendants soon afterward became participants in the illegal combination and either transferred property to the corporation or to individuals to be held for the benefit of all parties in interest in proportion to their respective interests in the combination; that is, in proportion to their stock ownership in the Standard Oil Company of Ohio. By the means thus stated, it was charged that by the year 1872 the combination had acquired substantially all but three or four of the thirty-five or forty oil refineries located in Cleveland, O. By reason of the power thus obtained and in further execution of the intent and purpose to restrain trade and to monopolize the commerce in interstate as well as intrastate, in petroleum and its products, the bill alleged that the combination and its members obtained large preferential rates and rebates in many and devious ways over their competitors from various railroad companies, and that by means of the advantage thus obtained many, if not virtually all, competitors were forced either to become members of the combination or were driven out of business; and thus, it was alleged, during the period in question the following results were brought about: (a) That the combination, in addition to the refineries in Cleveland, which it had acquired as previously stated and which it had either dismantled to limit production or continued to operate, also from time to time acquired a large number of refineries of crude petroleum situated in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and elsewhere. The properties thus acquired, like those previously obtained, although belonging to and being held for the benefit of the combination, were ostensibly divergently controlled, some of them being put in the name of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, some in the name of corporations or limited partnerships affiliated therewith, or some being left in the name of the original owners, who had become stockholders in the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, and thus members of the alleged illegal combination.

(b) That the combination had obtained control of the pipe lines available for transporting oil from the oil fields to the refineries in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Titusville, Philadelphia, New York and New Jersey. (c) That the combination during the period named had obtained a complete mastery over the oil industry, controlling 90 per cent of the business of producing, shipping, refining and selling petroleum and its products, and thus was able to fix the price of crude and refined petroleum and to restrain and monopolize all interstate commerce in those products.

The averments bearing upon the second period (1882 to 1899) had relation to the claim:

"That during the said second period of conspiracy the defendants entered into a contract and trust agreement, by which various independent firms, corporations, limited partnerships and individuals engaged in purchasing, transporting, refining, shipping and selling oil and the products thereof in among the various states turned over the management of their said business, corporations and limited partnerships to nine trustees, composed chiefly of certain individuals defendant herein, which said trust agreement was in restraint of trade and commerce and in violation of law, as hereinafter more particularly alleged."

The trust agreement thus referred to was set out in the bill. It was made in January, 1882. By its terms the stock of forty corporations, including the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, and a large quantity of various properties which had been previously acquired by the alleged combination and which was held in diverse forms, as we have previously indicated, for the benefit of the members of the combination, was vested in the trustee and their successors, "to be held for all parties in interest jointly." In the body of the trust agreement was contained a list of the various individuals and corporations and lim-

*First. All the stockholders and members of the following corporations and limited partnerships, to wit: Acme Oil company, New York; Acme Oil company, Pennsylvania; Atlantic Refining Company of Philadelphia; Bush & Co. (Ltd.); Camden Consolidated Oil company; Elizabethport acid works; Imperial Refining company (Ltd.); Charles Pratt & Co.; Paine, Albiet & Co.; Standard Oil company, Ohio; Standard Oil company, Pittsburgh; Smiths Ferry Oil Transportation company; Solar Oil company (Ltd.); Stone & Fleming Manufacturing company (Ltd.). Also all the stockholders and members of such other corporations and limited partnerships as may hereafter join in this agreement at the request of the trustees herein provided for.

Second. The following individuals, to wit: W. C. Andrews, John D. Archbold, Lide K. Arter, J. A. Bostwick, Benjamin Brewster, D. Bushnell, Thomas C. Bushnell, J. N. Camden, Henry L. Davis, H. M. Flagler, Mrs. H. M. Flagler, John Huntington, H. A. Hutchins, Charles F. G. Heye, A. B. Jennings, Charles Lockhart, A. M. McGregor, William H. Macy, William H. Macy, Jr., estate of Josiah Macy, William H. Macy, Jr., executor; O. H. Payne, A. J. Pouch, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, W. P. Thompson, J. J. Vandergrift, William T. Wardell, W. G. Warden, Joseph L. Warden, T. Warden, Frew & Co.; Louise C. Wheat, H. M. Hanna and George W. Chapin, D. M. Harkness, D. M. Harkness, trustee, S. V. Harkness, O. H. ited partnerships whose stockholders and members, or a portion thereof, became parties to the agreement. This list is in the margin.*

The agreement made provision for the method of controlling and managing the property by the trustees, for the formation of additional manufacturing, etc., corporations in various states, and the trust, unless terminated by a mode specified, was to continue "during the lives of the survivors and survivor of the trustees named in the agreement and for twenty-one years thereafter." The agreement provided for the issue of Standard Oil trust certificates to represent the interest arising under the trust in the properties affected by the trust, which, of course, in view of the provisions of the agreement and the subject to which it related, caused the interest in the certificates to be coincident with and the exact representative of the interest in the combination, that is, in the Standard Oil Company of Ohio. Soon afterward it was alleged the trustees organized the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Standard Oil Company of New York, the former having a capital stock of $3,000,000 and the latter a capital stock of $5,000,000, subsequently increased to $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, respectively. The bill alleged "that pursuant to said trust agreement the said trustees caused to be transferred to themselves the stocks of all corporations and limited partnerships named in said trust agreement, and caused various of the individuals and copartnerships, who owned apparently independent refineries and other properties employed in the business of refining and transporting and selling oil in and among said various states and territories of the United States as aforesaid, to transfer their property situated in said several states to the respective Standard Oil companies of said states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio and other corporations organized or acquired by said trustees from time to time * * *." For the stocks and property so acquired the trustees issued trust certificates. It was alleged that in 1888 the trustees "unlawfully controlled the stock and ownership of various corporations and limited partnerships engaged in such purchase and transportation, refining, selling and shipping of oil," as per a list which is excerpted in the margin.†

The bill charged that during the second period quo warranto proceedings were commenced against the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, which resulted agreement at the request of the trustees herein provided for.

Third. A portion of the stockholders and members of the following corporations and limited partnerships, to wit: American Lubricating Oil company, Baltimore United Oil company, Beacon Oil company, Bush & Denslow Manufacturing company, Central Refining company of Pittsburgh, Chesabrough Manufacturing company, Chess Carey company, Consolidated Tank Line company, Inland Oil company, Keystone Refining company, Maverick Oil company, National Transit company, Portland Kerosene Oil company, Producers' Consolidated Land & Petroleum company, Signal oil works (Ltd.), Thompson & Bedford company (Ltd.), Devco Manufacturing company, Eclipse Lubricating Oil company (Ltd.), Empire Refining company (Ltd.), Franklin Pipe company (Ltd.), Galena oil works (Ltd.), Galena Farm Oil company (Ltd.), Germania Mining company, Vacuum Oil company, H. C. Van Tine & Co. (Ltd.), Waters-Pierce Oil company. Also stockholders and members (not being all thereof) of other corporations and limited partnerships who may hereafter join in this agreement at the request of the trustees herein provided for.

in the entry by the Supreme court of Ohio, on March 2, 1892, of a decree adjudging the trust agreement to be void, not only because the Standard Oil Company of Ohio was a party to the same, but also because the agreement in and of itself was in restraint of trade and amounted to the creation of an unlawful monopoly. It was alleged that shortly after this decision, seemingly for the purpose of complying therewith, voluntary proceedings were had apparently to dissolve the trust, but that these proceedings were a subterfuge and a sham because they simply amounted to a transfer of the stock held by the trust in sixty-four of the companies which it controlled to some of the remaining twenty companies, it having controlled before the decree eighty-four in all, thereby, while seemingly in part giving up its dominion, yet in reality preserving the same by means of the control of the companies as to which it had retained complete authority. It was charged that especially was this the case, as the stock in the companies selected for transfer was virtually owned by the nine trustees or the members of their immediate families or associates. The bill further alleged that in 1897 the attorney-general of Ohio instituted contempt proceedings in the quo warranto case based upon the claim that the trust had not been dissolved as required by the decree in that case. About the same time also proceedings in quo warranto were commenced to forfeit the charter of a pipe line known as the Buckeye Pipe Line company, an Ohio corporation, whose stock, it was alleged, was owned by the members of the combination, on the ground of its connection with the trust which had been held to be illegal.

The result of these proceedings, the bill charged, caused a resort to the alleged wrongful acts asserted to have been committed during the third period, as follows:

"That during the third period of said conspiracy and its pursuance thereof the said individual defendants operated through the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, as a holding corporation, which corporation obtained and acquired the majority of the stocks of the various corporations engaged in purchasing, transporting, refining, shipping and selling oil into and among the various states and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia and with foreign nations, and thereby managed and controlled the same, in violation of the laws of the United States, as hereinafter more particularly alleged."

It was alleged that in or about the month of January, 1899, the individual defendants caused the charter of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to be amended:

"So that the business and objects of said company were stated as follows, to wit: 'To do all kinds of mining, manufacturing and trading business; transporting goods and merchandise by land or water in any manner; to buy, sell, lease and improve land; build houses, structures, vessels, cars, wharves, docks and piers; to lay and operate pipe lines; to erect lines for conducting electricity; to enter into and carry out contracts of every kind pertaining to its business; to acquire, use, sell and grant licenses under patent rights; to purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, sell, assign and transfer shares of capital stock and bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of corporations and to exercise all the privileges of ownership, including voting upon the stock so held; to carry on its business and have offices and agencies therefor in all parts of the world, and to hold, purchase, mortgage and convey real estate and personal property outside the state of New Jersey.'

The capital stock of the company—which since March 19, 1892, had been $10,000,000—was increased to $110,000,000, and the individual defendants, as theretofore, continued to be a majority of the board of directors.

Without going into detail it suffices to say that it was alleged in the bill that shortly after these proceedings the trust came to an end, the stock of the various corporations which had been controlled by it being transferred by its holders to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which corporation issued therefor certificates of its common stock to the amount of $97,250,000. The bill contained allegations referring to the development of new oil fields, for example, in California, southeastern Kansas, northern Indian Territory and northern Oklahoma and made reference to the building or otherwise acquiring by the combination of refineries and pipe lines in the new fields for the purpose of restraining and monopolizing the interstate trade in petroleum and its products.

Reiterating in substance the averments that both the Standard Oil trust from 1852 to 1899 and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey since 1899 had monopolized and restrained interstate commerce in petroleum and its products, the bill at great length additionally sets forth various means by which during the second and third periods, in addition to the effect occasioned by the combination of alleged previously independent concerns, the monopoly and restraint complained of was continued. Without attempting to follow the elaborate averments on these subjects, spread over fifty-seven pages of the printed record, it suffices to say that such averments may properly be grouped under the following heads: Rebates, preferences and other discriminatory practices in favor of the combination by railroad companies; restraint and monopolization by control of pipe lines and unfair practices against competing pipe lines; contracts with competitors in restraint of trade; unfair methods of competition, such as local price cutting at the points where necessary to suppress competition; espionage of the business of competitors, the operation of bogus independent companies and payment of rebates on oil, with the like intent; the division of the United States into districts and the limiting of the operations of the various subsidiary corporations as to such districts so that competition in the sale of petroleum products between such corporations had been entirely eliminated and destroyed, and finally reference was made to what was alleged to be the "enormous and unreasonable profits" earned by the Standard Oil trust and the Standard Oil company as a result of the alleged monopoly, which presumably was averred as a means of reflexly inferring the scope and power acquired by the alleged combination.

Coming to the prayer of the bill, it suffices to say that in general terms the substantial relief asked was, first, that the combination in restraint of interstate trade and commerce and which had monopolized the same, as alleged in the bill, be found to have existence and that the parties thereto be perpetually enjoined from doing any further act to give effect to it; second, that the transfer of the stocks of the various corporations to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, as alleged in the bill, be held to be in violation of the first and second sections of the antitrust act, and that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey be enjoined and restrained from in any manner continuing to exert control over the subsidiary corporations by means of ownership of said stock or otherwise; third, that specific relief by injunction be awarded against further violation of the statute by any of the acts specifically complained of in the bill. There was also a prayer for general relief.

Of the numerous defendants named in the bill the Waters-Pierce Oil company was the only resident of the district in which the suit was commenced and the only defendant served with process therein. Contemporaneous with the filing of the bill the court made an order, under section 5 of the antitrust act, for the service of process upon all the other defendants wherever they could be found. Thereafter the various defendants unsuccessfully moved to vacate the order for service on nonresident defendants or filed pleas to the jurisdiction. Joint exceptions were likewise unsuccessfully filed, upon the ground of impertinence, to many of the averments of the bill of complaint, particularly those which related to acts alleged to have been done by the combination prior to the passage of the antitrust act and prior to the year 1899.

Certain of the defendants filed separate answers and a joint answer was filed on behalf of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and numerous of the other defendants. The scope of the answers will be adequately indicated by quoting a summary on the subject made in the brief for the appellants.

"It is sufficient to say that, whilst admitting many of the alleged acquisitions of property, the formation of the so-called trust of 1882, its dissolution in 1892 and the acquisition by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey of the stocks of the various corporations in 1899, they deny all the allegations respecting combinations or conspiracies to restrain or monopolize the oil trade, and particularly that of the so-called trust of 1882, or the acquisition of the shares of the defendant companies by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1899, was a combination of independent or competing concerns or corporations. The averments of the petitions respecting the means adopted to monopolize the oil trade are traversed either by a denial of the acts alleged or of their purpose, intent or effect."

On June 24, 1907, the cause being at issue, a special examiner was appointed to take the evidence and his report was filed March 22, 1909. It was heard on April 5 to 10, 1909, under the expediting act of Feb. 11, 1906, before a Circuit court consisting of four judges.

The court decided in favor of the United States. In the opinion delivered all the multitude of acts or wrongdoing charged in the bill were put aside, in so far as they were alleged to have been committed prior to the passage of the antitrust act, "except as evidence of their (the defendants') purpose, of their continuing conduct and of its effect." (173 fed. rep., 177.)

By the decree which was entered it was adjudged that the combining of the stocks of various companies in the hands of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1899 constituted a combination in restraint of trade and also an attempt to monopolize and a monopolization under section 2 of the antitrust act. The decree was against seven individual defendants, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, thirty-six domestic companies and one foreign company, which the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey controls by stock ownership; these thirty-eight corporate defendants being held to be parties to the combination found to exist.*

The bill was dismissed as to all other corporate defendants, thirty-three in number, it being adjudged by section 3 of the decree that they "have not been proved to be engaged in the operation or carrying out of the combination."†

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was enjoined from voting the stocks or exerting any control over the said thirty-seven subsidiary companies and the subsidiary companies were enjoined from paying any dividends as to the Standard company, or permitting it to exercise any control over them by virtue of the stock ownership or power acquired by means of the combination. The individuals and corporations were also enjoined from entering into or carrying into effect any like combination which would evade the decree. Further, the individual defendants, the Standard company and the thirty-seven subsidiary corporations were enjoined from engaging or continuing in interstate commerce in petroleum or its products during the continuance of the illegal combination.

*Counsel for appellants says: "Of the thirty-eight (thirty-seven) corporate defendants named in section 2 of the decree and as to which the judgment of the court applies, four have not appealed, to wit: Corsicana Refining company, Manhattan Oil company, Security Oil company, Waters-Pierce Oil company and one, the Standard Oil Company of Iowa, has been liquidated and no longer exists."

†Of the dismissed defendants sixteen were natural gas companies and ten were companies which were liquidated and ceased to exist before the filing of the petition. The other dismissed defendants, seven in number, were: Florence Oil Refining company, United Oil company, Tidewater Oil company, Tidewater Pipe company (Ltd.), Platt & Washburn Refining company, Franklin Pipe company and the Pennsylvania Oil company.

At the outset a question of jurisdiction requires consideration, and we shall also as a preliminary dispose of another question to the end that our attention may be completely concentrated upon the merits of the controversy when we come to consider them.

First. We are of opinion that in consequence of the presence within the district of the Waters-Pierce Oil company the court, under the authority of section 5 of the antitrust act, rightly took jurisdiction over the cause and properly ordered notice to be served upon the nonresident defendants.

Second. The overruling of the exceptions taken to so much of the bill as counted upon facts occurring prior to the passage of the antitrust act—whatever may be the view as an original question of the duty to restrict the controversy to a much narrower area than that propounded by the bill—we think by no possibility in the present stage of the case can the action of the court be treated as prejudicial error justifying reversal. We say this because the court, as we shall do, gave no weight to the testimony adduced under the averments complained of except in so far as it tended to throw light upon the acts done after the passage of the antitrust act and the results of which it was charged were being participated in and enjoyed by the alleged combination at the time of the filing of the bill.

We are thus brought face to face with the merits of the controversy.

Both as to the law and as to the facts the opposing contentions pressed in the argument are numerous and in all their aspects are so irreconcilable that it is difficult to reduce them to some fundamental generalization, which by being disposed of would decide them all. For instance, as to the law. While both sides agree that the determination of the controversy rests upon the correct construction and application of the first and second sections of the antitrust act, yet the views as to the meaning of the act are as wide apart as the poles, since there is no real point of agreement on any view of the act. And this also is the case as to the scope and effect of authorities relied upon, even although in some instances one and the same authority is asserted to be controlling.

So also is it as to the facts. Thus, on one hand, with relentless pertinacity and minuteness of analysis, it is insisted that the facts establish that the assailed combination took its birth in a purpose to unlawfully acquire wealth by oppressing the public and destroying the just rights of others, and that its entire career exemplifies an inexorable carrying out of such wrongful intents, since, it is asserted, the pathway of the combination from the beginning to the time of the filing of the bill is marked with constant proofs of wrong inflicted upon the public and is strewn with the wrecks resulting from crushing out, without regard to law, the individual rights of others. Indeed, so conclusive, it is urged, is the proof on these subjects that it is asserted that the existence of the principal corporate defendant—the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey—with the vast accumulation of property which it owns or controls, because of its infinite potency for harm and the dangerous example which its continued existence affords, is an open and enduring menace to all freedom of trade and is a byword and reproach to modern economic methods. On the other hand, in a powerful analysis of the facts, it is insisted that they demonstrate that the origin and development of the vast business which the defendants control was but the result of lawful competitive methods, guided by economic genius of the highest order, sustained by courage, by a keen insight into commercial situations, resulting in the acquisition of great wealth, but at the same time serving to stimulate and increase production, to widely extend the distribution of the products of petroleum at a cost largely below that which would have otherwise prevailed, thus proving to be at one and the same time a benefaction to the general public as well as of enormous advantage to individuals. It is not denied that in the enormous volume of proof contained in the record in the period of almost a lifetime, to which that proof is addressed, there may be found acts of wrongdoing, but the insistence is that they were rather the exception than the rule and in most cases were either the result of too great individual zeal in the keen rivalries of business or of the methods and habits of dealing which, even if wrong, were commonly practiced at the time. And to discover and state the truth concerning these contentions both arguments call for the analysis and weighing, as we have said at the outset, of a jungle of conflicting testimony covering a period of forty years, a duty difficult to rightly perform and, even if satisfactorily accomplished, almost impossible to state with any reasonable regard to brevity.

Duly appreciating the situation just stated, it is certain that only one point of concord between the parties is discernible, which is, that the controversy in every aspect is controlled by a correct conception of the meaning of the first and second sections of the antitrust act. We shall therefore—departing from what otherwise would be the natural order of analysis—make this one point of harmony the initial basis of our examination of the contentions, relying upon the conception that by doing so some harmonious resonance may result adequate to dominate and control the discord with which the case abounds. That is to say, we shall first come to consider the meaning of the first and second sections of the antitrust act by the text, and after discerning what by that process appears to be its true meaning we shall proceed to consider the respective contentions of the parties concerning the act, the strength or weakness of those contentions, as well as the accuracy of the meaning of the act as deduced from the text in the light of the prior decisions of this court concerning it. When we have done this we shall then approach the facts. Following this course we shall make our investigation under four separate headings. First, the text of the first and second sections of the act originally considered and its meaning in the light of the common law and the law of this country at the time of its adoption; second, the contentions of the parties concerning the act and the scope and effect of the decisions of this court upon which they rely; third, the application of the statute to facts; and fourth, the remedy, in any, to be afforded as the result of such application.

First. The text of the act and its meaning. We quote the text of the first and second sections of the act, as follows:

"Section 1. Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

"Sec. 2. Every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court."

The debates show that doubt as to whether there was a common law of the United States which governed the subject in the absence of legislation was among the influences leading to the passage of the act. They conclusively show, however, that the main cause which led to the legislation was the thought that it was required by the economic condition of the times; that is, the vast accumulation of wealth in the hands of corporations and individuals, the enormous development of corporate organization, the facility for combination which such organizations afforded, the fact that the facility was being used and that combinations known as trusts were being multiplied, and the widespread impression that their power had been and would be exerted to oppress individuals and injure the public generally. Although debates may not be used as a means for interpreting a statute (United States vs. Trans-Missouri Freight association, 166 U. S., 318, and cases cited) that rule in the nature of things is not violated by resorting to debates as a means of ascertaining the environment at the time of the enactment of a particular law; that is, the history of the period when it was adopted.

There can be no doubt that the sole subject with which the first section deals is restraint of trade as therein contemplated, and that the attempt to monopolize and monopolization is the subject with which the second section is concerned. It is certain that those terms, at least in their rudimentary meaning, took their origin in the common law and were also familiar in the law of this country prior to and at the time of the adoption of the act in question.

We shall endeavor then first to seek their meaning, not by indulging in an elaborate and learned analysis of the English law and of the law of this country, but by making a very brief reference to the elementary and indisputable conceptions of both the English and American law on the subject prior to the passage of the antitrust act.

(a) It is certain that at a very remote period the words contract in restraint of trade in England came to refer to some voluntary restraint put by contract by an individual on his right to carry on his trade or calling. Originally all such contracts were considered to be illegal, because it was deemed they were injurious to the public as well as to the individuals who made them. In the interest of the freedom of individuals to contract this doctrine was modified so that it was only when a restraint by contract was so general as to be co-terminous with the kingdom that it was treated as void. That is to say, if the restraint was partial in its operation and was otherwise reasonable the contract was held to be valid:

(b) Monopolies were defined by Lord Coke as follows:

"A monopoly is an institution or allowance by the king by his grant, commission or otherwise to any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate or for the sole buying, selling, making, working or using of anything whereby any person or persons, body politic or corporate are sought to be restrained of any freedom or liberty that they had before or hindered in their lawful trade. (3 Inst., 131.)"

Hawkins thus defined them:

"A monopoly is an allowance by the king to a particular person or persons of the sole buying, selling, making, working or using of anything whereby the subject in general is restrained from the freedom of manufacturing or trading which he had before. (Haw. P. C. bk. 1 c. 79.)"

The frequent granting of monopolies and the struggle which led to a denial of the power to create them, that is to say, to the establishment that they were incompatible with the English constitution, is known to all and need not be reviewed. The evils which led to the public outcry against monopolies and to the final denial of the power to make them may be thus summarily stated: (1) The power which the monopoly gave to the one who enjoyed it to fix the price and thereby injure the public; (2) the power which it engendered of enabling a limitation on production, and (3) the danger of deterioration in quality of the monopolized article which it was deemed was the inevitable resultant of the monopolistic control over its production and sale. As monopoly, as thus conceived, embraced only a consequence arising from an exertion of sovereign power, no express restrictions or prohibitions obtained against the creation by an individual of a monopoly as such. But as it was considered, at least so far as the necessities of life were concerned, that individuals by the abuse of their right to contract might be able to usurp the power arbitrarily to enhance prices, one of the wrongs arising from monopoly, it came to be that laws were passed relating to offenses such as forestalling, regrating and engrossing, by which prohibitions were placed upon the power of individuals to deal under such circumstances and conditions as, according to the conception of the times, created a presumption that the dealings were not simply the honest exertion of one's right to contract for his own benefit unaccompanied by wrongful motive to injure others, but were the consequence of a contract or course of dealing of such a character as to give rise to the presumption of an intent to injure others through the means, for instance, of a monopolistic increase of prices. This is illustrated by the definition of engrossing found in the statute (5 and 6 Edw. VI., ch. 14) as follows:

"Whoever person or persons * * * shall engross or get into his or their hands by buying, contracting or promise-taking, other than by demise, grant or lease of land, or tithes, any corn growing in the fields, or any other corn or grain, butter, cheese, fish or other dead victual whatsoever, within the realm of England, to the intent to sell the same again shall be accepted, reputed and taken as an unlawful engrosser or engrossers."

As by the statutes providing against engrossing the quantity engrossed was not required to be the whole or a proximate part of the whole of an article, it is clear that there was a wide difference between monopoly and engrossing, etc. But as the principal wrong which it was deemed would result from monopoly—that is, an enhancement of the price—was the same wrong to which it was thought the prohibited engrossment would give rise, it came to pass that monopoly and engrossing were regarded as virtually one and the same thing. In other words, the prohibited act of engrossing because of its inevitable accomplishment of one of the evils deemed to be engendered by monopoly, came to be referred to as being a monopoly or constituting an attempt to monopolize. Thus Pollexfen, in his argument in East India company vs. Sandys (Skin., 165, 169), said:

"By common law he said that trade is free, and for that cited 3 Inst., 81; F. B., 65; 1 Roll., 4; that the common law is as much against 'monopoly' as 'engrossing,' and that they differ only that a 'monopoly' is by patent from the king, the other is by the act of the subject between party and party, but that the mischiefs are the same from both, and there is the same law against both. (Moore, 673; 11 Rep., 84.) The sole trade of anything is 'engrossing' ex rei natura, for whosoever hath the sole trade of buying and selling hath 'engrossed' that trade; and whosoever hath the sole trade to any country hath the sole trade of buying and selling the produce of that country at his own price, which is an 'engrossing.'"

And by operation of the mental process which led to considering as a monopoly acts which although they did not constitute a monopoly were thought to produce some of its baneful effects, so also because of the impediment or burden to the due course of trade which they produced, such acts came to be referred to as in restraint of trade. This is shown by my Lord Coke's definition of monopoly as being "an institution or allowance * * * whereby any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate are sought to be restrained of any freedom or liberty that they had before or hindered in their lawful trade." It is illustrated also by the definition which Hawkins gives of monopoly wherein it is said that the effect of monopoly is to restrain the citizen "from the freedom of manufacturing or trading which he had before." And see especially the opinion of Parker, C. J., in Mitchell vs. Reynolds (1711. 1 P. Williams, 181), where a classification is made of monopoly which brings it generally within the description of restraint of trade.

Generalizing these considerations the situation is this: (1) That by the common law monopolies were unlawful because of their restriction upon individual freedom of contract and their injury to the public; (2) that as to necessities of life the freedom of the individual to deal was restricted where the nature and character of the dealing was such as to engender the presumption of intent to bring about at least one of the injuries which it was deemed would result from monopoly, that is an undue enhancement of price; (3) that to protect the freedom of contract of the individual not only in his own interest, but principally in the interest of the common weal, a contract of an individual by which he put an unreasonable restraint upon himself as to carrying on his trade or business was void. And that at common law the evils consequent upon engrossing, etc., caused those things to be treated as coming within monopoly and sometimes to be called monopoly and the same considerations caused monopoly, because of its operation and effect, to be brought within and spoken of generally as impeding the due course of or being in restraint of trade.

From the development of more accurate economic conceptions and the changes in conditions of society it came to be recognized that the acts prohibited by the engrossing, forestalling, etc., statutes did not have the harmful tendency which they were presumed to have when the legislation concerning them was enacted, and therefore did not justify the presumption which had previously been deduced from them, but, on the contrary, such acts tended to fructify and develop trade. See the statutes of 12 George III., chapter 71, enacted in 1772, and statute of 7 and 8 Victoria, chapter 24, enacted in 1844, repealing the prohibitions against engrossing, forestalling, etc., upon the express ground that the prohibited acts had come to be considered as favorable to the development of and not in restraint of trade. It is remarkable that nowhere at common law can there be found a prohibition against the creation of monopoly by an individual. This would seem to manifest, either consciously or intuitively, a profound conception as to the inevitable operation of economic forces and the equipoise or balance in favor of the protection of the rights of individuals which resulted. That is to say, as it was deemed that monopoly in the concrete could only arise from an act of sovereign power and such sovereign power being restrained, prohibitions as to individuals were directed, not against the creation of monopoly, but were only applied to such acts in relation to particular subjects as to which it was deemed, if not restrained, some of the consequences of monopoly might result. After all, this was but an instinctive recognition of the truisms that the course of trade could not be made free by obstructing it, and that an individual's right to trade could not be protected by destroying such right.

From the review just made it clearly results that outside of the restrictions resulting from the want of power in an individual to voluntarily and unreasonably restrain his right to carry on his trade or business and outside of the want of right to restrain the free course of trade by contracts or acts which implied a wrongful purpose, freedom to contract and to abstain from contracting and to exercise every reasonable right incident thereto became the rule in the English law. The scope and effect of this freedom to trade and contract is clearly shown by the decision in Mogul Steamship company vs. McGregor (1891, A. C. 25). While it is true that the decision of the house of lords in the case in question was announced shortly after the passage of the antitrust act, it serves reflexly to show the exact state of the law in England at the time the antitrust statute was enacted.

In this country also the acts from which it was deemed there resulted a part, if not all, of the injurious consequences ascribed to monopoly came to be referred to as a monopoly itself. In other words, here, as had been the case in England, practical common sense caused attention to be concentrated not upon the theoretically correct name to be given to the condition or acts which gave rise to a harmful result, but to the result itself and to the remedying of the evils which it produced. The statement just made is illustrated by an early statute of the province of Massachusetts—that is, chapter 31 of the laws of 1778-79, by which monopoly and forestalling were expressly treated as one and the same thing.

It is also true that while the principles concerning contracts in restraint of trade—that is, voluntary restraint put by a person on his right to pursue his calling, hence only operating subjectively—came generally to be recognized in accordance with the English rule; it came, moreover, to pass that contracts or acts which it was considered had a monopolistic tendency, especially those which were thought to unduly diminish competition and hence to enhance prices—in other words, to monopolize—came also in a generic sense to be spoken of and treated as they had been in England, as restricting the due course of trade, and therefore as being in restraint of trade. The dread of monopoly as an emanation of governmental power, while it passed at an early date out of mind in this country, as a result of the structure of our government, did not serve to assuage the fear as to the evil consequences which might arise from the acts of individuals producing or tending to produce the consequences of monopoly. It resulted that treating such acts as we have said as amounting to monopoly, sometimes constitutional restrictions against legislative enactments or judicial decisions served to enforce and illustrate the purpose to prevent the occurrence of the evils recognized in the mother country as consequent upon monopoly, by providing against contracts or acts of individuals or combinations of individuals or corporations deemed to be conducive to such results. To refer to the constitutional or legislative provisions on the subject or the many judicial decisions which illustrate it would unnecessarily prolong this opinion. We append in the margin a note to treatises, etc., wherein are contained references to constitutional and statutory provisions and to numerous decisions, etc., relating to the subject.*

It will be found that as modern conditions arose the trend of legislation and judicial decision came more and more to adapt the recognized restrictions to new manifestations of conduct or of dealing which it was thought justified the inference of intent to do the wrongs which it had been the purpose to prevent from the beginning. The evolution is clearly pointed out in National Cotton Oil company vs. Texas (197 U. S., 115) and Shawnee Compress company vs. Anderson (209 U. S., 423), and, indeed, will be found to be illustrated in various aspects by the decisions of this court which have been concerned with the enforcement of the act we are now considering.

Without going into detail and but very briefly surveying the whole field, it may be, with accuracy, said that the dread of enhancement of prices and of other wrongs which it was thought would flow from the undue limitation on competitive conditions caused by contracts or other acts of individuals or corporations, led, as a matter of public policy, to the prohibition or treating as illegal all contracts or acts which were unreasonably restrictive of competitive conditions, either from the nature or character of the contract or act or from the surrounding circumstances were such as to justify the conclusion that they had not been entered into or performed with the legitimate purpose of reasonably forwarding personal interest and developing trade, but, on the contrary, were of such a character as to give rise to the inference or presumption that they had been entered into or done with the intent to do wrong to the general public and to limit the right of individuals, thus restraining the free flow of commerce and tending to bring about the evils, such as enhancement of prices, which were considered to be against public policy. It is equally true to say that the survey of the legislation in this country on this subject from the beginning will show, depending as it did upon the economic conceptions which obtained at the time when the legislation was adopted or judicial decision was rendered, that contracts or acts were at one time deemed to be of such a character as to justify the inference of wrongful intent which were at another period thought not to be of that character. But this again, as we have seen, simply followed the line of development of the law of England.

Let us consider the language of the first and second sections, guided by the principle that where words are employed in a statute which had at the time a well known meaning at common law or in the law of this country they are presumed to have been used in that sense unless the context compels to the contrary.

As to the first section, the words to be interpreted are: "Every contract or combination in the form of trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade of commerce * * * is hereby declared to be illegal." As there is no room for dispute that the statute was intended to formulate a rule for the regulation of interstate and foreign commerce, the question is what was the rule which it adopted?

*Purdy's Beach on Private Corporations, vol. 2, pp. 1403 et seq., chapter on Trusts and Monopolies; Cooke on Trade and Labor Combinations, App. II., pp. 194-195; Am. and Eng. Ency. Law, 2d ed., article "Monopolies and Trusts," pp. 844 et seq.

†Swearingen vs. United States (161 U. S., 446), United States vs. Wong Kim Ark (169 U. S., 649), Keck vs. United States (172 U. S., 446), Kepper vs. United States (195 U. S., 126).

In view of the common law and the law in this country as to restraint of trade, which we have reviewed, and the illuminating effect which that history must have under the rule to which we have referred, we think it results:

(a) That the context manifests that the statute was drawn in the light of the existing practical conception of the law of restraint of trade, because it groups as within that class, not only contracts which were in restraint of trade in the subjective sense, but all contracts or acts which theoretically were attempts to monopolize, yet which in practice had come to be considered as in restraint of trade in a broad sense.

(b) That in view of the many new forms of contracts and combinations which were being evolved from existing economic conditions, it was deemed essential by an all-embracing enumeration to make sure that no form of contract or combination by which an undue restraint of interstate or foreign commerce was brought about could save such restraint from condemnation. The statute under this view evidences the intent not to restrain the right to make and enforce contracts, whether resulting from combinations or otherwise, which did not unduly restrain interstate or foreign commerce, but to protect that commerce from being restrained by methods, whether old or new, which would constitute an interference that is an undue restraint.

(c) And as the contracts or acts embraced in the provision were not expressly defined, since the enumeration addressed itself simply to classes of acts, those classes being broad enough to embrace every conceivable contract or combination which could be made concerning trade or commerce or the subjects of such commerce and thus caused any act done by any of the enumerated methods anywhere in the whole field of human activity to be illegal if in restraint of trade, it inevitably follows that the provision necessarily called for the exercise of judgment which required that some standard should be resorted to for the purpose of determining whether the prohibitions contained in the statute had or had not in any given case been violated. Thus not specifying but indubitably contemplating and requiring a standard, it follows that it was intended that the standard of reason which had been applied at the common law and in this country in dealing with subjects of the character embraced by the statute, was intended to be the measure used for the purpose of determining whether in a given case a particular act had or had not brought about the wrong against which the statute provided.

And a consideration of the text of the second section serves to establish that it was intended to supplement the first and to make sure that by no possible guise could the public policy embodied in the first section be frustrated or evaded. The prohibitions of the second embrace "every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations * * *". By reference to the terms of section 8 it is certain that the word "person" clearly implies a corporation as well as an individual.

The commerce referred to by the words "in part" construed in the light of the manifest purpose of the statute has both a geographical and a distributive significance—that is, it includes any portion of the United States and any one of the classes of things forming a part of interstate or foreign commerce.

Undoubtedly, the words "to monopolize" and "monopolize" as used in the section reach every act bringing about the prohibited results. The ambiguity, if any, is involved in determining what is intended by monopolize. But this ambiguity is readily dispelled in the light of the previous history of the law of restraint of trade to which we have referred and the indication which it gives of the practical evolution by which monopoly and the acts which produce the same result as monopoly—that is, an undue restraint of the course of trade—all came to be spoken of as and to be, indeed, synonymous with restraint of trade. In other words, having by the first section forbidden all means of monopolizing trade—that is, unduly restraining it by means of every contract, combination, etc.—the second section seeks, if possible, to make the prohibitions of the act all the more complete and perfect by embracing all attempts to reach the end prohibited by the first section—that is, restraints of trade—by any attempt to monopolize or monopolization thereof, even although the acts by which such results are attempted to be brought about or are brought about be not embraced within the general enumeration of the first section. And, of course, when the second section is thus harmonized with and made, as it was intended to be, the complement of the first, it becomes obvious that the criteria to be resorted to in any given case for the purpose of ascertaining whether violations of the section have been committed is the rule of reason guided by the established law and by the plain duty to enforce the prohibitions of the act and thus the public policy which its restrictions were obviously enacted to subserve. And it is worthy of observation, as we have previously remarked concerning the common law, that although the statute, by the comprehensiveness of the enumerations embodied in both the first and second sections, makes it certain that its purpose was to prevent undue restraints of every kind or nature, nevertheless, by the omission of any direct prohibition against monopoly in the concrete, it indicates a consciousness that the freedom of the individual right to contract, when not unduly or improperly exercised, was the most efficient means for the prevention of monopoly, since the operation of the centrifugal and centripetal forces resulting from the right to freely contract was the means by which monopoly would be inevitably prevented if no extraneous or sovereign power imposed it and no right to make unlawful contracts having a monopolistic tendency were permitted. In other words, that freedom to contract was the essence of freedom from undue restraint on the right to contract.

Clear as it seems to us is the meaning of the provisions of the statute, in the light of the review which we have made, nevertheless before definitely applying that meaning it behooves us to consider the contentions urged on one side or the other concerning the meaning of the statute, which, if maintained, would give to it in some aspects a much wider and in every view at least a somewhat different significance. And to do this brings us to the second question, which, at the outset, we have stated it was our purpose to consider and dispose of.

Second. The contentions of the parties as to the meaning of the statute and the decisions of this court relied upon concerning those contentions.

In substance, the propositions urged by the government are reducible to this: That the language of the statute embraces every contract, combination, etc., in restraint of trade, and hence its text leaves no room for the exercise of judgment, but simply imposes the plain duty of applying its prohibitions to every case within its literal language. The error involved lies in assuming the matter to be decided. This is true because, as the acts which may come under the classes stated in the first section and the restraint of trade to which that section applies are not specifically enumerated or defined, it is obvious that judgment must in every case be called into play in order to determine whether a particular act is embraced within the statutory classes and whether, if the act is within such classes, its nature or effect causes it to be a restraint of trade within the intentment of the act. To hold to the contrary would require the conclusion either that every contract, act or combination of any kind or nature, whether it operated a restraint on trade or not, was within the statute, and thus the statute would be destructive of all right to contract or agree or combine in any respect whatever as to subjects embraced in interstate trade or commerce, or if this conclusion were not reached, then the contention would require it to be held that as the statute did not define the things to which it related and excluded resort to the only means by which the acts to which it relates could be ascertained—the light of reason—the enforcement of the statute was impossible because of its uncertainty. The merely generic enumeration which the statute makes of the acts to which it refers and the absence of any definition of restraint of trade as used in the statute leaves room for but one conclusion, which is that it was expressly designed not to unduly limit the application of the act by precise definition, but while clearly fixing a standard—that is, by defining the ulterior boundaries which could not be transgressed with impunity—to leave it to be determined by the light of reason, guided by the principles of law and the duty to apply and enforce the public policy embodied in the statute in every given case, whether any particular act or contract was within the contemplation of the statute.

But, it is said, persuasive as these views may be, they may not be here applied, because the previous decisions of this court have given to the statute a meaning which expressly excludes the construction which must result from the reasoning stated. The cases are United States vs. Freight Association (166 U. S., 290) and United States vs. Joint Traffic Association (171 U. S., 505). Both the cases involved the legality of combinations or associations of railroads engaged in interstate commerce for the purpose of controlling the conduct of the parties to the association or combination in many particulars. The association or combination was assailed in each case as being in violation of the statute. It was held that they were. It is undoubted that in the opinion in each case general language was made use of which, when separated from its context, would justify the conclusion that it was decided that reason could not be resorted to for the purpose of determining whether the acts complained of were within the statute. It is, however, also true that the nature and character of the contract or agreement in each case was fully referred to and suggestions as to their unreasonableness pointed out in order to indicate that they were within the prohibitions of the statute. As the cases cannot by any possible conception be treated as authoritative without the certitude that reason was resorted to for the purpose of deciding them, it follows as a matter of course that it must have been held by the light of reason, since the conclusion could not have been otherwise reached, that the assailed contracts or agreements were within the general enumeration of the statute, and that their operation and effect brought about the restraint of trade which the statute prohibited. This being inevitable, the deduction can, in reason, only be this: That in the cases relied upon it having been found that the acts complained of were within the statute and operated to produce the injuries which the statute forbade, that resort to reason was not permissible in order to allow that to be done which the statute prohibited. This being true, the rulings in the cases relied upon, when rightly appreciated, were therefore this and nothing more: That as considering the contracts or agreements, their necessary effect and the character of the parties by whom they were made, they were clearly restraints of trade within the purview of the statute, they could not be taken out of that category by indulging in general reasoning as to the expediency or nonexpediency of having made the contracts or the wisdom or want of wisdom of the statute which prohibited their being made. That is to say, the cases but decided that the nature and character of the contracts, creating as they did a conclusive presumption which brought them within the statute, such result was not to be disregarded by the substitution of a judicial appreciation of what the law ought to be for the plain judicial duty of enforcing the law as it was made.

But aside from reasoning it is true to say that the cases relied upon do not when rightly construed sustain the doctrine contended for is established by all of the numerous decisions of this court which have applied and enforced the antitrust act, since they all in the very nature of things rest upon the premise that reason was the guide by which the provisions of the act were in every case interpreted. Indeed, intermediate the decision of the two cases—that is, after the decision in the freight association case and before the decision in the joint traffic case—the case of Hopkins vs. United States (171 U. S., 578) was decided, the opinion being delivered by Mr. Justice Peckham, who wrote both the opinions in the freight association and in the joint traffic cases. And, referring in the Hopkins case to the broad claim made as to the rule of interpretation announced in the freight association case, it was said (p. 592):

"To treat as condemned by the act all agreements under which, as a result, the cost of conducting an interstate commercial business may be increased would enlarge the application of the act far beyond the fair meaning of the language used. There must be some direct and immediate effect upon interstate commerce in order to come within the act."

And in the joint traffic case this statement was expressly reiterated and approved and illustrated by example; like limitation on the general language used in freight association and joint traffic cases is also the clear result of Bement vs. National Harrow Company (186 U. S., 70, 92), and especially of Cincinnati Packet Company vs. Bay (200 U. S., 179).

If the criterion by which it is to be determined in all cases whether every contract, combination, etc., is a restraint of trade within the intendment of the law, is the direct or indirect effect of the acts involved, then of course the rule of reason becomes the guide, and the construction which we have given the statute, instead of being refuted by the cases relied upon, is by those cases demonstrated to be correct. This is true, because as the construction which we have deduced from the history of the act and the analysis of its text is simply that, in every case where it is claimed that an act or acts are in violation of the statute the rule of reason, in the light of the principles of law and the public policy which the act embodies, must be applied. From this it follows, since that rule and the result of the test as to direct or indirect, in their ultimate aspect, come to one and the same thing, that the difference between the two is therefore only that which obtains between things which do not differ at all.

If it be true that there is this identity of result between the rule intended to be applied in the freight association case—that is, the rule of direct and indirect, and the rule of reason which, under the statute as we construe it, should be here applied—it may be asked how was it that in the opinion in the freight association case much consideration was given to the subject of whether the agreement or combination which was involved in that case could be taken out of the prohibitions of the statute upon the theory of its reasonableness? The question is pertinent and must be fully and frankly met, for if it be now deemed that the freight association case was mistakenly decided or too broadly stated, the doctrine which it announced should be either expressly overruled or limited.

The confusion which gives rise to the question results from failing to distinguish between the want of power to take a case which by its terms or the circumstances which surrounded it, considering among such circumstances the character of the parties, is plainly within the statute, out of the operation of the statute by resort to reason in effect to establish that the contract ought not to be treated as within the statute and the duty in every case where it becomes necessary from the nature and character of the parties to decide whether it was within the statute to pass upon that question by the light of reason. This distinction, we think, serves to point out what in its ultimate conception was the thought underlying the reference to the rule of reason made in the freight association case, especially when such reference is interpreted by the context of the opinion and in the light of the subsequent opinion in the Hopkins case and in Cincinnati Packet Company vs. Bay.

And in order not in the slightest degree to be wanting in frankness, we say that in so far, however, as by separating the general language used in the opinions in the freight association and joint traffic cases from the context and the subject and parties with which the cases were concerned, it may be conceived that the language referred to conflicts with the construction which we give the statute, they are necessarily now limited and qualified. We see no possible escape from this conclusion if we are to adhere to the many cases decided in this court in which the antitrust law has been applied and enforced and if the duty to apply and enforce that law in the future is to continue to exist. The first is true, because the construction which we now give the statute does not in the slightest degree conflict with a single previous case decided concerning the antitrust law aside from the contention as to the freight association and joint traffic cases, and because every one of those cases applied the rule of reason for the purpose of determining whether the subject before the court was within the statute. The second is also true, since, as we have already pointed out, unaided by the list of reasons it is impossible to understand how the statute may in the future be enforced and the public policy which it establishes be made efficacious.

So far as the objections of the defendants in error are concerned, they are all embraced under two headings:

(a) That the act, even if the averments of the bill be true, cannot be constitutionally applied because to do so would extend the power of congress to subject de hors the reach of its authority to regulate commerce, by enabling that body to deal with mere questions of production of commodities within the states. But all the structure upon which this argument proceeds is based upon the decision in United States versus E. C. Knight company (156 U. S., 1). The view, however, which the argument takes of that case and the arguments based upon that view have been so repeatedly pressed upon this court in connection with the interpretation and enforcement of the antitrust act, and have been so necessarily and expressly decided to be unsound as to cause the contentions to be plainly foreclosed and to require no express notice. United States vs. Northern Securities company (193 U. S., 334). Loewe vs. Lawler (208 U. S., 274), United States vs. Swift & Co. (196 U. S., 375), Montague vs. Lowry (193 U. S., 38), Shawnee Compress company vs. Anderson (209 U. S., 423).

(b) Many arguments are pressed in various forms of statement which in substance amount to contending that the statute cannot be applied under the facts of this case without impairing rights of property and destroying the freedom of contract or trade, which is essentially necessary to the well being of society and which it is insisted is protected by the constitutional guaranty of due process of law. But the ultimate foundation of all these arguments is the assumption that reason may not be resorted to in interpreting and applying the statute, and therefore that the statute unreasonably restricts the right to contract and unreasonably operates upon the right to acquire and hold property. As the premise is demonstrated to be unsound by the construction we have given the statute, of course the propositions which rest upon that premise need not be further noticed.

So far as the arguments proceed upon the contention that in view of the generality of the statute it is not susceptible of being enforced by the courts because it cannot be carried out without a judicial exertion of legislative power, they are clearly unsound. The statute certainly generically enumerates the character of acts which it prohibits and the wrong which it was intended to prevent. The propositions therefore but insist that consistently with the fundamental principles of due process of law ever can be left to the judiciary to decide whether in a given case particular acts come within a generic statutory provision. But to reduce the propositions, however, to this their final meaning makes it clear that in substance they deny the existence of essential legislative authority and challenge the right of the judiciary to perform duties which that department of the government has exerted from the beginning. This is so clear as to require no elaboration. Yet, let us demonstrate that which needs no demonstration by a few obvious examples. Take, for instance, the familiar cases where the judiciary is called upon to determine whether a particular act or acts are within a given prohibitory depending upon wrongful intent. Take questions of fraud. Consider the power which must be exercised in every case where the courts are called upon to determine whether particular acts are invalid which are, abstractly speaking, in and of themselves valid, but which are asserted to be invalid because of their direct effect upon interstate commerce.

We come, then, to the third proposition requiring consideration, viz:

Third. The facts and the application of the statute to them.

Beyond dispute, the proofs establish substantially as alleged in the bill the following facts:

(1) The creation of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

(2) The organization of the Standard Oil trust of 1882, and also a previous one of 1879, not referred to in the bill, and the proceedings in the Supreme court of Ohio, culminating in a decree based upon the finding that the company was unlawfully a party to that trust; the transfer by the trustees of stocks in certain of the companies; the contempt proceedings, and, finally, the increase of the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the acquisition by that company of the shares of the stock of the other corporations in exchange for its certificates.

The vast amount of property and the possibilities of far reaching control which resulted from the facts last stated are shown by the statement which we have previously annexed concerning the parties to the trust agreement of 1882, and the corporations whose stock was held by the trustees under the trust and which came therefore to be held by the New Jersey corporation. But these statements do not with accuracy convey an appreciation of the situation as it existed at the time of the entry of the decree below, since during the more than ten years which elapsed between the acquiring by the New Jersey corporation of the stock and other property which was formerly held by the trustees under the trust agreement, the situation, of course, had somewhat changed, a change which, when analyzed in the light of the proof, we think, establishes that the result of enlarging the capital stock of the New Jersey company and giving it the vast power to which we have referred produced its normal consequence; that is, it gave to the corporation, despite enormous dividends and despite the dropping out of certain corporations enumerated in the decree of the court below, an enlarged and more perfect sway and control over the trade and commerce in petroleum and its products. The ultimate situation referred to will be made manifest by an examination of sections 2 and 4 of the decree below, which are excerpted in the margin.*

Giving to the facts just stated the weight which it was deemed they were entitled to, in the light afforded by the proof of other cognate facts and

*Sec. 2. That the defendants, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, Henry M. Flagler, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt, hereafter called the seven individual defendants, united with the Standard Oil company and other defendants to form and effectuate this combination, and since its formation have been and still are engaged in carrying it into effect and continuing it; that the defendants Anglo-American Oil company (Inc.), Atlantic Refining company, Buckeye Pipe Line company, Breaux-Scrymser company, Chesborough Manufacturing company (consolidated), Cumberland Pipe Line company, Colonial Oil company, Continental Oil company, Crescent Pipe Line company, Henry C. Folger, Jr., and Calvin N. Payne (a copartnership doing business under the firm name and style of Corsicana Refining company), Eureka Pipe Line company, Galena Signal Oil company, Indiana Pipe Line company, Manhattan Oil company, National Transit company, New York Transit company, Northern Pipe Line company, Ohio Oil company, Prairie Oil & Gas company, Security Oil company, Solar Refining company, Southern Pipe Line company, South Penn Oil company, Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Lines company, Standard Oil Company of California, Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Standard Oil Company of Iowa, Standard Oil Company of Kansas, Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, Standard Oil Company of Nebraska, Standard Oil Company of New York, Standard Oil Company of Ohio, Swan & Finch company, Union Tank Line company, Vacuum Oil company, Washington Oil company, Waters-Pierce Oil company, have entered into and become parties to this combination and are either actively operating or aiding in the operation

circumstances, the court below held that the acts and dealings established by the proof operated to destroy the "potentiality of competition" which otherwise would have existed to such an extent as to cause the transfers of stock which were made to the New Jersey corporation and the control which resulted over the many and various subsidiary corporations to be a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade in violation of the first section of the act, but also to be an attempt to monopolize and a monopolization bringing about a perennial violation of the second section.

We see no cause to doubt the correctness of these conclusions, considering the subject from every aspect—that is, both in view of the facts established by the record and the necessary operation and effect of the law as we have construed it upon the inferences deducible from the facts—for the following reasons:

(a) Because the unification of power and control over petroleum and its products which was the inevitable result of the combining in the New Jersey corporation by the increase of its stock and the transfer to it of the stocks of so many other corporations, aggregating so vast a capital, gives rise, in and of itself, in the absence of countervailing circumstances, to say the least, to the prima facie presumption of intent and purpose to maintain the dominance over the oil industry, not as a result of normal methods of industrial development, but by new means of combination which were resorted to

of it; that by means of this combination the defendants named in this section have combined and conspired to monopolize, have monopolized and are continuing to monopolize a substantial part of the commerce among the states, in the territories and with foreign nations, in violation of section 2 of the antitrust act.

Sec. 4. That in the formation and execution of the combination or conspiracy the Standard company has issued its stock to the amount of more than $99,000,000 in exchange for the stocks of other corporations which it holds, and it now owns and controls all of the capital stock of many corporations, a majority of the stock or controlling interests in some corporations and stock in other corporations as follows:

in order that greater power might be added than would otherwise have arisen had normal methods been followed, the whole with the purpose of excluding others from the trade and thus centralizing in the combination a perpetual control of the movements of petroleum and its products in the channels of interstate commerce.

(b) Because the prima facie presumption of intent to restrain trade, to monopolize and to bring about monopolization resulting from the act of expanding the stock of the New Jersey corporation and vesting it with such vast control of the oil industry, is made conclusive by considering, (1) the conduct of the persons or corporations who were mainly instrumental in bringing about the extension of power in the New Jersey corporation before the consummation of that result, and prior to the formation of the trust agreements of 1879 and 1882; (2) by considering the proof as to what was done under those agreements and the acts, which immediately preceded the vesting of power in the New Jersey corporation, as well as by weighing the nodes in which the power vested in that corporation has been exerted and the results which have arisen from it.

Recurring to the acts done by the individuals or corporations who were mainly instrumental in bringing about the expansion of the New Jersey corporation during the period prior to the formation of the trust agreements of 1879 and 1882, including those agreements, not for the purpose of weighing

That the defendant National Transit company, which is owned and controlled by the Standard Oil company as aforesaid, owns and controls the amounts of the capital stocks of the following named corporations and limited partnerships stated opposite each, respectively, as follows:

That the Standard company has also acquired the control, by the ownership of its stock or otherwise, of the Security Oil company, a corporation created under the laws of Texas, which owns a refinery at Beaumont, in that state, and the Manhattan Oil company, a corporation which owns a pipe line situated in the states of Indiana and Ohio; that the Standard company and the corporations and partnerships named in section 2 are engaged in the various branches of the business of producing, purchasing and transporting petroleum in the principal oil producing districts of the United States, in New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas, Colorado and California, in shipping and transporting the oil through pipe lines owned or controlled by these companies from the various oil producing districts into and through other states, in refining the petroleum and manufacturing it into various products, in shipping the petroleum and the products thereof into the states and territories of the United States, the District of Columbia and to foreign nations, in shipping the petroleum and its products in tank cars owned or controlled by the subsidiary companies into various states and territories of the United States and into the District of Columbia, and in selling the petroleum and its products in various places in the states and territories of the United States, in the District of Columbia and in foreign countries; that the Standard company controls the subsidiary companies and directs the management thereof so that none of the subsidiary companies competes with any other of those companies or with the Standard company, but their trade is all managed as that of a single person.

the substantial merit of the numerous charges of wrongdoing made during such period, but solely as an aid for discovering intent and purpose, we think no disinterested mind can survey the period in question without being irresistibly driven to the conclusion that the very genius for commercial development and organization which it would seem was manifested from the beginning soon begot an intent and purpose to exclude others which was frequently manifested by acts and dealings wholly inconsistent with the theory that they were made with the single conception of advancing the development of business power by usual methods, but which, on the contrary, necessarily involved the intent to drive others from the field and to exclude them from their right to trade and thus accomplish the mastery, which was the end in view. And, considering the period from the date of the trust agreements of 1879 and 1882, up to the time of the expansion of the New Jersey corporation, the gradual extension of the power over the commerce in oil which ensued, the decision of the Supreme court of Ohio, the tardiness or reluctance in conforming to the commands of that decision, the method first adopted and that which finally culminated in the plan of the New Jersey corporation, all additionally serve to make manifest the continuing existence of the intent which we have previously indicated and which, among other things, impelled the expansion of the New Jersey corporation. The exercise of the power which resulted from that organization fortifies the foregoing conclusions, since the development which came, the acquisition here and there which ensued of every efficient means by which competition could have been asserted, the slow but resistless methods which followed by which means of transportation were absorbed and brought under control, the system of marketing which was adopted, by which the country was divided into districts and the trade in each district in oil was turned over to a designated corporation within the combination and all others were excluded, all lead the mind up to a conviction of a purpose and intent which we think is so certain as practically to cause the subject not to be within the domain of reasonable contention.

The inference that no attempt to monopolize could have been intended, and that no monopolization resulted from the acts complained of, since it is established that a very small percentage of the crude oil produced was controlled by the combination, is unwarranted. As substantial power over the crude product was the inevitable result of the absolute control which existed over the refined product, the monopolization of the one carried with it the power to control the other, and if the inferences which this situation suggests were developed, which we deem it unnecessary to do, they might well serve to add additional cogency to the presumption of intent to monopolize which we have found arises from the unquestioned proof on other subjects.

We are thus brought to the last subject which we are called upon to consider, viz:

Fourth. The remedy to be administered. It may be conceded that ordinarily where it was found that acts had been done in violation of the statute adequate measure of relief would result from restraining the doing of such acts in the future. (Swift versus United States, 96 U. S., 375). But in a case like this, where the condition which has been brought about in violation of the statute, in and of itself, is not only a continued attempt to monopolize, but also a monopolization, the duty to enforce the statute requires the application of broader and more controlling remedies. As penalties which are not authorized by law may not be inflicted by judicial authority, it follows that to meet the situation with which we are confronted the application of remedies twofold in character becomes essential: (1) To forbid the doing in the future of acts like those which we have found to have been done in the past which would be violative of the statute; (2) the exertion of such measure of relief as will effectually dissolve the combination found to exist in violation of the statute, and thus neutralize the extension and continually operating force which the possession of the power unlawfully obtained has brought and will continue to bring about.

In applying remedies for this purpose, however, the fact must not be overlooked that injury to the public by the prevention of an undue restraint on or the monopolization of trade or commerce is the foundation upon which the prohibitions of the statute rest, and, moreover, that one of the fundamental purposes of the statute is to protect, not to destroy, rights of property.

Let us then, as a means of accurately determining what relief we are to afford, first come to consider what relief was afforded by the court below, in order to fix how far it is necessary to take from or add to that relief, to the end that the prohibitions of the statute may have complete and operative force.

The court below by virtue of sections 1, 2 and 4 of its decree, which we have in part previously excerpted in the margin, adjudged that the New Jersey corporation in so far as it held the stock of the various corporations, recited in sections 2 and 4 of the decree, or controlled the same, was a combination in violation of the first section of the act, and an attempt to monopolize or a monopolization contrary to the second section of the act. It commanded the dissolution of the combination and therefore, in effect, directed the transfer by the New Jersey corporation back to the stockholders of the various subsidiary corporations entitled to the same of the stock which had been turned over to the New Jersey company in exchange for its stock. To make this command effective, section 5 of the decree forbade the New Jersey corporation from in any form or manner exercising any ownership or exerting any power directly or indirectly in virtue of its apparent title to the stocks of the subsidiary corporations, and prohibited those subsidiary corporations from paying any dividends to the New Jersey corporation or doing any act which would recognize further power in that company, except to the extent that it was necessary to enable that company to transfer the stock. So far as the owners of the stock of the subsidiary corporations and the corporations themselves were concerned after the stock had been transferred, section 6 of the decree enjoined them from in any way conspiring or combining to violate the act or to monopolize or attempt to monopolize in virtue of their ownership of the stock transferred to them, and prohibited all agreements between the subsidiary corporations or other stockholders in the future, tending to produce or bring about further violations of the act.

By section 7, pending the accomplishment of the dissolution of the combination by the transfer of stock and until it was consummated, the defendants named in section 1, constituting all the corporations to which we have referred, were enjoined from engaging in or carrying on interstate commerce. And by section 9, among other things, a delay of thirty days was granted for the carrying into effect of the direction of the decree.

So far as the decree held that the ownership of the stock of the New Jersey corporation constituted a combination in violation of the first section and an attempt to create a monopoly or to monopolize under the second section and commanded the dissolution of the combination, the decree was clearly appropriate. And this also is true of section 5 of the decree which restrained both the New Jersey corporation and the subsidiary corporations from doing anything which would recognize or give effect to further ownership in the New Jersey corporation of the stocks which were ordered to be transferred.

But the contention is that, in so far as the relief by way of injunction which was awarded by section 6 against the stockholders of the subsidiary corporations or the subsidiary corporations themselves after the transfer of stock by the New Jersey corporation was completed in conformity to the decree, that the relief awarded was too broad: (a) Because it was not sufficiently specific and tended to cause those who were within the embrace of the order to cease to be under the protection of the law of the land and required them to thereafter conduct their business under the jeopardy of punishments for contempt for violating a general injunction. (New Haven R. R. vs. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S., 404.) Besides it is said that the restraint imposed by section 6—even putting out of view the consideration just stated—was moreover calculated to do injury to the public, and it may be in and of itself to produce the very restraint on the due course of trade which it was intended to prevent. We say this since it does not necessarily follow because an illegal restraint of trade or an attempt to monopolize or a monopolization resulted from the combination and the transfer of the stocks of the subsidiary corporations to the New Jersey corporation that a like restraint or attempt to monopolize or monopolization would necessarily arise from agreements between one or more of the subsidiary corporations after the transfer of the stock by the New Jersey corporation. For illustration, take the pipe lines. By the effect of the transfer of the stock the pipe lines would come under the control of various corporations instead of being subjected to a uniform control. If various corporations owning the lines determined in the public interests to so combine as to make a continuous line, such agreement or combination would not be repugnant to the act, and yet it might be restrained by the decree.

As another example, take the Union Tank Line company, one of the subsidiary corporations, the owner practically of all the tank cars in use by the combination. If no possibility existed of agreements for the distribution of these cars among the subsidiary corporations, the most serious detriment to the public interest might result. Conceding the merit, abstractly considered, of these contentions, they are irrelevant. We so think, since we construe the sixth paragraph of the decree not as depriving the stockholders or the corporations, after the dissolution of the combination, of the power to make normal and lawful contracts or agreements, but as restraining them from, by any device whatever, recreating, directly or indirectly, the illegal combination which the decree dissolved. In other words, we construe the sixth paragraph of the decree not as depriving the stockholders or corporations of the right to live under the law of the land, but as compelling obedience to that law. As, therefore, the sixth paragraph as thus construed is not amenable to the criticism directed against it and cannot produce the harmful results which the arguments suggest, it was obviously right. We think that in view of the magnitude of the interests involved and their complexity that the delay of thirty days allowed for executing the decree was too short and should be extended so as to embrace a period of at least six months. So also, in view of the possible serious injury to result to the public from an absolute cessation of interstate commerce in petroleum and its products by such vast agencies as are embraced in the combination, a result which might arise from that portion of the decree which enjoined carrying on of interstate commerce not only by the New Jersey corporation, but by all the subsidiary companies until the dissolution of the combination by the transfer of the stocks in accordance with the decree, should not have been awarded.

Our conclusion is that the decree below was right and should be affirmed, except as to the minor matters concerning which we have indicated the decree should be modified. Our order will therefore be one of affirmance, with directions, however, to modify the decree in accordance with this opinion, the court below to retain jurisdiction to the extent necessary to compel compliance in every respect with its decree.

And it is so ordered.

JUSTICE HARLAN'S OPINION.

Mr. Justice Harlan, concurring in part and dissenting in part:

A sense of duty constrains me to express the objections which I have to certain declarations in the opinion just delivered on behalf of the court.

I concur in holding that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its subsidiary companies constitute a combination in restraint of interstate commerce and that they have attempted to monopolize and have monopolized parts of such commerce—all in violation of what is known as the antitrust act of 1890. (26 stat., 209, c. 647.) The evidence in this case overwhelmingly sustained that view and led the Circuit court, by its final decree, to order the dissolution of the New Jersey corporation and the discontinuance of the illegal combination between that corporation and its subsidiary companies.

In my judgment, the decree below should have been affirmed without qualification. But the court, while affirming the decree, directs some modifications in respect of what it characterizes as "minor matters." It is to be apprehended that those modifications may prove to be mischievous. In saying this I have particularly in view the statement in the opinion that "it does not necessarily follow that because an illegal restraint of trade or an attempt to monopolize or a monopolization resulted from the combination and the transfer of the stocks of the subsidiary corporations to the New Jersey corporation, that a like restraint of trade or attempt to monopolize or monopolization would necessarily arise from agreements between one or more of the subsidiary corporations after the transfer of the stock by the New Jersey corporation." Taking this language, in connection with other parts of the opinion, the subsidiary companies are thus, in effect, informed—unwisely, I think—that, although the New Jersey corporation, being an illegal combination, must go out of existence, they may join in an agreement to restrain commerce among the states if such restraint be not "undue."

In order that my objections to certain parts of the court's opinion may distinctly appear, I must state the circumstances under which congress passed the antitrust act and trace the course of judicial decisions as to its meaning and scope. This is the more necessary because the court, by its decision, when interpreted by the language of its opinion, has not only upset the long settled interpretation of the act, but has usurped the constitutional functions of the legislative branch of the government. With all due respect for the opinions of others, I feel bound to say that what the court has said may well cause some alarm for the integrity of our institutions. Let us see how the matter stands.

All who recall the condition of the country in 1890 will remember that there was everywhere among the people generally a deep feeling of unrest. The nation had been rid of human slavery—fortunately, as all now feel—but the conviction was universal that the country was in real danger from another kind of slavery sought to be fastened on the American people, namely, the slavery that would result from aggregations of capital in the hands of a few individuals and corporations controlling, for their own profit and advantage exclusively, the entire business of the country, including the production and sale of the necessities of life. Such a danger was thought to be then imminent, and all felt that it must be met firmly and by such statutory regulations as would adequately protect the people against oppression and wrong. Congress therefore took up the matter and gave the whole subject the fullest consideration. All agreed that the national government could not, by legislation, regulate the domestic trade carried on wholly within the several states; for power to regulate such trade remained with, because never surrendered by, the states. But, under authority expressly granted to it by the constitution, congress could regulate commerce among the several states and with foreign states. Its authority to regulate such commerce was and is paramount, due force being given to other provisions of the fundamental law devised by the fathers for the safety of the government and for the protection and security of the essential rights inhering in life, liberty and property.

Guided by these considerations and to the end that the people, so far as interstate commerce was concerned, might not be dominated by vast combinations and monopolies, having power to advance their own selfish ends, regardless of the general interests and welfare, congress passed the antitrust act of 1890 in these words (the italics here and elsewhere in this opinion are mine):

"Section 1. Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

or and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

"Sec. 2. Every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

"Sec. 3. Every contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce in any territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia, or in restraint of trade or commerce between any such territory or territories and any state or states or the District of Columbia, or with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states or foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court. (26 stat., 209, c. 647.)"

The important inquiry in the present case is as to the meaning and scope of that act in its application to interstate commerce.

In 1893 this court had occasion to determine the meaning and scope of the act in an important case known as the Trans-Missouri freight case. (166 U. S., 290.) The question there was as to the validity under the antitrust act of a certain agreement between numerous railroad companies, whereby they formed an association for the purpose of establishing and maintaining rates, rules and regulations in respect of freight traffic over specified routes. Two questions were involved: First, whether the act applied to railroad carriers; second, whether the agreement which was the basis of the suit which the United States brought to have the agreement annulled was illegal. The court held that railroad carriers were embraced by the act. In determining that question the court, among other things, said:

"The language of the act includes every contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations. So far as the very terms of the statute go, they apply to any contract of the nature described. A contract therefore that is in restraint of trade or commerce is by the strict language of the act prohibited, even though such contract is entered into between competing common carriers by railroad, and only for the purposes of thereby affecting traffic rates for the transportation of persons and property. If such an agreement restrains trade or commerce, it is prohibited by the statute, unless it can be said that an agreement, no matter what its terms, relating only to transportation cannot restrain trade or commerce. We see no escape from the conclusion that if an agreement of such a nature does restrain the agreement is condemned by this act."

"Nor is it for the substantial interests of the country that any one commodity should be within the sole power and subject to the sole will of one powerful combination of capital. Congress has, so far as its jurisdiction extends, prohibited all contracts or combinations in the form of trusts entered into for the purpose of restraining trade and commerce. * * * While the statute prohibits all combinations in the form of trusts or otherwise, the limitation is not confined to that form alone. All combinations which are in restraint of trade or commerce are prohibited, whether in the form of trusts or in any other form whatever." (U. S. vs. Freight association, 166 U. S., 290, 312, 321, 326.)"

The court then proceeded to consider the second of the above questions, saying:

"The next question to be discussed is as to what is the true construction of the statute, assuming that it applies to common carriers by railroad. What is the meaning of the language as used in the statute, that 'every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal?' Is it confined to a contract or combination which is only in unreasonable restraint of trade or commerce, or does it include what the language of the act plainly and in terms covers, all contracts of that nature? It is now with much amplification of argument urged that the statute in declaring illegal every combination in the form of trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce does not mean what the language used therein plainly imports, but that it only means to declare illegal any such contract which is in unreasonable restraint of trade, while leaving all others unaffected by the provisions of the act; that the common law meaning of the term 'contract in restraint of trade' includes only such contracts as are in unreasonable restraint of trade, and when that term is used in the federal statute it is not intended to include all contracts in restraint of trade, but only those which are in unreasonable restraint thereof. * * * By the simple use of the term 'contract in restraint of trade' all contracts of that nature, whether valid or otherwise, would be included, and not alone that kind of contract which was invalid and unenforceable as being in unreasonable restraint of trade. When, therefore, the body of an act pronounces as illegal every contract or combination in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states, etc., the plain and ordinary meaning of such language is not limited to that kind of contract alone which is in unreasonable restraint of trade, but all contracts are included in such language, and no exception or limitation can be added without placing in the act that which has been omitted by congress. * * *

If only that kind of contract which is in unreasonable restraint of trade be within the meaning of the statute, and declared therein to be illegal, it is at once apparent that the subject of what is a reasonable rate is attended with great uncertainty. * * * To say, therefore, that the act excludes agreements which are not in unreasonable restraint of trade and which tend simply to keep up reasonable rates for transportation is substantially to leave the question of unreasonableness to the companies themselves. * * * But assuming that agreements of this nature are not void at common law and that the various cases cited by the learned courts below show it, the answer to the statement of their validity now is to be found in the terms of the statute under consideration. * * * The arguments which have been addressed to us against the inclusion of all contracts in restraint of trade, as provided for by the language of the act, have been based upon the alleged presumption that congress, notwithstanding the language of the act, could not have intended to embrace all contracts, but only such contracts as were in unreasonable restraint of trade. Under these circumstances we are, therefore, asked to hold that the act of congress excepts contracts which are not in unreasonable restraint of trade, and which only keep rates up to a reasonable price, notwithstanding the language of the act makes no such exception. In other words, we are asked to read into the act by way of judicial legislation an exception that is not placed there by the lawmaking branch of the government, and this is to be done upon the theory that the impolicy of such legislation is so clear that it cannot be supposed congress intended the natural import of the language it used. This we cannot and ought not to do. * * *

"If the act ought to read as contended for by defendants, congress is the body to amend it and not this court, by a process of judicial legislation wholly unjustifiable. Large numbers do not agree that the view taken by defendants is sound or true in substance, and congress may and very probably did share in that belief in passing the act. The public policy of the government is to be found in its statutes, and when they have not directly spoken, then in the decisions of the courts and the constant practice of the government officials, but when the lawmaking power speaks upon a particular subject, over which it has constitutional power to legislate, public policy in such a case is what the statute enacts. If the law prohibit any contract or combination in restraint of trade or commerce, a contract or combination made in violation of such law is void, whatever may have been therefore decided by the courts to have been the public policy of the country on that subject. The conclusion which we have drawn from the examination above made into the question before us is that the antitrust act applies to railroads and that it renders illegal all agreements which are in restraint of trade or commerce as we have above defined that expression, and the question then arises whether the agreement before us is of that nature."

I have made these extended extracts from the opinion of the court in the Trans-Missouri freight case in order to show beyond question that the point was there urged by counsel that the antitrust act condemned only contracts, combinations, trusts and conspiracies that were in unreasonable restraint of interstate commerce, and that the court in clear and decisive language met that point. It adjudged that congress had in unequivocal words declared that "every contract, combination, in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of commerce among the several states" shall be illegal, and that no distinction, so far as interstate commerce was concerned, was to be tolerated between restraints of such commerce as were undue or unreasonable and restraints that were due or reasonable. With full knowledge of the then condition of the country, and of its business, congress determined to meet, and did meet, the situation by an absolute statutory prohibition of "every contract, combination, in the form of trust or otherwise, in restraint of trade or commerce." Still more in response to the suggestion by able counsel that congress intended only to strike down such contracts, combinations and monopolies as unreasonably restrained interstate commerce, this court, in words too clear to be misunderstood, said that to so hold was "to read into the act, by way of judicial legislation, an exception not placed there by the lawmaking branch of the government."

"This," the court said, as we have seen, "we cannot and ought not to do."

It thus appears that fifteen years ago, when the purpose of congress in passing the antitrust act was fresh in the minds of courts, lawyers, statesmen and the general public, this court expressly declined to indulge in judicial legislation by inserting in the act the word "unreasonable" or any other word of like import. It may be stated here that the country at large accepted this view of the act, and the federal courts throughout the entire country enforced its provisions according to the interpretation given in the freight association case. What, then, was to be done by those who questioned the soundness of the interpretation placed on the act by this court in that case? As the court had decided that to insert the word "unreasonable" in the act would be "judicial legislation" on its part, the only alternative left to those who opposed the decision in that case was to induce congress to so amend the act as to recognize the right to restrain interstate commerce to a reasonable extent. The public press, magazines and law journals, the debates in congress, speeches and addresses by public men and jurists, all contain abundant evidence of the general understanding that the meaning, extent and scope of the antitrust act had been judicially determined by this court, and that the only question remaining open for discussion was the wisdom of the policy declared by the act—a matter that was exclusively within the cognizance of congress. But at every session of congress since the decision of 1896, the lawmaking branch of the government, with full knowledge of that decision, has refused to change the policy it had declared or to so amend the act of 1890 as to except from its operation contracts, combinations and trusts that reasonably restrain interstate commerce.

But those who were in combinations that were illegal did not despair. They at once set up the baseless claim that the decision of 1896 disturbed the "business interests of the country," and let it be known that they would never be content until the rule was established that would permit interstate commerce to be subjected to reasonable restraints. Finally, an opportunity came again to raise the same question which this court had, upon full consideration determined in 1896. I now allude to the case of United States vs. Joint Traffic association (171 U. S., 505), decided in 1898. What was that case?

It was a suit by the United States against more than thirty railroad companies to have the court declare illegal, under the antitrust act, a certain agreement between these companies. The relief asked was denied in the subordinate federal courts and the government brought the case here.

It is important to state the points urged in that case by the defendant companies charged with violating the antitrust act and to show that the court promptly met them. To that end I make a copious extract from the opinion in the joint traffic case. Among other things, the court said:

"Upon comparing that agreement [the one in the joint traffic case, then under consideration, 171 U. S., 505] with the one set forth in the case of United States vs. Trans-Missouri Freight association (166 U. S., 290), the great similarity between them suggests that a similar result should be reached in the two cases (p. 558)."

Learned counsel in the joint traffic case urged a reconsideration of the question decided in the Trans-Missouri case, contending that "the decision in that case [the Trans-Missouri freight case] is quite plainly erroneous, and the consequences of such error are far reaching and disastrous and clearly at war with justice and sound policy, and the construction placed upon the antitrust statute has been received by the public with surprise and alarm. They suggested that the point made in the joint traffic case as to the meaning and scope of the act might have been but was not made in the previous case. The court said (171 U. S., 559) that "the report of the Trans-Missouri case clearly shows not only that the point now taken was there urged upon the attention of the court, but it was then intentionally and necessarily decided."

The question whether the court should again consider the point decided in the Trans-Missouri case was disposed of in the most decisive language, as follows:

"Finally, we are asked to reconsider the question decided in the Trans-Missouri case and to retrace the steps taken therein, because of the plain error contained in that decision and the widespread alarm with which it was received and the serious consequences which have resulted or may soon result from the law as interpreted in that case. It is proper to remark that an application for a reconsideration of a question but lately decided by this court is usually based upon a statement that some of the arguments employed on the original hearing of the question have been overlooked or misunderstood or that some controlling authority has been either misapplied by the court or passed over without discussion or notice. While this is not strictly an application for a rehearing in the same case, yet in substance it is the same thing. The court is asked to reconsider a question but just decided after a careful investigation of the matter involved. There have heretofore been in effect two arguments of precisely the same questions now before the court, and the same arguments were addressed to us on both those occasions. The report of the Trans-Missouri case shows a dissenting opinion delivered in that case, and that the opinion was concurred in by three other members of the court. That opinion, it will be seen, gives with great force and ability the arguments against the decision which was finally arrived at by the court. It was after a full discussion of the questions involved and with the knowledge of the views entertained by the minority, as expressed in the dissenting opinion, that the majority of the court came to the conclusion it did. Soon after the decision a petition for a rehearing of the case was made, supported by a printed argument in its favor, and pressed with an earnestness and vigor and at a length which were certainly commensurate with the importance of the case. This court, with care and deliberation and also with a full appreciation of their importance, again considered the questions involved in its former decision. A majority of the court once more arrived at the conclusion it had first announced, and accordingly it denied the application. And now for the third time the same arguments are employed and the court is again asked to recant its former opinion and to decide the same question in direct opposition to the conclusion arrived at in the Trans-Missouri case. The learned counsel while making the application frankly confess that the argument in opposition to the decision in the case above named has been so fully, so clearly and so forcibly presented in the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice White (in the freight case) that it is hardly possible to add to it, nor is it necessary to do so. The fact that there was so close a division of opinion in this court when the matter was first under advisement, together with the different views taken by some of the judges of the lower courts, led us to the most careful and scrutinizing examination of the arguments advanced by both sides, and it was after such an examination that the majority of the court came to the conclusion it did. It is not now alleged that the court on the former occasion overlooked any argument for the respondents or misapplied any controlling authority. It is simply insisted that the court, notwithstanding the arguments for an opposite view, arrived at an erroneous result which, for reasons already stated, ought to be reconsidered and reversed. As we have twice already deliberately and earnestly considered the same arguments which are now for a third time pressed upon our attention, it could hardly be expected that our opinion should now change from that already expressed."

These utterances, taken in connection with what was previously said in the Trans-Missouri freight case, show so clearly and affirmatively to admit of no doubt that this court many years ago, upon the fullest consideration, interpreted the antitrust act as prohibiting and making illegal not only every contract or combination, in whatever form, which was in restraint of interstate commerce, without regard to its reasonableness or unreasonableness, but all monopolies or attempt to monopolize "any part" of such trade or commerce. Let me refer to a few other cases in which the scope of the decision in the Freight association case was referred to. In Bement vs. National Harrow company (136 U. S., 70, 92) the court said, "It is true that it has been held by this court that the act (antitrust act) included any restraint of commerce, whether reasonable or unreasonable," citing United States vs. Trans-Missouri Freight association (166 U. S., 290), United States vs. Joint Traffic association (171 U. S., 505), Addyston Pipe, etc., company vs. United States (175 U. S., 211), in Montague vs. Lowry (193 U. S., 38, 46), which involved the validity, under the antitrust act, of a certain association formed for the sale of tiles, mantels and grates, the court, referring to the contention that the sale of tiles in San Francisco was so small "as to be a negligible quantity," held that the association was, nevertheless, a combination in restraint of interstate trade or commerce in violation of the antitrust act. In Loewe vs. Lawlor (208 U. S., 274, 297) all the members of this court concurred in saying that the Trans-Missouri, Joint Traffic and Northern Securities cases "hold in effect that the antitrust law has a broader application than the prohibition of restraints of trade unlawful at common law." In Shawnee Conspect company vs. Anderson (1907) (209 U. S., 423, 432) all the members of the court again concurred in declaring that "it has been decided that not only unreasonable but all direct restraints of trade are prohibited, the law being thereby distinguished from the common law." In United States vs. Addyston Pipe company (85 Fed. Rep., 278) Judge Taft, speaking for the Circuit Court of Appeals for the sixth circuit, said that according to the decision of this court in the Freight association case "contracts in restraint of interstate transportation were within the statute, whether the restraints could be regarded as reasonable at common law or not." In Chesapeake & Ohio Fuel company vs. United States (1902) (115 Fed. Rep., 610, 619) the Circuit Court of Appeals for the sixth circuit, after referring to the right of congress to regulate interstate commerce, thus interpreted the prior decisions of this court in the Trans-Missouri, the Joint Traffic and the Addyston Pipe and Steel company cases: "In the exercise of this right congress has seen fit to prohibit all contracts in restraint of trade. It has not left to the courts the consideration of the question whether such restraint is reasonable or unreasonable, or whether the contract would have been illegal at the common law or not. The act leaves for consideration by judicial authority no question of this character, but all contracts and combinations are declared illegal if in restraint of trade or commerce among the states."

As far back as Robbins vs. Shelby Taxing District (20 U. S., 489, 497) it was held that certain local regulations, subjecting drummers engaged in both interstate and domestic trade, could not be sustained by reason of the fact that no discrimination was made among citizens of the different states. The court observed that this did not meet the difficulty, for the reason that "interstate commerce cannot be taxed at all." Under this view congress no doubt acted, when by the antitrust act it forbade any restraint whatever upon interstate commerce. It manifestly proceeded upon the theory that interstate commerce could not be restrained at all by combinations, trusts or monopolies, but must be allowed to flow in its accustomed channels, wholly unvexed and unobstructed by anything that would restrain its ordinary movement. (See also Minnesota vs. Barber, 136 U. S., 313, 326; Brimmer vs. Rebman, 138 U. S., 78, 82, 83.)

In the opinion delivered on behalf of the minority in the Northern Securities case (193 U. S.) our present chief justice referred to the contentions made by the defendants in the Freight association case; namely, one of which was that the agreement there involved did not unreasonably restrain interstate commerce, and said:

"Both these contentions were decided against the association, the court holding that the antitrust act did embrace interstate carriage by railroad corporations, and as that act prohibited any contract in restraint of interstate commerce, it hence embraced all contracts of that character, whether they were reasonable or unreasonable."

One of the justices who dissented in the Northern Securities case in a separate opinion, concurred in by the minority, thus referred to the freight and joint traffic cases:

"For it cannot be too carefully remembered that that clause applies to 'every' contract of the forbidden kind—a consideration which was the turning point of the Trans-Missouri Freight association case. Size has nothing to do with the matter. A monopoly of 'any part' of commerce among the states is unlawful."

In this connection it may be well to refer to the adverse report made in 1909 by Senator Nelson on behalf of the senate judiciary committee in reference to a certain bill offered in the senate and which proposed to amend the antitrust act in various particulars. That report contains a full, careful and able analysis of judicial decisions relating to combinations and monopolies in restraint of trade and commerce. Among other things said in it which bear on the questions involved in the present case are these:

"The antitrust act makes it a criminal offense to violate the law and provides a punishment both by fine and imprisonment. To inject into the act the question of whether an agreement or combination is reasonable or unreasonable would render the act as a criminal or penal statute indefinite and uncertain, and hence, to that extent, utterly nugatory and void, and would practically amount to a repeal of that part of the act. * * * And while the same technical objection does not apply to civil prosecutions, the injection of the rule of reasonableness or unreasonableness would lead to the greatest variability and uncertainty in the enforcement of the law. The defense of reasonable restraint would be made in every case, and there would be as many different rules of reasonableness as cases, courts and juries. What one court or jury might deem unreasonable another court or jury might deem reasonable. A court or jury in Ohio might find a given agreement or combination reasonable, while a court and jury in Wisconsin might find the same agreement and combination unreasonable. In the case of the People vs. Sheldon (139 N. Y., 264) Chief Justice Andrews remarks: 'If agreements and combinations to prevent competition in prices are or may be hurtful to trade, the only sure remedy is to prohibit all agreements of that character. If the validity of such an agreement was made to depend upon actual proof of public prejudice or injury, it would be very difficult in any case to establish the invalidity, although the moral evidence might be very convincing.

* * * To amend the antitrust act, as suggested by this bill, would be an entirely emasculate it, and for all practical purposes render it nugatory as a remedial statute. Criminal prosecutions would not lie and civil remedies would labor under the greatest doubt and uncertainty. The act as it exists is clear, comprehensive, certain and highly remedial. It practically covers the field of federal jurisdiction, and is in every respect a model law. To destroy or undermine it at the present juncture, when combinations are on the increase, and appear to be as oblivious as ever of the rights of the public, would be a calamity."

"The result was the indefinite postponement by the senate of any further consideration of the proposed amendments of the antitrust act.

After what has been adjudged, upon full consideration, as to the meaning and scope of the antitrust act, and in view of the usages of this court when attorneys for litigants have attempted to reopen questions that have been deliberately decided, I confess to no little surprise as to what has occurred in the present case. The court says that in previous cases, above cited, "cannot by any possible conception be treated as authoritative without the certitude that reason was resorted to for the purpose of deciding them." And its opinion is full of intimations that this court proceeded in those cases, so far as the present question is concerned, without being guided by the "rule of reason" or "the light of reason." It is more than once intimated, if not suggested, that if the antitrust act is to be construed as prohibiting every contract or combination, of whatever nature, which is in fact in restraint of commerce, regardless of the reasonableness or unreasonableness of such restraint, that fact would show that the court had not proceeded, in its decision, according to "the light of reason," but had disregarded the "rule of reason." If the court, in those cases, was wrong in its construction of the act, it is certain that it fully apprehended the views advanced by learned counsel in previous cases and pronounced them to be untenable. The published reports place this beyond all question. The opinion of the court was delivered by a justice of wide experience as a judicial officer, and the court had before it the attorney-general of the United States and lawyers who were recognized on all sides as great leaders in their profession. The same eminent jurist who delivered the opinion in the Trans-Missouri case delivered the opinion in the Joint Traffic case, while the association in the latter case was represented by lawyers whose ability was universally recognized. Is it to be supposed that any point escaped notice in those cases when we think of the sagacity of the justice who expressed the views of the court or of the ability of the profound, astute lawyers, who sought such an interpretation of the act as would compel the court to insert words in the statute which congress had not put there, and the insertion of which words would amount to "judicial legislation"? Now this court is asked to do that which it has distinctly declared it could not and would not do, and has now done what it then said it could not constitutionally do. It has by mere interpretation modified the act of congress and deprived it of practical value as a defensive measure against the evils to be remedied. On reading the opinion just delivered in holding that the particular things done by the Standard Oil company and its subsidiary companies in this case were illegal under the antitrust act, whether those things were in reasonable or unreasonable restraint of interstate commerce, why was it necessary to make an elaborate argument, as is done in the opinion, to show that, according to the "rule of reason," the act as passed by congress should be interpreted as if it contained the word "unreasonable" or the word "undue"? The only answer which in frankness can be given to this question is that the court intends to decide that its deliberate judgment fifteen years ago to the effect that the act permitted no restraint whatever of interstate commerce, whether reasonable or unreasonable, was not in accordance with the "rule of reason." In effect the court says that it will now for the first time bring the discussion under the "light of reason" and apply the "rule of reason" to the questions to be decided. I have the authority of this court for saying that such a course of proceeding on its part would be "judicial legislation."

Still more, what is now done involves a serious departure from the settled usages of this court. Counsel have not ordinarily been allowed to discuss questions already settled by previous decisions. More than once at the present term that rule has been applied. In St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway company vs. Taylor (210 U. S. 231) the court had occasion to determine the meaning and scope of the original safety appliance act of congress passed for the protection of railroad employes and passengers on interstate trains. (27 Stat., 531.) A particular construction of that act was insisted upon by the interstate carrier which was sued under the safety appliance act, and the contention was that a different construction than the one insisted upon by the carrier would be a harsh one. After quoting the words of the act, Mr. Justice Moody said for the court:

"There is no escape from the meaning of these words. Explanation cannot clarify them and ought not to be employed to confuse them or lessen their significance. The obvious purpose of the legislature was to supplant the qualified duty of the common law with an absolute duty deemed by it more just. If the railroad does, in point of fact, use cars which do not comply with the standard, it violates the plain prohibitions of the law, and there arises from that violation the liability to make compensation to one who is injured by it. It is urged that this is a harsh construction. To this we reply that, if it be the true construction, its harshness is no concern of the courts. They have no responsibility for the justice or wisdom of legislation and no duty except to enforce the law as it is written, unless it is clearly beyond the constitutional power of the lawmaking body. * * * It is quite conceivable that congress, contemplating the inevitable hardship of such injuries, and hoping to diminish the economic loss to the community resulting from them, should deem it wise to impose their burdens upon those who could measurably control their causes, instead of upon those who are in the main helpless in that regard. Such a policy would be intelligible, and to say the least, not so unreasonable as to require us to doubt that it was intended and to seek some unnatural interpretation of common words. We see no error in this part of the case."

And at the present term of this court we were asked, in a case arising under the safety appliance act, to reconsider the question decided in the Taylor case. We declined to do so, saying in an opinion just now handed down:

"In view of these facts, we are unwilling to regard the question as to the meaning and scope of the safety appliance act, so far as it relates to automatic couplers on trains moving interstate traffic, as open to further discussion here. If the court was wrong in the Taylor case the way is open for such an amendment of the statute as congress may, in its discretion, deem proper. This court ought not now disturb what has been so widely accepted and acted upon by the courts as having been decided in that case. A contrary course would cause infinite uncertainty, if not mischief, in the administration of the law in the federal courts. To avoid misapprehension, it is appropriate to say that we are not to be understood as questioning the soundness of the interpretation heretofore placed by this court upon the safety appliance act. We only mean to say that until congress, by an amendment of the statute, changes the rule announced in the Taylor case, this court will adhere to and apply that rule. (Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway company vs. United States, 220 U. S.)"

When counsel in the present case insisted upon a reversal of the former rulings of this court, and asked such an interpretation of the antitrust act as would allow reasonable restraints of interstate commerce, this court, in deference to established practice, should, I submit, have said to them:

"That question, according to our practice, is not open for further discussion here. This court long ago deliberately held (1) that the act, interpreting its words in their ordinary acceptation, prohibits all restraints of interstate commerce by combinations in whatever form, and whether reasonable or unreasonable; (2) the question relates to matters of public policy in reference to commerce among the states and with foreign nations, and congress alone can deal with the subject; (3) this court would encroach upon the authority of congress if, under the guise of construction, it should assume to determine a matter of public policy; (4) the parties must go to congress and obtain an amendment of the antitrust act if they think this court was wrong in its former decisions, and (5) this court cannot and will not judicially legislate, since its function is to declare the law, while it belongs to the legislative department to make the law."

Such a course, I am sure, would not have offended the "rule of reason."

But my brethren, in their wisdom, have deemed it best to pursue a different course. They have now said to those who condemn our former decisions and who object to all legislative prohibitions of contracts, combinations and trusts in restraint of interstate commerce, "You may now restrain such commerce, provided you are reasonable about it; only take care that the restraint is not undue." The disposition of the case under consideration, according to the views of the defendants, will, it is claimed, quiet and give rest to "the business of the country." On the contrary, I have a strong conviction that it will throw the business of the country into confusion and invite widely extended and harassing litigation, the injurious effects of which will be felt for many years to come. When congress prohibited every contract, combination or monopoly in restraint of commerce, it prescribed a simple, definite rule that all could understand, and which could be easily applied by every one wishing to obey the law and not to conduct their business in violation of the law. But now, it is to be feared, we are to have in cases without number, the constantly recurring inquiry—difficult to solve by proof—whether the particular contract, combination or trust involved in each case is or is not an "unreasonable" or "undue" restraint of trade. Congress, in effect, said that there should be no restraint of trade, in any form, and this court solemnly adjudged many years ago that congress meant what it thus said in clear and explicit words, and that it could not add to the words of the act. But those who condemn the action of congress are now, in effect, informed that the courts will allow such restraints of interstate commerce as are shown not to be unreasonable or undue.

It remains for me to refer, more fully than I have heretofore done, to another, and, in my judgment—if we look to the future—the most important, aspect of this case. That aspect concerns the usurpation by the judicial branch of the government of the functions of the legislative department. The illustrious men who laid the foundations of our institutions deemed no part of the national constitution of more consequence or more essential to the permanency of our form of government than the provisions under which were distributed the powers of government among three separate, equal and co-ordinate departments—legislative, executive and judicial. This was at that time a new feature of governmental regulation among the nations of the earth, and it is deemed by the people of every section of our own country as most vital in the workings of a representative republic whose constitution was ordained and established in order to accomplish the objects stated in its preamble by the means, but only by the means, provided, either expressly or by necessary implication, by the instrument itself. No department of that government can constitutionally exercise the powers committed strictly to another and separate department.

I said at the outset that the action of the court in this case might well alarm thoughtful men who revered the constitution. I meant by this that many things are intimated and said in the court's opinion which will not be regarded otherwise than as sanctioning an invasion by the judiciary of the constitutional domain of congress—an attempt by interpretation to soften or modify what some regard as a harsh public policy. This court, let me repeat, solemnly adjudged many years ago that it could not, except by "judicial legislation," read words into the antitrust act not put there by congress and which, being inserted, give it a meaning which the words of the act, as passed, if properly interpreted, would not justify. The court has decided that it could not thus change a public policy formulated and declared by congress; that congress has paramount authority to regulate interstate commerce, and that it alone can change a policy once inaugurated by legislation. The courts have nothing to do with the wisdom or policy of an act of congress. Their duty is to ascertain the will of congress, and if the statute embodying the expression of that will is constitutional, the courts must respect it. They have no function to declare a public policy, nor to amend legislative enactments. "What is termed the policy of the government with reference to any particular legislation," as this court has said, "is generally a very uncertain thing, upon which all sorts of opinions, each variant from the other, may be formed by different persons. It is a ground much too unstable upon which to rest the judgment of the court in the interpretation of statutes." (Hadden vs. Collector, 5 Wall., 107.) Nevertheless, if I do not misapprehend its opinion, the court has now read into the act of congress words which are not to be found there, and has thereby done that which it adjudged in 1896 and 1898 could not be done without violating the constitution; namely, by interpretation of a statute changed a public policy declared by the legislative department.

After many years of public service at the national capital, and after a somewhat close observation of the conduct of public affairs, I am impelled to say that there is abroad in our land a most harmful tendency to bring about the amending of constitutions and legislative enactments by means alone of judicial construction. As a public policy has been declared by the legislative department in respect of interstate commerce, over which congress has the direct control, under the constitution, all concerned must patiently submit to what has been lawfully done, until the people of the United States—the source of all national power—shall, in their own time, upon reflection and through the legislative department of the government, require a change of that policy. There are some who say that it is a part of one's liberty to conduct commerce among the states without being subject to governmental authority. But that would not be liberty regulated by law, and liberty which cannot be regulated by law is not to be desired. The supreme law of the land—which is binding alike upon all—upon presidents, congresses, the courts and the people—gives to congress, and to congress alone, authority to regulate interstate commerce, and when congress forbids any restraint of such commerce, in any form, all must obey its mandate. To overreach the action of congress merely by judicial construction—that is, by indirection—is a blow at the integrity of our governmental system, and in the end will prove most dangerous to all. Mr. Justice Bradley wisely said, when on this bench, that illegitimate and unconstitutional practices get their first footing by silent approaches and slight deviations from legal moles of legal procedure. (Boyd vs. United States, 116 U. S., 616, 635.) We shall do well to heed the warnings of that great jurist.

I do not stop to discuss the merits of the policy embodied in the antitrust act of 1890; for, as has been often adjudged, the courts, under our constitutional system, have no rightful concern with the wisdom or policy of legislation enacted by that branch of the government which alone can make laws.

For the reasons stated, while concurring in the general affirmation of the decree of the Circuit court, I dissent from that part of the judgment of this court which directs the modification of the decree of the Circuit court, as well as from those parts of the opinion which, in effect, assert authority, in this court, to insert words in the antitrust act which congress did not put there, and which, being inserted, congress is made to declare, as part of the public policy of the country, what it has not chosen to declare.

SUPREME COURT DECISION IN THE TOBACCO TRUST CASE.

Following is the complete official text of the decision of the United States Supreme court in the case of the United States of America, appellant, against the American Tobacco company and others, delivered May 29, 1911, including the opinion of the court delivered by Mr. Chief Justice White and the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Harlan:

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Nos. 118 and 119—October term, 1910.

118—The United States of America, appellant, vs. the American Tobacco company and others.

119—The American Tobacco company and others, appellants, vs. the United States of America.

Appeals from the Circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

This suit was commenced on July 19, 1907, by the United States, to prevent the continuance of alleged violations of the first and second sections of the antitrust act of July 2, 1890. The defendants were twenty-nine individuals, named in the margin;* sixty-five American corporations, most of them created in the state of New Jersey, and two English corporations. For convenience of statement we classify the corporate defendants, exclusive of the two foreign ones, which we shall hereafter separately refer to, as follows: The American Tobacco company, a New Jersey corporation, because of its dominant relation to the subject matter of the controversy as the primary defendant, five other New Jersey corporations (viz., American Snuff company, American Cigar company, American Stogie company, MacAndrews & Forbes company and Conley Foll company), because of their relation to the controversy as the accessory, and the fifty-nine other American corporations as the subsidiary defendants.

The ground of complaint against the American Tobacco company rested not alone upon the nature and character of that corporation and the power which it exerted directly over the five accessory corporations and some of the subsidiary corporations by stock ownership in such corporations, but also upon the control which it exercised over the subsidiary companies by virtue of stock held in said companies by the accessory companies by stock ownership in which the American Tobacco company exerted its power of control. The accessory companies were impleaded either because of their nature and character or because of the power exerted over them through stock ownership by the American Tobacco company and also because of the power which they in turn exerted by stock ownership over the subsidiary corporations and finally the subsidiary corporations were impleaded either because of their nature or because of the control to which they were subjected in and by virtue of the stock ownership above stated. We append in the margin a statement showing the stock control exercised by the principal defendant, the American Tobacco company, over the five accessory corporations and also the authority which it directly exercised over certain of the subsidiary corporations, and a list showing the control exercised over the subsidiary corporations as a result of the stock ownership in the accessory corporations, they being in turn controlled, as we have said, by the principal defendant, the American Tobacco company.†

The two foreign corporations were impleaded either because of their nature and character and the operation and effect of contracts or agreements with the American Tobacco company or the power which it exerted over their affairs by stock ownership.

As we shall have occasion hereafter in referring to matters beyond dispute to set forth the main facts relied upon by the United States as giving rise to the cause of action alleged against all of the defendants it suffices at this moment to say that the bill averred the origin and nature of the American Tobacco company and the origin and na-be declared illegal and that injunctions issue restraining and prohibiting defendants from doing anything in pursuance of or in furtherance of the same within the jurisdiction of the United States.

"3. That the Imperial Tobacco company, its officers, agents and servants be enjoined from engaging in interstate or foreign trade and commerce within the jurisdiction of the United States until it shall cease to observe or act in pursuance of said agreements, contracts, combinations and conspiracies entered into by it and other defendants on or about Sept. 27, 1902, and thereafter, and evidenced among other things by the contracts of that date, exhibits 1 and 2 hereto.

"4. That the British-American Tobacco company be adjudged an unlawful instrumentality created solely for carrying into effect the objects and purposes of said contract, combination and conspiracy entered into on or about Sept. 27, 1902, and thereafter, and that it be enjoined from engaging in interstate or foreign trade and commerce within the jurisdiction of the United States.

"5. That the court adjudge the American Tobacco company, the American Snuff company, the American Cigar company, the American Stogie company, the MacAndrews & Forbes company and the Conley Foli company is each a combination in restraint of interstate and foreign trade and commerce, and that each has attempted and is attempting to monopolize, is in combination and conspiracy with other persons and corporations to monopolize and has monopolized part of the trade and commerce among the several states and with foreign nations, and order and decree that each one of them be restrained from engaging in interstate or foreign commerce, or, if the court should be of opinion that the public interests will be better subserved thereby, that receivers be appointed to take possession of all the property, assets, business and affairs of said defendants and wind up the same and otherwise take such course in regard thereto as will bring about conditions in trade and commerce among the states and with foreign nations in harmony with law.

"6. That the holding of stock by one of the defendant corporations in another under the circumstances shown be declared illegal and that each of them be enjoined from continuing to hold or own such shares in another and from exercising any right in connection therewith.

"7. That defendants, each and all, be enjoined from continuing to carry out the purposes of the above described contracts, combinations, conspiracies and attempts to monopolize by the means herein described, or by any other, and be required to desist and withdraw from all connection with the same.

"8. That each of the defendants be enjoined from purchasing leaf tobacco or from selling and distributing its manufactured output as a part of interstate and foreign trade and commerce in conjunction or combination with any other defendant, and from taking part or being interested in any agreement or combination intended to destroy competition among them in reference to such purchases or sales.

"9. That petitioner have such other, further, and general relief as may be proper."

As to the answers, it suffices to say that all the individual and corporate defendants other than the foreign corporations denied the charges of wrongdoing and illegal combination, and the corporate defendants in particular in addition averred their right under state charters by virtue of which they existed to own and possess the property which they held, and further averred that they were engaged in manufacturing, and that any combination amongst them related only to that subject, and therefore was not within the antitrust act. The two foreign corporations asserted the validity of their corporate organizations and of the assailed agreements, and denied any participation in the alleged wrongful combination.

After the taking of much testimony before a special examiner the case was heard before a court consisting of four judges, constituted under the expediting act of Feb. 11, 1903. In deciding the case in favor of the government, each of the four judges delivered an opinion. (164 Fed., 700.) A final decreed was entered on Dec. 15, 1908. The petition was dismissed as to the English corporations, three of the subsidiary corporations, the United Cigar Stores company and all the individual defendants. It was decreed that the defendants other than those against whom the petition was dismissed had theretofore entered into and were parties to combinations in restraint of trade, etc., in violation of the antitrust act, and said defendants and each of them, their officers, agents, etc., were restrained and enjoined "from directly or indirectly doing any act or thing whatsoever in furtherance of the objects and purposes of said combinations, and from continuing as parties thereto." It specifically found that each of the defendants "the American Tobacco company, American Snuff company, American Cigar company, American Stogie company and MacAndrews & Forbes company constitute and is itself a combination in violation of the said act of congress." The corporations thus named, their officers, etc., were next restrained and enjoined "from further directly or indirectly engaging in interstate or foreign trade and commerce in leaf tobacco, or the products manufactured therefrom, or articles necessary or useful in connection therewith. But if any of said last named defendants can hereafter affirmatively show the restoration of reasonably competitive conditions, such defendant may apply to this court for a modification, suspension or dissolution of the injunction herein granted against it." The decree then enumerated the various corporations which it was found held or claimed to own some or all of the capital stock of other corporations, and particularly specified such other corporations, and then made the following restraining provisions:

"Wherefore each and all of defendants, the American Tobacco company, the American Snuff company, the American Cigar company, P. Lorillard company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, Blackwell's Durham Tobacco company and Conley Foli company, their officers, directors, agents, servants and employees, are hereby restrained and enjoined from acquiring, by conveyance or otherwise, the plant or business of any such corporation wherein in any one of them now holds or owns stock; and each and all of said defendant corporations, not holding stock in other corporations, as above specified, their officers, directors, agents, servants and employees are further enjoined from voting or attempting to vote said stock at any meeting of the stockholders of the corporation issuing the same and from exercising or attempting to exercise any control, direction, supervision or influence whatsoever over the acts and doings of such corporation. And it is further ordered and decreed that each and every of the defendant corporations the stock of which is held by any other defendant corporation as heretofore shown, their officers, directors, servants and agents, be and they are hereby respectively and collectively restrained and enjoined from permitting the stock so held to be voted by any other defendant holding or claiming to own the same or by its attorneys or agents at any corporate election for directors or officers, and from permitting or suffering any other defendant corporation claiming to own or hold stock therein, or its officers or agents, to exercise any control whatsoever over its corporate acts."

Judgment for costs was given in favor of the petitioner and against the defendants as to whom the petition had not been dismissed, except the R. P. Richardson, Jr., & Co., a corporation, which had consented to the decree. The decree also contained a provision that the defendants or any of them should not be prevented "from the institution, prosecution or defense of any suit, action or proceeding to prevent or restrain the infringement of a trade mark used in interstate commerce or otherwise assert or defend a claim to any property or rights." In the event of a writ of habeas corpus or writ of certiorari to this court, the decree provided that the injunction which it directed "shall be suspended during the pendency of such appeal."

The United States appealed, as did also the various defendants against whom the decree was entered. For the government it is contended:

1. That the petition should not have been dismissed as to the individual defendants.

2. That it should not have been dismissed as to the two foreign corporations—the Imperial Tobacco company and the British-American Tobacco company and the domestic corporations controlled by the latter—and that, on the contrary, the decree should have commanded the observance of the antitrust act by the foreign corporations so far as their dealings in the United States were concerned, and should have restrained those companies from doing any act in the United States in violation of the antitrust act, whether or not the right to do said acts was asserted to have arisen pursuant to the contracts made outside of or within the United States.

3. The petition should not have been dismissed as to the United Cigar Stores company.

4. The final decree should have adjudged defendants parties to unlawful contracts and conspiracies.

5. The final decree should have adjudged that defendants were attempting to monopolize and had monopolized parts of commerce. More particularly, it is urged, it should have adjudged that the American Tobacco company, American Snuff company, American Cigar company, American Stogie company, MacAndrews & Forbes company, the Conley Foli company, and the British-American Tobacco company were severally attempting to monopolize and had monopolized parts of commerce, and that appropriate remedies should have been applied.

6. The decree was not sufficiently specific, since it should have described with more particularity the methods which the defendants had followed in forming and carrying out their unlawful purpose, and should have prohibited the resort to similar methods.

7. The decree should have specified the shares in corporations disclosed by the evidence to be owned by the parties to the conspiracy, and should have enjoined those parties from exercising any control over the corporations in which such stock was held, and the latter, if made defendant, from permitting such control, and should have also enjoined the collection of any dividends upon the stock.

8. The decree improperly provided that nothing therein should prevent defendants from prosecuting or defending suits; also improperly suspended the injunction pending appeal.

The defendants, by their assignments of errors, complain because the petition was not dismissed as to all, and more specifically (a) because they were adjudged parties to a combination in restraint of interstate and foreign commerce, and enjoined accordingly; (b) because certain defendant corporations holding shares in others were enjoined from voting them or exercising control over the issuing company, and the latter from permitting this, and (c) because the American Tobacco company, American Snuff company, American Cigar company, American Stogie company and the MacAndrews & Forbes company were adjudged unlawful combinations and restrained from engaging in interstate and foreign commerce.

The elaborate arguments made by both sides at bar present in many forms of statement the conflicting contentions resulting from the nature and character of the suit and the defense thereto, the decree of the lower court and the propositions assigned as error to which we have just referred. In so far as all or any of these contentions, as many of them in fact do, involve a conflict as to the application and effect of sections 1 and 2 of the antitrust act, their consideration has been greatly simplified by the analysis and review of that act and the construction affixed to the sections in question in the case of Standard Oil company et al. vs. United States, quite recently decided. In so far as the contentions relate to the disputed propositions of fact, we think, from the view which we take of the case, they need not be referred to, since in our opinion the case can be disposed of by considering only those facts which are indisputable and by applying to the inferences properly deducible from such facts the meaning and effect of the law as expounded in accordance with the previous decisions of this court.

We shall divide our investigation of the case into three subjects: First, the undisputed facts; second, the meaning of the antitrust law and its application as correctly construed to the ultimate conclusions of fact deducible from the proof; third, the remedies to be applied.

UNDISPUTED FACTS.

The matters to be considered under this heading, we think, can best be made clear by stating the merest outline of the condition of the tobacco industry prior to what is asserted to have been the initial movement in the combination which the suit assails, and in the light so afforded to briefly recite the history of the assailed acts and contracts. We shall divide the subject into two periods, (a) the one from the time of the organization of the first or old American Tobacco company in 1890, and the organization of the Continental Tobacco company, and (b) from the date of such organization to the filing of the bill in this case.

Summarizing in the broadest way the conditions which obtained prior to 1890, as to the production, manufacture and distribution of tobacco, the following general facts are adequate to portray the situation:

Tobacco was grown in many sections of the country having diversity of soil and climate, and therefore was subject to various vicissitudes resulting from the places of production, and consequently varied in quality. The great diversity of use to which tobacco was applied in manufacturing caused it to be that there was a demand for all the various qualities. The demand for all qualities was not local but widespread, extending as well to domestic as to foreign trade, and therefore all the products were marketed under different conditions of a peculiarly advantageous nature. The manufacture of the product in this country in various forms was successfully carried on by many individuals or concerns scattered throughout the country, a large number, perhaps, of the manufacturers being in the vicinage of production and others being advantageously situated in or near the principal markets of distribution.

Before January, 1890, five distinct concerns—Allen & Ginter, with factory at Richmond, Va.; W. Duke, Sons & Co., with factories at Durham, N. C., and New York city; Kinney Tobacco company, with factory at New York city; W. S. Kimball & Co., with factory at Rochester, N. Y.; Goodwin & Co., with factory at Brooklyn, N. Y.—manufactured, distributed and sold in the United States and abroad 95 per cent of all the domestic cigarette and less than 10 per cent of the smoking tobacco produced in the United States. There is no doubt that these factories were competitors in the purchase of the raw product which they manufactured and in the distribution and sale of the manufactured products. Indeed, it is shown that prior to 1890 not only had normal and ordinary competition existed between the factories in question, but that the competition had been fierce and abnormal. In January, 1890, having agreed upon a capital stock of $25,000,000, all to be divided amongst them, and who should be directors, the concerns referred to organized the American Tobacco company in New Jersey “for trading and manufacturing,” with broad powers, and conveyed to it the assets and businesses, including good will and right to use the names of the old concerns, and thereafter this corporation carried on the business of all. The $25,000,000 of stock of the tobacco company was allotted to the charter members as follows: Allen & Ginter, $3,000,000 preferred, $4,500,000 common; W. Duke, Sons & Co., $5,000,000 preferred, $4,500,000 common; Kinney Tobacco company, $2,000,000 preferred, $3,000,000 common; W. S. Kimball & Co., $1,000,000 preferred, $1,500,000 common, and Goodwin & Co., $1,000,000 preferred, $1,500,000 common.

There is a charge that the valuation at which the respective properties were capitalized in the new corporation was enormously in excess of their actual value. We, however, put that subject aside, since we propose only to deal with facts which are not in controversy.

Shortly after the formation of the new corporation the Goodwin & Co. factory was closed, and the directors ordered “that the manufacture of all tobacco cigarettes be concentrated at Richmond.” The new corporation, in 1890, the first year of its operation, manufactured about 2,500,000 cigarettes, that is about 96 or 97 per cent of the total domestic output, and about 5,500,000 pounds of smoking tobacco out of a total domestic product of nearly 70,000,000 pounds.

In a little over a year after the organization of the company it increased its capital stock by $10,000,000. The purpose of this increase is inferable from the considerations which we now state.

There was a firm known as Pfingst, Doerhoefer & Co., consisting of a number of partners, who had been long and successfully carrying on the business of manufacturing plug tobacco in Louisville, Ky., and distributing it through the channels of interstate commerce. In January, 1891, this firm was converted into a corporation known as the National Tobacco works, having a capital stock of $400,000, all of which was issued to the partners. Almost immediately thereafter, in the month of February, the American Tobacco company became the purchaser of all the capital stock of the new corporation, paying $600,000 cash and $1,200,000 in stock of the American Tobacco company. The members of the previously existing firm bound themselves by contract with the American Tobacco company to enter its service and manage the business and property sold, and each further agreed that for ten years he would not engage in carrying on, directly or indirectly, or permit or suffer the use of his name in connection with the carrying on of the tobacco business in any form.

In April following the American Tobacco company bought out the business of Philip Whitlock of Richmond, Va., who was engaged in the manufacture of cheroots and cigars, and with the exclusive right to use the name of Whitlock. The consideration for this purchase was $900,000. Whitlock agreed to become an employee of the American Tobacco company for a number of years and not to engage for twenty years in the tobacco business.

In the month of April the American Tobacco company also acquired the business of Marburg Bros., a well known firm located at Baltimore, Md., and engaged in the manufacture and distribution of tobacco, principally smoking and snuff. The consideration was a cash payment of $164,637.65 and stock to the amount of $2,075,000. The members of the firm also conveyed the right to the use of the firm name and agreed not to engage in the tobacco business for a lengthy period.

Again, in the same month, the American Tobacco company bought out a tobacco firm of old standing, also located in Baltimore, as G. W. Gail & A., engaged principally in manufacturing and selling smoking tobacco, buying with the business the exclusive right to use the name of the firm or the partners, and the members of the firm agreed not to engage in the tobacco business for a specified period. The consideration for this purchase was $77,552.66 in cash and stock to the amount of $1,760,000. The plant was abandoned soon after.

The result of these purchases was manifested at once in the product of the company for the year 1891, as will appear from a note in the margin.* It will be seen that as to cheroots, smoking tobacco, fine-cut tobacco, snuff and plug tobacco, the company had become a factor in all branches of the tobacco industry.

Referring to the occurrences of the year 1891 as in all respects typical of the occurrences which took place in all the other years of the first period—that is, during the years, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897 and 1898—we content ourselves with saying that it is undisputed that between February, 1891, and October, 1898, including the purchases which we have specifically referred to, the American Tobacco company acquired fifteen going tobacco concerns doing business in the states of Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New York, North Carolina and Virginia. For ten of the plants an all-cash consideration of $6,410,235.26 was paid, while the payments for the remaining five aggregated in cash $1,115,100.95 and in stock $4,123,000. It is worth noting that the last purchase, in October, 1898, was of the Drummond Tobacco company, a Missouri corporation dealing principally in plug, for which a cash consideration was paid of $3,457,500.

The corporations which were combined for the purpose of forming the American Tobacco company produced a very small portion of plug tobacco. That an increase in this direction was contemplated is manifested by the almost immediate increase of the stock and its use for the purpose of acquiring, as we have indicated, in 1891 and 1892, the ownership and control of concerns manufacturing plug tobacco and the consequent increase in that branch of production. There is no dispute that as early as 1893 the president of the American Tobacco company, by authority of the corporation, approached leading manufacturers of plug tobacco and sought to bring about a combination of the plug tobacco interests, and upon the failure to accomplish this ruinous competition by lowering the price of plug below its cost ensued. As a result of this warfare, which continued until 1898, the American Tobacco company sustained severe losses aggregating more than $4,000,000. The warfare produced its natural result, not only because the company acquired during the last two years of the campaign, as we have stated, control of important plug tobacco concerns, but others engaged in the industry came to terms. We say this, because in 1898, in connection with several leading plug manufacturers, the American Tobacco company organized a New Jersey corporation styled the Continental Tobacco company, for "trading and manufacturing," with a capital of $75,000,000, afterward increased to $100,000,000. The new company issued its stock and took transfers to the plants, assets and businesses of five large and successful competing plug manufacturers.†

The American Tobacco company also conveyed to this corporation, at large valuations, the assets, brands, real estate and good will pertaining to its plug tobacco business, including the National Tobacco works, the James G. Butler Tobacco company, Drummond Tobacco company and Brown Tobacco company, receiving as consideration $30,274,200 of stock (one-half common and one-half preferred), $300,000 cash and an additional sum for losses sustained in the plug business during 1898, $340,035. Mr. Duke, the president of the American Tobacco company, also became president of the Continental company.

Under the preliminary agreement which was made, looking to the formation of the Continental Tobacco company, that company acquired from the holders all the $3,000,000 of the common stock of the P. Lorillard company in exchange for $6,000,000 of its stock, and $1,581,300 of the $2,000,000 preferred in exchange for notes aggregating a sum considerably larger. The Lorillard company, however, although it thus passed practically under the control of the American Tobacco company by virtue of its ownership of stock in the continental company, was not liquidated, but its business continued to be conducted as a distinct corporation, its goods being marked and put upon the market, just as if they were the manufacture of an independent concern.

Following the organization of the Continental Tobacco company, the American Tobacco company increased its capital stock from $35,000,000 to $70,000,000 and declared a stock dividend of 100 per cent on its common stock—that is, a stock dividend of $21,000,000.

As the facts just stated bring us to the end of the first period which at the outset we stated it was our purpose to review, it is well briefly to point out the increase in the power and control of the American Tobacco company and the extension of its activities to all forms of tobacco products which had been accomplished just prior to the organization of the Continental Tobacco company. Nothing could show it more clearly than the following: At the end of the time the company was manufacturing 86 per cent or thereabouts of all the cigarettes produced in the United States, above 22 per cent of all the smoking tobacco, more than 26 per cent of all plug tobacco, 51 per cent of all little cigars, 6 per cent each of all snuff and fine cut tobacco and over 2 per cent of all cigars and cheroots.

A brief reference to the occurrences of the second period—that is, from and after the organization of the Continental Tobacco company up to the time of the bringing of this suit, will serve to make evident that the transactions in their essence had all the characteristics of the occurrences of the first period.

In the year 1899 and thereafter either the American or Continental company, for cash or stock, at an aggregate cost of $50,000,000 bought and closed up some thirty competing corporations and partnerships theretofore engaged in interstate and foreign commerce as manufacturers, sellers and distributors of tobacco and related commodities, the interested parties covenanting not to engage in the business. Likewise the two corporations acquired for cash, by issuing stock and otherwise, control of many competing corporations, now going concerns, with plants in various states, Cuba and Porto Rico, which manufactured, bought, sold and distributed tobacco products or related articles throughout the United States and foreign countries, and took from the parties in interest covenants not to engage in the tobacco business.

The plants thus acquired were operated until the merger in 1904, to which we shall hereafter refer, as a part of the general system of the American and Continental companies. The power resulting from and the purpose contemplated in making these acquisitions by the companies just referred to, however, may not be measured by considering alone the business of the company directly acquired, since some of those companies were made the vehicles as representing the American or Continental company for acquiring and holding the stock of other and competing companies, thus amplifying the power resulting from the acquisitions directly made by the American or Continental company, without ostensibly doing so. It is, besides, undisputed that in many instances the acquired corporations with the subsidiary companies over which they had control through stock ownership were carried on ostensibly as independent concerns disconnected from either the American or the Continental company, although they were controlled and owned by one or the other of these companies. Without going into details on these subjects, for the sake of brevity we append in the margin a statement of the corporations thus acquired, with the mention of the competing concerns which such corporations acquired.*

It is of the utmost importance to observe that the acquisitions made by the subsidiary corporations in some cases likewise show the remarkable fact

*Monopol Tobacco works (New York, N. Y.). Capital, $40,000; cigarettes and smoking tobacco. In 1899 the American Tobacco company acquired all the shares for $250,000, and it is now a selling agency.

Luhrman & Wilbern Tobacco company (Middletown, O.). Capital, $900,000; scrap tobacco. This business was formerly carried on by a partnership.

Mengel Box company (Louisville, Ky.). Capital, $2,600,000; boxes for packing tobacco. This company has acquired the stock ($150,000) of Columbia Box company and of Tyler Box company ($25,000), both at St. Louis.

The Porto Rican-American Tobacco company (Porto Rico). Capital, $1,799,000. In 1899 the American company caused the organization of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco company, which took over the partnership business of Rucabado y Portela, manufacturer of cigars and cigarettes, with covenants not to compete. The American Tobacco company and American Cigar company each hold $585,300 of the stock; the balance is in the hands of individuals.

Kentucky Tobacco Product company (Louisville, Ky.). Capital, $1,000,000. In 1899 the Continental company acquired control of the Louisville Spirit-Cured Tobacco company, engaged in curing and treating tobacco and utilizing the stems for fertilizers. By agreement, the Kentucky Tobacco Product company was organized in New Jersey, with $1,000,000 capital, $450,000 issued to the old stockholders and $550,000 to Continental company, as consideration for agreement to supply stems.

Golden Belt Manufacturing company (North Carolina). Capital, $700,000; cotton bags and containers. In 1899 the American Tobacco company acquired the business of this corporation, which was formed to take over a going business.

The Conley Foli company (New York). Capital, $825,000; tinfoil combination. In December, 1899, the American Tobacco company secured control of the business of John Conley & Son (partnership), New York, N. Y., manufacturers of tinfoil, an essential for packing tobacco products. By agreement the Conley Foli company was incorporated in New Jersey "for trading and manufacturing," etc., with $250,000 capital (afterward $375,000 and $825,000), which took over the firm's business and assets, etc., and the American Tobacco company became owner of the majority shares. The Conley Foli company has acquired all the stock of the Johnson Tinfoil and Metal company, a defendant, of St. Louis, a leading competitor, and they supply under fixed contracts the tinfoil used by defendants.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company (Winston Salem, N. C.). In 1899 the Continental Tobacco company acquired control of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, one of the largest manufacturers of plug—output in 1898, 6,000,000 pounds. By agreement, a new corporation (with same name) was organized in New Jersey and capitalized at $5,000,000 (afterward $7,525,000), which took over the business and assets of the old one. The Continental company immediately acquired the majority shares and the American company now holds $5,000,000 of stock. The separate organization has been preserved.

There was acquired in the name of the new Reynolds company, with covenants against competition, the following plants:

In 1900, T. L. Vaughn & Co., partnership of Winston, N. C., consideration $90,506; Brown Bros. company, a North Carolina corporation, Winston, N. C., consideration $67,615, and P. H. Hanes & Co. and B. F. Hanes & Co., Winston, N. C., partnership, consideration $671,950.

In 1905, Rucker & Witten Tobacco company, Martinsville, Va., consideration $512,898.

In 1906, D. H. Spencer & Co., Martinsville, Va., consideration $314,255.

(All of the foregoing plants were closed as soon as purchased.)

A majority of the $400,000 capital stock in the Lipfert-Seales company of Winston, N. C., a corporation largely engaged in the manufacture of plug tobacco and interstate and foreign commerce in leaf tobacco and its products, was acquired by the Reynolds company. The separate organization of the Lipfert-Seales company is preserved and the business carried on under its corporate name.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company also holds $98,300 stock of the MacAndrews & Forbes company and $9,600 of the Amsterdam Supply company.

Blackwell's Durham Tobacco company (Durham, N. C.). Capital, $1,090,000. In 1899 the American Tobacco company procured for $4,000,000 all the stock of Blackwell's Durham Tobacco company at Durham, N. C., manufacturer and distributor of tobacco products. Thereupon the Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Company of New Jersey, capital $1,000,000, all owned by the American, was organized and took over the assets of the old company, then stated above—that is, the disbursement of enormous amounts of money to acquire plants, which on being purchased were not utilized, but were immediately closed. It is also to be remarked that the facts stated in the memorandum in the margin show on their face a singular identity between the conceptions which governed the transactions of this latter period with those which evidently existed at the very birth of the original organization of the American Tobacco company, as exemplified by the transactions in the first period. A statement of particular transactions outside of those previously referred to as having occurred during the period in question will serve additionally to make the situation clear. And to accomplish this purpose we shall, as briefly as may be consistent with clarity, separately refer to the facts concerning the organization during the second period of the five corporations which were named as defendants in the bill, as heretofore stated and which for the purpose of designation we have hitherto classified as accessory defendants, such corporations being the American Snuff company, American Cigar company, American Stogie company, MacAndrews & Forbes company (licorice) and Conley Foli company.

(1) The American Snuff company—As we have seen, the American Tobacco company at the commencement of the first period produced a very small quantity of snuff. Its capacity, however, that regard was augmented owing particularly to the formation of the Continental Tobacco company and the acquisition of the Lorillard company, by which it came to be a serious factor as a snuff producer. There shortly ensued an aggressive competitor in the snuff business between the American Tobacco company, with the force acquired from the vantage ground resulting from the dominancy of its expanded organization, and others in the trade operating independently of that organization. The result was identical with that which had previously arisen from like conditions in the past.

In March, 1900, there was organized in New Jersey a corporation known as the American Snuff company, with a capital of $25,000,000, one-half preferred and one-half common, which took over the snuff business of the P. Lorillard company, Continental Tobacco company and the American Tobacco company, with that of a large competitor, viz., the Atlantic Snuff company. The stock of the new company was thus apportioned: Atlantic Snuff company, preferred $7,500,000, common $25,000,000; P. Lorillard company, preferred $1,124,700, common $3,459,400; the American Tobacco company, preferred $1,177,800, common $3,227,500; Continental Tobacco company, preferred $1,977,500, common $813,100. The stock issued to Continental Tobacco company and the defendants, P. Lorillard company and the American Tobacco company, is still held by the latter, and they have at all times had a controlling interest in the snuff company. All the companies, together with their officers and directors, covenanted that they would not thereafter engage as competitors in the tobacco business or the manufacture, sale or distribution of snuff.

Among the assets transferred to the Atlantic Snuff company from American Snuff company were all the shares ($600,000) of W. E. Garrett & Sons (Inc.), then and now one of the oldest and very largest producers of snuff, for a long time and still engaged at Yorkland, Del., in interstate and foreign commerce in tobacco and its products, and which controlled through stock ownership the Southern Snuff company, Memphis, Tenn.; Dental Snuff company, Lynchburg, Va., and Stewart-Ralph Snuff company, Clarksville, Tenn. The separate existence of W. E. Garrett & Sons (Inc.) has been preserved and its business conducted under the corporate name. In March, 1900, the American Snuff under receivership. Its separate organization has been preserved.

The Durham company has acquired control of the following competitors: Reynolds Tobacco company, K. R. Penz Tobacco company and Wells-Whitehead Tobacco company.

The following companies came also under the control of the American Tobacco company through acquired stock ownership.

S. Anargyros, Capital, $650,000; Turkish cigarettes. In 1890 the American Tobacco company pro-company acquired all the shares of George W. Helme company, one of the oldest and largest producers of snuff and actively engaged at Helmetta, N. J., in interstate and foreign commerce in competition with defendants, by issuing in exchange therefor $2,000,000 preferred stock and $1,000,000 common; and it thereafter took a conveyance of all assets of the acquired company and now operates the plant under its own name.

As a result of the transactions just stated, it came to pass that the American Tobacco company, which had at the end of the first period only a very small percentage of the snuff manufacturing business, came virtually to have the dominant control as a manufacturer of that product.

(2) Conley Foli company, manufacturers of tin-foil, an essential for packing tobacco products—In December, 1899, the American Tobacco company secured control of the business of John Conley & Sons, a partnership, of New York city. By agreement the Conley Foli company was incorporated in New York "for trading and manufacturing," etc., with $250,000 capital, ultimately increased to $255,000. The corporation took over the business and assets of the firm and the American Tobacco company became owner of a majority of the shares of stock. The Conley Foli company has acquired all the shares of stock of the Johnson Tinfoil & Metal company of St. Louis, a leading competitor, and they supply, under fixed contracts at remunerative prices, the tinfoil used by the defendants, which constitutes the major part of the total production in the United States.

(3) American Cigar company—Prior to 1901 the American and Continental Tobacco companies manufactured, sold and distributed cigars, stogies and cheroots. In the year stated the companies determined to engage in the business upon a larger scale. Under agreement with Powell, Smith & Co., large manufacturers and dealers in cigars, they caused the incorporation in New Jersey of the American Cigar company, "for trading and manufacturing," etc., to which all three conveyed their said business, and it has since carried on the same. The American and Continental companies each acquired 4 1/2 per cent of the shares and Powell, Smith & Co. 7 per cent; the original capitalization was $10,000,000 (afterwards $20,000,000), and more than three-fourths is owned by the former. The cigar company acquired many competitors (partnerships and corporations) engaged in interstate and foreign commerce, taking from the parties covenants against engaging in the tobacco business; and it has also procured the organization of controlled corporations which have acquired competing manufacturers, jobbers and distributors in the United States, Cuba and Porto Rico. It manufactures, sells and distributes a considerable percentage of domestic cigars; is the dominating factor in the tobacco business, foreign and domestic, in Cuba and Porto Rico, and is there engaged in tobacco planting. It also controls corporate jobbers in California, Alabama, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Louisiana, New Jersey and Tennessee.

(4) The MacAndrews & Forbes company, manufacturers of licorice—There is no question that licorice paste is an essential ingredient in the manufacture of plug tobacco, and that one who is debarred from obtaining such paste would therefore be unable to engage in or carry on the manufacture of such product. The control over this article was thus secured: In May, 1902, the Continental company secured control of MacAndrews & Forbes company of Newark, N. J., and organized "for trading and manufacturing" a corporation known as the MacAndrews & Forbes company, with a capital of $7,000,000, $4,000,000 preferred and $3,000,000 common, cured the organization of corporation of S. Anargyros, which took over that individual's going business and has since controlled it. Through this company the business in Turkish cigarettes is largely conducted.

The John Rollman company (San Francisco), Capital, $200,000; cigarettes. In 1900 the American Tobacco company procured organization of the John Rollman company, which took over the business of the former concern in exchange for stock. Its separate organization has been preserved.

which took over the business of MacAndrews & Forbes and another large competitor. The Continental company acquired two-thirds of the common stock by agreeing to purchase its supply of paste from the new company. The American Tobacco company, at the time of the filing of the bill, was the owner of $2,112,900 of the common stock and $750,000 preferred. By various purchases and agreements the MacAndrews & Forbes company acquired, substantially, the business of all competitors. Thus, in June, 1902, it purchased the business of the Stamford Manufacturing company of Stamford, Conn., and incorporated the National Licorice company, which acquired the business of Young & Smylie and F. B. & V. P. Scudder, and the National company agreed with MacAndrews & Forbes not to produce licorice for tobacco manufacturers. In 1906 all the stock in the J. S. Young company ($1,800,000), which had been organized to take over the business of the J. S. Young company of Baltimore, Md., was acquired by the MacAndrews & Forbes company. The MacAndrews & Forbes company use in excess of 95 per cent of the licorice root consumed in the United States.

(5) American Stogie company—In May, 1903, the American Cigar company and the American and Continental Tobacco companies caused the American Stogie company to be incorporated in New Jersey with $11,979,000 capital, which immediately took over the stogie and tobe business of the companies named in exchange for $5,206,275 stock, and then in the usual ways acquire the business of others in the manufacture, sale and distribution of such products, with covenants not to compete. It acquired, in exchange for $3,647,725 stock, all shares of United States Cigar company (which had previously acquired and owned the business of important competitors) and subsequently took the conveyance of the plant and assets. The majority shares always have been held by defendant, the American Cigar company.

As we think the legitimate inferences deducible from the undisputed facts which we have thus stated will be sufficient to dispose of the controversy, we do not deem it necessary to expand this statement so as to cause it to embrace a recital of the undisputed facts concerning the entry of the American Tobacco company into the retail tobacco trade through the acquisition of a controlling interest in the stock of what is known as the United Cigar Stores company, as well as to some other subjects which, for the sake of brevity, we likewise pass over in order to come at once to a statement concerning the foreign companies.

The English companies—In September, 1901, the American Tobacco company purchased for $5,347,000 a Liverpool (England) corporation known as Ogden's Limited, there engaged in manufacturing and distributing tobacco products. A trade conflict which at once ensued caused many of the English manufacturers to combine into an incorporation known as the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, capital $15,090,000, afterward increased to $18,000,000 sterling. The trade war was continued between this corporation and the American Tobacco company, with a result substantially identical with that which had hitherto, as we have seen, arisen from such a situation.

In September, 1902, the Imperial and the American companies entered into contracts (executed in England) stipulating that the former should limit its business to the united kingdom, except purchasing leaf in the United States (it buys 54,000,000 pounds annually); that the American companies should limit their business to the United States, its dependencies, and Cuba, and that the British-American Tobacco company, with capital of $6,000,000 apportioned between them, should be organized, take over the export business of both and operate in other countries, etc. This arrangement was immediately put into effect and has been observed.

The Imperial company holds one-third and the American company two-thirds of the capital stock of the British-American Tobacco company (Ltd.). The latter company maintains a branch office in New York city, and the vice-president of the American Tobacco company is a principal officer. This company uses large quantities of domestic leaf, partly manufactured at various plants abroad and about half manufactured here and then exported. By agreement all this is purchased through the American Tobacco company. In addition to many plants abroad, it has warehouses in various states and plants at Petersburg, Va., and Durham, N. C., where tobacco is manufactured and then exported. The purchase of necessary leaf tobacco in the United States by the Imperial company is now made through a resident general agent and is exported as a part of foreign commerce.

Not to break the continuity of the narrative of facts, we have omitted in the proper chronological order to state the facts relative to what was known as the Consolidated Tobacco company. We now particularly refer to that subject.

The Consolidated Tobacco company—In June, 1901, parties largely interested in the American and Continental companies caused the incorporation in New Jersey of the Consolidated Tobacco company, capital $30,000,000 (afterward $40,000,000), with broad powers and perpetuity, and guarantee securities throughout the world and to guarantee securities of other companies, etc. A majority of shares was taken by a few individuals connected with the old concerns: A. N. Brady, J. B. Duke, A. H. Payne, Thomas Ryan, W. C. Whitney and P. A. B. Widener. J. B. Duke, president of both the old companies, became president of the Consolidated. Largely in exchange for bonds the new company acquired substantially all the shares of common stock of the old ones. Its business of holding and financing was continued until 1904, when, with the American and Continental companies, it was merged into the present American Tobacco company.

By proceedings in New Jersey, October, 1904, the (old) American Tobacco company, Continental Tobacco company and Consolidated Tobacco company were merged into one corporation, under the name of the American Tobacco company, the principal defendant here. The merged company, with perpetual existence, was capitalized at $150,000,000 ($80,000,000 preferred, ordinarily without power to vote).

The powers conferred by the charter are stated in the margin.*

Prior to the merger the Consolidated Tobacco company, a majority of whose $40,000,000 share capital was held by J. B. Duke, Thomas F. Ryan, William C. Whitney, Anthony N. Brady, Peter A. B. Widener and Oliver H. Payne, had acquired, as already stated, nearly all common shares of both old American and Continental companies, and thereby control. The preferred shares, however, were held by many individuals. Through the method of distribution of the stock of the new company, in exchange for shares in the old American and in the Continental company it resulted that the same six men in control of the combination through the Consolidated Tobacco company continued that control by ownership of stock in the merged or new American Tobacco company. The assets, property, etc. of the old companies passed to the American Tobacco company (merged), which has since carried on the business.

The record indisputably discloses that after this merger the same methods which were used from the beginning continued to be employed. Thus, it

*To buy, manufacture, sell and otherwise deal in tobacco and the products of tobacco in any and all forms; * * * to guarantee dividends on any shares of the capital stock of any corporation in which said merged corporation has an interest as stockholder; * * * to carry on any business operations deemed by such merged corporation to be necessary or advisable in connection with any of the objects of its incorporation or in furtherance of any thereof, or tending to increase the value of its property or stock; * * * to conduct business in all other states, territories, possessions and dependencies of the United States of America and in all foreign countries; * * * to purchase or otherwise acquire and hold, sell, assign, transfer, mortgage, pledge or otherwise dispose of the shares of the capital stock or of any bonds, securities or other evidences of indebtedness created by any other corporation or corporations of this or any other state or government, and to issue its own obligations in payment or exchange therefor. * * *

is beyond dispute: First, that since the organization of the new American Tobacco company that company has acquired four large tobacco concerns; that restrictive covenants against engaging in the tobacco business were taken from the sellers and that the plants were not continued in operation, but were at once abandoned. Second, that the new company has, besides, acquired control of eight additional concerns, the business of such concerns being now carried on by four separate corporations, all absolutely controlled by the American Tobacco company, although the connection as to two of these companies with that corporation was long and persistently denied.

Thus, reaching the end of the second period and coming to the time of the bringing of the suit, brevity prevents us from stopping to portray the difference between the condition in 1890 when the (old) American Tobacco company was organized by the consolidation of five competing cigarette concerns and that which existed at the commencement of the suit. That situation and the vast power which the principal and accessory corporate defendants and the small number of individuals who own a majority of the common stock of the new American Tobacco company exert over the marketing of tobacco as a raw product, its manufacture, its marketing when manufactured and its consequent movement in the channels of interstate commerce, indeed relatively over foreign commerce and the commerce of the whole world in the raw and manufactured products, stand out in such bold relief from the undisputed facts which have been stated as to lead us to pass at once to the second fundamental proposition which we are required to consider—that is, the construction of the antitrust act and the application of the act as rightly construed to the situation as proven in consequence of having determined the ultimate and final inferences properly deducible from the undisputed facts which we have stated.

THE CONSTRUCTION AND APPLICATION OF THE ANTI-TRUST ACT.

If the antitrust law is applicable to the entire situation here presented and is adequate to afford complete relief for the evils which the United States insists that situation presents, it can only be because that law will have been a more comprehensive application than has been affixed to it in any previous decision. This will be the case because the undisputed facts as we have stated them involve questions as to the operation of the antitrust law not hitherto presented in any case. Thus, even if the ownership of stock by the American Tobacco company in the accessory and subsidiary companies and the ownership of stock in any of those companies among themselves were held, as was decided in the Standard Oil company case, to be a violation of the act and all relations resulting from such stock ownership were therefore set aside the question would yet remain whether the principal defendant, the American Tobacco company, and the five accessory defendants, even when divested of their stock ownership in other corporations, by virtue of the power which they would continue to possess, even although the stripped, would incur a violation of both the first and second sections of the act. Again if it were held that the corporations the existence whereof was due to a combination between such companies and other companies was a violation of the act, the question would remain whether such of the companies as did not owe their existence and power to combinations, but whose power alone arose from the exercise of the right to acquire and own property, would be amenable to the prohibitions of the act. Yet, further, even if this proposition was held in the affirmative, the question would remain whether the principal defendant, the American Tobacco company, when stripped of its stock ownership, would be in and of itself within the prohibitions of the act, although that company was organized and took being before the antitrust act was passed. Still further the question would yet remain whether particular corporations which when bereft of the power which they possessed as resulting from stock ownership, although they were not inherently possessed of a sufficient residuum of power to cause them to be in and of themselves either a restraint of trade or a monopolization or an attempt to monopolize, should nevertheless be restrained because of their intimate connection and association with other corporations found to be within the prohibitions of the act. The necessity of relief as to all these aspects, we think, seemed to the government so essential, and the difficulty of giving to the act such a comprehensive and coherent construction as would be adequate to enable it to meet the entire situation, led to what appears to us to be in their essence a resort to methods of construction not compatible one with the other. And the same apparent conflict is presented by the views of the act taken by the defendants when their contentions are accurately tested.

Thus the government, for the purpose of fixing the illegal character of the original combination which organized the old American Tobacco company, asserts that the illegal character of the combination is plainly shown because the combination was brought about to stay the progress of a flagrant and ruinous trade war. In other words, the contention is that as the act forbids every contract and combination it hence prohibits a reasonable and just agreement made for the purpose of ending a trade war. But as thus construing the act by the rule of the letter which kills would necessarily operate to take out of the reach of the act some of the accessory and many subsidiary corporations, the existence of which depends not at all upon combination or agreement or contract but upon mere purchases of property, it is insisted in many forums of argument that the rule of construction to be applied must be the spirit and intent of the act, and therefore its prohibitions must be held to extend to acts even if not within the literal terms of the statute if they are within its spirit, because done with an intent to bring about the harmful results which it was the purpose of the statute to prohibit. So as to the defendants. While it is argued on the one hand that the forms by which various properties were acquired in view of the letter of the act exclude many of the assailed transactions from condemnation, it is yet urged that giving to the act the broad construction which it should rightfully receive, whatever may be the form, no condemnation should follow, because looking at the case as a whole every act assailed is shown to have been but a legitimate and lawful result of the exertion of honest business methods brought into play for the purpose of advancing trade instead of with the object of obstructing and restraining the same. But the difficulties which arise, from the complexity of the particular dealings which are here involved and the situation which they produce, we think grows out of a plain misconception of both the letter and spirit of the antitrust act. We say of the letter, because while seeking by a narrow rule of the letter to include things which it is deemed would otherwise be excluded the contention really destroys the great purpose of the act, since it renders it impossible to apply the law to a multitude of wrongful acts, which would come within the scope of its remedial purposes by resort to a reasonable construction, although they would not be within its reach by a too narrow and unreasonable adherence to the strict letter. This must be the case unless it be possible to reason to say that for the purpose of including one class of acts which would not otherwise be embraced a literal construction, although in conflict with reason, must be applied, and for the purpose of including other acts which would not otherwise be embraced a reasonable construction must be resorted to. That is to say, two conflicting rules of construction must at one and the same time be applied and adhered to.

The obscurity and resulting uncertainty, however, is now but an abstraction, because it has been removed by the consideration which we have given quite recently to the construction of the antitrust act in the Standard Oil case. In that case it was held, without departing from any previous decision of the court, that as the statute had not defined the words "restraint of trade," it became necessary to construe those words, a duty which could only be discharged by a resort to reason. We say the doctrine thus stated was in accord with all the previous decisions of this court, despite the fact that the contrary view was sometimes erroneously attributed to some of the expressions used in two prior decisions. (Trans-Missouri Freight association and Joint Traffic cases, 166 U. S., 290, and 171 U. S., 505.) That such view was a mistaken one was fully pointed out in the Standard Oil case and is additionally shown by a passage in the opinion in the Joint Traffic case, as follows (171 U. S., 568): "The act of congress must have a reasonable construction or else there would scarcely be an agreement or contract among business men that could not be said to have, indirectly or remotely, some bearing on interstate commerce, and possibly to restrain it." Applying the rule of reason to the construction of the statute, it was held in the Standard Oil case that as the words "restraint of trade" at common law and in the law of this country at the time of the adoption of the antitrust act only embraced acts or contracts or agreements or combinations which operated to the prejudice of the public interests by unduly restricting competition or unduly obstructing the due course of trade or which, either because of their inherent nature or effect or because of the evident purpose of the acts, etc., injuriously restrained trade, that the words as used in the statute were designed to have and did have but a like significance. It was therefore pointed out that the statute did not forbid or restrain the power to make normal and usual contracts to further trade by resorting to all normal methods, whether by agreement or otherwise, to accomplish such purpose.

In other words, it was held not that acts which the statute prohibited could be removed from the control of its prohibitions by a finding that they were reasonable, but that the duty to interpret which inevitably arose from the general character of the term "restraint of trade" required that the words "restraint of trade" should be given a meaning which would not destroy the individual right to contract and render difficult if not impossible any movement of trade in the channels of interstate commerce—the free movement of which it was the purpose of the statute to protect. The soundness of the rule that the statute should receive a reasonable construction, after further mature deliberation, we see no reason to doubt. Indeed, the necessity for not departing in this case from the standard of the rule of reason which is universal in its application is so plainly required in order to give effect to the remedial purposes which the act under consideration contemplates, and to prevent that act from destroying all liberty of contract and all substantial right to trade, and thus causing the act to be at war with itself by annihilating the fundamental right of freedom to trade which, on the very face of the act, it was enacted to preserve, is illustrated by the record before us. In truth, the plain demonstration which this record gives of the injury which would arise from and the promotion of the wrong which the statute was intended to guard against which would result from giving to the statute a narrow, unreasoning and unheard of construction, as illustrated by the record before us, if possible serves to strengthen our conviction as to the correctness of the rule of construction, the rule of reason, which was applied in the Standard Oil case, the application of which rule to the statute we now, in the most unequivocal terms, re-express and reaffirm.

Coming then to apply to the case before us the act as interpreted in the Standard Oil and previous cases, all the difficulties suggested by the mere form in which the assailed transactions are clothed become of no moment. This follows because, although it was held in the Standard Oil case that, giving to the statute a reasonable construction, the words "restraint of trade" did not embrace all those normal and usual contracts essential to individual freedom and the right to make which was necessary in order that the course of trade might be free, yet, as a result of the reasonable construction which was affixed to the statute, it was pointed out that the generic designation of the first and second sections of the law, when taken together, embraced every conceivable act which could possibly come within the spirit or purpose of the prohibitions of the law, without regard to the garb in which such acts were clothed. That is to say, it was held that in view of the general language of the statute and the public policy which it manifested, there was no possibility of frustrating that policy by resorting to any disguise or subterfuge of form, since resort to reason rendered it impossible to escape by any indirection the prohibitions of the statute.

Considering, then, the undisputed facts which we have previously stated, it remains only to determine whether they establish that the acts, contracts, agreements, combinations, etc., which were assailed were of such an unusual and wrongful character as to bring them within the prohibitions of the law. That they were, in our opinion, so overwhelmingly, results from the undisputed facts that it seems only necessary to refer to the facts as we have stated them to demonstrate the correctness of this conclusion. Indeed, the history of the combination is so replete with the doing of acts which it was the obvious purpose of the statute to forbid, so demonstrative of the existence from the beginning of a purpose to acquire dominion and control of the tobacco trade, not by the mere exertion of the ordinary right to contract and to trade, but by methods devised in order to monopolize the trade by driving competitors out of business, which were ruthlessly carried out upon the assumption that to work upon the fears or play upon the cupidities of competitors would make success possible. We say these conclusions are inevitable, not because of the vast amount of property aggregated by the combination, not because alone of the many corporations which the proof shows were united by resort to one device or another. Again, not alone because of the dominion and control over the tobacco trade which actually exists, but because we think the conclusion of wrongful purpose and illegal combination so overwhelmingly established by the following considerations:

(a) By the fact that the very first organization or combination was impelled by a previously existing fierce trade war, evidently inspired by one or more of the minds which brought about and became parties to that combination.

(b) Because, immediately after that combination and the increase of capital which followed, the acts which ensued justify the inference that the intention existed to use the power of the combination as a vantage ground to further monopolize the trade in tobacco by means of trade confederacies designed to injure others, either by driving competitors out of the business or compelling them to become parties to a combination—a purpose whose execution was illustrated by the plug war which ensued and its results, by the snuff war which followed and its results and by the conflict which immediately followed the entry of the combination in England and the division of the world's business by the two foreign contracts which ensued.

(c) By the ever present manifestation which is exhibited of a conscious wrongdoing by the form in which the various transactions were embodied from the beginning, ever changing but ever in substance the same. Now the organization of a new company, now the control exerted by the taking of stock in one or another or in several, so as to obscure the result actually attained, nevertheless uniform, in their manifestations of the purpose to restrain others and to monopolize and retain power in the hands of the few who, it would seem, from the beginning contemplated the mastery of the trade which practically followed.

(d) By the gradual absorption of control over all the elements essential to the successful manufacture of tobacco products, and placing such control in the hands of seemingly independent corporations serving as perpetual barriers to the entry of others into the tobacco trade.

(e) By the persistent expenditure of millions upon the millions of dollars in buying out plants, not for the purposes of utilizing them but in order to close them up and render them useless for the purposes of trade.

(f) By the constantly recurring stipulations, whose legality, isolatedly viewed, we are not considering, by which numbers of persons, whether manufacturers, stockholders or employees, were required to bind themselves, generally for long periods, not to compete in the future. Indeed, when the results of the undisputed proof which we have stated are fully apprehended, and the wrongful acts which they exhibit are considered, there comes inevitably to the mind the conviction that it was the danger which it was deemed would arise to individual liberty and the public well-being from acts like those which this record exhibits, which led the legislative mind to conceive and to enact the antitrust act, considerations which also serve to clearly demonstrate that the combination here assailed is within the law as to leave no doubt that it is our plain duty to apply its prohibitions.

In stating summarily, as we have done, the conclusions which, in our opinion, are plainly deducible from the undisputed facts, we have not paused to give the reasons why we consider, after great consideration, that the elaborate arguments advanced to affix a different complexion to the case are wholly devoid of merit. We do not, for the sake of brevity, moreover, stop to examine and discuss the various propositions urged in the argument at bar for the purpose of demonstrating that the subject matter of the combination which we find to exist and the combination itself are not within the scope of the antitrust law, because when rightly considered they are merely matters of intrastate commerce, and therefore subject alone to state control. We have done this because the want of merit in all the arguments advanced on such subjects is so completely established by the prior decisions of this court, as pointed out in the Standard Oil case, as not to require restatement.

Leading as this does to the conclusion that the assailed combination in all its aspects—that is to say, whether it be looked at from the point of view of stock ownership or from the standpoint of the principal corporation and the accessory or subsidiary corporations viewed independently, including the foreign corporations in so far as by the contracts made by them they became co-operators in the combination—comes within the prohibitions of the first and second sections of the antitrust act, it remains only finally to consider the remedy which it is our duty to apply to the situation thus found to exist.

THE REMEDY.

Our conclusion being that the combination as a whole, involving all its co-operating or associated parts, in whatever form clothed, constitutes a restraint of trade within the first section, and an attempt to monopolize or a monopolization within the second section of the antitrust act, it follows that the relief which we are to afford must be wider than that awarded by the lower court, since that court merely decided that certain of the corporate defendants constituted combinations in violation of the first section of the act, because of the fact that they were formed by the union of previously competing concerns and that the other defendants not dismissed from the action were parties to such combinations or promoted their purposes. We hence, in determining the relief proper to be given, may not model our action upon that granted by the court below, but in order to enable us to award relief coterminous with the ultimate redress of the wrongs which we find to exist, we must approach the subject of relief from an original point of view. Such subject necessarily takes a twofold aspect—the character of the permanent relief required and the nature of the temporary relief essential to be applied pending the working out of permanent relief in the event that it be found that it is impossible under the situation as it now exists to at once rectify such existing wrongful condition. In considering the subject from both of these aspects three dominant principles must guide our action: (1) The duty of giving complete and efficacious effect to the prohibitions of the statute; (2) the accomplishing of this result with as little injury as possible to the interest of the general public, and (3) a proper regard for the vast interests of private property which may have become vested in many persons as a result of the acquisition either by way of stock ownership or otherwise of interests in the stock or securities of the combination without any guilty knowledge or intent in any way to become actors or participants in the wrongs which we find to have inspired and dominated the combination from the beginning. Mindful of these considerations and to clear the way for their application we say at the outset without stopping to amplify the reasons which lead us to that conclusion, we think that the court below clearly erred in dismissing the individual defendants, the United Cigar Stores company and the foreign corporations and their subsidiary corporations.

Looking at the situation as we have hitherto pointed it out, it involves difficulties in the application of remedies greater than have been presented by any case involving the antitrust law which has been hitherto considered by this court: First, because in this case it is obvious that a mere decree forbidding stock ownership by one part of the combination in another part or entity thereof would afford no adequate measure of relief, since different ingredients of the combination would remain unaffected, and by the very nature and character of their organization would be able to continue the wrongful situation which it is our duty to destroy; second, because the methods of apparent ownership by which the wrongful intent was in part carried out and the subtle devices which, as we have seen, were resorted to for the purpose of accomplishing the wrong contemplated, by way of ownership or otherwise, are of such a character that it is difficult if not impossible to formulate a remedy which could restore in their entirety the prior lawful conditions; third, because the methods devised by which the various essential elements to the successful operation of the tobacco business from any particular aspect have been so separated under various subordinate combinations, yet so unified by way of the control worked out by the scheme here condemned, are so involved that any specific form of relief which we might now order in substance and effect might operate really to injure the public and, it may be, to perpetuate the wrong. Doubtless it was the presence of these difficulties which caused the United States, in its prayer for relief, to tentatively suggest rather than to specifically demand definite and precise remedies; we might at once resort to one or the other of the general remedies—(a) the allowance of a permanent injunction restraining the combination as a universality and all the individuals and corporations which form a part of or cooperate in it in any manner or form from continuing to engage in interstate commerce until the illegal situation be cured, a measure of relief which would accord in substantial effect with that awarded below to the extent that the court found illegal combinations to exist, or (b) to direct the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the assets and property in this country of the combination in all its ramifications for the purpose of preventing a continued violation of the law, and thus working out by a sale of the property of the combination or otherwise a condition of things which would not be repugnant to the prohibitions of the act.

But, having regard to the principles which we have said must control our action, we do not think we can now direct the immediate application of either of these remedies. We so consider as to the first because, in view of the extent of the combination, the vast field which it covers, the all embracing character of its activities concerning tobacco and its products, to at once stay the movement in interstate commerce of the products which the combination or its co-operating forces produce or control might inflict infinite injury upon the public by leading to a stoppage of supply and a great enhancement of prices. The second because the extensive power which would result from at once resorting to a receivership might not only do grievous injury to the public, but also cause widespread and perhaps irreparable loss to many innocent people. Under these circumstances, taking into mind the complexity of the situation in all of its aspects and giving weight to the many sided considerations which must control our judgment, we think, so far as the permanent relief to be awarded is concerned, we should decree as follows:

First. That the combination in and of itself, as well as each and all of the elements composing it, whether corporate or individual, whether considered collectively or separately, be decreed to be in restraint of trade and an attempt to monopolize and a monopolization within the first and second sections of the antitrust act.

Second. That the court below, in order to give effective force to our decree in this regard, be directed to hear the parties, by evidence or otherwise, as it may be deemed proper, for the purpose of ascertaining and determining upon some plan or method of dissolving the combination and of re-creating, out of the elements now composing it, a new condition which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law.

Third. That for the accomplishment of these purposes, taking into view the difficulty of the situation, a period of six months is allowed from the receipt of our mandate, with leave, however, in the event, in the judgment of the court below, the necessities of the situation require, to extend such a period to a further time not to exceed sixty days.

Fourth. That in the event, before the expiration of the period thus fixed, a condition of disintegration in harmony with the law is not brought about, either as the consequence of the action of the court in determining an issue on the subject or in accepting a plan agreed upon, it shall be the duty of the court, either by way of an injunction restraining the movement of the products of the combination in the channels of interstate or foreign commerce or by the appointment of a receiver, to give effect to the requirements of the statute.

Pending the bringing about of the result just stated, each and all of the defendants, individuals as well as corporations, should be restrained from doing any act which might further extend or enlarge the power of the combination, by any means or device whatsoever. In view of the considerations we have stated, we leave the matter to the court below to work out a compliance with the law without unnecessary injury to the public or the rights of private property.

While in many substantial respects our conclusion is in accord with that reached by the court below, and while also the relief which we think should be awarded in some respects is coincident with that which the court granted, in order to prevent any complication and to clearly define the situation we think instead of affirming and modifying, our decree, in view of the broad nature of our conclusions, should be one of reversal and remanding with directions to the court below to enter a decree in conformity with this opinion and to take such further steps as may be necessary to fully carry out the directions which we have given.

And it is so ordered.

JUSTICE HARLAN'S OPINION.

Mr. Justice Harlan concurred in part and dissented in part:

I concur with many things said in the opinion just delivered for the court, but it contains some observations from which I am compelled to withhold my assent.

I agree most thoroughly with the court in holding that the principal defendant, the American Tobacco company and its accessory and subsidiary corporations and companies, including the defendant English corporations, constitute a combination which, "in and of itself, as well as each and all of the elements composing it, whether corporate or individual, whether considered collectively or separately," is illegal under the antitrust act of 1890, and should be decreed to be in restraint of interstate trade and an attempt to monopolize and a monopolization of part of such trade.

The evidence in the record is, I think, abundant to enable the court to render a decree containing all necessary details for the suppression of the evils of the combination in question. But the case is sent back with directions further to hear the parties, by evidence or otherwise, "for the purpose of ascertaining and determining upon some plan or method of dissolving the combination, and of re-creating out of the elements now composing it a new condition," which shall not be repugnant to law. The court, in its opinion, says of the present combination, that its illegal purposes are overwhelmingly established by many facts, among others—"by the ever present manifestation which is exhibited of a conscious wrongdoing by the form in which the various transactions were embodied from the beginning, ever charging, but ever in substance the same. Now the organization of a new company, now the control exerted by the taking of stock in one or another or in several, so as to obscure the result actually attained, nevertheless uniform in their manifestations of the purpose to restrain others, and to monopolize and retain power in the hands of the few, who, it would seem, from the beginning contemplated the mastery of the trade which practically followed. By the gradual absorption of control over all the elements essential to the successful manufacture of tobacco products and placing such control in the hands of seemingly independent corporations serving as perpetual barriers to the entry of others into the tobacco trade."

The court further says of this combination and monopoly:

"The history of the combination is so replete with the doing of acts which it was the obvious purpose of the statute to forbid, so demonstrative of the existence, from the beginning, of a purpose to acquire dominion and control of the tobacco trade, not by the mere exertion of the ordinary right to contract and to trade, but by methods devised to monopolize the trade by driving competitors out of business, which were ruthlessly carried out, upon the assumption that to work upon the fears or play upon the cupidity of competitors would make success possible."

But it seems that the course I have suggested is not to be pursued. The case is to go back to the Circuit court in order that out of the elements of the old combination a new condition may be "re-created" that will not be in violation of the law. I confess my inability to find, in the history of this combination, anything to justify the wish that a new condition should be "re-created" out of the mischievous elements that compose the present combination, which, together with its component parts, have, without ceasing, pursued the vicious methods pointed out by the court. If the proof before us—as it undoubtedly does—warrants the characterization which the court has made of this monster combination, why cannot all necessary directions be now given as to the terms of the decree? In my judgment there is enough in the record to enable this court to formulate specific directions as to what the decree should contain. Such directions would not only end this litigation, but would serve to protect the public against any more conscious wrongdoing by those who have persistently and "ruthlessly" to use this court's language, pursued illegal methods to defeat the act of congress.

I will not say what, in my opinion, should be the form of the decree nor speculate as to what the details ought to be. It will be time enough to speak on that subject when we have the decree before us. I will, however, say now that, in my opinion, the decree below should be affirmed as to the tobacco company and its accessory and subsidiary companies and reversed on the cross appeal of the government.

But my objections have also reference to those parts of the court's opinion reaffirming what it said recently in the Standard Oil case about the former decisions of this court touching the antitrust act. We are again reminded, as we were in the Standard Oil case, of the necessity of applying the "rule of reason" in the construction of this act of congress—an act expressed, as I think, in language so clear and simple that there is no room whatever for construction.

Congress, with full and exclusive power over the whole subject, has signified its purpose to forbid every restraint of interstate trade, in whatever form or to whatever extent, but the court has assumed to insert in the act, by construction merely, words which make congress say that it means only to prohibit the "unlawful" restraint of trade.

If I do not misapprehend the opinion just delivered, the court insists that what was said in the opinion in the Standard Oil case was in accordance with our previous decisions in the Trans-Missouri and Joint Traffic cases (166 U. S., 290; 171 U. S., 565), if we resort to reason. This statement surprises me quite as much as would a statement that black was white or white was black. It is scarcely just to the majority in those two cases for the court at this late day to say or to intimate that they interpreted the act of congress without regard to the "rule of reason," or to assume, as the court now does, that the act was, for the first time in the Standard Oil case, interpreted in the "light of reason." One thing is certain, "rule of reason," to which the court refers, does not justify the pervasiveness of the plain words of an act in order to defeat the will of congress.

By every conceivable form of expression the majority, in the Trans-Missouri and Joint Traffic cases, adjudged that the act of congress did not allow restraint of interstate trade to any extent or in any form, and three times it expressly rejected the theory, which had been persistently advanced, that the act should be construed as if it had in it the word "unreasonable" or "undue." But now the court, in accordance with what it denounces the "rule of reason" in effect inserts in the act the word "undue" which means the same as "unreasonable," and thereby makes congress say what it did not say, what, as I think, it plainly did not intend to say and what, since the passage of the act, it has explicitly refused to say. It has steadily refused to amend the act so as to tolerate a restraint of interstate commerce even where such restraint could be said to be "reasonable" or "due." In short, the court now, by judicial legislation, in effect amends an act of congress relating to a subject over which that department of the government has exclusive cognizance. I beg to say that, in my judgment, the majority, in the former cases, were gulled by the "rule of reason"; for it may be assumed that they knew quite as well as others what the rules of reason require when a court seeks to ascertain the will of congress as expressed in a statute. It is obvious, from the opinions in former cases, that the majority did not grope about in darkness, but in discharging the solemn duty put on them they stood out in the full glare of the "light of reason" and felt and said time and again that the court could not, consistently with the constitution, and would not, usurp the functions of congress by indulging in judicial legislation. They said in express words, in the former cases, in response to the earnest contentions of counsel, that to insert by construction the word "unreasonable" or "undue" in the act of congress would be judicial legislation. Let me say, also, that as we all agree that the combination in question was illegal under any construction of the anti-trust act, there was not the slightest necessity to enter upon extended argument to show that the act of congress was to be read as if it contained the word "unreasonable" or "undue." All that is said in the court's opinion in support of that view is, I say with respect, obiter dicta, pure and simple.

These views are fully discussed in the dissenting opinion delivered by me in the Standard Oil case. I will not repeat what is therein stated, but it may be well to cite an additional authority. In the trade mark case (100 U. S., 82), the court was asked to sustain the constitutionality of the statute there involved. But the statute could not have been sustained except by inserting in it words not put there by congress. Mr. Justice Miller, delivering the unanimous judgment of the court, said:

"If we should, in the case before us, undertake to make by judicial construction a law which congress did not make, it is quite probable we should do what, if the matter were now before that body, it would be unwilling to do."

This language was cited with approval in employers' liability cases (207 U. S., 463, 502). I refer to my dissenting opinion in the Standard Oil case as containing a full statement of my views of this particular question.

For the reasons stated, I concur in part with the court's opinion and dissent in part.

THE SHERMAN ANTITRUST LAW.

Passed by the 51st congress and approved July 2, 1890.

Section 1. Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations is hereby declared to be illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 2. Every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3. Every contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce in any territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia, or in restraint of trade or commerce between any such territory and another, or between any such territory or territories and any state or states or the District of Columbia or with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states or foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 4. The several Circuit courts of the United States are hereby invested with jurisdiction to prevent or restrain violations of this act; and it shall be the duty of the several district attorneys of the United States, in their respective districts, under the direction of the attorney-general, to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain such violations. Such proceedings may be by way of petition setting forth the case and praying that such violation shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited. When the parties complained of shall have been duly notified of such petition the court shall proceed, as soon as may be, to the hearing and determination of the case; and pending such petition and before final decree the court may at any time make such temporary restraining order or prohibition as shall be deemed just in the premises.

Sec. 5. Whenever it shall appear to the court before which any proceeding under section 4 of this act may be pending that the ends of justice require that other parties should be brought before the court, the court may cause them to be summoned, whether they reside in the district in which the court is held or not; and subpoenas to that end may be served in any district by the marshal thereof.

Sec. 6. Any property owned under any contract or by any combination or pursuant to any conspiracy (and being the subject thereof) mentioned in section 1 of this act and being in the course of transportation from one state to another or to a foreign country shall be forfeited to the United States and may be seized and condemned by like proceedings as those provided by law for the forfeiture, seizure and condemnation of property imported into the United States contrary to law.

Sec. 7. Any person who shall be injured in his business or property by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared unlawful by this act may sue therefor in any Circuit court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides or is found, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages by him sustained and the cost of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

Sec. 8. That the word "person" or "persons" wherever used in this act be deemed to include corporations and associations existing under or authorized by the laws of either the United States, the laws of any of the territories, the laws of any state or the laws of any foreign country.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST PACKING CORPORATIONS.

Feb. 18, 1903—Judge Grosscup issued injunction restraining packers from combining.

1904—Packers gave commissioner of corporations information about their business, an action on which later immunity claims were based. They alleged the government used the information as basis for indictments.

Feb. 20, 1905—Government began investigation of combine charges.

July 1, 1905—Indictment voted against four companies and sixteen packers.

Dec. 31, 1905—Cases were called for trial.

March 21, 1906—Packers are freed by "immunity bath" ruling of Judge Humphrey.

1908—Investigation taken up by federal grand jury and later discontinued.

1908—New investigation started.

March 21, 1910—Indictment voted against National Packing company and ten subsidiary concerns.

June 23, 1910—Indictment declared invalid by Judge Landis and new grand jury investigation ordered.

July 14, 1910—New inquiry started.

Sept. 12, 1910—Ten packers indicted.

March 22, 1911—Judge Carpenter denies plea to quash indictments.

Jan. 25, 1910, Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of the United States District court in Chicago impaneled a grand jury to investigate the so-called "beef combine" among the meat packers. Witnesses were summoned and the inquiry continued until March 21, when an indictment was returned charging the National Packing company and ten of its subsidiary corporations with conspiracy in violation of the Sherman antitrust law. On the same date a bill in equity was filed by District Attorney Edwin W. Sims in the United States Circuit court, Chicago, against the National Packing company and subsidiary concerns and against its directors. It charged the packers with criminal conspiracy in fixing the prices of live stock and dressed meat and demanded the dissolution of the National Packing company and its allied concerns. It also asked that the individual defendants and their agents be prohibited from exercising any control over the corporations involved except such as might be necessary to wind up their affairs.

Upon a demurrer by counsel for the National Packing company and subsidiary concerns Judge Kenesaw M. Landis decided, June 23, that the indictment was invalid because it did not charge that during the last three years the defendants had been engaged in interstate commerce. He therefore sustained the demurrer, but at the same time ordered a special grand jury to make a new investigation. This was concluded Sept. 12, when the following ten packers were indicted as individuals: J. Ogden Armour, Louis F. Swift, Edward Morris, Edward Tilden, Arthur Meeker, Edward F. Swift, Charles H. Swift, Louis H. Heyman, Thomas J. Conors, Francis A. Fowler. Three indictments were returned against each defendant, reciting the violations of the Sherman antitrust law.

Counsel for the packers moved to quash the indictments in accordance with the immunity ruling of Judge Humphrey in 1906. This motion was overruled by Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States District court March 22, 1911, in a decision sustaining the indictments. On a demurrer that under the Sherman antitrust laws as they stand on the statute books the defendants could not be prosecuted criminally, Judge Carpenter decided May 11 that this contention was invalid. He therefore overruled the demurrer.

BUCK STOVE COMPANY BOYCOTT CASE.

In August, 1907, the Buck Stove and Range company of St. Louis brought proceedings in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia against the officers of the American Federation of Labor to enjoin them from conducting a boycott against the company by advertising that the concern was or the "U fair" and "We don't patronize" lists published in the federation's official organ. The injunction asked for was issued by Judge Gould Dec. 23, 1907. On the plea that the terms of the injunction were being violated proceedings for contempt of court were brought against Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; John Mitchell, vice-president, and Frank Morrison, secretary. Justice Wright of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia, before whom the case was tried, decided Dec. 23, 1908, that the defendants were guilty. Mr. Gompers was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Morrison to nine months' and six months' imprisonment respectively. They were admitted to bail and the case was appealed to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. This tribunal in a decision rendered Nov. 2, 1909, affirmed the decree of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia.

An appeal was then taken to the Supreme court of the United States, which on May 15, 1911, handed down a decision reversing the judgments of the Court of Appeals and the Supreme court of the District of Columbia and remanding the case with the direction that the contempt proceedings instituted by the Buck Stove and Range company be dismissed, but without prejudice to the power and right of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia to punish by a proper proceeding contempt, if any, committed against it. The basis of the opinion was that the proceedings brought against the labor officers was for civil contempt, which could be punished only by a fine. The sentence of the lower court to imprisonment was the penalty for criminal contempt, and therefore it was not a legal punishment in this case.

The Supreme court held that the published or spoken utterance of organized labor could be enjoined or attacked legally, because organized labor is a combination, and, as such, relinquishes the rights of individuals. It also established the fact that legal prosecution could be leveled not only at the union itself but at its officers as well.

SUITS AGAINST MEMBERS OF WIRE TRUST.

June 29, 1911, eighty-three men, alleged to be members of the so-called wire trust were indicted by a federal grand jury in New York, N. Y., on the charge of having violated the Sherman antitrust law. The indictments covered the whole field of the wire industry, including electrical cables, steel and copper wire and wire nails. July 5 the defendants pleaded not guilty, but July 25 thirty-seven of them withdrew their pleas of not guilty and accepted sentence. Judge R. W. Archbold of the United States District court imposed fines of from $1,000 to $1,700 and costs in each case as follows:

$1,700—F. W. Roebing.

$1,500—Frank J. Newberry, Joseph W. Marsh, William A. Conner, Phillip H. Smith.

$1,400—Charles J. Marsh, Frank N. Phillips, Charles R. Remington.

$1,200—Theodore F. Ryan, John C. Bridgman, Henry H. Ashley.

APPALACHIAN FORESTS.

The law which creates the southern Appalachian and White mountain forest reserves provides that the consent of congress shall be given to each of several states to enter into any agreement with any other state or states for the purpose of conserving the forests and water supply of the states entering into the agreement. The sum of $200,000 is appropriated to enable the secretary of agriculture to co-operate with any state or group of states, when requested to do so, in the protection from fire of the forested watersheds of navigable streams.

There is appropriated for the fiscal year 1910 the sum of $1,000,000, and for each fiscal year thereafter until June 30, 1915, a sum not to exceed $2,000,000 for use in the examination, survey and acquirement of lands located on the headwaters of navigable waters. A commission to be known as the national forest reservation commission, consisting of the secretary of war, the secretary of the interior, the secretary of agriculture, two members of the senate and two members of the house, is created and authorized to pass upon such lands as may be recommended for purchase by the secretary of agriculture, after they have been examined by the geological survey and report made that the control of such lands will promote or protect the navigation of streams on whose watersheds they lie. The secretary of agriculture is authorized to purchase in the name of United States such lands as have been approved for purchase by the national forest reservation commission. After July 1, 1911, it shall be unlawful for any railroad engaged in interstate commerce to use any locomotive that is not in proper and safe condition or that has not been inspected in accordance with the terms of the act and found able to stand the tests prescribed. There shall be appointed by the president a chief inspector and two assistant chief inspectors of locomotive boilers, who shall have general superintendence of the district inspectors. The chief inspector is to have a salary of $4,000 a year and his assistants $3,000 a year each, with traveling expenses. The country is to be divided into fifty inspection districts, with one inspector for each district. Each district inspector is to receive $1,800 a year with traveling expenses and, in addition, office and other expenses not to exceed $600 a year. The district inspectors are to be chosen under civil service rules and they are to see that all locomotives in the several districts are examined and kept in repair by the companies concerned. They are themselves to make inspections from time to time, though not at specified intervals, and accidents due to defective locomotive boilers are to be investigated. The locomotive boiler inspection service is subject to the orders and instructions of the interstate commerce commission, to which the chief inspector must make an annual report. Each violation of the act by a railroad is punishable by a fine of $100. (Approved Feb. 17, 1911.)

THE JUDICIAL CODE.

The "act to codify, revise and amend the laws relating to the judiciary" consists of fourteen chapters and 301 sections. The provisions of the act, so far as they are the same as existing statutes, are to be construed as continuations thereof and not as new enactments, and there is to be no implication of change of intent by reason of a change of words unless such change of intent is clearly manifest. The most important change is that made by sections 228, 229, 231 and 232, chapter 13. These abolish the Circuit courts of the United States and direct that all suits and proceedings pending therein shall be transferred to the District courts, which will dispose of them. The Circuit court judges are not legislated out of office, but are left free to confine their work chiefly to the Circuit Court of Appeals. In case a District judge finds more work imposed upon him at any time than he can perform, a Circuit court judge may be designated to assist him. The code prescribes the organization, jurisdiction and methods of procedure of the District courts, the Circuit Court of Appeals, the Court of Claims, the Court of Customs Appeals, the Commerce court and the Supreme court. The act goes into effect Jan. 1, 1912. (Approved March 3, 1911.)

CANADIAN RECIPROCAL AGREEMENT.

Laid before 61st congress by President Taft, Jan. 26, 1911.

McCall reciprocity bill passed by house Feb. 14, 1911; no vote reached in senate; 61st congress ended March 4.

Special session of 621 congress called by President

Taft March 4; session begins April 4.

Underwood reciprocity bill passed by house April 21; passed by senate July 22; signed by President Taft July 26; rejected by voters of Canada at parliamentary elections Sept. 21.

Jan. 26, 1911, President William H. Taft sent to congress reciprocity agreement with Canada with a message urging its speedy enactment into law. It was agreed by Ministers W. S. Fielding and William Patterson, representing Canada, and Secretary of State P. C. Knox, representing the United States, that the desired tariff changes should not take the formal shape of a treaty, but that the governments of the two countries should use their utmost endeavors to bring about such changes by concurrent legislation in Washington and Ottawa. In his message to congress President Taft referred to the friendly relations that have always existed between the United States and Canada and to the identity of interest of the two countries linked together by race, language, political institutions and geographical proximity.

"I do not wish," he wrote, "to hold out the prospect that the unrestricted interchange of food products will greatly and at once reduce their cost to the people of this country. Moreover, the present small amount of Canadian surplus for export as compared with that of our own production and consumption would make the reduction gradual. Excluding the element of transportation the price of staple food products, especially of cereals, is much the same the world over, and the recent increase in price has been the result of a world wide cause. But a source of supply as near as Canada would certainly help to prevent speculative fluctuations, would steady local price movements and would postpone the effect of a further world increase in the price of leading commodities entering into the cost of living, if that be inevitable.

"My purpose in making a reciprocal trade agreement with Canada has been not only to obtain one which would be mutually advantageous to both countries, but one which also would be truly national in its scope as applied to our own country and would be of benefit to all sections.

"This trade agreement if entered into, will cement the friendly relations with the dominion which have resulted from the satisfactory settlement of the controversies that have lasted for a century, and further promote good feeling between kindred peoples. It will extend the market for numerous products of the United States among the inhabitants of a prosperous neighboring country with an increasing population and an increasing purchasing power. It will deepen and widen the sources of the food supply in contiguous territory, and will facilitate the movement and distribution of these foodstuffs. The geographical proximity, the closer relation of blood, common sympathies and identical moral and social ideas furnish very real and striking reasons why this agreement ought to be viewed from a high plane."

EXTRA SESSION CALLED.

The bill (McCall) carrying the agreement into effect was passed by the house Feb. 14, by a vote of 221 to 92, but the senate failed to take action and on the day of adjournment, March 4, President Taft issued a proclamation calling for an extra session of the 62d congress to begin April 4. The two houses met on the day named and organized, and on the following day the president transmitted to them a message, reiterating his arguments in favor of the proposed agreement.

April 12 O. W. Underwood of Alabama introduced the reciprocity bill in the house, the text being identical with that of the McCall bill passed by the 61st congress. The measure was debated and April 21 was passed by a vote of 267 yeas to 89 nays. The negative vote was as follows.

ADVERSE ACTION BY CANADA.

Strong opposition to the reciprocity agreement developed in the Canadian parliament, the conservative minority resorting to a filibuster to defeat the measure. July 29, at the request of Premier Laurier, parliament was dissolved and orders for the election of new members Sept. 21 issued. The campaign was bitterly fought and resulted in the overthrow of the liberal Laurier government and the return of an overwhelming majority of conservative members pledged to vote against reciprocity. The measure consequently failed. The assertion that it would eventually lead to the annexation of Canada by the United States was one of the most effective arguments used against the agreement.

THE RECIPROcity ACT.

The reciprocity measure as it passed congress was entitled "An act to promote reciprocal trade relations with the dominion of Canada and for other purposes." It provided for a substantial reduction of duties on many articles produced in Canada and the United States and the admission, exempt from duty, of the following articles:

In the event that no such promise or pledge has been made by such candidate, that fact shall be distinctly stated.

Every statement herein required shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the candidate, taken before an officer authorized to administer oaths under the laws of the state in which he is a candidate, and shall be sworn to or affirmed by the candidate in the district in which he is a candidate for representative, or the state in which he is a candidate for senator in the congress of the United States: Provided, that if at the time of such primary election, nominating convention, general or special election or election by the state legislature said candidate shall be in attendance upon either house of congress as a member thereof, he may at his election verify such statements before any officer authorized to administer oaths in the District of Columbia: Provided further, that the depositing of any such statement in a regular postoffice, directed to the clerk of the house of representatives or to the secretary of the senate, as the case may be, duly stamped and registered within the time required herein shall be deemed a sufficient filing of any such statement under any of the provisions of this act.

This act shall not be construed to annul or vitiate the laws of any state not directly in conflict herewith relating to the nomination or election of candidates for the offices herein named or to exempt any such candidate from complying with such state laws. (Approved Aug. 19, 1911.)

The bill went to a conference committee, which reached an agreement in the form of a substitute for both the house bill and the LaFollette amendment. The salient points of agreement recommended as to the differences between the two houses were as follows:

The rate of duty recommended on raw wool was 29 per cent ad valorem instead of 20 per cent ad valorem, as proposed in the house bill, and the varying rates, ranging from 10 to 35 per cent ad valorem, on the three classifications of wool proposed by the senate.

The rate on wool wastes and rags agreed upon was 29 per cent ad valorem instead of 20 per cent ad valorem as proposed in the house bill and the rates of 25 or 30 per cent ad valorem as proposed in the senate amendment.

The duty on combed wool or tops agreed upon was 32 per cent ad valorem instead of 25 per cent ad valorem as proposed in the house bill and 40 per cent ad valorem as proposed by the senate.

The duty agreed upon for yarns was 35 per cent ad valorem instead of 30 per cent ad valorem as proposed by the house bill and 45 per cent ad valorem as proposed in the senate amendment.

The rate of duty on blankets and flannels for underwear was fixed at 38 per cent ad valorem instead of 30 per cent ad valorem in the house bill for blankets and the cheaper flannels.

The duty agreed upon for cloths, ready made clothing, knit fabrics, flannels not for underwear, women's dress goods, webbing, gorings, etc., and articles not specially provided for was 49 per cent ad valorem instead of the varying rates in the house bill, ranging from 35 to 50 per cent ad valorem and 55 per cent ad valorem as proposed by the senate.

Three classifications were agreed upon for carpets, ranging in duty from 30 to 50 per cent ad valorem instead of the varying classifications in the house bill carrying duties from 25 to 50 per cent ad va-lrcem and 35 per cent ad valorem as proposed by the senate amendment.

The conference report was adopted by the house Aug. 14 by a vote of 205 yeas to 90 nays and by the senate Aug. 15 by a vote of 38 yeas to 28 nays. Aug. 17 the president returned the bill with a veto message in which he called attention to the fact that he had been elected upon a platform which declared for the maintenance of a protective tariff by "the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, with a reasonable profit to American manufacturers." The great difficulty was, however, that there were no means available by which that difference could be ascertained. The American public had become deeply impressed with the conviction that in order to secure a proper revision of the tariff in the future, exact information as to the effect of the new rates must be had, and that the evil of logrolling or compromise could be avoided and the interests of the consuming public guarded only by revising the tariff one schedule at a time. To help these reforms he had taken advantage of a clause in the Payne tariff act enabling him to create a tariff board which he had directed to secure information as to the comparative cost of production of dutiable articles under the tariff at home and abroad. This board had been directed to report on the wool schedule by Dec. 1, 1911.

"If ever there was a schedule that needed consideration and investigation and elaborate explanation by experts before its amendment," continued the president in his message, "it is schedule K [wool schedule]. There is a widespread belief that many rates in the present schedule are too high and are in excess of any needed protection for the wool grower or manufacturer. I share this belief and have so stated in several public addresses. But I have no sufficient data upon which I can judge how schedule K ought to be amended or how its rates ought to be reduced in order that the new bill shall furnish the proper measure of protection and no more. Nor have I sources of information which satisfy me that the bill presented to me for signature will accomplish this result. * * *

"Without any investigation of which the details are available, an avowed tariff-for-revenue and anti-protection bill is by compromise blended with a professed protection bill. Rates between those of the two bills are adopted and passed, except that, in some important instances, rates are fixed in the compromise at a figure higher and in others at a figure lower, than were originally fixed in either house. The principle fixed in adjusting the amendments of existing law is, therefore, not clear and the effect of the bill is most uncertain. * * *

"More than 1,000,000 of our countrymen are engaged in the production of wool and the manufacture of woolsens; more than a billion of the country's capital is invested in the industry. Large communities are almost wholly dependent upon the prosperity of the wool grower and the woolen manufacturer. Moderately estimated 5,000,000 of the American people will be injuriously affected by any ill-advised impairment of the wool and woolen industries. Certainly we should proceed prudently in dealing with them upon the basis of ascertained facts rather than hastily and without knowledge to make a reduction of the tariff to satisfy a popular desire, which I fully recognize, for reduction of duties believed to be excessive. I have no doubt that if I were to sign this bill, I would receive the approval of very many persons who favor a reduction of duties in order to reduce the cost of living whatever the effect on our protected industries and who fail to realize the disaster to business generally and to the people at large which may come from a radical disturbance of that part of business dependent for its life on the continuance of a protective tariff. If I fail to guard as far as I can the industries of the country to the extent of giving them the benefit of a living measure of protection and business disaster ensues, I shall not be discharging my duty. If I fail to recommend the reduction of excessive duties to this extent, I shall fail in my duty to the consuming public."

The house made an effort Aug. 18 to pass the wool bill over the president's veto, but it failed, the vote standing 227 yeas to 129 nays, or less than the required two-thirds.

FARMERS' FREE LIST BILL.

The so-called "farmers' free list bill," vetoed by President Taft Aug. 18, 1911, provided that the following articles should be exempt from duty when imported into the United States:

Sewing machines and all parts thereof.

Salt, whether in bulk or in bags, sacks, barrels, or other packages.

Roman, Portland and other hydraulic cement and lime.

In the house the bill was passed by a vote of 236 yeas to 109 nays. It had the solid support of the democrats and in addition the following republicans voted for it:

Anderson (Minn.).	Kent (Cal.).
Davis (Minn.).	Kopp (Wis.).
Lindbergh (Minn.).	Leandro (Wis.).
Miller (Minn.).	Morse (Wis.).
Steenerson (Minn.).	Nelson (Wis.).
Volstead (Minn.).	Lafferty (Ore.).

Anthony (Kas.).	Morgan (Okla.).
Nackson (Kas.).	Norris (Neb.).
Hanna (N. D.).	Roberts (Nev.).
Helgeson (N. D.).	Akin (N. Y.).

Total, 24.

In the senate the vote was 48 yeas to 30 nays. Of those voting for the bill thirty-four were democrats, twelve progressive republicans and two regular republicans. The opposition vote was cast by twenty-nine regular republicans and one progressive (Senator Bourne of Oregon). The republican vote for the bill was:

Borah (Idaho).	Gronna (N. D.).
Bristow (Kas.).	Kenyon (Iowa).
Brown (Neb.).	LaFollette (Wis.).

In his message vetoing the proposed law the president reiterated the opinion expressed in his veto of the wool bill, that all general amendments to the existing tariff laws should be postponed until accurate and scientific information could be submitted to congress by a tariff board appointed for the purpose of investigating the difference in cost of production of dutiable articles at home and abroad. He also declared that the bill was so carelessly drawn that it would inevitably lead to the greatest uncertainty as to what articles were or were not covered by its various provisions and would involve the government in endless litigation. A third reason for withholding approval was the fact that it placed the finished product on the free list, but retained on the dutiable list the raw material and the machinery with which such finished product was made; thus putting at a needless disadvantage the American manufacturers. A fourth reason was that while purporting, by putting agricultural implements, meat and flour on the free list, to reduce their price to consumers, it did not do so, but only gave to Canada valuable concessions which might be used by the executive to expand reciprocity with that country in accordance with the direction of congress.

By a vote of 226 yeas to 127 nays the house of representatives refused to pass the bill over the president's veto. It required a two-thirds vote in the affirmative to do so.

COTTON TARIFF BILL.

The bill to reduce the duties on manufactures of cotton was passed by the house Aug. 3, 1911, by a vote of 203 yeas (including thirty "insurgent" republicans) to 90 nays, and by the senate Aug. 17 by a vote of 29 yeas to 24 nays. As it passed the house the bill reduced the average tariff on manufactured cotton goods from 48 to 27 per cent ad valorem. The senate bill not only reduced the duties on manufactured cotton goods, but also on a large number of chemicals (schedule A) and on iron and steel (schedule C). The house accepted the senate bill without change Aug. 21 by a vote of 380 yeas to 107 nays. The bill was vetoed by the president Aug. 22.

"I find," the message of the president said, "that there was practically no consideration of either schedule by any committee of either house. There were no facts presented to either house in which I can find material upon which to form any judgment as to the effect of the amendments either upon American industries or upon the revenues of the government."

Briefly reviewing the manner in which the iron and steel and chemical amendments were added to the bill the president said:

"I cannot make myself a party to dealing with the industries of the country in this way. The industries covered by metals and the manufacture of metals are the largest in the country, and it would seem not only wise, but absolutely essential to acquire accurate information as to the effect of changes which may vitally affect these industries before enacting them into law. * * *

"This bill thus illustrates and enforces the views which I have already expressed in vetoing the wool bill and the so-called free list bill, as to the paramount importance of securing, through the investigation and reports of the tariff board, a definite and certain basis of ascertained facts for the consideration of tariff laws. When the reports of the tariff board upon these schedules are received, the duties which should be imposed can be determined upon justly and with intelligent appreciation of the effect that they will have both upon industry and upon revenue. Very likely some of the changes in this bill will prove to be desirable and some to be undesirable. So far as they turn out to be just and reasonable I shall be glad to approve them, but at present the proposed legislation appears to be all a matter of guesswork. The important thing is to get our tariff legislation out of the slough of guesswork and logrolling and ex parte statements of interested persons, and to establish that legislation on the basis of tested and determined facts, to which shall be applied, fairly and openly, whatever tariff principle the people of the country choose to adopt."

No attempt was made to pass the bill over the president's veto.

DIRECT ELECTION OF SENATORS.

In the house of representatives April 13, 1911, the following joint resolution was adopted by a vote of 286 yeas to 16 nays:

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein), That in lieu of the first paragraph of section 3 of article I of the constitution of the United States, and in lieu of so much of paragraph two of the same section as relates to the filing of vacancies, and in lieu of all of paragraph 1 of section 4 of said article I, in so far as the same relates to any authority in congress to make or alter regulations as to the times or manner of holding elections for senators, the following be proposed as an amendment to the constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states:

"The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years, and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

"The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators shall be as prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof.

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election, as the legislature may direct.

"This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the constitution."

The resolution was adopted by the senate June 12 by a vote of 64 yeas to 24 nays after having been changed by the adoption of an amendment offered by Senator Bristow of Kansas striking out the following provisions, "and in lieu of all of paragraph 1 section 4 of said article I, in so far as the same relates to any authority in congress to make or alter regulations as to the times or manner of holding elections for senators," and "the times, places and manner of holding elections for senators shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof." The Bristow amendment was adopted by a vote of 45 yeas to 44 nays, the vice-president casting the deciding vote.

The house, June 21, refused by a vote of 172 to 112 to concur in the amendment and the bill was sent to conference, where it still remained when the session closed. [The same resolution was brought to a vote in the senate at the last session of the 61st congress, but failed to get the necessary two-thirds affirmative vote. Its defeat was brought about by an amendment offered by Senator Sutherland of Utah identical with the Bristow amendment quoted above.]

ADMISSION OF NEW MEXICO AND ARIZONA.

Congress in 1910 passed an enabling act providing for the admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona into the union as states. In accordance with the act conventions were held in the two territories in November, 1910, and constitutions framed which were ratified by the people at special elections early in 1911. March 1, 1911, a joint resolution approving the constitution of New Mexico was passed by the national house of representatives, but an amendment was added by the senate approving also the constitution of Arizona, to which President Taft was opposed on account of its recall provision, which included the judiciary. The resolution as so amended was defeated.

VETO MESSAGE.

When the 62d congress began work at the extra session called by President Taft a joint resolution approving both constitutions substantially as they were passed was introduced and adopted by the house May 23 and by the senate Aug. 8. The president returned the resolution with his veto and the measure failed. In his veto message the president approved the New Mexican constitution as modified by a provision making it more easily amended but he vigorously attacked the recall feature of the Arizona constitution.

"Under the Arizona constitution," read the message. "all elective officers, and this includes county and state judges, six months after their election are subject to recall. It is initiated by a petition signed by electors equal to 25 per cent of the total number of votes cast for all the candidates for the office at the previous general election. Within five days after the petition is filed the officer may resign. Whether he does or not, an election ensues in which his name, if he does not resign, is placed on the ballot with those of all other candidates. The petitioners may print on the official ballot 200 words showing their reasons for recalling the officer, and he is permitted to make defense in the same place in 200 words. If the incumbent receives the highest number of votes he continues in his office; if not, he is removed from office and is succeeded by the candidate who does receive the highest number.

"This provision of the Arizona constitution, in its application to county and state judges, seems to me so pernicious in its effect, so destructive of independence of the judiciary, so likely to subject the rights of the individual to the possible tyranny of a popular majority, and, therefore, to be so injurious to the cause of free government, that I must disapprove a constitution containing it. * * *

A popular government is not a government of a majority, by a majority, for a majority of the people. It is a government of the whole people by a majority of the whole people under such rules and checks as will secure a wise, just and beneficent government for all the people. * * * No honest, clear headed man, however great a lover of popular government, can deny that the unbridled expression of the majority of a community hastily converted into law or action would sometimes make a government tyrannical and cruel. Constitutions are checks upon the hasty action of the majority. * * *

"The executive and legislative branches are representative of the majority of the people which elected them in guiding the course of the government within the limits of the constitution. They must act for the whole people, of course, but they must properly follow, and usually ought to follow, the views of the majority which elected them in respect to the governmental policy best adapted to secure the welfare of the whole people. But the judicial branch of the government is not representative of a majority of the people in any such sense, even if the mode of selecting judges is by popular election. In a proper sense, judges are servants of the people; that is, they are doing work which must be done for the government and in the interest of all the people, but it is not work in the doing of which they are to follow the will of the majority except as that is embodied in statutes lawfully enacted according to constitutional limitations. They are not popular representatives. On the contrary, to fill their office properly they must be independent. They must decide every question which comes before them according to law and justice. If this question is between individuals, they will follow the statute, or the unwritten law if no statute applies, and they take the unwritten law growing out of tradition and custom from previous judicial decisions. If a statute or ordinance affecting a cause before them is not lawfully enacted, because it violates the constitution adopted by the people, then they must ignore the statute and decide the question as if the statute had never been passed. This power is a judicial power imposed by the people on the judges by the written constitution. In early days some argued that the obligations of the constitution operated directly on the conscience of the legislature, and only in that manner, and that it was to be conclusively presumed that whatever was done by the legislature was constitutional. But such a view did not obtain with our hard headed, courageous and far sighted statesmen and judges, and it was soon settled that it was the duty of judges in cases properly arising before them to apply the law and so to declare what was the law, and that if what purported to be statutory law was at variance with the fundamental law, i. e., the constitution, the seeming statute was not law at all, was not binding on the courts, the individuals or any branch of the government and that it was the duty of the judges so to decide. This power conferred on the judiciary in our form of government is unique in the history of governments, and its operation has attracted and deserved the admiration and commendation of the world. It gives to our judiciary a position higher, stronger and more responsible than that of the judiciary of any other country, and more effectively secures adherence to the fundamental will of the people.

"What I have said has but a little purpose if it has not shown that judges to fulfill their functions properly in our popular government must be more independent than in any other form of government, and that need of independence is greatest where the individual is one litigant and the state, guided by the successful and governing majority, is the other. In order to maintain the rights of the minority and the individual and to preserve our constitutional balance we must have judges with courage to decide against the majority when justice and law require.

"By the recall in the Arizona constitution it is proposed to give to the majority power to remove arbitrarily, and without delay, any judge who may have the courage to render an unpopular decision. By the recall it is proposed to enable a minority of 25 per cent of the voters of the district or state, for no prescribed cause, after the judge has been in office six months, to submit the question of his retention in office to the electorate. The petitioning minority must say on the ballot what they can against him in 200 words and he must defend as best he can in the same space. Other candidates are permitted to present themselves and have their names printed on the ballot, so that the recall is not based solely on the record or the acts of the judge, but also on the question whether some other and more popular candidate has been found to unseat him. Could there be a system more ingenious, devised to subject judges to momentary gusts of popular passion than this? We cannot be blind to the fact that often an intelligent and respectable citizen may be so caused upon an issue that it will visit with condemnation the decision of a just judge, though exactly in accord with the law governing the case, merely because it affects unfavorably their contest. Controversies over elections, labor troubles, racial or religious issues, issues as to the construction or constitutionality of liquor laws, criminal trials of popular or unpopular defendants, the removal of county seats, snits by individuals to maintain their constitutional rights in obstruction of some popular improvement—these and many other cases could be cited in which a majority of a district electorate would be tempted by hasty anger to recall a conscientious judge if the opportunity were open all the time. No period of delay is interposed for the abatement of popular feeling. The recall is devised to encourage quick action and to lead the people to strike while the iron is hot. The judge is treated as the instrument and servant of a majority of the people, and subject to their momentary will, not after a long term in which his qualities as a judge and his character as a man have been subjected to a test of all the varieties of judicial work and duty so as to furnish a proper means of measuring his fitness for continuance in another term. On the instant of an unpopular ruling, while the spirit of protest has not had time to cool, and even while an appeal may be pending from his ruling, in which he may be sustained, he is to be halted before the electorate as a tribunal, with no judicial hearing, evidence or defense, and thrown out of office and disgraced for life because he has failed, in a single decision, it may be, to satisfy the popular demand. Think of the opportunity such a system would give to unscrupulous political bosses in control, as they have been in control not only of conventions but elections. Think of the enormous power for evil given to the sensational, muckraking portion of the press in rousing prejudice against a just judge by false charges and insinuations, the effect of which in the short period of an election by recall it would be impossible for him to meet and offset! Supporters of such a system seem to think that it will work only in the interest of the poor, the humble, the weak and the oppressed; that it will strike down only the judge who is supposed to favor corporations and be affected by the corrupting influence of the rich. Nothing could be farther from the ultimate result. The motive it would offer to unscrupulous combinations to seek to control politics in order to control the judges is clear. Those would profit by the recall who have the best opportunity of rousing the majority of the people to action of sudden impulse. Are they likely to be the wisest or the best people in a community? Do they not include those who have money enough to employ the firebrands and slanderers in a community and the stirrers-up of social hate? Would not self-respecting men well hesitate to accept judicial office with such a sword of Damocles hanging over them? What kind of judgments might those on the unpopular side expect from courts whose judges must make their decisions under such legalized terrorism? The character of the judges would deteriorate to that of trimmers and time-servers, and independent judicial action would be a thing of the past. As the possibilities of such a system pass in review, is it too much to characterize it as one which will destroy the judiciary, its standing and its usefulness? * * *

Attempt is made to defend the principle of judicial recall by reference to states in which judges are said to have shown themselves to be corrupt or influenced in which it is claimed that nothing but a desperate remedy will suffice. If the political control in such states is sufficiently wrested from corrupting corporations to permit the enactment of a radical constitutional amendment like that of judicial recall, it would seem possible to make provision in its stead for an effective remedy by impeachment, in which the cumbersome features of the present remedy might be avoided, but the opportunity for judicial hearing and defense before an impartial tribunal might be retained. * * *

Again, judicial recall is advocated on the ground that it will bring the judges more into sympathy with the popular will and the progress of ideas among the people. It is said that now judges are out of touch with the movement toward a wider democracy and a greater control of governmental agencies in the interest and for the benefit of the people. The righteous and just course for a judge to pursue is ordinarily fixed by statute or clear principles of law, and the cases in which his judgment may be affected by his political, economic or social views are infrequent. But even in such cases judges are not removed from the people's influence. Surround the judiciary with all the safeguards possible, create judges by appointment, make their tenure for life, forbid diminution of salary during their term and still it is impossible to prevent the influence of popular opinion from coloring judgments in the long run. Judges are men, intelligent, sympathetic men, patriotic men, and in those fields of the law in which the personal equation unavoidably plays a part, there will be found a response to sober popular opinion as it changes to meet the exigency of social, political and economic changes."

AMENDED RESOLUTION PASSED.

Aug. 18 the joint resolution, amended in accordance with the views of the president, was passed by the senate and on the following day it was passed by the house. Aug. 21 it was signed by the president. Section 1 of the joint resolution provides that the admission of New Mexico and Arizona into the union as states shall take effect upon the proclamation of the president of the United States, when the conditions explicitly set forth in the resolution shall have been complied with. The president is authorized and directed to certify the adoption of the resolution to the governor of each territory as soon as practicable, and each of the governors shall issue his proclamation for the holding of the first general election as provided for in the constitution of New Mexico heretofore adopted and the election ordinance numbered 2, adopted by the constitutional convention of Arizona, respectively, and for the submission to a vote of the electors of the territories of the amendments of the constitutions of the proposed states set forth in the resolution. The results of the elections shall be certified to the president by the governor of each of the territories; and if the terms of the resolution have been complied with, the president shall issue a proclamation immediately announcing the result of the elections so ascertained, and upon the issuance of such proclamation the proposed state or states so coming into being shall be deemed admitted by congress into the union upon an equal footing with the other states.

Section 2 provides that the admission of New Mexico shall be subject to the terms of a joint resolution approved Feb. 16, 1911, entitled "Joint resolution reaffirming the boundary line between Texas and the territory of New Mexico."

Section 3 requires that before the proclamation of the president shall issue announcing the result of the election in New Mexico, and at the same time that the state election is held, the electors of New Mexico shall vote upon a proposed amendment to article XIX. of the constitution as a condition precedent to the admission of the state. The article in question relates to the method of amending the state constitution. In its original form the article provided that any proposed amendment must be voted for by two-thirds of all the members in each house before being submitted to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection, and that if it were ratified by a majority of the electors voting thereon and by an affirmative vote equal to at least 40 per cent of all the votes cast at the election in the state and at least one-half of the counties, then the amendment should become part of the constitution. In its amended form the article requires only a majority vote in each house for propositions to amend the constitution and the same for ratification by the electors. The original article contained a provision that a constitutional amendment might be submitted to the people if carried by a majority vote in each house at the first regular session of the legislature two years after the constitution went into effect or at the regular session convening each eighth year thereafter. This proviso is eliminated from the amended article. Another proviso omitted is that requiring at least one-half of the counties to favor calling a convention to revise the constitution before such convention could be summoned.

Section 4 of the joint resolution provides for the submission of the amendment to the electors of New Mexico at the first state election, and section 5 provides that if a majority of the legal votes be cast in favor of the amendment the governor shall proclaim it a part of the constitution of the state of New Mexico.

Section 6 of the joint resolution amends the enabling act of June 20, 1910, so as to make the fifth clause of section 2 read: "That said state shall never enact any law restricting or abridging the right of suffrage on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

ARIZONA AMENDMENT.

Section 7 requires that before the proclamation of the president shall issue announcing the result of the election in Arizona, and at the same time that the state election is held, the electors of Arizona shall vote upon and ratify the proposed amendment to their state constitution, as a condition precedent to the admission of the state. The amendment is to section 1 of article VIII. of the constitution. This section, as pointed out by President Taft, made every public officer in the state of Arizona holding an elective office subject to recall on the petition of 25 per cent of the electors of the district from which candidates are elected to such office. The amendment simply excepts the members of the judiciary.

The joint resolution further provides that this amendment, if affirmed by a majority of the legal votes cast at the election, shall be proclaimed as part of the state constitution by the governor, but

"if the said proposed amendment to section 1 of article VIII. of the constitution of Arizona is not adopted and ratified as aforesaid, then, and in that case, the territory of Arizona shall not be admitted into the union as a state." (Approved Aug. 21, 1911.)

VETO POWER OF BRITISH LORDS CURBED.

The veto power of the British house of lords was largely restricted when, by a vote of 131 to 114, the peers accepted the liberal government's veto or parliament bill, Aug. 10, 1911. This ended a bitter struggle between the commons and the lords, dating from the fall of 1908, when the upper house rejected the budget presented by David Lloyd-George, on the ground that it was socialistic in principle and confiscatory in effect. Parliament was dissolved and an appeal to the country taken. In the election the liberals were sustained, retaining about the same majority in the new as in the old parliament. The veto bill was introduced in the house of commons by Premier Asquith, Feb. 21, 1911, and passed its first reading the following day by a vote of 351 to 227. It passed its third and final reading May 15 by a vote of 363 to 241.

May 16 the measure was introduced in the house of lords, where, after a series of stormy debates, it was radically amended and passed July 20. The following day a letter from Premier Asquith to the opposition leader, Arthur J. Balfour, was made public, announcing that should the necessity arise the government would ask the king to exercise his privilege of appointing a sufficient number of new liberal peers to secure the passing into law of the bill in substantially the same form in which it had left the house of commons. The king, the letter stated, had consented to do so. The lords' amendments were rejected by the government and then the lords, rather than have the king create a large number of new peers, accepted the measure. The more important features of the new law are as follows:

If a money bill, having been passed by the house of commons, and sent up to the house of lords at least one month before the end of the session, is not passed by the house of lords without amendment within one month after it is so sent up, the bill shall, unless the house of commons direct to the contrary, be presented to his majesty and become an act of parliament on the royal assent being signified, notwithstanding that the house of lords has not consented to the bill.

A money bill is described as one which, in the opinion of the speaker of the house of commons, contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following subjects, namely: the imposition, repeal, remission, alteration or regulation of taxation; charges on the consolidated fund or the provision of money by parliament; supply; the appropriation, control or regulation of public money; the raising or guaranty of any loan or the repayment thereof; or matters incidental to those subjects or any of them.

No amendment to a money bill which, in the opinion of the speaker of the house of commons, prevents the bill retaining such a character will be permitted.

If any bill other than a money bill is passed by the house of commons in three successive sessions (whether of the same parliament or not) and, having been sent up to the house of lords at least one month before the end of the session, is rejected by the house of lords in each of those sessions, that bill shall, on its rejection for the third time by the house of lords, unless the house of commons direct to the contrary, be presented to his majesty and become an act of parliament on the royal assent being signified thereto, notwithstanding that the house of lords has not consented to the bill.

Two years must elapse, however, between the date of the first introduction of the bill in the commons and the date on which it passes the house of commons for the third time.

DECLARATION OF LONDON ON LAWS OF NAVAL WAR.

What is popularly known as the "Declaration of London" is the agreement entered into Feb. 26, 1909, at a naval conference closing on that date in London, England, between representatives of the following powers: Germany, United States, Austria-Hungary, Spain, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands and Russia. The conference was held at the invitation of Great Britain in order to arrive at an agreement as to what are the generally recognized rules of international law within the meaning of article 7 of the convention of Oct. 18, 1907 (at The Hague), relative to the establishment of an international prize court. The agreement contains nine chapters and seventy-one articles, embodying what the signatory powers declare to correspond in substance with the generally recognized principles of international law. The subjects of the chapters are as follows: Chapter I, blockade in time of war; chapter II, contraband of war; chapter III, unneutral service; chapter IV, destruction of neutral prizes; chapter V, transfer to a neutral flag; chapter VI, enemy character; chapter VII, convoy; chapter VIII, resistance to search; chapter IX, compensation.

The signatory powers undertake to insure the mutual observance of the rules contained in the present declaration in any war in which all the belligerents are parties thereto. Ratifications are to be deposited in London. Powers not represented at the naval conference were requested to accede to the declaration of London, those doing so being placed on the same footing as the signatory powers.

REBELLION IN KWANTUNG PROVINCE, CHINA.

Kwangtung province, China, was the scene of an attempted rebellion in the latter part of April, 1911. The official residence of the viceroy of Canton was burned and Li, the fatal of the same city, was assassinated. There was considerable pillaging and for a time it was feared that the revolt would assume serious proportions. The government troops remained loyal, however, and the uprising was suppressed. Many of the rebels, who were led by Wu Zura, a Chinese educated in Japan, were killed. The movement had for its object the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty.

EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION ACT.

The law is entitled "An act to promote the general welfare of the people of this state, by providing compensation for accidental injuries or death suffered in the course of employment." It provides in section 1 that any employer covered by the provisions of the act in this state may elect to provide and pay compensation for injuries sustained by any employee arising out of and in the course of the employment according to the provisions of the act, and thereby relieve himself from any liability for the recovery of damages, except as herein provided. If, however, any such employer shall elect not to pay such compensation he shall not escape liability for injuries sustained by an employee because:

1. The employee assumed the risks of the employer's business.
2. The injury or death was caused in whole or in part by the negligence of a fellow servant.
3. The injury or death was proximately caused by the contributory negligence of the employee, but such contributory negligence shall be considered by the jury in reducing the amount of damages.

(a) Every such employer is presumed to have elected to provide and pay compensation according to the provisions of this act unless he shall have given notice to the contrary to the state bureau of labor statistics.

(b) Every employer within the provisions of the act failing to file such notice shall be bound hereby as to all his employees who shall elect to come within the provisions of the act until Jan. 1 of the next year and for terms of each year thereafter: Provided, any such employer may elect to discontinue the payments of compensation only at the expiration of any such calendar year by filing notice of such intention with the state bureau of labor statistics at least sixty days before the end of the year, and by posting such notice in his plant, office or place of work or by personal service.

(c) In the event that any employer elects to provide and pay compensation, then every employee of such employer shall be deemed to have accepted all the provisions of the act and shall be bound thereby unless within thirty days after being hired or after the taking effect of the act, he shall file a notice to the contrary with the secretary of the state bureau of labor statistics, whose duty it shall be immediately to notify the employer, and if so notified the employer shall not be deprived of any of his common law or statutory defenses, and until such notice to the contrary is given to the employer, the measure of liability of the employer for any injury shall be determined according to the compensation provisions of this act: Provided, however, that before any such employee shall be bound by the provisions of this act his employer shall either furnish to such employee at the time of his hiring, or post in a conspicuous place in the room or plant where he is to be employed, a legible statement of the compensation provisions of this act.

Sec. 2. The provisions of this act shall apply to every employer in the state engaged in building, maintaining or demolishing of any structure; in any construction or electrical work; in the business of carriage by land or water and loading and unloading in connection therewith (except as to carriers who shall be construed to be excluded herefrom by the laws of the United States relating to liability to their employes for personal injuries while engaged in interstate commerce where such laws are held to be exclusive of all state regulations providing compensation for accidental injuries or death suffered in the course of employment); in operating general or terminal storehouses; in mining, surface mining or quarrying; in any enterprise, a branch thereof, in which explosive materials are manufactured, handled, used, generated, stored or conveyed in dangerous quantities; in any enterprise wherein molten metal or injurious gases or vapors or inflammable fluids are manufactured, used, generated, stored or conveyed in dangerous quantities; and in any enterprise in which statutory regulations are now or shall hereafter be imposed for the guarding, using or the placing of machinery or appliances, or for the protection and safeguarding of the employes therein, each of which employments is hereby determined to be especially dangerous, in which, from the nature, conditions and means of prosecution of the work therein, extraordinary risks to life and limb of the employe engaged therein are inherent, necessary or substantially unavoidable, and as to each of which employments it is deemed necessary to establish a new system of compensation for accidents to employes therein.

Section 3 provides that no common law or statutory right to recover damages for injury or death sustained by any employee while engaged in the line of his duty other than the compensation herein provided shall be available to any employee who has accepted the provisions of this act or to any one dependent upon him: Provided, that when the injury to the employe was caused by the intentional omission on the part of the employer to comply with the statutory safety regulations, nothing in this act shall affect the civil liability of the employer. If the employer is a partnership, such omission must be that of one of the partners thereof, and if a corporation, that of an elective officer thereof.

Sec. 4. The amount of compensation which the employer who accepts the provisions of this act shall pay for injury to the employe which results in death shall be:

(a) If the employe leaves any widow, child or children, or parents or other lineal heirs to whose support he had contributed within five years previous to the time of his death, a sum equal to four times the average annual earnings of the employe, but not less in any event than $1,500, and not more in any event than $3,500. Any weekly payments, other than necessary medical or surgical fees, shall be deducted in ascertaining such amount payable on death.

(b) If the employe leaves collateral heirs dependent upon his earnings, such a percentage of the sum provided in article (a) as the contributions which the deceased made to the support of these dependents bore to his earnings.

(c) If the employe leaves no widow or child or children, parents or lineal or collateral heirs dependent upon his earnings, a sum not to exceed $150 for burial expenses.

(d) All compensation provided for in this section to be paid in case injury results in death shall be paid in installments equal to one-half the average earnings, at the same intervals at which the wages or earnings of the employe were paid while he was living, or if this shall not be feasible, then the installments shall be paid weekly.

(e) The compensation to be paid for injuries which result in death, as provided for in this section, shall be paid to the personal representative of the deceased employe and shall be distributed by such representative to the beneficiaries entitled thereto, in accordance with the laws of this state relating to the descent and distribution of personal property.

Sec. 5. The amount of compensation which the employer who accepts the provisions of this act shall provide and pay for injury to the employe resulting in disability shall be:

(a) Necessary first aid, medical, surgical and hospital services; also medicine and hospital services for a period not longer than eight weeks, not to exceed, however, the amount of $200; also necessary services of a physician or surgeon during such period of disability, unless such employe elects to secure his own physician or surgeon.

(b) If the period of disability lasts more than six working days, and such fact is determined by the physician or physicians, as provided in section 9, compensation equal to one-half of the earnings, but not less than $5 nor more than $12 per week, beginning on the eighth day of disability, and as long as the disability lasts, or until the amount of compensation paid equals the amount payable as a death benefit.

(c) If any employe, by reason of any accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, receive any serious and permanent disfigurement to the hands or face, but which injury does not actually incapacitate the employe from pursuing his usual employment so that it is possible to measure compensation in accordance with the methods of computing the same herein provided, such employe shall have the right to resort to arbitration for the purpose of determining a reasonable amount of compensation which must not exceed one-quarter the amount of compensation in case of death.

(d) If it shall appear that the employe has been partially, though permanently, incapacitated from pursuing his usual line of employment, he shall receive compensation equal to one-half the difference between the average amount which he earned before the accident, and the average amount which he is earning, or is able to earn, after the accident, if suitable employment is secured.

(e) In the case of complete disability which renders the employe wholly and permanently incapable of work, compensation for the first eight days after the injury was received, equal to 50 per cent of his earnings, but not less than $5 nor more than $12 per week. If complete disability continues after the payment of a sum equal to the amount of the death benefit or after the expiration of eight years, then a compensation during life, equal to 3 per cent of the death benefit which would have been payable had the accident resulted in death. Such compensation shall not be less than $10 per month and shall be payable monthly.

1. In case death occurs before the total payments made equal the amount payable as a death benefit, as provided in section 4, article (a), then in the case the employe leaves any widow, child or children, the amount of the death benefit they shall be paid the difference between the compensation for death and the sum of such payment, but in no case shall this sum be less than $500.

2. In cases of complete disability after compensation has been paid at the specified rate for a term of at least six months, the employe shall have the privilege of filing a petition asking for a lump sum in payment of the difference between the sum of the payments received and the compensation to which he was entitled when such permanent disability has been definitely determined. For the purpose of this section, blindness or the total irrevocable loss of sight, the loss of both feet or above the ankle, the loss of both hands at or above the wrists, the loss of one hand and one foot, an injury to the spine resulting in permanent paralysis of the legs or arms, and a fracture of the skull resulting in incurable imbecility or insanity, shall be considered complete and permanent disability. Provided, these specific cases of complete disability shall not be construed as excluding other cases.

3. In fixing the amount of the disability payments, regard shall be had to any payments, allowance or benefit which the employe may have received from the employer during the period of his incapacity, except the expenses of necessary medical or surgical treatment. In no event, except in cases of complete disability as defined above, shall any weekly payment payable under the compensation plan in this section provided exceed $12 per week or extend over a period of more than eight weeks from the date of the accident. In case an injured employe shall be incompetent at the time when any right or privilege accrues to him, a conservator or guardian, appointed according to law, may claim and exercise such right or privilege.

Section 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ provides that any person entitled to compensation under this act, or any employe who shall be bound to pay compensation under the act, who shall desire to have such compensation or any part of it paid in a lump sum, may petition any court of competent jurisdiction in the county asking that the compensation shall be so paid, and if it appears to be for the best interest of the parties concerned, the court shall order the payment of a lump sum, and where necessary a guardian, conservator or administrator shall be appointed for any person under disability, who may be entitled to such compensation.

Sec. 6. The basis for computing the compensation shall be as follows:

(a) The compensation shall be computed on the basis of the annual earnings which the injured person received as salary, wages or earnings in the employment of the same employer during the year next preceding the injury.

(b) The employment of the same employer shall be taken to mean employment by the same employer in the grade in which the employe was at the time of the accident, uninterrupted by absence from work due to illness or any other unavoidable cause.

(c) The annual earnings if not otherwise determinable shall be regarded as 300 times the average daily earnings in such computation.

(d) If the injured person has not been engaged in the employment for a full year immediately preceding the accident, the compensation shall be computed according to the annual earnings which persons of the same class in the same or neighboring employments of the same kind have earned during such period. If this is impossible or unreasonable, 300 times the amount which the injured person earned on an average on those days when he was working shall be used as the basis.

(e) In the case of injured employes who earn either no wages or less than 300 times the usual daily wage or earnings of the adult day laborers in the same line of industry of that locality, the yearly wage shall be reckoned as 300 times the average daily local wage.

(f) In employments in which it is customary to operate for a part of the whole number of working days in each year, such number shall be used as a basis of computation, provided the minimum number shall not be less than 200.

(g) Earnings for the purpose of this section shall be based on the earnings for the number of hours commonly regarded as a day's work for that employment and shall exclude overtime earnings.

(h) In computing the compensation to be paid to any employe who, before the accident for which he claims compensation, was disabled and drawing compensation under this act, the compensation for each subsequent injury shall be apportioned according to the proportion of incapacity and disability caused by the respective injuries which he may have suffered.

Section 7 provides that the compensation under the act shall not be reduced in any way by contributions from employes. Section 8 provides that if it is proved that the injury to the employe resulted from his deliberate intention to cause such injury, no compensation shall be allowed.

Sec. 9. Any employe entitled to receive disability payments shall be required, if requested by the employer, to submit himself for examination at the expense of the employer to a duly qualified medical practitioner or surgeon selected by the employer as soon as practicable after the injury and also at stated intervals thereafter to determine the extent of the injury and the amount of compensation: Provided, that such examination shall be made in the presence of a doctor paid for by the employe if he so desires. In the event of a disagreement they may agree upon a third doctor, or, failing to agree, the judge of the County court shall select the third physician. The majority report of the three physicians shall be used in estimating the amount of compensation payable.

Sec. 10. Any question of law or fact arising in determining the compensation shall be settled either by agreement or by arbitration. In case an agreement cannot be reached the employer and employe shall each select a disinterested person and the judge of the County court shall select a third disinterested person, the three to constitute a board of arbitrators who shall hear and determine all such disputed points of law or fact. The finding of the board of arbitrators shall be binding upon both the employer and employe except for fraud or mistake. An appeal, however, may be taken to the Circuit court or the court that appointed the third arbitrator.

Sec. 11. Any person entitled to payment under the compensation provisions of this act shall have the same preferential claim therefor against the property of the employer as is now allowed by law for a claim by such person against such employer for unpaid wages or for personal service; the payments shall not be subject to attachment, levy, execution, garnishment or satisfaction of debts, except to the same extent as wages or personal service earnings are now subject to similar legal processes, and shall not be assignable.

Sec. 12. Any contract or agreement made by any employer or his agent or attorney with any employee or any other beneficiary of any claim under the provisions of the act within seven days after the injury shall be deemed to be fraudulent.

Sec. 13. No employee or beneficiary shall have power to waive any of the provisions of this act in regard to the amount of compensation which may be payable to such employee or beneficiary hereunder.

Section 14 provides that no proceedings for compensation shall be maintained unless notice of the accident shall have been given the employer as soon as practicable and unless claim for compensation has been made within six months after the injury. Section 15 provides that the act shall not affect the continuance of any existing insurance, mutual aid, benefit or relief association or department, whether maintained in whole or in part by the employer or by the employees, the payment of such association being guaranteed by the employer or some person or corporation for him: Provided, the employer contributes to such association an amount sufficient to insure the employee or other beneficiary the full compensation provided, exclusive of the cost of the maintenance of such association without any expense to the employee. The act shall not prevent the organization and maintaining of any benefit or insurance company for the purpose of insuring against the compensation provided for in this act, the expense of which is maintained by the employer. The act shall not prevent the organization and maintaining of any voluntary mutual aid, benefit or relief association among employees for the payment of additional accident or sick benefits. reservation by the state of desirable tracts of land in connection with the public waters of the state to the end that public reservations or preserves may be made for the use of all the people, to obtain data as to the availability of the various streams for water power, to make particular research into the natural resources of the state in connection with the public waters, to co-operate with the fish commission in devising ways and means of propagating fish in such waters, to make a careful investigation of the streams of the state with reference to their carrying capacity in times of flood and to see to it that such carrying capacity is not limited and impaired by encroachments.

It shall be the duty of the commission to carefully examine the shore lines of Lake Michigan and the Chicago river, not less than four times each year, for the purpose of seeing that encroachments are not made upon these bodies of water and that land is not made encroaching upon the lake or river. Because of the failure of the 47th general assembly, at its regular session, to enact legislation concerning a deep waterway from Lockport to Utica and the development of water power incident thereto, Gov. Deneen, on June 6, 1911, called an extra session to enact the legislation in question. The legislature met June 14 and on the same day the waterway bill was reported favorably by the senate waterway committee. The measure passed its second reading June 16 by a vote of 30 to 7 and then, after it had been amended so as to limit waterway development to the issuance of $500,000 in bonds to conserve the water power rights along the proposed channel, it passed its third reading by a vote of 33 yeas to 7 nays. The bill went to the house, but before any action was taken the assembly adjourned to Oct. 24.

At the regular session the waterway bill was passed by the senate by a vote of 36 to 17, but in the house Speaker Charles Adkins prevented any action from being taken. When the session was resumed Oct. 24 the bill was reported to the house and passed its second reading. It was made a special order for the following day, when it was defeated by a vote of fifty-nine to sixty-five. It needed seventy-seven yeas for its passage. The vote was as follows.

ELECTORAL AND LEGISLATIVE REFORM.

To solve the problem of making representative government more representative and thus give the people firmer control in municipal, state and national affairs, various agencies have been adopted. Some are comparatively old as to origin, though new as to extent and manner of application, while others are of more recent date. Among those which have attracted the most attention in late years and which are being tested in many communities are the following:

- The short ballot.
- Commission form of city government.
- Initiative.
- Referendum.
- Recall.
- Improved registration methods.
- Nonpartisan ballots.
- Direct primaries.
- Preferential voting.
- Corrupt practice acts.
- Direct election of United States senators.

THE SHORT BALLOT.

The short ballot principle is defined by the Short Ballot organization as follows:

"The dangerously great power of politicians in our country is not due to any peculiar civic indifference of the people, but rests on the fact that we are living under a form of democracy that is so unworkable as to constitute in practice a pseudo democracy. It is unworkable because:

"1. It submits to popular election offices which are too unimportant to attract (or deserve) public attention; and,

"2. It submits to popular election so many offices at one time that many of them are inevitably crowded out from proper public attention; and,

"3. It submits to popular election so many offices at one time that the business of making up the elaborate tickets necessary at every election makes the political machine an indispensable instrument in electoral action.

"Many officials, therefore, are elected without adequate public scrutiny, and owe their selection not to the people, but to the makers of the party ticket, who thus acquire an influence that is capable of great abuse.

"The 'short ballot' principle is:

"1. That only those offices should be elective which are important enough to attract (and deserve) public examination.

"2. That very few offices should be filled by election at one time, so as to permit adequate and unconfused public examination of the candidates.

"Obedience to these fundamental principles explains the comparative success of democratic government in the cities of Great Britain and other foreign democracies, as well as in Galveston, Des Moines and other American cities that are governed by 'commissions.'"

The Short Ballot organization has its headquarters at 383 4th avenue, New York, N. Y. The secretary is Richard S. Childs.

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

The main features of the commission form of government, as ascertained by Ernest S. Bradford of Washington, D. C., after comparing the various plans in operation in Iowa, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Mississippi, Kentucky, Illinois, South Carolina, Louisiana and other commonwealths, are the following:

1. The governing body is made up of a small number of members. The usual number is five. Three is the next most common number, occurring most frequently in the smaller cities. Other places have from four to nine. The Illinois act calls for five commissioners and the Wisconsin law for three.

2. Wards as election units are abolished. Each commissioner is voted for by all the electors and is responsible to the entire city rather than to a section of it. Under this arrangement each voter wields more power, as he votes for all the commissioners instead of for one or two of a large number of aldermen. Better men are elected and the influence of a bad ward is less than when it is represented by its own special aldermen.

3. Ample powers are conferred upon the commission. By this is meant that it exercises not only the usual ordinance making power, but it also oversees the administrative departments of the city and appoints the officers. In other words, it decides by ordinance what shall be done, appoints the men to do it—department subordinates and employees—and sees that it is done.

4. Each commissioner is assigned to be the head of a definite department, for the conduct of which he is responsible to the commission, and to some extent directly to the people. Commissioners do not look after the details of their departments; they have superintendents who do this under their direction. In most commission charters it is provided that the mayor shall be one of the council, voting but not having the veto power. He usually presides at meetings, signs ordinances, contracts and warrants on the treasury and performs other ministerial acts.

5. Control by the people is insured by means of the following checks: (a) Publicity of proceedings, ordinances (including franchises), and of the general and financial condition of the city; (b) the referendum; (c) the initiative; (d) the recall; (e) nonpartisan primary and election methods; (f) a civil service commission. Nearly every commission charter has one or more of these checks.

ILLINOIS LAW.

The Illinois law providing for the voluntary adoption of the commission form of government by cities of not to exceed 200,000 population was approved March 9, 1910. Its main features are these:

In cities adopting the commission form of government elections of officers take place quadrennially on the third Tuesday of April, beginning with 1911.

Four commissioners and a mayor are elected at large without reference to wards.

Primary tickets for the nomination of candidates are nonpartisan and without a circle at the head. Two candidates for mayor and eight for commissioners are nominated.

The commission is called the council. It exercises all the legislative, executive and supervisory powers heretofore exercised by the mayor, city council and other city, town or village officials. The mayor is without the veto power.

The executive and administrative powers are distributed among five departments as follows:

1. Public affairs.
2. Accounts and finances.
3. Public health and safety.
4. Streets and public improvements.
5. Public property.

The mayor is commissioner of public affairs.

The council may, in its discretion, elect a city clerk, corporation counsel, city attorney, treasurer, comptroller, city physician, police chief, fire chief, harbor master, market master, three library trustees and other officers.

Salaries are fixed by the council according to the size of the city or village. The mayor's salary ranges from $50 to $6,000 a year and that of each commissioner from $40 to $5,000.

Recall—All elective officials except judges are subject to recall on the petition of 55 per cent of the voters.

Initiative—Any proposed ordinance may be submitted to the council on the petition of 10 to 25 per cent of the voters and must be adopted within thirty days or be submitted to a general or special election. (See "The Initiative" following.)

Referendum—All ordinances, with certain exceptions, must be submitted to the voters for approval by a majority vote.

THE INITIATIVE.

The "initiative" is a political device by which the people are enabled to pass laws or ordinances without change or modification by the ordinary legislative bodies. It has been called the positive or constructive side of direct legislation, just as the referendum, which enables the people to reject proposed laws, is the negative side. By this method a minority ranging in number from 5 to 25 per cent may file a petition for a law, or, when a city, an ordinance. The measure must then, without change or revision, go before the people for their judgment, and, if it is approved by a majority of the votes cast, it becomes law without further process. Laws and ordinances so passed are not subject to veto.

In 1891 the initiative was adopted by Switzerland as a means of introducing proposals for the amendment of the constitution. The first state in America to adopt it was South Dakota, which in 1893 amended its constitution so as to reserve to the people the right to propose measures, "which measures the legislature shall enact and submit to a vote of the electors of the state." Initiative petitions in South Dakota must be signed by 5 per cent of the voters. In the constitution of the new state of Oklahoma, adopted in 1907, the "people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the legislature." The initiative has also been adopted in connection with the referendum in state legislation in Maine, Michigan, Montana, Missouri, Utah, Nevada, California and Oregon. (See "The Oregon Plan" subjoined.)

It is in connection with the commission form of city government, however, that the initiative has been put to the widest use. Nearly all the states in which cities are permitted to organize under this system, by special charter or otherwise, provide for recourse to the initiative. This is the case in Massachusetts, South Carolina, Kentucky, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, South Dakota, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, California, Washington, Idaho.

In the case of cities the initiative operates normally in the following manner, according to the Digest of Short Ballot Charters: "The ordinance proposed is submitted to the board of commissioners by a petition of a certain number of voters or a percentage of the total vote cast at the last preceding municipal election. The board of commissioners then have the option of (1) taking the initiative into their own hands and passing the proposed ordinance, or (2) submitting the same to the voters at either a general or special election." Usually to have a measure submitted to the voters at a special election the percentage of petitioners required is 25; to have it submitted at a general election, 10.

Section 47 of the Illinois act provides that any proposed ordinance may be submitted to the council (commission) by petition signed by a certain percentage of the voters. If the petition is signed by 25 per cent of the voters and contains a request that the ordinance be submitted to a vote of the people, if not passed by the council, such council shall either (a) pass such ordinance without alteration within thirty days, or (b) within thirty days from the date of the filing of the petition call a special election unless a general municipal election occurs within ninety days thereafter, when such ordinance shall be submitted without alteration to the vote of the electors of the city.

If the petition is signed by not less than 10 per cent and not more than 25 per cent of the electors, the council shall within thirty days pass such ordinance without change or submit the same at the next general municipal election.

THE REFERENDUM.

The referendum may be defined as the submission of a proposed law or ordinance, which has been passed by the people's representatives in a legislature or council, to a vote of the people for ratification or rejection. It has been in use in Switzerland since the sixteenth century and, in a restricted form, in the United States for many years, especially in passing upon constitutions and constitutional amendments. It is only since 1898, however, that the referendum, in connection with the initiative, has been used as an instrument of direct legislation both by states and cities. In the year named South Dakota amended its constitution so as to reserve to the people the right to require that any laws which the legislature enacted should be submitted to a vote of the electors of the state before going into effect. As in the case of the initiative, not more than 5 per cent of the voters are required in that state for invoking the referendum.

Since 1898 it has been brought into use for state purposes, to a greater or less degree, in Maine, Utah, Nevada, Montana, Missouri, Michigan, Oklahoma, Oregon (see "The Oregon Plan" subjoined), New Mexico, California and Arizona. Under a law adopted in 1901 10 per cent of the registered voters of the state of Illinois may secure an expression of opinion by electors on questions of public policy at any general or special election. In the case of an incorporated town, village, city, township, county or school district, the petition for the submission of any question for an expression of public opinion must be signed by 25 per cent of the registered voters.

In commission governed cities the referendum is in general use. As a rule all ordinances passed by the council, except those for the immediate preservation of public health or safety, are suspended from operation for a specified period. While so suspended the ordinance is subject to a protest, in the form of a petition, against its final passage. If the petition is in proper form the commissioners must either (1) rescind its former action, or (2) submit the ordinance to the people for their approval or disapproval. Referendum petitions require the signature of from 5 to 25 per cent of the voters. As in the case of the initiative, it is common to require 25 per cent to submit the question to a special election and 10 per cent to a general election. In Illinois cities a petition must be signed by electors equal in number to at least 10 per cent of the entire vote cast for all the candidates for mayor at the last preceding general election.

THE RECALL.

The "recall" is a method of procedure by which the people are enabled to remove from his position any public elective official at will. This requires a petition signed by a certain specified percentage or number of voters. The usual percentage in such cases is 25. In Oregon all state officials, including judges and members of the legislature, are subject to recall (see "The Oregon Plan" subjoined). In the proposed constitution of Arizona it was provided that every public officer in the state, holding an elective office, either by election or appointment, should be subject to recall from such office by the qualified electors of the district from which candidates were elected to such office. President Taft vetoed this provision so far as the judiciary was concerned. Such district may include the whole state. Twenty-five per cent of the electors may file a recall petition.

In most of the cities under the commission form of government the recall of elective public officers is provided for through the filing of petitions signed by from 15 to 75 per cent of the voters. When the sufficiency of a petition has been established the commissioners must call an election for filling a prospective vacancy in the position of the officer sought to be removed. The officer in question may be a candidate for re-election. If at the recall election he does not receive the highest number of votes he is thereby automatically removed from office. Many of the charters provide for an interval of immunity after the installation of the officer, during which the recall petition may not be presented.

Though 25 per cent is the usual percentage of voters whose signatures are required on recall petitions, it is not uniform. In South Dakota cities it is only 15, while in Illinois it is 55. In Louisiana it is 33.

In Illinois every incumbent of an elective office, except a judicial office, is subject to recall and removal by the electors, at any time. A petition signed by electors equal in number to 55 per cent of the total vote for mayor at the last preceding general municipal election is filed with the city or village clerk, which petition must contain a statement in not more than 200 words of the ground on which the removal or recall is sought to be made. The petition being sufficient, the clerk immediately submits the same to the council and the council fixes a day for holding an election to fill the vacancy caused by the recall. If the officer whose removal is sought resigns within five days after the petition is filed the council appoints his successor and no election is held.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

Under the direct primary system the tendency is to throw more safeguards around the registration of voters. In cities having a large floating population of the kind that resorts to cheap lodging houses there has been much complaint of illegal voting as the result of lax registration methods. An example of the strict requirements established in communities having improved systems of registration will be found in the outline of "The Oregon Plan" given herewith.

NONPARTISAN BALLOTS.

In many of the cities that have adopted the commission form of government nonpartisan ballots are required both at the primaries and elections. This is the case in Illinois, where the statute provides that the ballots at the primary shall have no party, platform or principle designated and that there shall be no circle printed at the top. It also provides that the ballots to be used at the election are to be similar to those at the primary and are to be without party designations or a circle at the head. The same rule prevails in commission governed cities in Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota (except that no primaries are held), California and Washington.

In some states certain judicial offices are excluded from the direct primaries and nominations are made on a nonpartisan basis. Nebraska, North Dakota, Tennessee, Washington and Wisconsin have laws of this kind.

DIRECT PRIMARIES.

More than a score of states now have mandatory direct primary election laws, covering practically all offices, and nearly as many other states have either optional direct primary laws for nearly all offices or optional or mandatory direct primary laws for certain offices or localities. The tendency in all parts of the country is to do away entirely with the old convention system, under which nominations are practically made by a few party leaders. Under the new direct system the names of all candidates whose petitions are signed by a certain percentage of the party voters are placed on the ballot and are voted on by the registered party voters. The primaries are conducted by the regular election officials at the usual polling places and at the public expense.

States having mandatory direct primary election laws include Arizona, California, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, Wisconsin.

Five states have laws that permit their party voters to indicate directly at the primaries their choice for president and vice-president of the United States. These states are North Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Oregon and New Jersey.

PREFERENTIAL VOTING.

The preferential voting system was first adopted in Grand Junction, Col., Sept. 14, 1909. According to Robert Tyson, ex-secretary of the American Proportional Representation league, the following advantages were thereby secured:

1. Abolition of primary elections.
2. A clear majority at once voting.
3. Freedom of nomination, that is, several candidates representing a given policy can be nominated for one office without dividing the vote and thereby defeating the policy.

The petition of nomination in each case must consist of not less than twenty-five individual certificates submitted by qualified electors. Each of these electors certifies that he believes the person named is qualified to fill the office specified and is of good moral character. "I further certify," continues the elector, "that I join in this petition for the nomination of the above named person believing that he has not become a candidate as the nominee or representative of, or because of any promised support from, any political party or any committee or convention representing or acting for any political party." The certificate is signed under oath and before a notary public.

On the tenth day before election the clerk certifies a list of candidates nominated for the several offices and prepares ballots which contain the full list of names nominated for each office with three columns opposite each name for indicating first, second and third choice for each office. No ballot has printed on it any party or political designation or mark, nor is any such mark permitted to appear after the name of any candidate. The person receiving more than one-half of the total number of ballots cast as the first choice for any office is elected to that office. If no candidate receives such majority of first choice ballots then the name of the candidate printed on the ballot having the smallest number of first choice votes, and all names written on the ballot having a less number of votes than such last named candidate, are excluded from the count. A canvass of the made of the second choice votes received by the remaining candidates for the office; the second choice votes are then added to the first choice votes received by each of the remaining candidates for the office, and the candidate receiving the largest number of such first and second choice votes, if such votes constitute a majority of all the ballots cast at the election, is elected. If, however, there is still no majority, the name of the candidate then having the smallest number of first and second choice votes is excluded from the count. A canvass of the third choice votes received by the remaining candidates is then made; the third choice votes are then added to the first and second choice votes received by each of the remaining candidates for the office, and the candidate receiving the highest number of first, second and third choice votes is elected. A tie between two or more candidates is decided in favor of the one having the greatest number of first choice votes. If all are equal in that respect then the greatest number of second choice votes will decide; in case it does not decide then the tie is determined by lot.

The Grand Junction system of preferential voting is in use in Spokane, Wash., in a somewhat modified form to suit local conditions. Both cities are under the commission form of government.

Under the Hare plan, which is used in West Australia, when a second choice has to be used it is substituted for the first choice on the same ballot and is not added to the first choice. This also holds good as to the third and subsequent choices. There are other minor differences.

CORRUPT PRACTICES ACTS.

Several states have "corrupt practices acts" intended to prevent the undue use of money in securing nominations at primaries. In general the laws require candidates to limit their campaign expenses to a certain maximum and to file statements of all contributions received and payments made. States having acts of this kind include Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon, Wisconsin.

Corporations are prohibited from contributing to campaign funds in Georgia, Massachusetts, Mississippi and Ohio.

Congress in 1910 passed a law providing for the publication of the sources and use of all contributions to political committees toward the expenses of candidates in congressional elections in two or more states. This law was broadened and made much more stringent by an amendment adopted in 1911. [See "Publicity of Campaign Contributions" under "Work of 62d Congress, First Session."] .

SENATORIAL ELECTION REFORM.

Because of the increasing frequency of deadlocks in state legislatures, the use of money or patronage in securing votes and the improper influence of corporations, a widespread demand has arisen for the direct election of United States senators by the people. In some of the states this has been practically accomplished by pledging members of the legislature to carry out the will of the people and elect the man who gets the largest vote at the senatorial primary. This part of the Oregon plan is shown in the outline given of that system. In other states the result of the primary is merely advisory and is regarded as not legally or morally binding upon the legislators.

Efforts were made in the final session of the 61st congress and the first (extra) session of the 62d congress to pass a joint resolution providing for the direct election of United States senators by the people, but failed. [See "Direct Election of Senators" under "Work of 62d Congress, First Session."] .

THE OREGON PLAN.

The following outline of the so-called "Oregon plan" of direct legislation is based on a speech on "Popular Versus Delegated Government," delivered in the United States senate May 5, 1910, by Senator Bourne of Oregon. The system in use in that state has been made the model of similar legislation, proposed or enacted, in other states.

AUSTRALIAN BALLOT.

Oregon in 1891 adopted the Australian ballot, which insures secrecy, prevents intimidation and reduces the opportunity for bribery.

REGISTRATION LAW.

In 1899 Oregon enacted a registration law applying to general elections and in 1904 enlarged its scope through the law creating a direct primary. This law requires registration prior to voting in either the general or primary election. Before voting in a general or primary the voter must, under oath, register his party affiliation. Registration begins five months before the general election. The registration books are closed ten days prior to the primary election, are opened four days after the primary and are then kept open until about twenty days before the general election. Upon these books are entered the full name of the voter, his registration number, date of registration, his occupation, age, nativity, date and place of naturalization, if any, and his place of residence. It is required that the voter, if he is not the head of the house he occupies, must show that fact and specify the room in which he lives and on what floor it is located. He must sign the register, if he can write. If unable to do so the reason must be given. If it is due to illiteracy, a physical description of the man must be noted on the register.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

In June, 1902, the initiative and referendum amendment to the constitution was adopted. It provides that the legislative authority shall be vested in a legislative assembly, but that the people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and amendments to the constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the legislative assembly, and also reserve power to approve or reject at the polls any act of the legislature. An initiative petition must be signed by 8 per cent of the legal voters, as shown by the vote for supreme judge at the last preceding election. A referendum petition need be signed by only 5 per cent of the voters. The legislature may veto referred to the people and act passed by it. The veto power of the governor does not extend to any measure referred to the people.

PUBLICITY PAMPHLETS.

The law provides that the secretary of state shall, at public expense, mail to every registered voter in the state a printed pamphlet containing a true copy of the title and text of each measure to be submitted to the people and the proponents and opponents of the law have the right to insert in the pamphlet, at the actual cost to themselves of paper and printing only, such arguments as they see fit to make. These pamphlets must be mailed not later than fifty-five days before a general election and twenty days before a special election.

DIRECT PRIMARY LAW.

In 1904 a direct primary law was adopted. It provides for a primary election to be held forty-five days prior to the general election at the usual polling places and with the usual officials. Any party polling 25 per cent of the vote at the previous election is brought under the law. Any legal voter can become a candidate in the primaries for any office by filing a petition signed by a certain per cent of the voters. Names of candidates are arranged in alphabetical order on the ballots. Registration of party affiliation is a prerequisite to participation in a party primary. It is also provided that the candidate in his petition shall, among other things, agree that he will "accept the nomination and will not withdraw," and, if elected, "will qualify as an officer." Each candidate is entitled to have placed in his petition a statement not to exceed 100 words and on the ballot after his name a legend not to exceed twelve words, setting forth any measures or principles he especially advocates.

PLEDGES BY LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES.

In the case of a legislator's nomination, the candidate may, in addition to his statement of measures and principles, also subscribe to one of two statements, but if he does not so subscribe he shall not on that account be debarred from the ballot. He has three courses open to him. He may subscribe to "statement No. 1," as follows:

"I further state to the people of Oregon, as well as to the people of my legislative district, that during my term of office I shall always vote for that candidate for United States senator in congress who has received the highest number of the people's votes for that position at the general election next preceding the election of a senator in congress without regard to my individual preference."

Or he may subscribe to "statement No. 2," as follows:

"During my term of office I shall consider the vote of the people for United States senator in congress as nothing more than a recommendation, which I shall be at liberty to wholly disregard if the reason for doing so seems to me to be sufficient."

Or he may be perfectly silent on the election of United States senator.

POPULAR VOTE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The primary law further provides that United States senators may be nominated by their respective parties in the party primaries, and the candidate receiving the greatest number of votes becomes the party nominee. Then, in the general election, the party nominees are voted for by the people and the individual receiving the highest number of votes becomes the people's choice for United States senator. In 1908 the advocates of the election of senators by the people and the enforcement of statement No. 1 submitted to the people the following bill:

"Be it enacted by the people of the state of Oregon: Section 1. That we, the people of Oregon, hereby instruct our representatives and senators in our legislative assembly, as such officers, to vote for and elect the candidates for United States senators from this state who receive the highest number of votes at our general election."

This bill became a law by a vote of 69,565 to 21,182.

CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT.

In 1908 Oregon by popular vote adopted a corrupt practices act. This provides that no candidate for office shall expend in his campaign for nomination more than 15 per cent of one year's compensation of the office for which he is a candidate, provided that no candidate shall be restricted to less than $100. The act provides for the publication by the secretary of state, for the information of the voters, of a pamphlet, in which a candidate in the primary campaign may have published a statement setting forth his qualifications, the principles and policies he advocates and any other matter in support of his candidacy. Each candidate must pay for at least one page, the amount to be paid varying from $100 for the highest office to $10 for the lowest. Any person may use space in this pamphlet in opposition to any candidate, the space being paid for the same as by the candidates. Information regarding state and congressional candidates is printed in a pamphlet issued by the secretary of state, one copy being mailed to each registered voter in the state. Pamphlets regarding county candidates are issued by the county clerk and mailed to each voter in the county. Similar pamphlets are printed and distributed prior to the general election, the party committees or managers filing the matter they want published with the secretary of state. In the campaign preceding the general election each candidate is limited in expenditures to 10 per cent of one year's compensation. Among the acts prohibited by the act are these:

Promises of appointments in return for political support.

Publication or distribution of anonymous letters or circulars regarding candidates or measures before the people.

Solicitation or acceptance of campaign contributions from or payment of contributions by persons holding appointive positions.

Sale of editorial support or the publication of paid political advertising without marking it "paid advertising."

Use of carriages in conveying voters to the polls. Active electioneering or soliciting votes on election day.

Campaign contributions by quasi public or certain other important classes of corporations generally affected by legislation.

Inimidation or coercion of voters in any manner. Contribution of funds in the name of any other than the person furnishing the money.

Treating by candidates as a means of winning favor.

Betting on an election by a candidate or betting on an election by any other person with intent to influence the result.

PUBLICITY OF CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES.

The corrupt practices act further requires that every candidate shall file an itemized account of his campaign expenditures within fifteen days after the primary election, including in such statement all debts contracted and promises made. Every political committee must have its treasurer and cause him to keep a detailed account of its receipts, expenditures and liabilities. An itemized statement must be published within ten days after the election. The books must be open to the inspection of the chairman and treasurer of any opposing party. The candidate violating any part of the corrupt practices act forfeits his right to the office. He or any other person violating the law is subject to imprisonment for a year or a fine of not more than $1,000, or both.

THE RECALL.

The recall amendment to the constitution of Oregon was adopted in 1908. Any public officer may be recalled by the filing of a petition signed by 25 per cent of the voters. The petition must set forth the reasons for the recall, and if the officer does not resign within five days after the petition is filed a special election must be ordered to be held within twenty days to determine whether the people will recall such official. On the ballot at such election the reasons for demanding the recall of the officer may be set forth in not more than 200 words and his justification may be given in a similar number of words. No petition can be circulated against any officer until he has held the office six months, except that in the case of a member of the legislature it may be filed at any time within five days after the opening of the session. At the special election the candidate receiving the highest number of votes is declared elected. The special election is held at the public expense, but a second recall petition cannot be filed against an officer unless the petitioners first pay the entire expenses of the first recall election.

DIRECT VOTE FOR PRESIDENT.

In 1910 a bill was prepared and submitted to the people of Oregon, under the initiative, proposing an amendment to the direct primary law, providing that in each year of presidential election the primaries shall be held in April and that opportunity shall be given the voters to express their preference for party candidates for president and vice-president, and to select delegates to the national conventions and nominate their party candidates for presidential electors. This bill was adopted on a referendum vote at the November election and became a law. The first primaries under its provisions will be held in April, 1912, and Oregon will therefore be the first state to indicate its preference for president and candidates. This preference will be in the nature of an instruction to the state's delegations in the national conventions, but the delegates will not be bound to vote for the choice of their state if they find that by so doing votes would be thrown away. There is a moral though not a legal obligation upon them to support the choice of the members of their respective parties in Oregon so long as the candidates endorsed have a chance of winning the nomination.

RESULTS.

In a statement issued by the advocates of the system of direct legislation it is claimed that the "Oregon plan" provides a speedy, peaceful and definite method of determining questions of public policy without undue expense. The total cost to the state for postage, printing, mailing and distributing the pamphlet of thirty-two measures and arguments to every voter in the state in 1910 was less than 20 cents for each registered voter. The total cost to the state for the initiative and referendum in four elections on sixty-four measures was $47,610.61. The cost to seventy-one private organizations for conducting educational campaigns for and against measures was about $125,000. The questions of public policy declared to have been definitely settled by the direct vote of the people of Oregon up to the end of 1910 were these:

1. That they will not tolerate a return to anything like the convention method of making nominations, but will retain their direct primary system until something better is offered.

2. That they will enforce election by the legislature of that candidate for United States senator in congress who receives the highest number of the people's votes.

3. Complete prohibition of railroad passes for all persons except employes of the railroads.

4. Abolition of the power of city councils to give away public franchises.

5. Abolition of the temptation and opportunity to buy or sell votes in the legislature.

6. That the people of every city or town shall have power to make and amend their city charters on all local matters at their own pleasure, absolutely free from special acts by the legislature.

7. That they will retain the initiative and referendum in lawmaking.

8. That they will have power to recall any elected public officer from constable to governor, including judges of the courts.

9. That they approve the principle of election of members of the legislature by proportional representation, though they have not yet agreed on the method.

10. That they will provide liberally by taxes for support of higher education in the state university.

11. That they will maintain one efficient normal school.

12. That corporations having little or no tangible property should pay a gross income and license tax.

13. That the expenditures of any candidate for public office shall be limited to practically one-fourth of one year's salary of the office he seeks, and the state will provide the greater part of the expense for publicity of the merits of candidates and of political parties.

14. That edible fish, especially salmon, shall be conserved in the navigable rivers of the state.

15. That measures of chiefly local interest will be rejected if submitted to the voters of the whole state.

16. Abolition of the convention system of electing delegates to national conventions, establishing direct election of such delegates by the voters of the great parties, and permitting expression by the voters of their choice for their party candidates for president and vice-president.

17. That three-fourths of a jury shall be able to render a verdict in all civil cases, and court procedure shall be so simplified as to discourage appeals to the Supreme court for delay and new trials because of technical errors, if substantial justice has been obtained in the lower court.

18. That they do not approve state wide prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquor.

19. That they have established and will maintain local option on the liquor question.

20. That they require a reasonable measure of employers' liability for workmen's accidents.

21. They have granted the people of each county power to exempt from all taxation any class or classes of property, subject to any general laws approved by the people of the state.

22. That no citizen shall be tried in a Circuit court for crime unless accused by a grand jury.

23. That general elections shall be held in November when most other states vote, instead of in June.

24. That the public credit shall not be used to aid, build or operate private or government railroads.

25. That counties may issue bonds to build permanent highways.

26. That private schemes for looting the public treasury cannot be worked by the inflative method.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACTS.

[From bulletin No. 96 of the United States bureau of labor.]

IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

To distinguish them from employers' liability laws the term "workmen's compensation laws" is used to designate those acts which provide for the award of fixed sums to employes injured by industrial accidents, without the necessity of litigation and without reference to the question of negligence upon which employers' liability acts are based. It is provided in most such laws, however, that gross negligence on the part of the employe injured will bar his right to compensation, while such negligence on the part of the employer sometimes gives the right to increased compensation. Usually the disablement must last a specified number of days before compensation becomes due.

The industries usually covered by the acts are manufacturing, mining and quarrying, transportation, building and engineering work, and in some countries agriculture, forestry and navigation. In Greece and New South Wales they are limited to mining and quarrying. In Belgium and Great Britain the laws apply practically to all employments. In Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Italy, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, Norway, Russia, Spain and Sweden only wage earners, and in some cases those exposed to the same risks, such as overseers and technical experts, come within the scope of the law. In France, Great Britain, the British colonies and Hungary the laws apply to salaried employes and workmen equally. Overseers and technical experts earning more than a prescribed amount are excluded in Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Luxemburg and Russia. Employes of the state, provincial and local governments usually come within the provisions of the acts.

The entire burden rests on the employer in all but six countries, Austria, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Luxemburg and New South Wales, where the employes bear part of the expense. The laws fix the compensation to be paid and with but one or two unimportant exceptions the compensation is based upon the wages received by the injured person. It consists of allowances for temporary disability, and annual pensions or lump sum payments for permanent disability or death, to which are added frequently the expenses of medical and surgical treatment and a funeral benefit.

The acts of nearly all the countries are framed with the view of obviating the necessity of legal proceedings. If disputes arise the acts specify the necessary procedure for settlement by arbitration tribunals or by law courts.

So far as the method of organization of insurance is concerned, the countries may be divided into two groups, according to whether insurance is compulsory or voluntary. In the case of compulsory insurance it may be in prescribed institutions or associations controlled by the state or it may be in private companies or mutual associations; in the case of voluntary insurance it may be in private companies or mutual associations with or without state competition.

Wherever there is compulsory insurance in prescribed institutions controlled by the state, there is no question as to the security of payments. Such is the case in Norway, where a government bureau provides the insurance. In Germany, Austria, Hungary, Luxemburg and the Netherlands the law either specifically states or implies the guaranty of the solvency of the institutions providing the insurance. In the Netherlands the injured workman is protected by the equivalent of insurance in the Royal Insurance bank, irrespective of the institution in which the employer carries the insurance; the uninsured employer and the private insurance companies are required to give satisfactory guaranties to the Royal Insurance bank. In Greece the payments are guaranteed by the national miners' fund.

The second method of state guaranty is by a special national fund from which the compensation is paid in cases of insolvency, either of the employer or of the insurance carrier. The sources of revenue of these funds show considerable difference. In Italy the fund is supported by fines for noncompliance with the requirement to insure, or other fines, and by the compensation due in fatal cases, but not paid because of absence of survivors. In France the guaranty fund is supported by special taxes upon all employes covered by the act, but this fund guarantees pension payments only; compensation for temporary disability is secured by a preferred claim on the assets of the employer. In Belgium the fund is supported by a tax levied only on those employers who do not carry insurance.

Where no state guaranties exist guaranties must be exacted from the insurance companies or from the individual employer. Wherever insurance is voluntary or there is a choice of insurance institutions, the government protects the insured employe by requiring the insurance company to maintain proper reserves or to make guaranty deposits with the government, or by both methods combined. In the case of uninsured employes, their interests are usually protected by giving them a preferred claim upon the assets of the employer.

As examples of the rates of compensation provided for by these laws, the following from the French, German and British acts may be given:

FRANCE.

FOR DEATH—(a) Funeral expenses not exceeding 100 francs ($19.30).

(b) Pensions to dependent heirs not exceeding 60 per cent of annual wages of deceased distributed to: Widow or widower, 20 per cent until death or remarriage, in which latter case a final sum equal to three annual payments.

Each child under 16 years of age if neither parent survives, 20 per cent.

Each ascendant and each descendant under 16 years of age dependent upon deceased, if no widow or children survive, 10 per cent, the aggregate not to exceed 30 per cent.

(c) For complete helplessness necessitating attendance, payments may be increased to 100 per cent of annual earnings.

(b) A weekly payment during partial disability not exceeding the difference between employee's average weekly earnings before injury and average amount he is earning or able to earn after the injury.

(c) Minor persons may be allowed full earnings during incapacity, but the weekly payments may not exceed 10 shillings ($2.43).

(d) A sum sufficient to purchase a life annuity through the postoffice savings bank of 75 per cent of annual value of weekly payments may be substituted, on application of the employer, for weekly payments after six months, but other arrangements for redemption of weekly payments may be made between employer and employee.

IN THE UNITED STATES.

WISCONSIN COMPENSATION LAW.

The Wisconsin legislature in 1911 passed an employers' liability and workmen's compensation act, of which the following is an outline: The law abrogates the common law defenses of implied or expressed assumption by the employe of the risk complained of, and the negligence of a fellow servant, and provides an optional system of compensation on a uniform scale. Liability for compensation, in lieu of any other liability, shall exist against an employer for any personal injury accidentally sustained by his employe, and for his death if the injury shall proximately cause death, in cases where (1) both employer and employe have elected to be subject to the act, (2) where at the time of the accident the employe is performing service growing out of and incidental to his employment, and (3) where the injury is proximately caused by accident and not by willful misconduct.

All employers who have filed notice thereof with the industrial accident board are subject to the provisions of the act and all employes except such as have given their employers notice that they elect not to be subject to the provisions of the law. The schedule of compensation follows:

1. Such medical and surgical treatment, medicines, medical and surgical supplies, crutches and apparatus, as may be reasonably required at the time of the injury and thereafter during the disability, but not exceeding ninety days, the same to be provided by the employer, and in case of his neglect or refusal seasonably to do so, the employer to be liable for the reasonable expense incurred by or on behalf of the employe in providing the same.

2. If the accident causes disability, an indemnity which shall be payable as wages on the eighth day after the injured employe leaves work as the result of the injury and weekly thereafter, which weekly indemnity shall be as follows:

(a) If the accident causes total disability, 65 per cent of the average weekly earnings during the period of such total disability: Provided, that if the disability is such as not only to render the injured employe entirely incapable of work, but also so helpless as to require the assistance of a nurse, the weekly indemnity during the period of such assistance after the first ninety days shall be increased to 100 per cent of the average weekly earnings.

(b) If the accident causes partial disability, 65 per cent of the weekly loss in wages during the period of such partial disability.

(c) If the disability caused by the accident is at times total and at times partial, the weekly indemnity during the periods of each such total or partial disability shall be in accordance with subdivisions (a) and (b), respectively.

(d) Subdivisions (a), (b) and (c) shall be subject to the following limitations:

Aggregate disability indemnity for injury to a single employe caused by a single accident shall not exceed four times the average annual earnings of such employe. The aggregate disability period shall not, in any event, extend beyond fifteen years from the date of the accident.

If the period of disability does not last more than one week from the day the employe leaves work as the result of the injury, no indemnity whatever shall be recoverable.

3. In case death results from the injury the employer, in lieu of any further disability indemnity, becomes liable for the following death benefits:

(a) In case the deceased employe leaves a person or persons wholly dependent upon him for support, a sum equal to four times his average annual earnings.

(b) In case he leaves one or more persons only partially dependent upon him, the benefit shall be such a percentage of four times his average annual earnings as the average annual amount devoted by him to the support of such person or persons bears to his average annual earnings.

(c) Liability for death benefits provided for in subdivisions (a) and (b) shall only exist where the accident is the proximate cause of death.

(d) If the deceased leaves no person dependent upon him the death benefit shall be reasonable funeral expense, not to exceed $100.

The act creates an industrial accident board to consist of the commissioner of labor and industrial statistics, ex officio, and two other members appointed by the governor, each to receive an annual salary of $5,000. They are to hear and determine all controversies arising under the act.

NEW YORK COMPENSATION LAW.

New York state has two acts providing for workmen's compensation in case of injury. One is compulsory and is applicable to specified dangerous employments (see note) and the other is elective and of general applicability. The former became a law May 24, 1910, and the latter June 25, the same year. The elective compensation plan may be adopted by mutual consent by an employer and an employe and such consent must be in writing. It bars all other legal action except where the injury is caused by serious or willful misconduct of the employer.

If the injury does not disable the employe for a period of at least two weeks from earning full wages the employer shall not be liable. Notice of accidents must be given employers as soon as practicable and claim for compensation must be made within six months. The amount of compensation shall be:

FOR DEATH—(a) If the employe leaves a widow or next of kin wholly dependent upon his earnings, a sum equal to 1,200 times the daily earnings of the employe at the time of the accident, but not more in any event than $3,000.

(b) If such widow or next of kin are in part only dependent upon his earnings, such sum as may be deemed reasonable and proportionate to the injury to such dependents.

(c) If he leaves no widow or next of kin, the reasonable expenses of medical attendance and burial, not exceeding $100.

FOR DISABILITY—Where total or partial disability results from the accident, a weekly payment beginning at the end of the second week after the injury and continuing during incapacity, not exceeding 50 per cent of his average weekly earnings when at work on full time during the preceding year. Where the incapacity is partial the weekly payment shall in no case exceed the difference between the amount of the average weekly earnings of the workman before the accident and the amount he is able to earn after the accident, but shall amount to one-half of such difference. In no event shall any payment exceed $30 a week or extend over more than eight years from the time of the accident.

An injured person entitled to weekly payments under the plan shall have the same preferential claim therefor against the assets of the employer as now allowed by law for unpaid wages or personal services.

Any question of law or fact arising in regard to the application of the plan in determining the compensation payable shall be settled by agreement, arbitration or by an action at law as provided in the act.

The rates of compensation in the compulsory act applying to persons engaged in dangerous work are the same as in the elective act. The occupations specified are bridge building, operating elevators or derricks, working on scaffolding, construction or alteration of wires, cables or apparatus charged with electric currents, working in close proximity to gunpowder, dynamite or other explosives where they are used as instrumentalities of an industry, operating locomotives, trains, motors or cars on rail and electric roads or working on railroad tracks, construction of tunnels and all work carried on under compressed air.

NOTE—The compulsory compensation act was declared unconstitutional by the New York Court of Appeals March 24, 1911, on the ground that it deprived the employer of his property without due process of law.

AMERICAN TRADE AND NAVIGATION TREATY WITH JAPAN.

Feb. 21, 1911, the United States and Japan signed a new treaty of commerce and navigation to replace that of 1894. The text of the document was laid before the senate in Washington, D. C., the same day and was ratified Feb. 24. The treaty took effect July 17, 1911. It is to continue in force twelve years and also thereafter unless six months' notice to the contrary is given. The new treaty differs from the old chiefly in the fact that it omits all reference to immigration. In article 2 of the treaty of 1894, following provisions declaring the right of the citizens of the two countries to full liberty of travel and residence and trade in both countries, was this qualification:

"It is, however, understood that the stipulations contained in this and the preceding article do not in any way affect the laws, ordinances and regulations with regard to trade, the immigration of laborers, police and public security which are in force or which may hereafter be enacted in either of the two countries."

This clause is omitted from the new treaty, but attached to the document, though not forming a part of the convention itself, is the following declaration:

"In proceeding this day to the signature of the treaty of commerce and navigation between Japan and the United States, the undersigned, Japanese ambassador in Washington, duly authorized by his government, has the honor to declare that the imperial Japanese government is fully prepared to maintain with equal effectiveness the limitation and control which it has for the last three years exercised in the regulation of the emigration of laborers to the United States. Y. UCHIDA.

"Feb. 21, 1911.

The first article of the treaty asserts the right of citizens or subjects of the two countries to enter, travel or reside in the territories of the other, to carry on trade and lease houses and shops and residences.

The second article guards against domiciliary visits or searches of subjects of one country in another, except upon the same conditions as are imposed upon nationals.

The third article contains the right to appoint consular officers.

Article 4 guarantees reciprocal freedom of commerce and navigation.

Article 5 provides for the regulation of import duties.

Article 6 exempts citizens from transit duties.

Article 7 deals with corporations.

Article 8 provides that there shall be no discrimination between the vessels of the two countries in their right to carry imports without being liable to other or higher charges of duties than national vessels.

Articles 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13 relate to shipping, their general purport being to prevent discrimination.

Article 14 promises that any trade or navigation privilege extended to another country shall be enjoyed by the signatories to this treaty.

Article 15 confers protection for patents, etc.

The remaining three articles are functional and concern the life of the treaty and other matters.

The corner stone of this structure was laid July 30, 1907, at Zorghvilet in the wooded park stretching from The Hague to Scheveningen.

CARNEGIE ENDOWMENT FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACE.

Dec. 14, 1910, Andrew Carnegie transferred to a board of trustees $10,000,000 in 5 per cent first mortgage bonds, the revenue of which will be used to "hasten the abolition of international war" and to establish lasting world peace. The formal transfer was made at a meeting in the rooms of the Carnegie Research foundation in Washington, D. C. The trustees organized by choosing as president United States Senator Elihu Root, permanent representative of the United States at The Hague tribunal. President Taft consented to be honorary president of the foundation. The method by which the annual income of half a million dollars shall be expended is left by Mr. Carnegie entirely to the trustees. The foundation is to be perpetual, and when the establishment of universal peace is attained the donor provides that the revenue shall be devoted to the banishment of the "next most degrading evil or evils," the suppression of which would "most advance the progress, elevation and happiness of men."

The members of the first board of trustees were: Elihu Root, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, Joseph H. Choate, Albert K. Smiley, Dr. Charles W. Elliot, James Brown Scott, John W. ALIEN CONTRACT LABOR.

Following is a resume of United States laws relating to alien contract labor and of court decisions relating thereto. The data has been secured chiefly from the reports of the commissioner of labor in Washington, D. C., and the revised statutes of the United States. The first general law prohibiting the importation or immigration of alien contract labor was passed by congress in 1834-1855 (approved Feb. 26, 1855). Section 1 of this act provides that it shall be unlawful for any person, company, partnership or corporation, in any manner whatsoever, to prepay the transportation or in any way assist or encourage the importation or migration of any alien, or aliens, any foreigner or foreigners, into the United States, its territories or the District of Columbia, under contract or agreement, parol or special, express or implied, made previous to the importation or migration of such alien or aliens, foreigner or foreigners, to perform labor or service of any kind in the United States, its territories, or the District of Columbia.

Section 2 declares all such contracts or agreements to be utterly void and of no effect. Section 3 provides that every violation of any of the provisions of section 1 of the act shall be punishable by a fine of $1,000, payable into the treasury of the United States. Section 4 provides that the master of any vessel who shall knowingly bring within the United States on any such vessel and land, or permit to be landed, from any foreign port or place any alien laborer, mechanic or artisan who, previous to embarkation on such vessel, had entered into contract or agreement to perform service in the United States shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500 for each such alien so brought, and may also be imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months.

Section 5 (as amended by the acts of 1890-1891) provides that nothing in the act shall be so construed as to prevent any citizen of any foreign country temporarily residing in the United States, either in private or official capacity, from engaging, under contract or otherwise, persons not residents or citizens of the United States to act as private secretaries, servants or domestics for such foreigner; nor shall the act be so construed as to prevent any person or persons, partnership or corporation from engaging, under contract or agreement, skilled workmen in foreign countries to perform labor in the United States in or upon any new industry not at present established in the United States: Provided, that skilled labor for that purpose cannot be otherwise obtained; nor shall the provisions of this act apply to professional actors, artists, lecturers or singers, nor to persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants: Provided, that nothing in the act shall be construed as prohibiting any individual from assisting any member of his family to migrate from any foreign country to the United States for the purpose of settlement here, nor to ministers of any religious denomination, nor persons belonging to any recognized profession, nor professors for colleges and seminaries.

Sections 6 and 7 (added by the acts of 1886-1887) charge the secretary of the treasury with the duty of executing the provisions of the act. Section 8 (added by acts of 1886-1887) provides that all persons included in the prohibitions in this act upon arrival shall be sent back to the nations whence they came, the expense to be borne by the owners of the vessels on which they came. An amendment adopted in the act of 1887-1888 authorizes the secretary of the treasury, in case he is satisfied that an immigrant has been allowed to land contrary to the prohibition of the alien contract law, to cause such immigrant within the period of one year after landing or entry, to be taken into custody and returned to the country whence he came. (See immigration act of 1907 subjoined.) Another amendment authorizes the secretary of the treasury to pay to an informer who furnishes information that the law has been violated such a share of the penalties recovered as he may deem reasonable, not exceeding 50 per cent.

By the act of March 3, 1891, it is provided that it shall be deemed a violation of the act of Feb. 26, 1855, to assist or encourage the importation or migration of any alien by promise of employment through advertisements printed and published in any foreign country, and any alien coming to this country in consequence of such advertisement shall be treated as coming under a contract. This, however, does not apply to states and state immigration bureaus advertising the inducements they offer for immigration to such states.

IMMIGRATION ACT OF 1907.

The immigration act of Feb. 20, 1907, practically embodies in its provisions all the earlier alien contract labor enactments, and also the provisions relating thereto in the immigration law of March 3, 1903. In section 2 it includes among the excluded classes "persons hereinafter called contract laborers, who have been induced or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment or in consequence of agreements, oral, written or printed, express or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; those who have been, within one year from the date of application for admission to the United States, deported as having been induced or solicited to migrate as above described." * * * Provided, that skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be found in this country: And provided further, that the provisions of this law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, ministers of any religious denomination, professors for colleges or seminaries, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession, or persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants."

Section 4 of the same act provides that it shall be a misdemeanor for any person, company, partnership or corporation, in any manner whatsoever, to prepay the transportation or in any way to assist or encourage the importation or migration of any contract laborer or contract laborers into the United States, unless such contract laborer or contract laborers are exempted under the last two provisions contained in section 2 of this act.

Section 5 provides that for every violation of any of the provisions of section 4 of this act the persons, partnerships, company or corporation violating the same, by knowingly assisting, encouraging or soliciting the migration or importation of any contract laborer into the United States, shall forfeit and pay for every such offense the sum of $1,000, which may be sued for and recovered by the United States or by any person who shall first bring his action therefor in his own name and for his own benefit, including any such alien thus promised labor or service of any kind, as debts of like amount are now recovered in the courts of the United States, and separate suits may be brought for each alien thus promised labor or service of any kind. And it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the proper district to prosecute every such suit when brought by the United States.

Section 6 provides that it shall be unlawful and be deemed a violation of section 4 of this act to assist or encourage the importation or migration of any alien by promise of employment through advertisements printed and published in any foreign country, and any alien coming to this country in consequence of such an advertisement shall be treated as coming under promise or agreement as contemplated in section 2 of this act, and the penalties imposed by section 5 of this act shall be applicable to such a case: Provided, that this section shall not apply to states or territories, the District of Columbia or places subject to the jurisdiction of the United States advertising the inducements they offer for immigration thereto, respectively.

Section 7 provides that no transportation company or owner or owners of vessels or others engaged in transporting aliens into the United States, shall, directly or indirectly, either by writing, printing or oral representation, solicit, invite or encourage the immigration of any aliens into the United States, but this shall not be held to prevent transportation companies from issuing letters, circulars or advertisements stating the sailings of their vessels and terms and facilities of transportation therein. For a violation of this provision, any such transportation company, and any such owner or owners of vessels, and all others engaged in transporting aliens into the United States, and the agents by them employed, shall be severally subjected to the penalties imposed by section 5 of this act.

Section 8 provides that any person, including the master, agent, owner or consignee of any vessel, who shall bring into or land in the United States, by vessel or otherwise, or who shall attempt, by himself or through another, to bring into or land in the United States, by vessel or otherwise, any alien not duly admitted by an immigrant inspector or not lawfully entitled to enter the United States shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment for each and every alien so landed or brought in or attempted to be landed or brought in.

Section 20 provides that any alien who shall enter the United States in violation of law shall, upon the warrant of the secretary of commerce and labor, be taken into custody and deported to the country whence he came at any time within three years after the date of his entry into the United States. Such deportation, including one-half of the entire cost of removal to the port of deportation, shall be at the expense of the contractor, procurer or other person by whom the alien was unlawfully induced to enter the United States, or, if that cannot be done, then the cost of removal to the port of deportation shall be at the expense of the "immigrant fund," and the deportation from such port shall be at the expense of the owner or owners of such vessel or transportation line by which such aliens respectively came. Pending the final disposition of the case of any alien taken into custody he may be released on a bond of $500.

COURT DECISIONS.

The act of Feb. 26, 1885, is constitutional as regulating commerce with foreign nations; the offense of assisting the immigration of a laborer under contract to work here is not complete until such alien has entered the territory of the United States and a civil action for the penalty prescribed by section 3 will lie in the district in which he enters, or in any other district in which the defendant may be found. (U. S. Circuit court, eastern district of Michigan, 1886; U. S. Circuit court, southern district of New York, 1890; Florio case.)

This act (Feb. 26, 1885,) clearly forbids the immigration of an alien who is under contract to labor in the United States. Such an immigrant may be prevented from landing under a decision of the collector, finding the facts which under the statute forbid his coming. Such decision, if rendered upon competent evidence, is conclusive and cannot be reviewed on a judicial review on habeas corpus. An immigrant coming bound by a contract to labor on an ordinary dairy farm is not a person excepted by section 5 from the provisions of the law. (U. S. Circuit court, southern district of New York, 1887; Cummings case.)

A woman who engages as a milliner is not a "professional artist" within the meaning of the law. (U. S. Circuit court, southern district of New York, 1889; Thompson case.)

This act does not apply to a contract between an alien, residing out of the United States, and a religious society incorporated under the laws of a state, whereby he engages to remove to the United States and to enter the service of the society as its vector or minister. (U. S. Supreme court, 1891; Church of Holy Trinity case.)

In order to sustain a suit under this act for the recovery of the penalty authorized by the same the contract or agreement must be one made previous to the importation or migration of the alien or foreigner claimed to have been imported in violation of the act. The mere proposal made by an alien to a person within the United States to come here and enter the service of such person on condition that transportation be furnished, followed by prepayment of his passage money to enable him to come to the United States, coupled with the promise, "We can give you steady work and have places for six or eight more smelters if they want to come," and followed by the arrival of the alien at a port in the United States, does not constitute such a contract. (U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, eighth circuit, 1891; Edgar case.)

Neither the prepayment of transportation, nor the assisting or encouraging in any wise the importation of an alien, is a violation of this act (Feb. 26, 1885,) without the contract or agreement, made previous to the importation or migration, binding the alien to perform labor or service in the United States, its territories or the District of Columbia. (U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, 1893; Moller case.)

An "under coachman," whose principal duties are to drive the horses when his employer or any of the family go out in carriages, and who boards with his employer's coachman, is a "personal or domestic servant" within the meaning of the law. (U. S. Circuit court, southern district of New York, 1894; Howard case.)

The acts regulating immigration, existing when chapter 551, acts of 1890-1891, was passed, refer to aliens who are imported into or who migrate to this country, and do not exclude a person already resident here, though not naturalized, who temporarily departs with the intention to return. (U. S. Circuit court, southern district of New York, 1894; Martorelli case.)

The action of the secretary of the treasury in ordering the deportation of immigrants who have arrived within a year, on the ground that they were landed in violation of the contract labor laws, cannot be reviewed or questioned in the courts, and hence there is no jurisdiction to discharge them on writs of habeas corpus when held in custody by immigrant inspectors for the purpose of deportation pursuant to an order of the secretary. (U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, fifth circuit, Florida, 1895; Artaigo case.)

This act, prohibiting the importation of aliens under contract to perform labor in the United States, is constitutional. (U. S. Supreme court, 1893; Lees case.)

OPINIONS OF U. S. ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Geronimo Garcia arrived at New Orleans, La., Aug. 5, 1907, from Havana, Cuba, his passage having been paid by an agent of the Louisiana state board of agriculture out of funds appropriated by the state legislature. He was assured that employment as a farm laborer would be secured for him on his arrival in Louisiana, the expectation being that he would return within a year the money advanced for his passage. The attorney-general, whose opinion was asked by the secretary of commerce and labor, held that the promise to him of employment brought him within the classes of aliens excluded by the act of 1907. "There is," he said, "no exception in favor of a state in reference to specific promises of employment to individual immigrants."

An inquiry was submitted by the secretary of commerce and labor to the attorney-general on the subject of the admission of two lithographic artists coming from Germany. An agent of a lithographic company in New York made the contract abroad and prepaid the passage of the persons in question. They were detained as violators of the contract labor law. The attorney-general deemed it unnecessary to determine whether they were "artists" within the meaning of the law, but in his opinion they were clearly entitled to admission under the proviso that "skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be found in this country," it having been shown that for many years there had been a scarcity of men here capable of giving the skilled service required of lithographic artists.

UNITED STATES GEOGRAPHIC BOARD.

The United States geographic board passes on all unsettled questions concerning geographic names which arise in the departments of the government, as well as determining, changing and fixing place names within the United States and its insular possessions. The decisions of the board are to be accepted by all departments as standard authority. The board has advisory powers with respect to the preparation of maps in the various offices and bureaus of the government.

THE CONTROLLER BAY CONTROVERSY.

The elimination of 12,800 acres from the Chugach national forest in Alaska by an executive order dated Oct. 28, 1910, led to the charge in the spring of 1911 that this step was a blunder which would probably result in the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate obtaining a monopoly in the transportation of coal from the rich Alaskan fields, through securing the only remaining available outlet to the sea. The matter was made the subject of an official inquiry, the senate of the United States adopting a resolution June 27, 1911, calling upon the president for all documents and other information relating to the elimination of national forest land fronting on Controller bay and the applications of the Controller Railway and Navigation company for rights of way or confirmation of its maps of rights of way or harbor rights in or near Controller bay or upon the lands eliminated from the Chugach national forest.

July 28 President Taft sent to the senate a special message in which he gave the information called for. After quoting the resolution of the senate and the executive order of Oct. 28, 1910, eliminating 12,800 acres from the Chugach national forest as not being chiefly valuable for national forest purposes, the president described Controller bay as upward of twenty miles in length, five or six miles in width and landlocked by a number of islands. The bay was for some time supposed to be too shallow for navigation, but in 1907 a channel was discovered, which passed from the ocean to the southeast of the island of Kanaka and curving into the bay extended southeasterly some seven miles. Further investigation showed that for a distance of six miles the frontage of Controller bay was on deep water, to be reached by trestles of ordinary length.

"All the territory surrounding Controller bay," continued the message, "was included in the Chugach forest reservation in 1909 by a proclamation of President Roosevelt. The importance of Controller bay is that it lies about twenty-five miles from very valuable coal deposits known as the Bering coal fields. Katala bay is to the west of Controller bay and almost immediately adjoins it. It is an open roadstead, upon the shore of which an attempt was made by the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate to establish a railway terminal, and thence to build a road to the Bering coal fields, already mentioned. The attempt failed for the reason that the breakwater protecting the terminals was destroyed by storms and the terminals became impracticable. Some fifty miles or more farther west of Katala bay is the mouth of the Copper river, where there is an excellent harbor, on which is the town of Cordova. There the Copper River railroad, owned by the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, has its terminals, and the line runs to the northeast along the Copper river and has nearly reached certain rich copper mines in the interior. A branch from this main line is projected to the Bering coal fields and is feasible."

Reference was made to the fact that Mr. Tittman, superintendent of the coast survey, considered Controller bay to be of great value and suggested that it be maintained as a naval reservation because of its proximity to the coal fields. The director of the geological survey, to whom the suggestion was referred, reported that the harbor was not as good for naval purposes as one already selected, but he thought private capital ought to be encouraged to construct a railway from the channel over the mud flats to the shore and thence to the coal fields. In December, 1909, Richard S. Ryan, representing the Controller Railway and Navigation company, applied to Mr. Pinchot, the then forester, for an elimination from the Chugach forest reserve of a tract of land to enable his company to secure railroad terminals, bunkers, shops, etc., on the northeast shore of Controller bay. This application was referred to the district forester at Portland, Ore., and by him to the forester in Alaska. Early in 1910 Mr. Graves, who had then become forester, reported that there was no objection from the standpoint of forestry to the elimination of the tract indicated, or of 18,000 acres on the northeast shore of Controller bay.

"The matter," said the message, "was considered by the forestry bureau, by the secretary of agriculture, by the secretary of the interior and by the general land office, and the result was a recommendation to me in May, 1910, that an elimination be made of 320 acres, with a frontage of 160 rods, on the northeast shore of Controller bay. I entertained some question about the matter, and stated my objections at a cabinet meeting. Thereafter, some time in June, I had an interview with Richard S. Ryan, the promoter of the Controller Railway and Navigation company, to whom the secretary of the interior had stated my objections, which led to Ryan's sending a communication to the secretary of the interior under date of July 13, 1910. This letter was, in the secretary's absence, sent by the department to me at once. I considered the whole case in August, 1910, and directed that the 320 acres, recommended by both departments, be eliminated. Nothing was done, however, in the matter until my return to Washington in October, 1910, when a formal order, which had been drawn in the interior department and was subsequently specifically approved by the secretary of agriculture and returned to the interior department, was submitted by me to the acting secretary of the interior, with the approval of that department. (This order eliminated 320 acres only.)

"The question finally came before the cabinet late in October. After a full discussion of the matter, and after a consideration of the law, I expressed dissatisfaction with the order because it purported on its face to make the elimination for the benefit of a railroad company of a tract of land which the company could not secure under the statute, for it was a tract of 320 acres in one body when only 160 acres could be thus acquired. In the second place, I preferred to make a much larger elimination of a tract facing the entire channel and with sufficient room for a railway terminal to be built, and willing to do this because I found the restrictions in the law sufficient to prevent the possibility of any monopoly of either the upland or the harbor or channel by the Controller Railway and Navigation company or any other persons or company. For lack of time sufficient to draft a memorandum myself, I requested the secretary of the interior, who, with the secretary of agriculture, after full discussion, had agreed in my conclusion, to prepare a letter setting forth the reasons for making the larger elimination, so that it might become a part of the record.

"It had been originally suggested by the forestry bureau that 18,000 acres might safely be eliminated, so far as forestry purposes were concerned, but fear had been expressed by one of the district foresters that such a large elimination would offer an opportunity to the company to use land scrip and acquire title to extensive town sites, and the result of the joint consideration of both departments had been the reduction to 320 acres.

"I wish to be as specific as possible upon this point, and to say that I alone am responsible for the enlargement of the proposed elimination from 320 acres to 12,800 acres, and that while I proposed the change and stated my reasons therefor, and while both secretaries cordially concurred in it, the suggestion was mine."

The president in his message then pointed out that Mr. Ryan had been properly vouched for and that he had produced letters showing that the company he represented had expended $75,000 in preparations for the building of a railroad from Controller bay to the coal fields, but that it was obstructed in doing so by the order establishing the Chugach forest reserve, which covered all of the Controller bay shore. Mr. Ryan had given every assurance that Messrs. Morgan and Guggenheim had no connection with this company, which was engaged in an independent enterprise in good faith to build an independent railroad.

"Of course," continued the message, "it was possible that the owners of the Copper River Railway company might attempt to buy this railroad when, and if, it was built. It was possible that Mr. Ryan was acting in the interests of the Copper River railroad, although I did not believe it; but whether this was true or not it was clear that the order of elimination, by reason of the restrictions of the act of congress hereafter explained, would not permit the owners of either railroad to shut out any other capitalists who might desire to construct a railroad from the channel of Controller bay to the coal fields, and if by this order we could secure the construction of a railroad from Controller bay to the coal fields it would be a distinct step in the useful development of Alaska. The rates of freight for coal to be charged, of course, would always be subject to congressional control, and, if government ownership seemed a wise policy under the peculiar circumstances, ample land for right of way, harbor frontage and terminals must always remain available under the law for government use, or, if it is preferred to take over to the government a railway built by private enterprise, condemnation is easy."

The president referred to the federal statutes giving authority for the location of railroads and the acquisition of a right of way over public lands in Alaska, including forest reservations. He also cited previous eliminations from forest reserves of water from the Bering (now Cordova) and Valdez. Attention was called to the fact that the Copper River railway, owned by the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate, had established its terminals at Cordova, and that it proposed to build a branch line to the coal fields. That company would not therefore be interested in building a direct line to Controller bay, where it would be necessary for it to duplicate the terminal facilities it already had at Cordova on a better harbor and where coal was not the only commodity seeking transportation.

"If a railroad," said the president, "was to be constructed from Controller bay to the Bering coal fields it was perfectly evident that there must be a terminal town on the shore of Controller bay, and I was therefore glad and anxious to throw it open to entry and settlement as one important step in encouraging railroad settlement. I was certain that congress had provided, in the statutes affecting the entry and settlement of land in Alaska, limitations which would prevent the possibility of the exclusive appropriation of the harbor and channel of Controller bay or its shores or upland to any one railroad. This I propose now to show.

"The only practicable method for securing title from the government in such a tract as this after its elimination is by use of what is called 'soldiers' additional homestead right' evidenced by scrip. The statutory limitations upon this method of acquiring title are threefold:

"First. No more than 160 acres can be entered in any single body by scrip.

"Second. No location of scrip along any navigable waters can be made within a distance of eighty rods of any lands already located along such waters. No entry can be allowed extending more than 160 rods along the shore of any navigable water and along such shore a space of at least eighty rods must be reserved from entry between all such claims. Moreover, the statute expressly provides that a roadway sixty feet in width, parallel to the shore line as near as may be practicable, shall be reserved for the use of the public as a highway.

"Third. Nothing in the act contained is to be construed to authorize entries to be made or title to be acquired to the shore of any navigable waters within said district.

"Under the first limitation the navigation company and every other person is prevented from locating more than 160 acres in one body. By the construction of the land department, as shown in the record, this requires a separation between any two entries by the same person or in the same interest of a tract of forty acres. This would prevent the possibility of any one person or any one interest acquiring an entire tract like that of the 12,500 acres.

"The second limitation is important in that it prevents the entry of claims at any point on the shore of a greater frontage than half a mile and requires that between that and the next claim there shall be a frontage reserved and kept in public control of a quarter of a mile. The consequence is that in the seven miles of the frontage of this eliminated tract there must be reserved for government control and use and such disposition as congress may see fit to make, and free from private appropriation, a frontage of about two and three-quarters miles and so distributed along the shore in frontages of eighty rods as to make certain a public frontage of this width having all the advantage that any private frontage can have. * * *

"Since the executive order was issued, Oct. 25, 1910, there have been four locations under soldiers' scrip—three of them of 160 rods each along the bay, separated by two divisions of eighty rods, dated Nov. 1, Nov. 10 and Nov. 11, 1910, respectively. I shall assume that all of them are in the interest of the Controller Railway and Navigation company. None of them has been approved or passed to patent, but I shall assume that they can be passed to valid patent. Where the fourth one, dated March 11, 1911, is, does not appear, but it is understood to front 160 rods on the bay shore on the east side of the Campbell river. In addition, upon one of the eighty rod intervals, there is filed what is termed a terminal railroad claim of forty acres covering the entire frontage of eighty rods. This was scrip Dec. 14, 1910, after the location of the two scrip entries which it connects. It is plainly invalid because placed on the interval of eighty rods expressly reserved by statute for the public.

"Of the shore frontage unlocated which may be appropriated by scrip, there remain six frontages of 160 rods each on the shore of the tract opened by the executive order, facing the bay and channel, and in addition about two and three-fourths miles of frontage distributed in eleven eighty rod strips, subject to public use and the disposition of congress. There is thus ample room for many other railroads to reach high water mark on Controller bay, and there to acquire tracts for terminals."

The president further pointed out that there was a third reason why the opening of this tract to settlement and limited private appropriations could not lead to a monopoly in the Controller Railway and Navigation company or any one else. This was the fact that the distance from the dry or shore land—the line of high water mark—to the line of low water mark was between two and three miles and the distance to deep water a mile farther, making it necessary, if a harbor were to be reached and used, to construct a trestle three or four miles long. This tidal flat was owned by the United States and its acquisition under the public land laws of tracts on the shore abutting these tidal flats gave no right or title to the flats.

"The order," continued the message, "has been criticised because it was not in the form of a proclamation instead of an order. * * * The fact is that in law there is in effect no difference between a proclamation and an executive order. In practice the same publicity is given to each."

The president declared that the charge that the order was secret and that while it was made in October, 1910, no one knew of it until April, 1911, was utterly unfounded. It was announced at the time it was issued by various special correspondents and also by The Associated Press.

"Before closing," said the president, "I desire to allude to a circumstance which the terms of this resolution make apt and relevant. It is a widely published statement attributed to a newspaper correspondent that in an examination of the files of the interior department a few weeks ago a postscript was found attached to a letter of July 13, 1910, addressed by Richard S. Ryan to Secretary Ballinger, urging the elimination of land enough for terminals for the Controller Railway and Navigation company. The postscript was said to read as follows:

"Dear Dick: I went to see the president the other day. He asked me who it was I represented. I told him, according to our agreement, that I represented myself. But this didn't seem to satisfy him. So I sent for Charlie Taft and asked him to tell his brother, the president, who he was I really represented. The president made no further objection to my claim. DICK."

This postscript the president denounced as a wicked fabrication, utterly without foundation in fact. Its only significance, he said, was the light it threw on the bitterness and venom of some of those who took active part in every discussion of Alaskan issues.

WHAT TRAVELERS MAY BRING TO AMERICA.

Paragraph 709, appearing in the free list of the present tariff act, governing passengers' baggage, is as follows:

"Wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and similar personal effects of persons arriving in the United States; but this exemption shall only include such articles as actually accompany and are in the use of, and as are necessary and appropriate for the wear and use of such persons, for the immediate purposes of the journey and present comfort and convenience, and shall not be held to apply to merchandise or articles intended for other persons or for sale; provided, that in case of residents of the United States, returning from abroad, all wearing apparel and other personal effects taken by them out of the United States to foreign countries shall be admitted free of duty, without regard to their value, upon their identity being established, under appropriate rules and regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, but no more than $100 in value of articles purchased abroad by such residents of the United States shall be admitted free of duty upon their return."

RESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Residents of the United States must declare all articles which have been obtained abroad by purchase or otherwise, whether used or unused, and whether on their persons, in their clothing, or in their baggage. The foreign value of each article, stated in United States money, must also be declared.

Articles taken from the United States and remodeled, repaired or improved abroad must be declared and the cost of such remodeling, repairing or improving must be separately stated.

The following articles are dutiable:

Household effects, including books, pictures, furniture, tableware, table linen, bed linen and other similar articles, unless used abroad by the owner for a period of a year or more.

Goods in the piece.

Articles of any nature intended for sale or for other persons.

The following articles are free if under $100 in value and if necessary for comfort and convenience for the purposes of the journey and not for sale nor for other persons:

Clothing.

Toilet articles, such as combs, brushes, soaps, cosmetics, shaving and manure sets, etc.

Personal adornments, jewelry, etc.

Similar personal effects, which may include cameras, canes, fishing tackle, glasses (field, opera, marine), golf sticks, guns, musical instruments, parasols, topographs, smokers' articles, steamer rugs and shawls, toys, trunks, valises, etc.

Clothing and other personal effects taken out of the United States by the passenger if not increased in value or improved in condition while abroad. If increased in value or improved in condition, they are dutiable on the cost of the repairs.

The above lists of articles which are dutiable and nondutiable are stated for the assistance of passengers and are not exhaustive. All articles are dutiable unless specifically exempted by law.

Pack in one trunk, if practicable, all dutiable articles.

Receipted bills for foreign purchases should be presented whenever possible.

Use does not exempt from duty wearing apparel or other articles obtained abroad, but such articles will be appraised at their value in the condition as imported, due allowance being made for depreciation through wear and use.

NONRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Nonresidents of the United States are entitled to bring in free of duty, without regard to the $100 exemption, such articles as are in the nature of wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and similar personal effects, necessary and appropriate for their wear and use for the purposes of the journey and present comfort and convenience and which are not intended for other persons or for sale.

Citizens of the United States or persons who have at any time resided in this country shall be deemed to be residents of the United States unless they shall have abandoned their residence in this country and acquired an actual bona fide residence in a foreign country.

Such citizens or former residents who desire the privileges granted by law to nonresidents must show to the satisfaction of the collector's representative on the pier, subject to the collector's approval, that they have given up their residence in the United States and that they have become bona fide residents of a foreign country.

The residence of a wife follows that of the husband, and the residence of a minor child follows that of its parents.

GOODS OTHER THAN PERSONAL EFFECTS.

Household effects of persons or families from foreign countries will be admitted free of duty only if actually used abroad by them not less than one year, and if not intended for any other person, nor for sale. Such effects should be declared whether the passenger be a resident or a nonresident of the United States.

Articles intended for use in business or for other persons, theatrical apparel, properties and scenery, must be declared by passengers, whether residents or nonresidents.

CIGARS AND CIGARETTES.

All cigars and cigarettes may be declared. Each passenger over 15 years of age may bring in free of duty 50 cigars or 500 cigarettes if for the bona fide use of such passenger. Such cigars and cigarettes will be in addition to the articles included within the $100 exemption.

BAGGAGE DECLARATIONS.

The law provides that every person entering the United States shall make a declaration and entry of his or her personal baggage. The law further requires that the values of articles shall be determined by customs officers, irrespective of the statements of passengers relative thereto.

It will thus be seen that there is no discourtesy in the requirement that both a declaration and an independent appraisal shall be made. Taken together, these requirements place the passenger in the same position as any other importer of merchandise.

Passengers should observe that on the sheet given them there are two forms of declarations; the one printed in black is for residents of the United States; the one in red, for nonresidents.

The exact number of pieces of baggage, including all trunks, valises, boxes, packages and hand bags of any description accompanying the passenger, must be stated in the declaration.

The senior member of a family, present as a passenger, may make declaration for the entire family.

Ladies traveling alone should state that fact in their declarations in order that an expeditious examination of their baggage may be made.

When the declaration is prepared and signed, the coupon at the bottom of the form must be detached and retained by the passenger, and the form given to the officer of the ship designated to receive the same. A declaration spoiled in its preparation must not be destroyed, but turned over to the purser, who will furnish a new blank one to the passenger.

After all the baggage and effects of the passenger have been landed upon the pier, the coupon which has been retained by the passenger must be presented at the inspector's desk, whereupon an inspector will be detailed to examine the baggage. Passengers must acknowledge in person, on the pier, their signature to their declarations.

Examination of any baggage may be postponed if the passenger requests the officer taking his declaration to have it sent to the appraiser's store.

Passengers must not deduct the $100 exemption in making out their declarations. Such deductions will be made by customs officers on the pier.

CONTESTED VALUATION.

Passengers dissatisfied with values placed upon dutiable articles by the customs officers on the pier may demand a re-examination, but application therefor should be immediately made to the officers there in charge. If for any reason this course is impracticable, the packages containing the articles should be left in customs custody and application for reappraisal made to the collector of customs, in writing, within ten days after the original appraisement. No request for reappraisal can be entertained after the articles have been removed from customs custody.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

Currency (or certified checks after June 1, 1911.) only can be accepted in payment of duties, but, upon request, baggage will be retained on the piers for twenty-four hours to enable the owner to secure currency or certified checks.

The offering of gratuities or bribes to customs officers is a violation of law. Customs officers who accept gratuities or bribes will be dismissed from the service and all parties concerned will be liable to criminal prosecution.

Discourtesy or incivility on the part of customs officers should be reported to the collector at the custom house, to the deputy collector or the deputy surveyor at the pier, or to the secretary of the treasury.

RELATIVES OF KING GEORGE V.

King George V. of England is closely connected by birth or marriage with the monarchs of Germany, Russia, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Spain and Greece.

1. Emperor William of Germany is a first cousin; his mother, the late Empress Frederick of Germany, was a sister of King Edward.

2. Both the czar and the zarina of Russia are related to King George. The czar's mother, the dowager empress of Russia, is a sister of Queen Alexandra, and Nicholas II. and George V. are, therefore, first cousins. The zarina is also a cousin. She was the Princess Alix of Hesse, a daughter of the late Princess Alice, sister of King Edward.

3. The king and queen of Norway are brother-in-law and sister of King George. The queen was the Princess Maud of Wales, King Edward's youngest daughter. King Haakon is also a cousin of King George, being a grandson of the late King Christian IX. of Denmark, Queen Alexandra's father.

BAGGAGE FOR TRANSPORTATION IN BOND.

Baggage intended for delivery at ports in the United States other than the port of arrival, or in transit through the United States to a foreign country, may be forwarded thereto without the assessment of duty at the port of arrival, by the various railroads and express companies, whose representatives will be found on the pier.

Passengers desiring to have their baggage forwarded in bond should indicate such intention and state the value thereof in their declarations before any examination of the baggage has been made.

SEALSKIN GARMENTS.

An act of congress of 1897, as amended in 1910, expressly forbids the importation into the United States of garments made in whole or in part of the skins of seals taken in the waters of the Pacific ocean; and unless the owner is able to establish by competent evidence and to the satisfaction of the collector that the garments are not prohibited, they cannot be admitted.

PENALTY FOR NOT DECLARING ARTICLES OBTAINED ABROAD.

Under sections 2802 and 3052 of the revised statutes of the United States articles obtained abroad and not declared are subject to seizure, and the passenger is liable to criminal prosecution.

4. Queen Victoria of Spain is a daughter of Princess Henry of Battenberg, the late King Edward's youngest sister, and is, therefore, a cousin of King George.

5. King George of Greece is a brother of Queen Alexandra, and an uncle of King George.

6. The crown prince of Sweden is married to Princess Margaret of Connaught, a cousin of King George.

7. Frederick Augustus III., king of Saxony, is a third cousin of King George.

8. Manuel II. of Portugal is also a third cousin through his descent from Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, a first cousin of Queen Victoria.

9. King Albert of Belgium is distantly related through his father, who was a great uncle of King Edward.

10. King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is another cousin, several times removed, through his grandfather, the late Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

BATTLE WITH BURGLARS IN LONDON.

London, England, was the scene of a remarkable fight between two burglars on the one hand and a large force of police and soldiers on the other, early on the morning of Jan. 3, 1911. On the night of Dec. 16 previously the police interrupted an attempted burglary in a jewelry shop in Houndsditch and in the fight which followed three of the policemen and a burglar were mortally wounded. Discoveries were made which convinced the authorities that the thieves were anarchists, and three Russians were arrested on suspicion. Further investigation caused the police to believe that the headquarters of the gang were in a house in Sidney street. This place was surrounded at an hour when it was thought the inmates would be asleep, but when the police attempted to enter they were fired upon. Then a battle lasting several hours followed, in which 1,500 police, a company of Scots guards, a battery of horse artillery and a fire brigade took part. Home Secretary Churchill and thousands of spectators watched the fight, which terminated only when the building occupied by the desperadoes caught fire and was consumed. "Peter the Painter" and "Dutch Fritz," the reputed burglars and anarchists, went down in the flames and only their charred remains were recovered. Though hundreds of shots were fired only one police officer was seriously wounded. Several spectators were slightly injured by spent bullets.

AROUND THE WORLD IN FORTY DAYS.

Andre Jager-Schmidt of the Paris Illustrated Daily Excelsior started from Paris at 1:45 p. m. July 17, 1911, in an effort to lower the time around the globe made by M. Stiegler of the Matin, who used sixty-three days. M. Jager-Schmidt's route lay to Moscow and thence to Vladivostok. From the latter place he proceeded by steamer to Yokohama, whence he sailed for Vancouver, taking there a train for Montreal and going thence to New York, where he arrived Aug. 18. On the following day he sailed on the Olympic for Cherbourg, where he arrived Aug. 25. Leaving for Paris on the same day he arrived at his starting point at 9 a. m. Aug. 26, having consumed 39 days 13 hours 43 minutes 37½ seconds in girdling the earth.

STORM AT CHARLESTON, S. C.

Fifteen lives were lost and property valued at $1,000,000 was destroyed in a storm which visited Charleston, S. C., Sunday night and Monday, Aug. 27-28, 1911. At the height of the gale the wind reached a velocity of ninety-four miles an hour and the tide rose eight feet at the battery in front of the city. Great damage was done in the harbor and the streets were strewn with debris. Several of the fatalities occurred through drowning.

COPYRIGHT LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Approved March 4, 1909.

The act to amend and consolidate the acts respecting copyright, in force July 1, 1909, provides that any person entitled thereto, upon complying with the provisions of the law, shall have the exclusive right (a) to print, reprint, publish, copy and vend the copyrighted work; (b) to translate the copyrighted work or make any other version of it if it be a literary work; to dramatize it if it be a nondramatic work; to convert it into a novel or other nondramatic work if it be a drama; to arrange or adapt it if it be a musical work; to finish it if it be a model or design for a work of art; (c) to deliver or authorize the delivery of the copyrighted work if it be a lecture, sermon, address or similar production; (d) to perform the copyrighted work publicly if it be a drama or, if it be a dramatic work and not reproduced in copies for sale, to vend the manuscript or any record thereof; to make or to procure the making of any transcription or record thereof by which it may in any manner be exhibited, performed or produced, and to exhibit, perform or produce it in any manner whatsoever; (e) to perform the copyrighted work publicly for profit if it be a musical composition and for the purpose of public performance for profit and to make any arrangement or setting of it in any system of notation or any form of record in which the thought of an author may be read or reproduced.

So far as they secure copyright controlling the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work the law includes only compositions published after the act went into effect; it does not include the works of a foreign author or composer unless the country of which he is a citizen or subject grants similar rights to American citizens. Whenever the owner of a musical copyright has used or permitted the use of the copyrighted work upon the part of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work, any other person may make a similar use of the work upon the payment to the owner of a royalty of 2 cents on each such part manufactured. The reproduction or rendition of a musical composition by or upon coin-operated machines shall not be deemed a public performance for profit unless a fee is charged for admission to the place where the reproduction occurs.

The works for which copyright may be secured include all the writings of an author.

The application for registration shall specify to which of the following classes the work in which copyright is claimed belongs:

- (a) Books, including composite and cyclopedic works, directories, gazetteers and other compilations.
- (b) Periodicals, including newspapers.
- (c) Lectures, sermons, addresses, prepared for oral delivery.
- (d) Dramatic or dramatic-musical compositions.
- (e) Musical compositions.
- (f) Maps.
- (g) Works of art; models or designs for works of art.

(h) Reproductions of a work of art.

(i) Drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character.

(j) Photographs.

(k) Prints and pictorial illustrations.

These specifications do not, however, limit the subject matter of copyright as defined in the law nor does any error in classification invalidate the copyright protection secured.

Copyright extends to the work of a foreign author or proprietor only in case he is domiciled in the United States at the time of the first publication of his work or if the country of which he is a citizen grants similar copyright protection to citizens of the United States.

Any person entitled thereto by the law may secure copyright for his work by publication thereof with the notice of copyright required by the act, and such notice shall be affixed to each copy published or offered for sale in the United States. Such person may obtain registration of his claim to copyright by complying with the provisions of the act, including the deposit of copies, whereupon the register of copyrights shall issue to him a certificate as provided for in the law. Copyright may also be had of the works of an author of which copies are not reproduced for sale by the deposit with claim of copyright of one complete copy, if it be a lecture or similar production, or a dramatic or musical composition; of a photographic print if it be a photograph, or of a photograph or other identifying reproduction thereof if it be a work of art or a plastic work or drawing.

After copyright has been secured there must be deposited in the copyright office in Washington, D. C., two complete copies of the best edition thereof, which copies, if the work be a book or periodical, shall have been produced in accordance with the manufacturing provisions of the act, or if such work be a contribution to a periodical for which contribution special registration is requested, one copy of the issue or issues containing such contribution. Failure to deposit the copies within a given time after notice from the register of copyrights makes the proprietor of the copyright liable to a fine of $100 and twice the retail price of the work, and the copyright becomes void.

The text of all books and periodicals specified in paragraphs (a) and (b) above, except the original text of a book of foreign origin in a language other than English, must in order to secure protection be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, either by hand, machinery or other process, and the printing of the text and the binding of the books must also be done within the United States. An affidavit of such manufacture is required.

The notice of copyright required consists either of the word "copyright" or the abbreviation "copr.," accompanied by the name of the copyright proprietor, and if the work be a printed literary, musical or dramatic work, the notice must also include the year in which the copyright was secured by publication. In the case, however, of copies of works specified in paragraphs (f) to (k) inclusive (given above) the notice may consist of the letter C inclosed within a circle, accompanied by the initials, monogram, mark or symbol of the copyright proprietor, provided his name appears elsewhere on the copies. In the case of a book or other printed publication the notice shall be applied on the title page or on the page immediately following, or if a periodical either upon the title page or upon the first page of text of each separate number or under the title heading; or if a musical work upon its title page or the first page of music.

Where the copyright proprietor has sought to comply with the law with respect to notice, the omission of such notice by mistake from a particular copy or copies shall not invalidate the copyright or prevent recovery for infringement against any person who, after actual notice of the copyright, begins an undertaking to infringe it, but shall prevent the recovery of damages against an innocent infringer who has been misled by the omission of the notice.

In the case of a book in English published abroad before publication in this country, the deposit in the copyright office within thirty days of one copy of the foreign edition, with a request for the reservation of the copyright, secures for the author or owner an interim copyright for thirty days after such deposit is made.

The copyright secured by the act endures for twenty-eight years from the date of the first publication. In the case of any posthumous work, periodical, encyclopedic or other composite work upon which the copyright was originally secured by the proprietor thereof, or of any work copyrighted by a corporate body, or by an employer for whom such work is made for hire, the proprietor of such copyright shall be entitled to a renewal of the copyright in such work for the further term of twenty-eight years when application for such renewal shall have been made within one year prior to the expiration of the original term. In the case of any other copyrighted work, including a contribution by an individual author to a periodical or to a cyclopedic or other composite work, in which contribution has been separately copyrighted, the author of such work, if living, or the heirs, executors or next of kin, if the author be dead, shall be entitled to a renewal of the copyright for a further term of twenty-eight years. In default of such application for renewal the copyright in any work shall end at the expiration of twenty-eight years.

If any person shall infringe the copyright in any work protected under the copyright laws of the United States, such person shall be liable:

(a) To an injunction restraining such infringement.

(b) To pay to the copyright proprietor such damages as the copyright proprietor may have suffered due to the infringement, as well as all the profits which the infringer shall have made from such infringement, and in proving profits the plaintiff shall be required to prove sales only and the defendant shall be required to prove every element of cost which he claims, or in lieu of actual damages or profits such damages as to the court shall appear to be just, and in assessing such damages the court may, in its discretion, allow the amounts as hereinafter stated (in numbered paragraphs), but in the case of a newspaper reproduction of a copyrighted photograph such damages shall not exceed the sum of $50 nor be less than $50, and such damages shall in no other case exceed the sum of $250 and shall not be regarded as a penalty:

1. In the case of a painting, statue or sculpture, $10 for every infringing copy made or sold by or found in the possession of the infringer or his agents or employees;

2. In the case of any work enumerated in the list (given above) of works for which copyright may be asked, except a painting, statue or sculpture, $1 for every infringing copy.

3. In the case of a lecture, sermon or address, $50 for every infringing delivery.

4. In the case of dramatic or dramatic-musical or a choral or orchestral composition, $100 for the first and $50 for every subsequent infringing performance; in the case of other musical compositions, $10 for every infringing performance.

(c) To deliver up on oath all articles alleged to infringe a copyright.

(d) To deliver up on oath for destruction all the infringing copies or devices, as well as all plates, molds, matrices or other means for making such infringing copies, as the court may order.

(e) Whenever the owner of a musical copyright has used or permitted the use of the copyrighted work upon the parts of musical instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work, then in case of infringement by the unauthorized manufacture, use or sale of interchangeable parts, such as disks, rolls, bands or cylinders for use in mechanical music-producing machines, no criminal action shall be brought, but in a civil action an injunction may be granted upon such terms as the court may impose and the plaintiff shall be entitled to recover in lieu of profits and damages a royalty as provided in the act.

Any person who shall willfully and for profit infringe any copyright, or willfully aid or abet such infringement, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not exceeding one year or by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or both, in the discretion of the court. It is provided, however, that nothing in the act shall prevent the performance of religious or secular works, such as oratorios, cantatas, masses or octavo choruses by public schools, church choirs or vocal societies, provided the performance is for charitable or educational purposes and not for profit.

Any person who shall fraudulently place a copyright notice upon any uncopyrighted article, or shall fraudulently remove or alter the notice upon any copyrighted article, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000. Any person who shall knowingly sell or issue any article bearing a notice of United States copyright which has not been copyrighted in this country, or who shall knowingly import any article bearing such notice, shall be liable to a fine of $100.

During the existence of the American copyright in any book the importation of any piratical copies thereof or of any copies not produced in accordance with the manufacturing provisions of the copyright law, or of any plates of the same not made from type set in this country, or any copies produced by lithographic or photo-engraving processes not performed within the United States, is prohibited. Except as to piratical copies this does not apply.

(a) To works in raised characters for the blind;

(b) To a foreign newspaper or magazine, although containing matter copyrighted in the United States printed or reprinted by authority of the copyright owner, unless such newspaper or magazine contains also copyright matter printed without such authorization;

(c) To the authorized edition of a book in a foreign language of which only a translation into English has been copyrighted in this country;

(d) To any book published abroad with the authorization of the author or copyright proprietor under the following circumstances:

1. When imported, not more than one copy at a time, for individual use and not for sale, but such privilege of importation shall not extend to a foreign reprint of a book by an American author copyrighted in the United States;

2. When imported by or for the use of the United States;

3. When imported, for use and not for sale, not more than one copy of any such book in any one invoice, in good faith, by or for any society or institution incorporated for educational, literary, philosophical, scientific or religious purposes, or for the encouragement of the fine arts, or for any college, academy, school or seminary of learning, or for any state school, college, university or free public library in the United States;

4. When such books form parts of libraries or collections purchased en bloc for the use of societies, institutions or libraries, or form parts of the library or personal baggage belonging to persons or families arriving from foreign countries and are not intended for sale.

The criminal actions shall be maintained under the copyright law unless the same be begun within three years after the cause of action arose.

Copyright may be assigned, mortgaged or bequeathed by will.

There shall be appointed by the librarian of congress a register of copyrights at a salary of $4,000 a year and an assistant register at $3,000 a year.

These with their subordinate assistants shall perform all the duties relating to the registration of copyrights. The register of copyrights shall keep such record books in the copyright office as are required to carry out the provisions of the law, and whenever deposit has been made in the copyright office of a copy of any work under the provisions of the act he shall make entry thereof.

In the case of each entry the person recorded as the claimant of the copyright shall be entitled to a certificate of registration under seal of the copyright office.

The register of copyrights shall receive and the persons to whom the services designated are rendered shall pay the following fees: For the registration of any work subject to copyright, $1, which sum is to include a certificate of registration under seal: Provided, that in the case of photographs the fee shall be 50 cents where a certificate is not demanded. For every additional certificate of registration made, 50 cents. For recording and certifying any instrument of writing for the assignment of copyright or license, or for any copy of such certificate or license, duly certified, if not over 300 words in length, $1; if more than 300 and less than 1,000, $2; if more than 1,000 words in length, $1 additional for each 1,000 words or fraction thereof over 300 words. For recording the notice of user or acquiescence specified in the act, 25 cents for each notice of not over fifty words and an additional 25 cents for each additional 100 words. For comparing any copy of an assignment with the record of such document in the copyright office and certifying the same under seal, $1. For recording the extension or renewal of copyright, 50 cents. For recording the transfer of the proprietorship of copyrighted articles, 10 cents for each title of a book or other article in addition to the fee for recording the instrument of assignment. For any requested search of copyright office records, indexes or deposits, 50 cents for each full hour consumed in making such search. Only one registration at one fee shall be required in the case of several volumes of the same book deposited at the same time.

For copyright blanks and additional information as to copyright regulations address the register of copyrights, library of congress, Washington, D. C.

APPLICATIONS FOR PATENTS.

[Condensed from Rules of Practice

A patent may be obtained by any person who has invented or discovered any new and useful art, machine, manufacture or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof not previously patented or described in this or any other country, for more than two years prior to his application, unless the same is proved to have been abandoned. A patent may also be obtained for any new design for a manufacture, bust, statue, alto-relievo or bas-relief; for the printing of woolen, silk or other fabrics; for any new impression, ornament, pattern, print or picture to be placed on or woven into any article of manufacture; and for any new, useful and original shape or configuration of any article of manufacture, upon payment of fees and taking the other necessary steps.

Applications for patents must be in writing, in the English language and signed by the inventor if alive. The application must include the first fee of $15, a petition, specification and oath, and drawings, model or specimen when required. The petition must be addressed to the commissioner of patents and must give the name and full address of the applicant, must designate by title the invention sought to be patented, must contain a reference to the specification for a full disclosure of such invention and must be signed by the applicant.

The specification must contain the following in the order named: Name and residence of the applicant with title of invention; a general statement of the object and nature of the invention; a brief description of the several views of the drawings (if the invention admits of such illustration); a detailed description; claim or claims; signature of inventor and signatures of two witnesses. Claims for a machine and its product and claims for a machine and the process in the performance of which the machine is used must be presented in separate applications, but claims for a process and its product may be presented in the same application.

The applicant, if the inventor, must make oath or affirmation that he believes himself to be the first inventor or discoverer of that which he seeks to have patented. The oath or affirmation must also state of what country he is a citizen and where he resides. In every original application the applicant must swear or affirm that the invention has not been patented to himself or to others with his knowledge or consent in this or any foreign country for more than two years prior to his application, or on an application for a patent filed in any foreign country by himself or his legal representative or assigns more than seven months prior to his application. If application has been made in any foreign country, full and explicit details must be given. The oath or affirmation may be made before any one who is authorized by the laws of his country to administer oaths.

Drawings must be on white paper with India ink and the sheets must be exactly 10x15 inches in size, with a margin of one inch. They must show all details clearly and without the use of superfluous lines.

Applications for reissues must state why the original patent is believed to be defective and tell precisely how the errors were made. These applications must be accompanied by the original patent and an offer to surrender the same; or, if the original be lost, by an affidavit to that effect and certified copy of the patent. Every applicant whose claims have been twice rejected for the same reasons may appeal from the primary examiners to the examiners in chief upon the payment of a fee of $10.

The duration of patents is for seventeen years except in the case of design patents, which may be for three and a half, seven or fourteen years, as the inventor may elect.

Caveats or notices given to the patent office of claims to inventions to prevent the issue of patents to other persons upon the same invention, without notice to caveaters, may be filed upon the payment of a fee of $10. Caveats must contain the same information as applications for patents.

REGISTRATION OF TRADE-MARKS.

Under the law passed by congress Feb. 20, 1905, and effective April 1, 1905, citizens of the United States, or foreigners living in countries affording similar privileges to citizens of the United States, may obtain registration of trade-marks used in commerce with foreign nations, or among the several states, or with Indian tribes, by complying with the following requirements: First, by filing in the patent office an application therefor in writing, addressed to the commissioner of patents, signed by the applicant, specifying his name, domicile, location and citizenship; the class of merchandise and the particular description of goods comprised in such class to which the trade-mark is appropriated; a statement of the mode in which the same is applied and affixed to goods, and the length of time during which the trade-mark has been used. With this statement shall be filed a drawing of the trade-mark, signed by the applicant or his attorney, and such number of specimens of the trade-mark as may be required by the commissioner of patents. Second, by paying into the treasury of the United States the sum of $10 and otherwise complying with the requirements of the law and such regulations as may be prescribed by the commissioner of patents.

The application must be accompanied by a written declaration to the effect that the applicant believes himself to be the owner of the trade-mark sought to be registered and that no other person or corporation has the right to use it; that such trade-mark is in use and that the description and drawing presented are correct. Trade-marks consisting of or comprising immoral or scandalous matter, the coat of arms, flag or other insignia of the United States or of any state or foreign nation cannot be registered. Fees for renewal of trade-marks and for filing opposition to registration are $10 each; for appeals from examiners to the commissioner of patents, $15 each.

Further information may be had by applying to the commissioner of patents, Washington, D. C.

IMMIGRATION LAW OF THE UNITED STATES.

The immigration law provides for a poll tax of $4 for every alien entering the United States. This tax is not levied upon aliens who shall enter the United States after an uninterrupted residence of at least one year, immediately preceding such entrance, in Canada, Newfoundland, Cuba or Mexico, nor upon aliens in transit through the United States, nor upon aliens arriving in Guam, Porto Rico or Hawaii.

Whenever the president shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign government to its citizens to go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possession of the United States, or to the canal zone, are being used for the purpose of enabling the holders to come to the continental territory of the United States to the detriment of labor conditions therein, the president may refuse to permit such citizens of the country issuing such passports to enter the continental territory of the United States from such other country or from such insular possessions or from the canal zone.

The following classes are excluded from admission into the United States: All idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons and persons who have been insane within five years; persons who have had two or more attacks of insanity at any time previously; paupers; persons likely to become a public charge; professional beggars; persons afflicted with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; persons who have committed a felony or other crime involving moral turpitude; polygamists or persons who believe in the practice of polygamy; anarchists or persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States, or of all governments, or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials; prostitutes, or women and girls coming into the United States for any immoral purpose; contract laborers who have been induced to migrate to this country by offers of employment or in consequence of agreements of any kind, verbal or written, express or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; any person whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who is assisted by others to come, unless it is satisfactorily shown that such person does not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes and that said ticket or passage was not paid for by any corporation, society, municipality or foreign government, directly or indirectly; all children under 16 years of age unaccompanied by one or both of their parents, at the discretion of the secretary of commerce and labor. Nothing in the act shall exclude, if otherwise admissible, persons convicted of an offense purely political, not involving moral turpitude. Skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed cannot be found in this country. The provisions of the law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, clergymen, professors for colleges or seminaries, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession or persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants.

It is unlawful to assist or encourage the importation or migration of any alien by promise of employment through advertisements printed in any foreign country. This, however, does not apply to states or territories advertising the inducements they offer to immigration thereto.

All aliens brought to this country in violation of law shall be immediately sent back by the owners of the vessels bringing them. Any alien entering the United States in violation of law and such as become public charges from causes existing prior to their landing shall be deported at any time within three years after their arrival.

No person who disbelieves in or who is opposed to all organized government, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching such belief in or opposition to all organized government, or who advocates or teaches the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals or of officers generally, of the government of the United States, or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, shall be permitted to enter the United States.

THE HOMESTEAD LAW.

Any person who is the head of a family, or who is 21 years old and is a citizen of the United States or has filed his declaration of intention to become such, and who is not the proprietor of more than 160 acres of land in any state or territory, is entitled to enter one-quarter section (160 acres) or less quantity of unappropriated public land under the homestead laws. The applicant must make affidavit that he is entitled to the privileges of the homestead act and that the entry is made for his exclusive use and for actual settlement and cultivation, and must pay the legal fee and that part of the commission required, as follows: Fee for 160 acres, $10; commission, $4 to $12. Fee for eighty acres, $5; commission, $2 to $6. Within six months from the date of entry the settler must take up his residence upon the land and cultivate the same for five years continuously. At the expiration of this period, or within two years thereafter proof of residence and cultivation must be established by four witnesses. The proof of settlement, with the certificate of the register of the land office, is forwarded to the general land office at Washington, from which a patent is issued. Final proof cannot be made until the expiration of five years from date of entry, and must be made within seven years. The government recognizes no sale of a homestead claim. After the expiration of fourteen months from date of entry the law allows the homesteader to secure title to the tract, if so desired, by paying for it in cash and making proof of settlement, residence and cultivation for that period.

The law allows only one homestead privilege to any one person.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE.

Civil-service act approved Jan. 16, 1883.

Officers—Three commissioners are appointed by the president to assist him in classifying the government offices and positions, formulating rules and enforcing the law. Their office is in Washington, D. C. The chief examiner is appointed by the commissioners to secure accuracy, uniformity and justice in the proceedings of the examining boards. The secretary to the commission is appointed by the president.

General Rules—The fundamental rules governing appointments to government positions are found in the civil-service act itself. Based upon these are many other regulations formulated by the commission and promulgated by the president from time to time as new contingencies arise. The present rules were approved March 20, 1903, and went into effect April 15, 1903. In a general way they require that there must be free, open examinations of applicants for positions in the public service; that appointments shall be made from those graded highest in the examinations; that appointments to the service in Washington shall be apportioned among the states and territories according to population; that there shall be a period (six months) of probation before any absolute appointment is made; that no person in the public service is for that reason obliged to contribute to any political fund or is subject to dismissal for refusing to so contribute; that no person in the public service has any right to use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person. Applicants for positions shall not be questioned as to their political or religious beliefs and no discrimination shall be exercised against or in favor of any applicant or employee on account of his religion or politics. The classified civil service shall include all officers and employes in the executive civil service of the United States except laborers and persons whose appointments are subject to confirmation by the senate.

Examinations—These are conducted by boards of examiners chosen from among persons in government employ and are held twice a year in all the states and territories at convenient places. In Illinois, for example, they are usually held at Cairo, Chicago and Peoria. The dates are announced through the newspapers or by other means. They can always be learned by applying to the commission or to the nearest postoffice or custom house. Those who desire to take examinations are advised to write to the commission in Washington for the "Manual of Examinations," which is sent free to all applicants. It is revised semiannually, to Jan. 1 and July 1. The January edition contains a schedule of the spring examinations and the July edition contains a schedule of the fall examinations. Full information is given as to the methods and rules governing examinations, manner of making application, qualifications required, regulations for rating examination papers, certification for and chances of appointment, and as far as possible it outlines the scope of the different subjects of general and technical examinations. These are practical in character and are designed to test the relative capacity and fitness to discharge the duties to be performed. It is necessary to obtain an average percentage of 70 to be eligible for appointment, except that applicants are entitled to preference because of honorable discharge from the military or naval service for disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty need obtain but 65 per cent. The period of eligibility is one year.

Qualifications of Applicants—No person will be examined who is not a citizen of the United States; who is not within the age limitations prescribed; who is physically disqualified for the service which he seeks; who has been guilty of criminal, infamous, dishonest or disgraceful conduct; who has been dismissed from the public service for delinquency and misconduct or has failed to receive absolute appointment after probation; who is addicted to the habitual use of intoxicating liquors to excess, or who has made a false statement in his application. The age limitations in the more important branches of the public service are: Postoffice, 18 to 45 years; rural letter carriers, 17 to 55; internal revenue, 21 years and over; railway, mail, 18 to 35; lighthouse, 18 to 50; life saving, 18 to 45; general departmental, 20 and over. These age limitations are subject to change by the commission. They do not apply to applicants of the preferred class. Applicants for the position of railway mail clerk must be at least 5 feet 6 inches in height, exclusive of boots or shoes, and weigh not less than 135 pounds in ordinary clothing and have no physical defects. Applicants for certain other positions have to come up to similar physical requirements.

Method of Appointment—Whenever a vacancy exists the appointing officer makes requisition upon the civil-service commission for a certification of names to fill the vacancy, specifying the kind of position vacant, the sex desired and the salary. The commission thereupon takes from the proper register of eligibles the names of three persons standing highest of the sex called for and certifies them to the appointing officer, who is required to make the selection. He may choose any one of the three names, returning the other two to the register to await further certification. The time of examination is not considered, as the highest in average percentage on the register must be certified first. If after a probationary period of six months the name of the appointee is continued on the roll of the department in which he serves the appointment is considered absolute.

Removals—No person can be removed from a competitive position except for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the public service and for reasons given in writing. No examination of witnesses nor any trial shall be required except in the discretion of the officer making the removal.

Salaries—Entrance to the department service is usually in the lowest grades, the higher grades being generally filled by promotion. The usual entrance grade is about $900, but the applicant may be appointed at $840, $760 or even $600.

THE MONROE AND DRAGO DOCTRINES.

The "Monroe doctrine" was enunciated by President Monroe in his message to congress Dec. 2, 1823. Referring to steps taken to arrange the respective rights of Russia, Great Britain and the United States on the northwest coast of this continent, the president went on to say:

"In the discussions to which this interest has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the occasion has been deemed proper for asserting, as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power. * * * We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not inter-ferred and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintain it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

DRAGO DOCTRINE.

When in the winter of 1902-03 Germany, Britain and Italy blockaded the ports of Venezuela in attempt to make the latter country settle up its debts Dr. L. F. Drago, a noted jurist of Argentina, maintained that force cannot be used by one power to collect money owing to its citizens by another power. Prominence was given to the contention by the fact that it was officially upheld by Argentina and favored by other South American republics. The principle embodied has become generally known as the "Drago doctrine."

SYNOPSIS OF TARIFF LEGISLATION SINCE 1884.

Morrison Bills—First bill presented to 48th congress during Chester A. Arthur's administration; proposed a horizontal reduction of 20 per cent with free iron ore, coal and lumber; defeated in house April 15, 1884, by vote of 159 to 155; house heavily democratic and senate republican. Second bill presented to 49th congress during Grover Cleveland's first administration; similar to first bill, proposing free wool, salt and lumber; defeated in house June 17, 1886, by a vote of 157 to 140; house democratic, senate republican.

Mills Bill—Presented to 50th congress during Cleveland's first administration; provided for free lumber and wool, reduction on pig iron and abolition of specific duties on cotton; passed by house July 21, 1888, by vote of 162 to 149, but failed in senate; house democratic, senate republican.

McKinley Bill—Passed by 51st congress during Benjamin Harrison's administration; became law Oct. 6, 1890; high protective measure, though remitting duties on sugar and providing for reciprocity treaties; both houses of congress republican.

Wilson Bill—Passed by 53d congress during Cleveland's second administration; became law Aug. 17, 1894, without the president's signature; both houses democratic; measure reduced duties in some cases and made additions to free list, notably wool.

Dingley Bill—Passed by 54th congress during McKinley's administration; approved July 24, 1897; passed by house 205 yeas to 122 nays, 27 members not voting; passed by senate 33 yeas to 23 nays, 23 not voting; house contained 206 republicans and 134 democrats and senate 46 republicans and 34 democrats; measure raised rates to produce more revenue, but was similar in many respects to the McKinley act.

Payne-Aldrich bill passed at extra session of 61st congress in first year of President William H. Taft's administration; approved Aug. 5, 1909; passed the house by a vote of 217 to 161 and the senate by a vote of 45 to 34. The conference vote in the house was 195 yeas to 133 nays, twenty republicans voting in the negative and two democrats in the affirmative. In the senate the vote on the final conference report was 47 to 31, seven republicans voting against it. In general the revision of the Dingley act was in the direction of lower duties, but there were some increases. The law is given practically in full in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book for 1910.

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION IN WASHINGTON.

The Smithsonian institution was established by statute in 1846, under the terms of the will of James Smithson, who bequeathed his fortune in 1826 to the United States for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." From the income of the fund a building, known as the Smithsonian building, was erected in Washington, D. C., on land given by the United States. The institution is legally an establishment having as its members the president and vice-president of the United States, the chief justice and the president's cabinet. It is governed by a board of regents consisting of the vice-president, the chief justice, three members of the United States senate, three members of the house of representatives and six citizens appointed by joint resolution of congress. It is under the immediate direction of the secretary of the Smithsonian institution, who is the executive officer of the board and the director of the institution's activities. The institution aids investigators by making grants for research and exploration, providing for lectures, initiating scientific projects and publishing scientific papers. It has administrative charge of the national museum, the national gallery of art, the international exchange service, the national zoological park, the astrophysical observatory and the regional bureau for the international catalogue of scientific literature. The institution's original endowment of $541,000 has been increased by gifts and accumulated interest to $87,000, yielding an annual income of $53,375. The secretary of the institution is Charles D. Walcott.

PLAN OF THE CANAL.

The entire length of the Panama canal from deep water in the Atlantic to deep water in the Pacific is 50.5 miles. Its length on land is 40.5 miles. In passing through the canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific, a vessel will enter a channel with a bottom width of 500 feet in Limon bay and follow this for about seven miles to Gatun, where it will enter a series of three locks in flight and be lifted eighty-five feet to the level of the Gatun lake. It will sail at full ocean speed through this lake, in a channel varying from 1,000 to 500 feet in width, for a distance of about twenty-four miles, to Bas Obispo, where it will enter the Culebra cut. It will sail through the cut, a distance of about nine miles, in a channel with a bottom width of 300 feet, to Pedro Miguel.
 There it will enter a lock and be lowered 30½ feet to a small lake at an elevation of 54½ feet above sea level, and will sail through this for about 1½ miles to Miraflores. There it will enter two locks in series and be lowered to sea level, passing out into the Pacific through a channel 8½ miles in length, with a bottom width of 500 feet.
 The depth of the approach channel on the Atlantic side, where the tidal oscillation does not exceed 1½ feet, will be 41 feet at mean tide, and on the Pacific side, where the maximum oscillation is 23 feet, the depth will be 45 feet at mean tide.

GATUN DAM.

The Gatun dam, which will form Gatun lake by impounding the waters of the Chagres river and other streams, will be nearly 1½ miles long, measured on its crest, nearly half a mile wide at its base, about 400 feet wide at the water surface, about 100 feet wide at the top, and its crest, as planned, will be at an elevation of 115 feet above mean sea level, or 30 feet above the normal level of the lake. The interior of the dam will be formed of a natural mixture of sand and clay, dredged by hydraulic process from pits above and below the dam, and placed between two large masses of rock and miscellaneous material, obtained from steam-shovel excavation at various points along the canal. The top and up-stream slope will be rippedraped. The spillway is a concrete lined opening, 1,200 feet long and 300 feet wide, cut through a hill of rock nearly in the center of the dam, the bottom of the opening being ten feet above sea level. During the construction of the dam, all the waters discharged from the Chagres river and its tributaries will flow through this opening.
 When the lake is formed, the spillway will be closed with a concrete dam, fitted with gates and machinery for regulating the water level of the lake.

The water level of Gatun lake, extending through the Culebra cut, will be maintained at the south end by an earth dam connecting the locks at Pedro Miguel with the high ground to the westward, about 1,700 feet long, with its crest at an elevation of 105 feet above mean tide. A small lake between the locks at Pedro Miguel and Miraflores will be formed by dams connecting the walls of Miraflores locks with the high ground on either side. The dam to the westward will be of earth, about 2,700 feet long, having its crest about 15 feet above the water in Miraflores lake. The east dam will be of concrete, about 500 feet long, and will form a spillway for Miraflores lake, with crest gates similar to those at the spillway of the Gatun dam.

GATUN LAKE.

Gatun lake will cover an area of 164 square miles, with a depth in the ship channel varying from 85 to 45 feet. Throughout the first 16 miles from Gatun the width of the channel will be 1,000 feet; then for 4 miles it will be 800 feet and for 4 miles more, 500 feet, when the entrance to Culebra cut, at Bas Obispo, will be reached. The water level in the cut will be that of the lake and the bottom width of the channel will be 300 feet.

CANAL ZONE.

The canal zone contains about 448 square miles. It begins at a point three marine miles from mean low-water mark in each ocean and extends for five miles on each side of the center line of the route of the canal. It includes the group of islands in the Bay of Panama named Perico, Naos, Culebra and Flamenco. The cities of Panama and Colon are excluded from the zone, but the United States has the right to enforce sanitary ordinances and maintain public order there in case the republic of Panama should not be able to do so. Of the 448 square miles in the zone the United States owns 322 and private persons 126. The private property may, however, be acquired at any time by the United States by purchase or by the exercise of the right of eminent domain.

THE LOCKS.

There will be twelve locks in the canal, all in duplicate, three pairs in flight at Gatun, with a combined lift of 85 feet; one pair at Pedro Miguel, with a lift of 30½ feet, and two pairs at Miraflores, with a combined lift of 54½ feet at mean tide. The dimensions of all are the same—a usable length of 1,000 feet and a usable width of 110 feet. Each lock will be a chamber, with walls and floors of concrete and water-tight gates at each end.

The side walls will be 45 to 50 feet wide at the surface of floor; will be perpendicular on the face and will narrow from the point 24½ feet above the floor until they are 8 feet wide at the top. The middle wall will be 60 feet wide, approximately 81 feet high, and each face will be vertical. At a point 42½ feet above the surface of the floor and 15 feet above the top of the middle culvert, this wall will divide into two parts, leaving a space down the center much like the letter "U," which will be 19 feet wide at the bottom. In this center space, which will be 44 feet wide at the top, will be a tunnel divided into three stories or galleries. The lowest gallery will be for drainage; the middle for the wires that carry the electric current to operate the gate and valve machinery, which will be installed in the center wall, and the upper will be a passageway for the operators. The lock chambers will be filled and emptied through lateral culverts in the floors, connected with main culverts, 18 feet in diameter, in the walls, the water flowing in and out by gravity.

The lock gates will be steel structures, 7 feet thick, 65 feet long and from 47 to 82 feet high. They will weigh from 300 to 600 tons each. For the entire canal 92 leaves will be required, the total weighing 57,000 tons. Intermediate gates will be used in the locks to save water and time, if desired, in locking small vessels through, the gates being so fixed as to divide the locks into chambers 600 and 400 feet long, respectively. Of the vessels navigating the high seas, 95 per cent are less than 600 feet long. In the construction of the locks it is estimated that there will be used approximately 4,500,000 cubic yards of concrete.

No vessel will be permitted to enter or pass through the locks under its own power. Electricity will be used to tow all vessels into and through the locks, and to operate all gates and valves, power being generated by water turbines from the head created by Gatun lake. The time required to pass a vessel through all the locks is estimated at three hours, one hour and a half in the three locks at Gatun and about the same time in the three locks on the Pacific side. The time of the passage of a vessel through the entire canal is estimated as ranging from ten to twelve hours, according to the size of the ship and the rate of speed at which it can travel.

CANAL FORCE.

The total force at work on the canal and railroad July 26, 1911, was 34,681. Canal employes numbered 27,740 and Panama railroad 6,941. The number of "gold" or white American employes was 4,250. The great majority of laborers are West Indian negroes.

CANAL FORTIFICATIONS.

An initial expenditure of $3,000,000 for the fortification of the Panama canal was authorized in the sundry civil act passed by congress and approved March 4, 1911. Of this amount $2,000,000 was for the construction of seacoast batteries on the canal zone.

PANAMA RAILROAD.

The Panama railroad and the steamships run in connection with it operated by the New York and Colon are owned and operated by the United States government. When the canal was purchased from the new French canal company the railroad and steamship property was included among the assets. It practically parallels the route of the canal nearly the whole distance. Since it was acquired by the Americans the line has been almost completely re-located to correspond with changes in the route and plan of the canal. It is 4½ miles long and runs between the cities of Colon and Panama.

END OF PANAMA CANAL LIBEL CASES.

Jan. 3, 1910, the Supreme court of the United States approved the action of the federal circuit court in New York in quashing the Panama canal libel indictment against the Press Publishing company of New York, N. Y. This indictment was brought by the United States government, which alleged that certain articles published by the defendant were libelous. These articles stated in effect that Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Crownwell, with J. Pierpont Morgan and others, obtained control of the Panama canal route for about $3,000,000, and by the cooperation of Theodore Roosevelt, then president of the United States and brother-in-law of Mr. Robinson, and William H. Taft, then secretary of war and brother of Mr. Taft, were enabled to effect the sale of the Panama canal to the United States at a profit of $36,000,000.

Chief Justice White, in announcing the opinion of the court, interpreted the statute under which the United States sought to prosecute to mean that it was to be applied to crimes committed on federal reservations when otherwise the criminal would go unwhipped of justice.

NOTE—The above list, it will be noted, includes a number of canalized rivers, and does not include canals completed since 1906.

THE HENNEPIN CANAL.

Preliminary surveys begun—1871.

Excavation begun—1892.

Work completed—1907.

Canal formally opened—Oct. 24, 1907.

Length of main channel—75 miles.

Length of feeder—29.3 miles.

Total length—104 miles.

Depth—7 feet.

Width at bottom—52 feet.

Width at water line—80 feet.

Locks on main canal—32.

Locks on feeder—1.

Total cost—$7,500,000.

The Hennepin, or, more comprehensively, the Illinois and Mississippi canal, extends from the Illinois river near Hennetin to the Mississippi three miles below Rock Island. The navigable feeder extends from Rock river at Sterling and Rock Falls to the main line near Sheffield and is of the same size and just as navigable as the main line. Water is forced into it by a dam a quarter of a mile long at Sterling.

NEW YORK STATE BARGE CANAL.

Total length—442 miles.

Width—From 122 to 160 feet.

Depth—From 12 to 20 feet.

Locks—61.

Excavation—175,000,000 cubic yards.

Cost—$101,000,000.

Work on the New York state barge canal, or system of canals, according to estimates, will be completed in 1916. The main waterway will follow the line of the present Erie canal in most places from the Hudson river at Waterford, Saratoga county, to Tonawanda and Lake Erie; another division will connect the Hudson with Lake Champlain, while a third branch will run from the main canal at Three Rivers Point to Lake Ontario. The waterway will be wide and deep enough to accommodate steam barges with a maximum capacity of 1,800 tons each.

THE CARNEGIE HERO FUND.

April 15, 1904, Andrew Carnegie placed in the hands of a commission the sum of $5,000,000 to be known as "the hero fund." Its purpose is to reward with medals and money the men and women who perform heroic deeds, or, in case they lose their lives, to care for those dependent upon them. Widows are given support until they remarry and children are given allowances until they are 16 years of age. Only such as follow peaceful vocations on sea or land in the United States and Canada are eligible to become beneficiaries of the fund. The first awards of medals and money were made in May, and others in October, 1905. The names of the recipients, with the reason for the award in each case, will be found in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book beginning with the volume for 1906.

THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING.

In April, 1905, Andrew Carnegie transferred to a board of trustees $10,000,000 in United States Steel corporation fifty-year bonds bearing 5 per cent interest, the purpose of the trust fund thus created being to provide retiring allowances or annuities to teachers in the higher institutions of learning in the United States, Canada, and Newfoundland under such regulations as the trustees might decide to be wise. Schools below the rank of college and institutions directly under the control of religious denominations are excluded from the benefits of the fund. State universities were also originally excluded from the benefits of the fund, but March 31, 1908, Mr. Carnegie, at the request of the National Association of State Universities, admitted them and at the same time added to the foundation $5,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds, making the fund $15,000,000 in all.

The policy of the board has been to confer the retiring allowances through the institutions themselves rather than to individual teachers, on the principle that the annuity must come as a right and not as a charity. The professors in the accepted institutions receive retired pay in due course and under established rules. Allowances are granted on the basis of age, service and disability. Any person 65 years of age who has had not less than fifteen years of service as professor or not less than twenty-five years of service as instructor or as instructor and professor, and who is at the time a professor or an instructor in an accepted institution, shall be entitled to an annual retiring allowance, computed as follows:

THREE GREAT WATER TUNNELS.

Gunnison Tunnel—The Gunnison tunnel, carrying water from the Gunnison river to the Uncompahgre valley in Colorado, is 30,582 feet long. It was built by the United States reclamation service in 1908-1909 at a cost of more than $2,500,000. It is 10½ by 11½ feet in dimensions and carries 1,300 cubic feet of water per second. The tunnel runs through solid rock.

Elizabeth Tunnel—The Elizabeth tunnel, which is part of the water supply system of Los Angeles, Cal., is 26,872 feet long and cost $1,612,200. It was built in 1910-1911 and pierces the Sierra Madre range of mountains. It is 10 feet 10 inches high and 9 feet 6 inches wide. Its capacity is 650,000 gallons a day.

Sutro Tunnel—The Sutro tunnel was built in the '70s to drain and ventilate the Comstock mines in Nevada. It is 8 by 10 feet in dimensions. The main tunnel is 20,500 feet long and cost about $5,000,000.

CARNEGIE INSTITUTION OF WASHINGTON.

The Carnegie institution was endowed by Andrew Carnegie with $10,000,000 and incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, Jan. 4, 1902. It was, however, deemed advisable to have it incorporated by act of congress, and this was effected May 18, 1904. Section 2 of the act specifies that the objects of the corporation shall be to encourage, in the broadest and most liberal manner, investigation, research and discovery, and the application of knowledge to the improvement of mankind. The projects considered by the institute are chiefly of three classes, namely:

First, large projects or departments of work, whose execution requires continuous research by a corps of investigators during a series of years.

Secondly, minor projects, which may be carried out by individual experts in a limited period of time.

Thirdly, research associates and assistants, aid being given to a few investigators possessing exceptional abilities and opportunities for research work.

An annual appropriation is made for the purpose of publishing the results of investigations made under the auspices of the institution, and for certain works which would not otherwise be readily printed. These publications are not distributed gratis except to a limited list of the greater libraries of the world.

Dec. 4, 1907, Andrew Carnegie added $2,000,000 to the endowment of the institution, and Jan. 20, 1911, he gave $10,000,000 more, making the total endowment $22,000,000.

The following table shows the gross sums allotted to large projects since the organization of the institution up to 1910:

Botanical research.....	$159,968.00
Economics and sociology.....	160,000.00
Experimental evolution.....	191,420.00

There are forty-eight states in the union and three territories, the latter including Hawaii, the District of Columbia and Alaska. The District of Columbia is governed by three commissioners, appointed by the president of the United States under laws passed directly by congress. Alaska has a governor appointed by the president, but has no legislature. It is under the direct control of congress. Porto Rico, the Philippines and other island possessions of the United States are not technically territories, each having a special form of government.

THE ROCKEFELLER FUND OF THE GENERAL EDUCATION BOARD.

Organized Feb. 27, 1902.

Chairman—Frederick T. Gates.
Secretary—Wallace Buttrick.
Assistant secretary—E. C. Sage.
Treasurer—L. G. Myers.

The general education board was informally organized Feb. 27, 1902, at the suggestion of John D. Rockefeller's committee on benevolence and was given a charter by congress and formally organized in January, 1903. The plan was designed and adapted to assist Mr. Rockefeller in distributing his gifts to education and to afford a medium through which other men of means might contribute to the same end. The board, a few days after its initial meeting, received from Mr. Rockefeller the sum of $1,000,000, the use of which was to be confined to the study and promotion of education in the southern states. An office was opened in New York city April 1, 1902, and work was begun. The board in co-operation with the department of agriculture took steps to educate the farmers of the south in scientific farming and up to the summer of 1903 had established about 15,000 demonstration farms under the supervision of eighty-nine agents in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia and Florida. The board also, in co-operation with the state universities of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Florida and the department of education in Louisiana, has established more than 500 high schools. About $700,000 of the original sum given by Mr. Rockefeller has been expended in this way, about half being for schools for colored people.

June 30, 1905, the board was notified that Mr. Rockefeller would donate $10,000,000, the principal of which was to be held in perpetuity as a foundation for education, the income to be used for the benefit of institutions of learning in such manner as might be deemed best adapted to promote a comprehensive system of higher education in the United States. This sum was paid in cash Oct. 1, 1905, and the board in accepting it designated it as "The John D. Rockefeller Foundation for Higher Education." After due consideration the board adopted the following principles as defining its general policy: "To co-operate sympathetically and helpfully with the religious denominations; to choose the centers of wealth and population as the permanent pivots of an educational system; to mass its funds on endowments, securing in this work the largest possible local co-operation."

"Gentlemen: My father authorizes me to say that on or before April 1, 1907, he will give to the general education board income-bearing securities, the present market value of which is about $32,000,000, one-third to be added to the permanent endowment of the board, two-thirds to be applied to such specific objects within the corporate purposes of the board as either he or I may from time to time direct, any remainder not so designated at the death of the survivor to be added also to the permanent endowment of the board."

July 7, 1909, Mr. Rockefeller, through his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., notified the board that he had decided to give $10,000,000 additional to the permanent fund, the income to be devoted to present needs of great importance. The board was also authorized to distribute the principal of the fund, and all other endowment funds hitherto contributed by Mr. Rockefeller, whenever in the discretion of the members or their successors it should be deemed advisable to do so.

In the northern states the board devotes itself exclusively to the promotion of higher education, having always in view the desirability of aiding such institutions as, taken together, will constitute an adequate system of higher education for each of the several states, thus seeking to correct and prevent duplication and waste and securing the highest efficiency. In the southern states its work for the colleges is similar to that in the north, but in addition it seeks to promote public high schools, to promote elementary education by increasing the productive efficiency of rural life and to aid in developing schools for the training of leaders among the colored people.

FOUNDATION FOR THE PROMOTION OF INDUSTRIAL PEACE.

Established in 1907.

In 1906 President Theodore Roosevelt was awarded the Alfred B. Nobel peace prize and at his suggestion an act was passed by congress March 2, 1907, establishing the Foundation for the Promotion of Industrial Peace. To this organization he turned over the money received from the Nobel committee to be used as the nucleus of a fund the income of which is to be used in promoting an annual conference in Washington between representatives of capital and of labor with a view to bringing about a better understanding between employers and employees, thus promoting industrial peace. The chief justice of the United States Supreme court, the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of commerce and labor, and their successors in office, and four persons appointed by the president of the United States to represent capital, labor and the general public, are the trustees. The trustees are authorized to pay over the funds from time to time to a committee of nine members, known as "the industrial peace committee," whose duty it is to make arrangements for the conferences.

THE SAGE FOUNDATION.

March 12, 1907, Mrs. Russell Sage of New York announced that she had set aside the sum of $10,000,000 to be known as the Sage foundation and to be devoted to the improvement of the social and living conditions in the United States. As trustees she appointed Robert W. DeForest, Cleveland H. Dodge, Daniel C. Gilman, John M. Glenn, Miss Helen Condit, Mrs. William B. Rice and Miss Louise L. Schuyler.

Following is a part of the statement given out by Mrs. Sage as to the object of the gift: "I have set aside $10,000,000 for the endowment of this foundation. Its object is the improvement of social and living conditions in the United States. The means to that end will include research, publication, education, the establishment and maintenance of charitable and beneficial activities, agencies and institutions and the aid of any such activities, agencies and institutions already established."

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

The library of congress was established in 1800 in the city of Washington, D. C. It was burned in 1814, and in 1851 lost 35,000 volumes by fire. The present library building, which cost $6,347,000, was opened to the public in November, 1897. It is located a short distance east of the capitol and is the largest and finest building of its kind in the world.

June 30, 1910, the library contained 1,793,158 books and pamphlets, 118,165 maps, 517,806 pieces of music and 320,251 photographs, prints, engravings and lithographs. The copyright office is a distinct division of the library with its own force of employes. The total number of employes in the library is 482 and the annual cost of maintenance is now about $625,000.

GREAT FIRE IN BANGOR, ME.

Bangor, Me., was visited by a destructive fire Sunday evening, April 30 1911. Nearly the whole business section was swept by the flames and many residences were burned. The total loss was between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000. The fire started in a hayshed on Broad street and, fanned by a strong wind, spread rapidly in a northwesterly direction. Both sides of Exchange street from York to State, both sides of State street from Kenduskeag stream to Broadway, a considerable part of Central and Franklin streets and nearly all of Park and Marlow streets were laid in ruins. The postoffice, public library, telephone office and the principal blocks containing banks, stores and other establishments were burned. Six churches were laid in ruins. REVISED ANGLO-JAPANESE AGREEMENT.

PREAMBLE.

The government of Great Britain and the government of Japan, having in view the important changes which have taken place in the situation since the conclusion of the Anglo-Japanese agreement of Aug. 12, 1905, and believing that a revision of that agreement responding to such changes would contribute to general stability and repose, have agreed upon the following stipulations to replace the agreement, above mentioned, such stipulations having the same object as the said agreement, namely:

(a) The consolidation and maintenance of the general peace in the regions of eastern Asia and of India.

(b) The preservation of the common interests of all powers in China by insuring the independence and integrity of the Chinese empire and the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations in China.

(c) The maintenance of the territorial rights of the high contracting parties in the regions of eastern Asia and of India, and the defense of their special interests in the said regions.

ARTICLE I.

It is agreed that whenever, in the opinion of either Great Britain or Japan, any of the rights and interests referred to in the preamble of this agreement are in jeopardy, the two governments will communicate with one another fully and frankly, and will consider in common the measures which should be taken to safeguard those menaced rights or interests.

ARTICLE II.

If by reason of unprovoked attack or aggressive action, wherever arising, on the part of any power or powers, either high contracting party should be involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests mentioned in the preamble of this agreement, the other high contracting party will at once come to the assistance of its ally, and will conduct the war in common and make peace in mutual agreement with it.

ARTICLE III.

The high contracting parties agree that neither of them will, without consulting the other, enter into separate arrangements with another power to the prejudice of the objects described in the preamble of this agreement.

ARTICLE IV.

Should either high contracting party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treaty of arbitration is in force.

ARTICLE V.

The conditions under which armed assistance shall be afforded by either power to the other in the circumstances mentioned in the present agreement, and the means by which such assistance is to be made available, will be arranged by the naval and military authorities of the high contracting parties, who will from time to time consult one another fully and freely upon all questions of mutual interest.

ARTICLE VI.

The present agreement shall come into effect immediately after the date of its signature and remain in force for ten years from that date.

In case neither of the high contracting parties should have notified twelve months before the expiration of the said ten years the intention of terminating it, it shall remain binding until the expiration of one year from the day on which either of the high contracting parties shall have denounced it. REVOLUTION IN HAITI.

Dissatisfaction with the administration of President Antoine F. C. Simon of Haiti led to a revolution in the spring and summer of 1911. The uprising was led by Gen. Cincinnatus Léconte, former minister of the interior, and Gen. Anator Firmin, who resigned the post of minister to Great Britain to join the rebels. The government troops were finally defeated and, Aug. 3, Port au Prince, the capital, was in the hands of the insurgents. President Simon took refuge on a warship and escaped to Jamaica. Aug. 6 Gen. Léconte's troops proclaimed him the chief executive and Aug. 14 he was unanimously elected to that position by congress.

CORONATION OF KING GEORGE V.

King George V. and Queen Mary of Britain were crowned in Westminster abbey, London, June 22, 1911, with what has been described as the most splendid, expensive and imposing ceremony of the kind that the world has seen. Most of the ancient forms were revived and a number of new ones added, including features in which the overseas dominions of the empire were given special recognition. The crowning itself was witnessed in whole or in part by some 7,500 persons, but the royal progress and other outdoor events had millions of spectators gathered from practically all parts of the earth. The programme, which required months of preparation, was carried out without a hitch or mishap of any kind. Houses and streets were lavishly decorated with flags and bunting, while at night the crowds were entertained by unusually original and brilliant electrical displays. Masts, pillars and arches adorned the thoroughfares through which the royal processions passed, while along the sides of the same streets were erected immense wooden stands for the spectators. All the leading countries of the world were represented by special ambassadors or by their future rulers. John Hays Hammond was the envoy of the United States. The British colonies were represented by their premiers.

Coronation week opened with a state banquet at Buckingham palace, June 20, at which the king and queen were hosts of the visiting and English royalties, the special foreign delegations, foreign ambassadors and ministers and other distinguished persons. The same evening a Shakespearean ball was given in Albert Hall. June 21 was a day of special prayers for the king and queen. The sovereigns also received the overseas premiers and representatives. Rain and sunshine alternated on June 22, but the weather was propitious at the time the royal procession wended its way to Westminster abbey and when it returned to the palace at the conclusion of the ceremonies. The procession was divided into three sections. One was for the royal guests, another for the prince of Wales and other members of the royal family, and the third for the king and queen. The royal guests occupied fourteen dress carriages and the prince of Wales and relatives five. Few of the foreigners were recognized by the spectators, but the royal children were cheered. The imperial section of the procession was preceded by an escort of the 1st Life Guards, the king's bargemaster and twelve watermen, aids de camp, yeomen of the guard, equerries and escorts of colonial and Indian cavalry. When the king and queen appeared they were greeted with cheers which continued until the procession reached the abbey. The king wore a purple robe and velvet cap trimmed with ermine, while the queen was attired in a beautiful robe of cloth of gold.

In Westminster abbey the services began at 9:30 o'clock with the entry of the dean of Westminster and other clergy. The crowns and regalia were taken from the altar to the robing room, the choir chanting "O Lord, Our Help in Ages Past." After the seating of the royal guests, the prince of Wales and his brothers and sister entered and every one rose as they were conducted to their seats. At 11 o'clock trumpets announced the entrance of the king and queen and again every one rose. The initial anthem "I Was Glad" was sung as the imperial procession moved toward the throne along an aisle lined with women of the guard in scarlet uniforms and carrying pikes. First came the clergy, including the dean of Westminster, the archbishops of Canterbury and York and the bishop of London. Then followed five pursuivants, heralds in medieval costumes and officers of the four orders of knight hood. Then came the standards of the kingdoms and the great colonies borne by some of the most eminent men in the empire.

Next in order came nobles bearing the queen's regalia and then Queen Mary herself in her coronation gown, with the jewels of the Garter presented by the Marys of the empire. She carried a bouquet of carnations and her long purple train was borne by six young women, daughters of earls. After the queen's cortege came the king's regalia carried by the highest nobles of the kingdom. The bible was borne by the bishop of Ripon, the chalice by the bishop of Winchester, the paten by the bishop of London, St. Edward's crown by the bishop of Northumberland, the orb by the duke of Somerset, the scepter by the duke of Richmond, the sword of state by Earl Beauchamp, the second sword by Earl Roberts, the third sword by Viscount Kitchener, the golden spurs by the earl of Loudon and Lord Grey de Ruthyn, the scepter with cross by the duke of Argyll and St. Edward's staff by the duke of Roxburghe.

After them walked the king in his crimson robe of state, the train borne by eight noblemen of high rank, the collar of the Garter around his neck and on his head the cap of state. Their majesties passed their thrones and proceeded to the chairs of state on the south side of the altar, where they knelt at the footstools. On the king's right stood the lord chancellor, the lord great chamberlain, the lord high constable, the earl marshal and the garter-at-arms, the noblemen bearing the swords of state. The dean of Westminster, wearing a cope of crimson velvet, took his place on the south side of the altar. The archbishop of Canterbury was on the north, beyond him were the archbishop of York and the bishop of London with twenty-one other bishops, all in convocation robes.

Rising, the king replaced the cap of state, which he had removed while kneeling. Then the service began. The ancient ceremony was performed with the same symbols and the recital was little changed. The archbishop of Canterbury presented the king. Facing the four sides of the abbey in succession, he announced:

"Sirs: I here present unto you King George, the undoubted king of this realm. Wherefore all you who are come this day to do your homage and service, are you willing to do the same?"

As the voice of the archbishop died away the spell was broken by the blast of the trumpeters and a mighty chorus of "God save the king" shook the great edifice. Then followed the various rites. Two bishops sang the litany and the communion was recited. After a brief sermon by the archbishop of York on the text "I am among you as he that serveth," the king kissed the bible and signed the oath, swearing to govern according to the laws of the land and to maintain the protestant reformed religion, the recently modified form of this latter declaration being the one departure from the traditional recital.

The king was anointed by the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord great chamberlain touched his majesty's heels with the spurs, he was girded with sword of state and invested with the imperial robe and orb and received the ring and scepter. Thereupon the archbishop placed the crown upon the king's head. Again the trumpets sounded, and once more the abbey resounded with cheers and the cry, "God save the king!" Ascending the throne the king received the homage of the archbishop and then of the prince of Wales, the princes of the royal blood and peers, who touched the crown and kissed the monarch's cheek.

The more simple ceremony of crowning the queen consort followed. Her majesty was anointed, the crown was placed on her head and she received the ring, the scepter and the ivory rod. Then the queen ascended the throne and was seated beside the king.

Leaving the abbey on the return journey, the order of the processions was reversed, that of the king and queen coming first. The appearance of their majesties with their crowns was the signal for renewed cheering, waving of handkerchiefs and clanging of bells. The whole of the return trip to Buckingham palace was marked by similar enthusiasm.

June 23 the king and queen, attended by representatives from every part of the united kingdom, colonial premiers, Indian princes and civil and military officials, passed in procession through the city, the west end and south London, and were again cheered by vast numbers of spectators. Saturday, June 24, the king and queen reviewed 167 British warships and eighteen vessels representing seventeen foreign nations in the roadstead of Spithead. The United States was represented in this naval display by the battle ship Delaware. The aggregate value of the assembled war vessels was estimated at $500,000,000.

RATES OF POSTAGE AND MONEY ORDERS.

The domestic letter rate is 2 cents an ounce or fraction thereof, and it applies to the island possessions of the United States, Cuba, Canada, Newfoundland, Labrador, united kingdom, Germany (direct), Mexico, Shanghai, the canal zone and republic of Panama. The foreign letter rate is 5 cents an ounce or fraction thereof, and it applies to all foreign countries in the universal postal union except those named above.

DOMESTIC.

FIRST CLASS—Letters and all written or partly written matter, whether sealed or unsealed, and all other matter sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, 2 cents per ounce or fraction thereof. Postal cards issued by the government sold at 1 cent each; double, or reply cards, 2 cents each. Cards must not be changed or mutilated in any way and no printing or writing other than the address is allowable on the address side. "Private mailing cards" (post cards) require 1 cent postage.

Among the articles requiring first-class postage are blank forms filled out in writing; certificates, checks and receipts filled out in writing; copy (manuscript or typewritten) unaccompanied by proof sheets; plans and drawings containing written words, letters or figures; price lists containing written figures changing individual items; old letters sent singly or in bulk; typewritten matter and manifold copies thereof, and stenographic notes.

SECOND CLASS—All regular newspapers, magazines and other periodicals issued at stated intervals less frequently than four times a year, when mailed by publishers or news agents, 1 cent a pound or fraction thereof; when mailed by others, 1 cent for each four ounces or fractional part thereof.

THIRD CLASS—Books, circulars, pamphlets and other matter wholly in print (not included in second-class matter), 1 cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof. The following named articles are among those subject to third-class rate of postage: Almanacs, architectural designs, blue prints, bulbs, seeds, roots, scions and plants, calendars, cards, press clippings with name and date of papers stamped or written in, engravings, samples of grain in its natural condition, imitation of hand or typewritten matter when mailed at post-office window in a minimum number of twenty identical copies separately addressed; insurance applications and other blank forms mainly in print; printed labels, lithographs, maps, music books, photographs, tags, proof sheets, periodicals having the character of books, and publications which depend for their circulation upon offers of premiums.

FOURTH CLASS—All matter not in the first, second or third class, which is not in its form or nature liable to destroy, deface or otherwise damage the contents of the mailing or harm the person of any one engaged in the postal service, 1 cent an ounce or fraction thereof. Included in fourth-class mail matter are the following articles: Blank books, blank cards or paper, blotters, playing cards, celluloid, coin, crayon pictures, cut flowers, metal or wood cuts, drawings, dried fruit, dried plants, electrotype plates, framed engravings, envelopes, geological specimens, letterheads, cloth maps, samples of merchandise, metals, minerals, napkins, oil paintings, paper bags or wrapping paper, photograph albums, printed matter on other material than paper, queen bees properly packed, stationery, tin types, wall paper and wooden rulers bearing printed advertisements.

UNMAILABLE MATTER—Includes that which is prohibited by law, regulation or treaty stipulation and that which by reason of illegible or insufficient address cannot be forwarded to destination. Among the articles prohibited are poisons, explosives or inflammable articles, articles exhaling bad odors, vintous, spirituous and malt liquors, specimens of disease germs, lottery letters and circulars, indecent and scurrilous matter.

SPECIAL DELIVERY—Any article of mailable matter bearing a 10-cent special delivery stamp in addition to the regular postage is entitled to immediate delivery on its arrival at the office of address between the hours of 7 a. m. and 11 p. m., if the office be of the free-delivery class, and between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., if the office be other than a free-delivery office.

REGISTRATION—All mailable matter may be registered at the rate of 10 cents for each package in addition to the regular postage, which must be prepaid. An indemnity not to exceed $50 may be paid for the loss of first-class registered matter, and 50 francs ($10) in case of the loss of a registered article addressed to a country in the universal postal union, under certain conditions.

LIMITS OF WEIGHT—No package of third or fourth class matter weighing more than four pounds, except single books, will be received for conveyance by mail. The limit of weight does not apply to second-class matter mailed at the second-class rate of postage, or at the rate of 1 cent for each four ounces, nor is it enforced against matter fully prepaid with postage stamps affixed at the first-class or letter rate of postage.

POST CARDS—A post card must be an unfolded piece of cardboard not exceeding 3-9-16 by 5-9-16 inches, nor less than 2 1/4 by 4 inches in size; it must be in form and quality and weight of paper substantially like the government postal cards; it may be of any color not interfering with the legibility of the address; the face of the card may be divided by a vertical line, the right half to be used for the address only and the left for the message, etc.; very thin sheets of paper may be attached to the card, and such sheets may bear both writing and printing; advertisements may appear on the back of the card and on the left half of the face. Cards bearing particles of glass, metal, mica, sand, tinsel or similar substances are unmailable except in envelopes.

MONEY ORDER FEES—For domestic money orders in denominations of $100 or less the following fees are charged:

For orders for sums not exceeding $2.50.....	8c
For over $2.50 and not exceeding $5.....	5c
For over $5 and not exceeding $10.....	8c
For over $10 and not exceeding $20.....	10c
For over $20 and not exceeding $30.....	12c
For over $30 and not exceeding $40.....	15c
For over $40 and not exceeding $50.....	15c
For over $50 and not exceeding $60.....	20c
For over $60 and not exceeding $75.....	25c
For over $75 and not exceeding $100.....	30c

SUGGESTIONS—Direct your mail matter to a post-office, writing the name of the state plainly, and if to a city, add the street and number or postoffice box of the person addressed. Write or print your name and address, and the contents, if a package, upon the upper left-hand corner of all mail matter. This will insure the immediate return of all first-class matter to you for correction, if improperly addressed or insufficiently paid; and if it is not called for at destination it can be returned to you without going to the dead-letter office. If a letter, it will be returned free. Undelivered second, third and fourth class matter will not be forwarded or returned without a new prepayment of postage. When a return card appears on this matter either the sender or addressee is requested to send the postage. Register all valuable letters and packages.

INTERNATIONAL REPLY COUPONS—These reply coupons, of the denomination of 6 cents each, are issued for the purpose of sending to correspondents in any of the countries named below. The foreign correspondent may exchange the coupons for postage stamps of that country equal in value to a 5 cent United States postage stamp, using the stamp for reply postage. The countries in which the reply coupon is valid are as follows:

RAILROAD RATE DECISION.

Two important cases, involving practically the same issues, were decided by the interstate commerce commission Feb. 22, 1911. The first was that submitted Jan. 19, 1911, by carriers in official classification territory, they having filed tariffs naming increases upon all class rates and upon one-half the commodity rates. The territory, roughly speaking, is bounded on the north by Canada, on the east by the Atlantic ocean, on the south by the Ohio and Potomac rivers and on the west by the Mississippi river. The second case was that submitted on the same date by the principal carriers in western trunk line, trans-Missouri and Illinois freight committee territories, which had filed tariffs increasing the rates upon some 200 commodities. In both cases the carriers voluntarily postponed the effective dates of the tariffs filed, pending inquiry by the commission as to the reasonableness of such rates.

In the first case it was held that there was no evidence before the commission establishing the necessity for higher rates, and further, that probably increased rates would not be necessary in the future. Before any general advance in rates can be permitted, it was held, it must appear with reasonable certainty that carriers have exercised proper economy in the purchase of their supplies, in the payment of wages and in the general conduct of their business. In this case there was no testimony tending to show the cost of reproducing the railroad properties. The commission required the defendants to cancel the proposed tariffs both as to class and commodity rates.

In the second case the commission held that the proposed rates were beyond the limitations placed by law upon carriers, and should not become effective. They had not been proved to be just and reasonable. "The strength of the carriers' case," declared the commission in its decision, "is in these two contentions: (1) That the roads are not earning a fair return upon the value of their property; (2) that the cost of operating has increased because of increased wages. While it is true that the cost of operation has increased by the amount shown as allowed to labor and addition to wages, it is also true that operating revenues have increased so as to more than absorb the increased operating expense. Moreover, cost figures furnished would indicate that under skillful management an additional tonnage may be handled under a higher wage schedule without increasing the cost of the service given."

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION AT JERSEY CITY, N. J.

Thirty men were killed, hundreds of others injured and nearly $1,000,000 worth of property was destroyed by the explosion of 50,000 pounds of dynamite at the North river terminal of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in that part of Jersey City, N. J., known as Communipaw, at noon Feb. 1, 1911. Pier No. 7, at which the accident occurred, was blown away; two lighters were destroyed and several vessels, including three ferry boats, badly damaged, and the railroad terminal partially wrecked. The lower part of Manhattan island was shaken as by an earthquake. Thousands of panes of glass were broken and many persons were injured by the flying fragments. Something akin to a panic prevailed in the skyscrapers and in the streets. Considerable damage was done in Brooklyn, Staten island, Ellis island and elsewhere, the shock being distinctly felt as far away as Long Branch, forty-five miles from New York.

The explosion occurred while a large quantity of dynamite, shipped by the Du Pont Powder company, was being transferred from a freight car to the lighter Katherine W. The cause could not be definitely ascertained, as everybody and everything in the immediate vicinity met with instant annihilation, though it was suggested that the boilers of the lighter exploded.

ERUPTION OF TAAL VOLCANO.

Through the eruption of Mount Taal, a volcano rising from the center of Lake Taal, province of Batangas, Luzon, about 850 lives were lost Jan. 28, 1911. Several small villages along the shore of the lake were overwhelmed by a tidal wave and many persons were burned to death in fires started by molten lava from the mountain. The eruption was accompanied by heavy shocks, which continued for several days. There have been eight violent eruptions of this volcano since 1709.

The national holidays, such as July 4, New Year's, etc., are such by general custom and observation, and not because of congressional legislation. Congress has passed no laws establishing holidays for the whole country. It has made Labor day a holiday in the District of Columbia, but the law is of no effect elsewhere.

POWDER EXPLOSION AT PLEASANT PRAIRIE, WIS.

Through a series of explosions in the plant of the Du Pont de Nemours Powder company at Pleasant Prairie, a few miles west of Kenosha, Wis., on the evening of March 9, 1911, one man was killed, scores of persons were injured and more than $1,000,000 worth of property was destroyed. The country within a radius of nearly 100 miles of the place was violently shaken and, until the facts were learned, it was supposed that an earthquake had occurred. There was great excitement in Chicago, Milwaukee and other neighboring cities, where considerable damage, chiefly in the shape of broken glass, was done.

The first explosion occurred at 8:17 o'clock and was followed almost immediately by four others. Five magazines, containing approximately 8,000 kegs of finished and 25,000 kegs of unfinished giant powder, and 250 tons of dynamite, blew up one after the other, the detonation of the dynamite causing the most violent shock. The original explosion took place in the glazehouse, where some 1,100 kegs of powder were being dried in steel cylinders. In this stage of its manufacture the powder is dry and hot and in a dangerous condition. The only man in the glazehouse, so far as known, was Elden Thomson, who was killed, not a trace of his body being found. Several other employes in adjoining buildings, though badly injured, escaped death.

The village of Pleasant Prairie was practically destroyed. It contained some 700 persons, nearly all of whose homes were so shattered as to be uninhabitable. Most of the people took refuge in Kenosha.

CHINESE CEASE WEARING QUEUES.

The agitation begun in China in 1910 against the old Manchu fashion of wearing the hair in queues or "pig-tails" was carried on effectively in 1911 throughout the empire. The custom was ridiculed by all the progressive newspapers and reformers as an emblem indicative of backwardness, distinguishing the Chinese from other civilized peoples. Societies were formed to carry on the agitation, with the result that thousands cut off their braids, in some cases celebrating the performance with firecracker festivals. Gen. Ying Chang, head of the war bureau, was the first member of the ministerial body to adopt the western fashion, and his example was followed by many other men in public life. By those familiar with conditions in China this queue cutting movement was regarded as a most significant sign of progress in the adoption of modern ideas of civilization.

WEIGHTS OF DIAMONDS AND FINENESS OF GOLD.

The weight of diamonds and other precious stones is expressed in carats, grains and quarter-grains. The grains are pearl grains, one of which is equal to four-fifths of a troy grain. Four quarter-grains make one grain and four grains make one carat. A carat is therefore equal to four-fifths of four troy grains, or 3.2.

The fineness of gold is also expressed in carats. Pure gold is said to be twenty-four carats fine. If it contains eight parts of a baser metal or alloy it is only sixteen carats fine. The carats therefore indicate the proportion of pure gold to alloy. Most of the gold used by jewelers is about fourteen carats fine, having ten parts of alloy.

WEATHER FORECASTS AND SIGNALS.

The operations of the weather bureau of the department of agriculture are based on observations of the weather taken at about 200 observatories throughout the United States at the same moment of time and telegraphed daily to Washington, D. C., and to other important cities. These observations, comprising barometric pressure, temperature, precipitation, winds and clouds, are entered upon outline charts of the United States by means of symbols, forming the "daily weather map," from which the forecasts are made. These forecasts are issued every day for every state in the union, and whenever necessary special warnings are sent out of storms, frosts, cold waves, heavy

It is estimated that the total number of persons in the United States to whom the weather forecasts are available is more than 4,000,000.

When No. 4 is placed above No. 1, 2 or 3 it indicates warmer; when below, colder; when not displayed, the temperature is expected to remain about stationary. During the late spring and early fall the cold-wave flag is used to indicate anticipated frosts.

A red flag with a black center indicates that a storm of marked violence is expected. The pennants displayed with the flags indicate the direction of the wind: Red, easterly (from northeast to south); white, westerly (from southwest to snows and floods. In addition to the main office in Washington, there are subordinate forecast centers in Chicago, New Orleans, Denver, San Francisco and Portland, Ore. Weather forecasts for a week in advance are now sent out from Washington and published each Monday.

The forecasts are first telegraphed to about 2,300 principal distributing points, whence they are further disseminated by telegraph, telephone and through the mail by means of forecast cards, rural free delivery slips and newspapers.

north). The pennant above the flag indicates that the wind is expected to blow from the northerly quadrants; below, from southerly quadrants.

By night a red light indicates easterly winds and a white light above a red light westerly winds.

Two red flags, with black centers, displayed one above the other, indicate the expected approach of tropical hurricanes, and also of those extremely severe and dangerous storms which occasionally move across the lakes and northern Atlantic coast. Hurricane warnings are not displayed at night.

CITIZENSHIP IN THE UNITED STATES.

All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. (Fourteenth amendment to the constitution.)

All persons born in the United States and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed, are declared to be citizens of the United States. (Sec. 1992, U. S. Revised Statutes.)

All children heretofore born or hereafter born out of the limits and jurisdiction of the United States, whose fathers were or may be, at the time of their birth, citizens thereof, are declared to be citizens of the United States; but the rights of citizenship shall not descend to children whose fathers never resided in the United States. (Sec. 1993, U. S. Revised Statutes.)

Any woman who is now or may hereafter be married to a citizen of the United States and who might herself be lawfully naturalized shall be deemed a citizen. (Sec. 1995, U. S. Revised Statutes.)

Children born in the United States of alien parents are citizens of the United States.

When any alien who has formally declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States dies before he is actually naturalized the widow and children of such alien are citizens,

Children of Chinese parents who are themselves aliens and incapable of becoming naturalized are citizens of the United States.

Children born in the United States of persons engaged in the diplomatic service of foreign governments are not citizens of the United States.

Children born of alien parents on a vessel of a foreign country while within the waters of the United States are not citizens of the United States, but of the country to which the vessel belongs.

Children born of alien parents in the United States have the right to make an election of nationality when they reach their majority.

Minors and children are citizens within the meaning of the term as used in the constitution.

Deserters from the military or naval service of the United States are liable to loss of citizenship.

Any alien being a free white person, an alien of African nativity or of African descent may become an American citizen by complying with the naturalization laws.

"Hereafter no state court or court of the United States shall admit Chinese to citizenship; and all laws in conflict with this act are repealed." (Sec. 14, act of May 6, 1882.)

The courts have held that neither Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiians, Burmese nor Indians can be naturalized.

The naturalization laws apply to women as well as men. An alien woman who marries a citizen, native or naturalized, becomes a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Aliens may become citizens of the United States by treaties with foreign powers, by conquest or by special acts of congress.

In an act approved March 2, 1907, it is provided that any American citizen shall have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in any foreign state in conformity with its laws, or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state.

When any naturalized citizen shall have resided for two years in the foreign state from which he came, or five years in any other foreign state, it shall be presumed that he has ceased to be an American citizen, and the place of his general abode shall be deemed his place of residence during said years; provided, however, that such presumption may be overcome on the presentation of satisfactory evidence to a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States, under such rules and regulations as the department of state may prescribe; and, provided also, that no American citizen shall be allowed to expatriate himself when this country is at war.

An American woman who marries a foreigner shall take the nationality of her husband. At the termination of the marital relation she may resume her American citizenship, if abroad, by registering as an American citizen within one year with a consul of the United States, or by returning to reside in the United States, or, if residing in the United States at the termination of the marital relation, by continuing to reside therein.

Any foreign woman who acquires American citizenship by marriage to an American citizen shall be assumed to retain the same after the termination of the marital relation if she continue to reside in the United States, unless she makes formal renunciation thereof before a court having jurisdiction to naturalize aliens, or, if she resides abroad, she may retain her citizenship by registering as such before a United States consul within one year after the termination of such marital relation.

A child born without the United States, of alien parents, shall be deemed a citizen of the United States by virtue of the naturalization of or resumption of American citizenship of the parent; provided that such naturalization or resumption takes place during the minority of such child; and, provided further, that the citizenship of such minor child shall begin at the time such minor child begins to reside permanently in the United States.

All children born outside the limits of the United States, who are citizens thereof in accordance with the provisions of section 1903 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (see above), and who continue to reside outside of the United States, shall, in order to receive the protection of the government, be required, upon reaching the age of 18 years, to record at an American consulate their intention to become residents and remain citizens of the United States and shall further be required to take the oath of allegiance to the United States upon attaining their majority.

NATURALIZATION LAWS.

Approved June 29, 1906.

Exclusive jurisdiction to naturalize aliens resident in their districts is conferred upon the United States Circuit and District courts and all courts of record having a seal, a clerk and jurisdiction in actions in law or equity or both in which the amount in controversy is unlimited.

An alien may be admitted to citizenship in the following manner and not otherwise:

1. He shall declare on oath before the clerk of the proper court at least two years before his admission, and after he has reached the age of 18 years, that it is his bona fide intention to become a citizen of the United States and to renounce allegiance to any foreign state or sovereignty.

Such declaration shall set forth the same facts as are registered at the time of his arrival.

2. Not less than two years nor more than seven after he has made such declaration he shall file a petition, signed by himself and verified, in which he shall state his name, place of residence, occupation, date and place of birth, place from which he emigrated, name of the vessel on which he arrived; the time when and the place and name of the court where he declared his intention of becoming a citizen; if he is married, he shall state the name of his wife, the country of her nativity and her place of residence at the time the petition is filed, and if he has children, the name, date and place of birth and place of residence of each child living. The petition shall also set forth that he is not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government or a member of any body of persons opposed to organized government, and that he is not a polygamist or a believer in polygamy; that he intends to become a citizen of and to live permanently in the United States, and every other fact material to his naturalization and required to be proved upon the final hearing of his application. The petition shall be verified by the affidavits of at least two credible witnesses who are citizens. At the time of the filing of the petition there shall be also filed a certificate from the department of commerce and labor stating the date, place and manner of his arrival in the United States and the declaration of intention of such petitioner, which certificate and declaration shall be attached to and be a part of his petition.

3. He shall, before he is admitted to citizenship, declare on oath in open court that he will support the constitution of the United States, and that he absolutely renounces all allegiance to any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty.

4. It shall be made apparent to the satisfaction of the court admitting any alien to citizenship that immediately preceding the date of his application he has resided continuously within the United States five years at least, and within the state or territory where such court is at the time held one year at least, and that during that time he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the constitution. In addition to the oath of the applicant, the testimony of at least two witnesses, citizens of the United States, as to the facts of residence, moral character and attachment to the principles of the constitution shall be required.

5. He must renounce any hereditary title or order of nobility which he may possess.

6. When any alien, who has declared his intention, dies before he is actually naturalized the widow and minor children may, by complying with the other provisions of the act, be naturalized without making any declaration of intention.

Immediately after the filing of the petition the clerk of the court shall give notice thereof by posting in a public place the name, nativity and residence of the alien, the date and place of his arrival in the United States and the date for the final hearing of his petition and the names of the witnesses whom the applicant expects to summon in his behalf. Petitions for naturalization may be filed at any time, but final action thereon shall be had only on stated days and in no case until at least ninety days have elapsed after the filing of the petition. No person shall be naturalized within thirty days preceding a general election within the territorial jurisdiction of the court.

No person who disbelieves in or who is opposed to organized government, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching such disbelief in or opposition to organized government, or who advocates or teaches the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers of the government of the United States, or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, or who is a polygamist, shall be naturalized.

No alien shall hereafter be naturalized or admitted as a citizen of the United States who cannot speak the English language. This requirement does not apply to those physically unable to comply with it, or to those making homestead entries upon the public lands of the United States.

 Volt—Unit of electro motive force; one volt equals one ampere of current passing through a substance having one ohm of resistance.

Coulomb—Unit of quantity; amount of electricity transferred by a current of one ampere in one second.
 Farad—Unit of capacity; capacity of a condenser charged to a potential of one volt by one coulomb. A microfarad is one-millionth of a farad.
 Joule—Unit of work; equivalent to energy expended in one second by one ampere current in one ohm resistance.
 Watt—Unit of power; equivalent to work done at the rate of one joule per second. A kilowatt is 1,000 watts.

THERMOMETERS COMPARED

There are three kinds of thermometers, with varying scales, in general use throughout the world—the Fahrenheit, Reaumur and centigrade. The freezing and boiling points on their scales compare as follows:

Thermometer.	Freezing pt.	Boiling pt.
Fahrenheit.....	32 degrees	212 degrees
Reaumur.....	zero	80 degrees
Centigrade.....	zero	100 degrees

The degrees on one scale are reduced to their equivalents on another by these formulas:

Fahrenheit to Reaumur—Subtract 32, multiply by four-ninths.

Fahrenheit to Centigrade—Subtract 32, multiply by five-ninths.

Reaumur to Fahrenheit—Multiply by nine-fourths, add 32.

Reaumur to Centigrade—Multiply by five-fourths. Centigrade to Fahrenheit—Multiply by nine-fifths, add 32.

Centigrade to Reaumur—Multiply by four-fifths.

For females the age is 21 in Connecticut, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming; 16 is the age in Arizona, Maryland and Nebraska and 18 in the other states. Marriages contracted before the age of consent are illegal in nearly all the states.

Marriage licenses are required in practically all the states.

Marriages between whites and negroes are prohibited by law in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and West Virginia. Michigan specifically declares such marriages valid.

Marriages between first consins are prohibited in Arizona, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Wyoming. Step-relatives are not permitted to intermarry except in California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Minnesota, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Utah and Wisconsin.

In 1890 the rate was 87 per 10,000 population. The rate in 1900 per 10,000 unmarried population 15 years of age and over was 312; in 1890 it was 304.

*Innocent party only. †Subsequent to marriage. ‡South Carolina has no divorce law, but marriages may be annulled.

NOTE—Consanguinity, infidelity and bigamy are causes for divorce in all states having divorce laws. Permanent insanity is cause for divorce in Idaho, Utah and Washington under certain conditions.

CORN NOT THE CAUSE OF PELLAGRA.

The medical commission appointed by Gov. Deneen Oct. 15, 1909, to investigate the spread of pellagra and its origin, made its first report Jan.
23, 1911. It found from a series of experiments in the Peoria state hospital that the disease was not caused by the use of corn, as has been asserted by some foreign physicians. Two squads of patients, numbering fifty-nine each, were isolated in two cottages. One squad was placed on an excessive corn diet, while the other was deprived of corn food entirely. Among the corn fed patients four cases of pellagra developed, with three suspects; among those not using corn five cases developed. It was also found that pellagra was not infectious. The commission, of which Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago is president, will continue its study of the disease, which has existed in Italy for more than 150 years, but has appeared in the United States only in recent years.

and territories of the union except Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Kansas and Maine.
It was abolished in Iowa in 1872 and restored in 1873. It was also abolished in Colorado, but was restored in 1901. In New York Virginia and Ohio execution is by electricity.

WHOLESALE PRICES, 1909 AND 1910.

Wholesale prices in 1910, as measured by the prices of the 257 commodities included in the investigation, were 4 per cent higher than in 1909, and with this advance the level was 1.6 per cent above the high average of 1907 prices. Wholesale prices during 1910 were 19.1 per cent higher than in 1900; 46.7 per cent higher than in 1897, the year of lowest prices in the twenty-one year period from 1890 to 1910; 16.6 per cent higher than in 1880, and 31.6 per cent higher than the average price for the ten years 1890 to 1899.

The highest point reached in 1907 was in October, from which month there was a general decline until August, 1908. Beginning with September, 1908, wholesale prices increased without a break in any month up to March, 1910. In April, May and June prices declined slightly, but from June to December prices remained very nearly at the same level. Wholesale prices in March, 1910, were higher than at any other time in the preceding twenty-one years, being 10.2 per cent higher than in August, 1908; 7.5 higher than in March, 1909; 21.1 higher than the average yearly price of 1900, and 49.2 per cent higher than the average yearly price of 1897. Wholesale prices in December, 1910, were 1.4 per cent lower than in December, 1909, and 2.5 per cent lower than in March, 1910, but they were still 30.4 per cent higher than the average price for the ten years 1890 to 1899, and 45.4 per cent higher than the prices of 1897.

Comparing 1910 with 1909 the group of commodities showing the greatest increase in prices was lumber and building materials, the increase in the group as a whole being 10.7 per cent. Six other groups show an increase in 1910 of 2.7 to 7.5 per cent, while of the two remaining groups into which all commodities have been classified one (housefurnishing goods) shows a decrease of 0.1 per cent and one (fuel and lighting) 3.0 per cent.

The following table shows the average wholesale prices of certain commodities in the calendar years 1909 and 1910:

RECORD PRICES FOR OLD BOOKS.

The sale of the Hoe library in New York, N. Y., in April and May, 1911, brought some remarkable prices for rare old volumes, of which there were many in the collection. Among the books for which the largest sums were paid were the following:

Gutenberg bible, bought by Henry E. Huntington of Los Angeles, Cal., for $50,000. It was the first book printed from movable type and was published between 1450 and 1455.

Sir Thomas Malory's "Morte d'Arthur," bought for J. P. Morgan of New York, N. Y., for $42,800. This is the only perfect copy known of the Caxton edition.

Manuscript of "Pembroke Hours," bought by Arthur Hoe of New York, N. Y., for $38,000.

"The Hours of Anne Beaujeau," bought by Miss T. Benson of Brooklyn, N. Y., for $24,000.

"Helyas Knight of the Swanne," bought by Walter M. Hill of Chicago for $21,000.

It has been estimated that a two foot bookshelf containing ten of the rarest books in the world would cost more than $250,000. The books and the present market price of each follow: Gutenberg bible, the first printed book, $50,000; Psalter of 1457 first book printed with a date, $50,000; "Receyvel of the History of Troy," printed by William Caxton, the first book in the English language, $40,000; first edition of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, 1478, $20,000; first edition of Sir Thomas Malory's "Morte d'Arthur," $42,800; "Book of the General Laws of Massachusetts," 1643, first book of laws printed in America, $20,000; Bay psalm book, 1640, first book printed in America, $10,000; first edition of Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis," $10,000; Psalter of 1459, the best copy of which is now owned by J. P. Morgan, $10,000.

PERSONS KILLED OR INJURED IN FIRES.

According to the Insurance Press of New York there were sixty firemen killed in the line of duty and 1,689 injured in the United States in 1910. In the course of the same year 301 persons other than firemen were killed and 609 injured, making the total of killed and injured 2,650.

CORPORATION TAX CONSTITUTIONAL.

The corporation tax provisions of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act of August, 1909, were declared constitutional by the Supreme court of the United States March 13, 1911. The opinion was read by Justice Day. The court held that it was within the power of the senate to insert the tax provisions in the tariff law, which originated in the house. The court further declared that the tax was not a direct tax, because it was not levied upon the income of the corporation, but upon the peculiar rights and privileges of a body of citizens to carry on business as a corporation. These rights and privileges were held to be artificially constructed and conferred by the states. In the opinion of the court either the state or the nation has a right to tax this artificial way of doing business. As the tax is laid upon the carrying on of a business in a peculiar way it is held to be an excise. The tax then is measured in each case by the extent of the income of the corporation. The court held that while it would be unconstitutional to impose a direct tax on the incomes of all corporations without apportioning it among the states according to population, as directed by the constitution, it was perfectly permissible to measure the amount of the tax by the income.

BANK GUARANTY LAWS CONSTITUTIONAL.

In a decision announced Jan. 3, 1911, the United States Supreme court held constitutional the bank guaranty laws of Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas. The laws in question were passed by the legislature of Oklahoma in 1908 and by the legislatures of Nebraska and Kansas in 1909. They were similar, except that the Nebraska law made it obligatory on all state banks to contribute to the guaranty fund to be placed in the hands of the state officials, while the Oklahoma and Kansas legislatures left the contribution to the discretion of the banks themselves. The Supreme court of Oklahoma held that the law was constitutional. So did the Circuit court of the United States for the district of Kansas. The Circuit court of the United States in Nebraska, however, held that the Nebraska law was unconstitutional.

[The bank guaranty law of Oklahoma will be found in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book for 1909, page 106; the Nebraska and Kansas acts as directed in the volume for 1910, pages 123 to 126.]

NEW YORK STATE CAPITOL DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Fire in the New York state capitol building in Albany early in the morning of March 29, 1911, caused a damage estimated at $5,000,000. The west wing was entirely destroyed and other portions of the great structure were partly ruined. Irreparable loss was sustained in the burning of the state historical library, containing many ancient colonial and revolutionary documents. Among these were the first charter of the colony of New York, the papers found on Maj. Andre, the first charter of Trinity church from the British crown, a great collection of Clinton papers and hundreds of letters from Washington. The documents for a complete history of the state, as planned by the New York Historical society, were destroyed, as was the law library, which contained the best of its kind in the country.

LENGTH IN FEET OF CERTAIN MILES.

[From circular of hydrographic office, U. S. navy department.]

In the United States the nautical mile or knot or sea mile, used for the measurement of distances in ocean navigation, has a length of 6,080.27 feet; in England the nautical mile, corresponding to the "admiralty knot," is 6,080 feet; in France, Germany and Austria the nautical or sea mile has a length of 6,076.23 feet. The geographic mile, which is the length of one minute of longitude of the equator of the terrestrial spheroid, is 6,087.15 feet long. The statute mile, used principally in measurements on land, is 5,280 feet.

RAILROAD REBATE CASES.

Thirteen indictments on a total of 110 counts charging four ore carrying railroads entering Cleveland, O., with rebating and alleging that two of the railroads and three individuals were guilty of conspiracy to violate the Elkins law, were returned by the federal grand jury in Cleveland April 26, 1911. The railroads were the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, the Bessemer & Lake Erie, the Pennsylvania and the New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate). The individuals were: Dan R. Hanna, president of the M. A. Hanna company; K. L. Ireland, second vice-president of the M. A. Hanna company, and D. T. McCabe, fourth vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

HOT WEATHER IN 1911.

The spring and summer of 1911 were remarkable for one of the most prolonged periods of excessively warm weather ever recorded in the United States. The hot wave covered the greater part of the country east of the Rocky mountains, but was especially severe in the middle west. The first abnormally high temperatures occurred about the middle of May and from that time until July 12 hot weather was the rule. May 13 the thermometer reached 92 degrees in Chicago and sixteen deaths caused by the heat were recorded. May 25 all local records for the month were broken by a temperature of 94.2. On the same day temperatures ranging from 90 to 94 degrees were reported from thirty-two other cities, most of them in the middle west and south.

In June the weather as a rule was oppressively hot. On the 4th the temperature reached 95.3 in Chicago and on the 9th it rose to 98.5, the highest point recorded in Chicago in June since the weather bureau was established. On the same day the following cities reported temperatures of 100 degrees or more.

St. Louis, Mo.....104	Keokuk, Iowa.....100
Muskogee, Okla.....103	Oklahoma City, Okla.100
Texarkana, Tex.....103	Omaha, Neb.....100

Concordia, Kas.....100	Peoria, Ill.....100
Des Moines, Iowa.....100	Shreveport, La.....100
Galvesville, Tex.....100	Springfield, Ill.....100

Thirty-four other cities reported temperatures of 90 degrees or more. June 10 fifteen cities reported temperatures of 100 degrees and more. The highest marks were:

Tulsa, Okla.....110	Dallas, Tex.....103
Indianapolis, Ind.....109	Phoenix, Ariz.....102
Burlington, Iowa.....104	Sedalia, Mo.....102

June 23, thirty-six cities experienced temperatures ranging from 90 to 102 degrees and many prostrations occurred. The whole of the Mississippi valley from New Orleans to St. Paul was affected by the heat wave, which also covered the greater part of the south and of the lake region. June 25 Kansas and western Missouri suffered severely. At Salina and McPherson, Kas., the thermometer reached 114 degrees; at Manhattan, 113; Abilene, 112; Emporia, 106, and Kansas City, Mo., 100.

From July 1 to July 10 heat records were established in many cities throughout practically the whole country. The first day of the month showed eight cities with temperatures of 100 or more and forty-one reported marks of 90 to 98. Omaha, Neb., topped the list with 102 degrees. July 3 there were sixty cities in which the temperature rose above 98 degrees. Among those in which the greatest heat was experienced were:

Newark, N. J.....111	Sedalia, Mo.....107
Ausonia, Conn.....110	Cedar Rapids, Iowa.....106
Beverly, Mass.....108	Kewanee, Ill.....106
Independence, Kas.....108	Ottumwa, Iowa.....106
Joplin, Mo.....107

July 4 and 5 were extremely hot days in all the northern states east of the Rocky mountains. In the south and far southwest conditions were more tolerable, few places reporting temperatures above 95 degrees. The cities in which the greatest heat was recorded July 4 were:

Junction City, Iowa.....109	Joplin, Mo.....104
Atchison, Kas.....108	Kansas City, Mo.....104
Webster City, Iowa.....108	Lafayette, Ind.....104
Topeka, Kas.....106	McLeansboro, Ill.....104
Albany, N. Y.....104	Muskogee, Okla.....104
Foston, Mass.....104	Omaha, Neb.....104
Carlisle, Ind.....104	Sedalia, Mo.....104
Des Moines, Iowa.....104	Sioux City, Iowa.....104
Indianapolis, Ind.....104	Charles City, Iowa.....101

"The present hot wave," said Chief Forecaster Edward H. Bowie of the government weather bureau in Washington on the evening of July 4. "is more extensive and more intense than any other in our records. It is safe to say it is unprecedented in extent, duration and degree of heat as far back as the records of the bureau go. It affects almost all of the Mississippi valley and the eastern section of the country. There has been no break in this heat wave since it first developed, and in countless localities in the area affected the highest temperatures registered in more than a generation have been recorded. The hot wave is caused by a high barometric pressure over the Atlantic ocean. That is a natural summer condition. There always is a high barometric pressure over the Atlantic at this time of the year, but this year it is abnormally high. Nothing like it in intensity has been known to meteorological science in the experience of the students of this generation. This intensely high pressure has existed over the Atlantic ever since June 13. That condition causes hot weather along the Atlantic seaboard and as far inland as Kansas and similarly situated states in the Mississippi valley."

The places recording the highest temperatures July 5 were:

Auburn, N. Y.....116	Keokuk, Iowa.....104
Junction City, Kas.....113	Oklahoma City, Okla.104
Emporia, Kas.....113	Fort Mich.....103
Lincoln, Neb.....110	Atchison, Kas.....102

After July 5 the heat gradually abated, though it continued unseasonably warm until July 12, especially in the eastern states, where there were many fatalities. Just how many persons died from the effects of the hot weather in May, June and July is not known with any degree of certainty, but it was estimated that the total number was in excess of 2,000. From July 1 to July 12 the number of dead reported was 1,200 for the whole of the United States. July 3 there were sixteen deaths from heat in Chicago, sixteen in Philadelphia, sixteen in Cleveland, twelve in New York and twelve in Pittsburgh. July 4 there were twenty-seven fatalities in Chicago, twenty-six in New York, fifteen in Pittsburgh and ten in St. Louis. July 5 there were fifty deaths from heat in Chicago, thirty-six in New York, twenty-nine in Philadelphia and eleven in Cleveland.

The following table shows the highest temperatures recorded in Chicago during the heated term and the number of deaths on the days specified.

The highest temperature recorded in any month since the weather bureau was established in Chicago was 103, on July 21, 1901. The hot wave in that year lasted from the latter part of June to July 27, and was the severest experienced up to that time.

BRITISH-CHINESE OPIUM AGREEMENT.

Under an agreement reached by China and Great Britain May 8, 1911, China's production of opium and India's export of it shall be proportionally reduced year by year until the traffic ceases entirely, which will not be later than 1917. The Chinese authorities are endeavoring to put an end to opium smoking at an even earlier date than that.

ARCTIC AND ANTARCTIC EXPLORATION.

SCOTT EXPEDITION.

The whaler Terra Nova, which left New Zealand Nov. 29, 1910, with the British antarctic expedition headed by Capt. Robert F. Scott, returned to Christ Church, New Zealand, March 27, 1911. It brought news that the expedition had landed on the shores of McMurdo bay in January. Headquarters were established at Cape Evans, eight miles north of Discovery station. In landing the stores and equipment one of the motor sledges dropped through a hole in the ice and sank. The scientific work of the expedition was begun at once and before the Terra Nova left a rich biological collection had already been obtained. The men and animals were in excellent condition. Exploring parties had been sent to the east and to the west and the commander himself was preparing for a preliminary trip southward. The journey toward the south pole was to begin in October, 1911.

Lieut. E. R. G. B. Evans, R. N., is second in command of the expedition, and Lieut. Victor Campbell is in charge of the eastern party. Dr. E. A. Wilson, zoologist and artist, is in charge of the scientific staff. Other members of the expedition are F. Griffith Taylor and W. H. Thompson, geologists; E. W. Nelson and D. G. Lillie, biologists; Dr. G. C. Simpson, meteorologist; C. S. Wright, chemist; Lieut. H. H. Pennell and Lieut. H. R. Bowers, surveyors; Drs. G. M. Levick and E. L. Atkinson, surgeons.

AMUNDSEN EXPEDITION.

Capt. Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the north-west passage, left Norway in August, 1910, on the arctic steamer Fram, for oceanographic work on the Atlantic coast of America. His original plan was to proceed to San Francisco and ultimately to the Arctic ocean via Bering strait. Circumstances caused him to change his mind and instead of going to the northern sea he steered for the south. The Fram arrived at the barrier ice in the Antarctic ocean Jan. 14, 1911, and the following day he determined to establish his headquarters on the ice a little to the west of Edward VII. land, at a point where there was a large indentation in the ice wall. Jan. 16 the party began to unload the cargo. A house was erected on top of the barrier, 150 feet above the surface of the bay. It was solidly constructed and supported by backstays on all sides. Amundsen named it "Framheim" (home of the Fram). It is the most southerly habitation in the world, standing in 164 degrees west longitude, 78 degrees 40 minutes south latitude. Mr. Amundsen is supplied with food enough to last two years. He has eight companions and 115 Greenland dogs. Before landing Amundsen had met the British expedition in Whale bay, Ross sea, and had exchanged visits with Capt. Scott. Amundsen expected to lay down a main depot in 80 south latitude and a smaller one at 83 south latitude.

THE FILCHNER EXPEDITION.

Lieut. Filchner, with a party of nine other German scientists, sailed from Buenos Aires for southern Georgia and the Weddell sea in October, 1911. Their vessel, the Deutschland, is provisioned for more than three years. The explorers include, besides the leader and a crew of twenty-five men, Gaspar Neuberger, chief engineer; Dr. G. Seelheim, second in charge; Dr. Barkow, meteorologist, and Drs. Brennecke, Heim, Wächter, Koenig and Przybyllok. Oceanographic studies will be undertaken at various places and exploring trips will be made in the polar seas southwest of South America.

OTHER ANTARCTIC EXPEDITIONS.

The Japanese antarctic expedition under Lieut. Shirase left Yokohama in the 150 ton schooner Kalkan Maru Nov. 28, 1910. The equipment was inadequate and the ship returned to Sydney, N. S. W., May 1, 1911, having been unable to penetrate the ice along Victoria land.

Capt. Douglas Mawson is the leader of an Australian expedition to the antarctic regions. His vessel is the Aurora, built at Dundee in 1876.

EXPEDITION TO CROCKER LAND.

Prof. D. B. Macmillan and George Borup, members of the Peary north pole party in 1909, are at the head of a projected expedition to Crocker land, which is the most northerly land known to exist on the globe. Their plan is to start in June, 1912, proceed north in the Rosevelt, which they hope to acquire, and establish a base west of Cape Columbia, whence the journey to Crocker land will be made by sledge. Capt. R. Bartlett will probably have command of the ship.

ANDERSON-STEFANSSON EXPEDITION.

The Anderson-Stefansson exploring expedition sent out by the American museum to make researches along the arctic coasts of Alaska is expected to return in 1912. Word was received from Mr. Stefansson in September, 1911, that complete surveys had been made of Lagron bay, Horton river and several uncharted regions. One hitherto unknown river was found flowing into Langton bay and the Riviere La Ronciere, which appears on many maps, it was proved, has no existence.

MIKKELSEN EXPEDITION.

Capt. Einar Mikkelsen, a Danish explorer, who started out in 1909 to recover, if possible, the collections and scientific records of the ill-fated Mylius-Eriksen expedition to east Greenland, spent the fall and winter of that year in a fruitless search. March 3, 1910, he went toward the north accompanied only by a n.e.chinist, intending to hunt for the records as far as the most northerly point Erickson had attained, then travel west along the Peary channel and then down the west coast of Greenland. He had only three months' provisions with him and so nothing has since been heard of either him or his companion it is feared that they have perished.

REVOLUTION IN MEXICO.

Porfirio Diaz resigned the presidency of the republic of Mexico May 25, 1911, following a successful insurrection led by Francisco I. Madero, Jr. Trouble began soon after June 26, 1910, when Gen. Diaz was elected for the eighth consecutive time. Madero, who was a candidate for the presidency and was defeated by what he deemed arbitrary and illegal methods, placed himself at the head of the anti-re-electionist party and other opponents of the old regime and began an active campaign for the overthrow of the administration. While Gen. Diaz had the good will and support of many people in the republic, especially among the business men and landed proprietors, he also had many enemies. These charged, among other things:

That his rule was despotic and, so far as ordinary citizens were concerned, often oppressive and tyrannous.

That the elections, federal and state, were absolutely controlled by him, no opposition being tolerated.

That he dominated the legislative and judicial branches of the government, making them subservient to his will.

That he permitted the state governors, jefes politicos and other officials to deprive citizens of their property and in some cases even of their lives.

That he and his supporters were responsible for a system of taxation whereby the wealthy were favored and the heaviest burdens laid on the poor. That privileges and concessions were granted for private benefit.

That the condition of the laboring population under his administration had become almost intolerable and that in some parts of the country it amounted to practical slavery.

That few educational opportunities were given the poorer people.

That his cabinet officers were old and conservative men opposed to progressive ideas and measures.

True or false, these charges and complaints had their effect upon the masses, with the result that the agitation against the government was carried on with increasing vigor until finally, in November, rioting and bloodshed took place in Puebla, Orizaba and Mexico City in the south and in Zacatecas and Chihuahua in the north. These outbreaks were apparently failures and it was announced Nov. 27 that the rebellion had been crushed. Such, however, proved not to have been the case, for in December skirmishes occurred at Cerro Prieto, La Junta and other points.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN TEXAS.

In January, 1911, there was considerable guerrilla warfare in the northern part of the republic and railroad travel was interrupted. In February most of the fighting was in the vicinity of Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex. In March there were engagements at Casas Grandes, Agua Prieta, Mexicali and Ojinaga, and the situation along the southern border of the United States became so threatening that the authorities in Washington decided to make a military demonstration. On the evening of March 6, by direction of President Taft, orders were sent to various garrisons throughout the country to assemble 20,000 troops in the department of Texas. At the same time the vessels of the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet were directed to proceed to the gulf coast of Texas. The military force established its headquarters at San Antonio under the command of Maj.-Gen. William H. Carter, assistant chief of staff. It was at first maintained that the movement was simply for maneuvering purposes, but after it was fully under way and many of the troops had arrived in Texas, government officials admitted that the real purpose was to stop filibustering and the sending of men and arms to the insurrectionists in the northern states of Mexico.

Apparently this movement on the part of the United States had no effect upon the situation across the border. The revolutionists continued their attacks upon the towns occupied by federal troops, though the property of foreigners was not, as a rule, molested. To stop brigandage, train wrecking and robbery President Diaz proclaimed martial law, making military officers the sole judges in punishing crimes of this sort. To meet the criticism that his advisers were reactionary and nonrepresentative, he caused his cabinet to resign and appointed another. In April there was a series of skirmishes in and about Agua Prieta, resulting in the shooting of several men in the American town of Douglas, just across the border in Arizona. Toward the end of the month peace proposals were made and an armistice was arranged, Francisco I. Madero representing the rebels and Gen. Juan Varero the government. Conferences were held at Juarez, in which Dr. Vasquez Gomez, Francisco Madero, Sr., and Jose Pino Suarez were the principal speakers for the insurrectionists, while Judge Francisco Carbajal was the official peace commissioner of the government. One of the principal demands of the Madero party was that Gen. Diaz should resign the presidency, or give definite assurances that he would do so before the end of May.

On the night of May 7, after a cabinet meeting, President Diaz issued a manifesto to the Mexican people announcing his intention to resign as soon as peace should be restored. The armistice came to an end May 8, when the insurgents made a determined attack upon Juarez, which was still held by Gen. Juan Navarro and his troops. The battle continued until the 10th, with heavy losses on both sides, and some casualties from stray bullets on the American side of the Rio Grande. It ended with the capture of the city and its defenders by Gen. Madero, who immediately made the place the seat of a provisional government, with himself as president, Dr. Gomez as minister of foreign relations and Gustavo Madero as minister of finance. Other cabinet officers were named and steps were taken for the resumption of peace negotiations.

In the meantime there was severe fighting at Tia Juana, Saltillo, Concepcion del Oro and Torreón, while a little later much activity was shown by the insurrectionist forces near Mexico City, Cuatla and Cuernavaca being captured. May 15 peace negotiations were resumed, Gen. Madero asking for half the cabinet, the governors of fourteen of the twenty-seven states, a new election, soldiers' pensions and general reforms. On the 17th it was officially announced in Mexico City that President Diaz and Vice-President Corral would resign before June 1 and that all the demands of the insurgents would be granted.

PEACE AGREEMENT.

On the evening of May 21 the official representatives of the Mexican government and the revolutionists signed the following peace agreement:

"In the city of Juarez, on the 21st day of May, 1911, in the customs house, Senor Don Francisco S. Carbajal representing the government of Gen. Porfirio Diaz, Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, Don Francisco I. Madero and Don Jose Maria Pino Suarez as the representatives of the revolutionary forces, having gathered to treat about the method of effecting a cessation of hostilities in the entire national territory and considering:

"1. That Senor Gen. Porfirio Diaz has manifested his resolution of resigning the presidency of the republic before the end of the present month; and,

"2. That bona fide news is at hand that Ramon Corral will resign the vice-presidency of the republic within the same period; and,

"3. That, by the administration of law, Senor Francisco Leon de la Barra, the present minister of foreign relations of the government of Senor Gen. Diaz, will assume for the interim the power of the executive of the nation and will call the general elections according to the terms of the constitution; and,

"4. That the national government will study the conditions of public opinion in the actuality to satisfy these conditions with the provisions of the constitution and will come to an agreement conducive to indemnifying the losses directly caused by the revolution.

"Therefore, the two parties represented in this conference, in view of the previous considerations, have agreed to formulate the following agreement:

"From to-day on hostilities which have existed in the entire national territory of the republic shall cease between the forces of the government and those of the revolution, these forces to be dismissed in proportion as in each state the necessary steps are taken to re-establish and guarantee tranquility and public order.

"As soon as possible the reconstruction or repair of telegraph and railway lines hitherto interrupted shall be begun."

PRESIDENT DIAZ RESIGNS.

May 23 the chamber of deputies passed a bill providing for amnesty to political prisoners. May 24 there was serious rioting near the national palace in the City of Mexico, several persons being killed by troops. May 25 President Diaz sent the following letter of resignation to the presiding officer of the chamber of deputies:

"Sir: The Mexican people, who generously have covered me with honors, who proclaimed me as their leader during the international war, who patriotically assisted me in all works undertaken to develop industry and the commerce of the republic, establish its credit, gain for it the respect of the world and obtain for it an honorable position in the concert of nations; that same people, sir, has revolted in armed military bands, stating that my presence in the exercise of the supreme executive power is the cause of this insurrection.

"I do not know of any fact imputable to me which could have caused this social phenomenon; but although not admitting that I may be unwittingly culpable such a possibility makes me the least able to reason out and decide my own culpability.

"Therefore, respecting as I always have respected the will of the people, and in accordance with article 82 of the federal constitution, I come before the supreme representatives of the nation in order to resign unreservedly the office of constitutional president of the republic with which the national vote honored me.

"I do this with all the more reason since, in order to continue in office, it would be necessary to shed Mexican blood, endangering the credit of the country, dissipating its wealth, exhausting its resources and exposing its policy to international complications.

"I hope, gentlemen, that when the passions which are attendant on all revolutions have been calmed, a more conscientious and justified study will bring out in the national mind a correct acknowledgment which will allow me to die carrying engraved in my soul a just appreciation of the esteem which throughout my life I have devoted and will devote to my countrymen. PORFIRIO DIAZ."

The resignations of Vice-President Ramon Corral and of all the members of the cabinet were handed in at the same time and unanimously accepted, together with that of the president. Francisco Leon de la Barra was then chosen provisional president. On the following day he was inaugurated with ceremonies lasting only ten minutes. Simultaneously Gen. Madero resigned the office of provisional president and placed his forces at the disposal of the new executive.

At 2 o'clock on the morning of May 26 Gen. Diaz secretly left the City of Mexico with his family and a small guard of soldiers and proceeded by train to Vera Cruz. On the way the train was attacked by a number of insurgents, but they were beaten off. May 21, after a touching farewell from his friends, Gen. Diaz sailed on the steamer Ypiranga for Spain.

June 2 an official decree was issued for the election Oct. 1 of presidential electors in all the states and territories, the men chosen to name the successor of Porfirio Diaz on Sunday, Oct. 15. Madero was elected without serious opposition.

ASSASSINATION OF PREMIER STOLYPIN.

Peter Stolypin, premier of Russia, was fatally shot by Dmitry Bogrov, a revolutionist, while attending a gala performance at the opera house in Kiev, Thursday, Sept. 14, 1911. Emperor Nicholas was in the theater at the time and witnessed the shooting. Stolypin was wounded twice, one bullet entering his hand and another penetrating the body and lodging near the spine. For two or three days it was thought the premier had a chance of recovering, but peritonitis set in and the end came Monday, Sept. 18, at 10 o'clock in the evening. Bogrov was hanged Sept. 25.

M. Stolypin was 48 years of age and had been premier since 1906. He was unpopular and three attempts to take his life had been made. The most serious was that of Aug. 25, 1906, when his home was wrecked by a bomb and thirty-two persons were killed and fifty injured, among the latter being the premier's young son and daughter. Stolypin himself escaped without injury. His enemies claimed that in the course of his administration 6,000 persons were executed and 70,000 exiled without trial.

ATTEMPT TO KILL PREMIER BRIAND.

Two revolver shots were fired at Premier Briand of France in the chamber of deputies, Paris, Jan. 17, 1911, but he was unharmed. One of the bullets struck Leon Mirman, an official, and wounded him slightly in the leg. The would-be assassin was a man named Gisolme, formerly clerk of the courts of Bayonne, who had been released only a short time before from an insane asylum, where he had been confined for trying to kill an English consul.

NONCONTIGUOUS POSSESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

The Philippine Islands were ceded to the United States by Spain Dec. 10, 1898. Maj.-Gen. Merritt was the first military governor. He was succeeded in August, 1899, by Maj.-Gen. E. S. Otis, who in turn was followed in May, 1900, by Maj.-Gen. Arthur MacArthur. The last named remained in office until July 4, 1901, when the military authority was transferred to Gen. A. R. Chaffee. By order of the president Gen. Chaffee was relieved of his duties as military governor July 4, 1902, and the office terminated. The Philippine commission was at the same time made the superior authority. Sept. 2 the islands were divided into three military departments, to be known as the department of Luzon, the department of Visayas and the department of Mindanao.

July 1, 1902, congress passed an act providing temporarily for the government of the Philippines, providing for the election by popular vote, two years after a census of the islands had been taken and published, of delegates to an assembly, consisting of not more than 100 members nor less than fifty, apportioned among the provinces as nearly as possible according to population. This assembly should, together with the Philippine commission appointed by the president of the United States, exercise the legislative power heretofore exercised by the commission alone, the members of the commission acting as an upper house and the elected assemblymen as a lower house. The members of the assembly were to hold office two years and annual sessions of the legislature not exceeding ninety days in length were to be held.

The first election was held July 30, 1907, when eighty members of the legislature were chosen, the total vote being 97,803. The first session was formally opened Oct. 16 by William H. Taft, United States secretary of war, the first civil governor of the islands after they came into American possession. Sergio Osmena was elected president.

Porto Rico, according to the decision of the United States Supreme court in the insular cases May 27, 1901, is a territory appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States within the revenue clause of the constitution. The island was ceded to the United States by Spain Dec. 10, 1898, and was under military rule until the Foraker law went into effect May 1, 1900. (For the provisions of that law see The Daily News Almanac for 1901.) In accordance with the third section of that act, the legislative assembly of Porto Rico having put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of government, President McKinley on the 25th of July, 1901—the anniversary of the landing of American troops on the island in 1898—proclaimed free trade between the United States and Porto Rico.

GOVERNMENT—Civil government, under the provisions of the Foraker act, was established May 1, 1900. The upper house consists of eleven members, six of whom are "cabinet" officers appointed by the president; the lower house is made up of thirty-five delegates elected by the people every two years. The governor, who is appointed by the president, has practically the same duties as the governor of any other territory of the United States. The present officers are: Governor, Col. George R. THE JOHN F. DIETZ CASE.

John F. Dietz, known as the "defender of Cameron dam," was found guilty of murder in the first degree at Hayward, Wis., May 13, 1911, and sentenced to life imprisonment. His wife, Hattie E. Dietz, and his son, Leslie Dietz, were found not guilty. The crime for which John F. Dietz was tried was the killing of Oscar Harp, a deputy sheriff, Oct. 8, 1910. At that time an effort was being made to capture Dietz, against whom several warrants had been issued, and his house at Cameron dam was surrounded by a number of men, of whom Harp was one. Many shots were fired on both sides in the course of a long siege and several men were wounded, including John and Clarence Dietz. John, to save his family from death, finally surrendered. The trouble began in 1904 and grew out of Dietz' refusal to allow the lumber companies operating in Sawyer county, Wisconsin, to flow logs over the Cameron dam on a quarter section bought by Mrs. Dietz, without paying him the toll he demanded. His defense to the murder charge was that he was trying to defend his home and family from the lumber trust.

JAPANESE ANARCHISTS EXECUTED.

Those put to death included the leader, Kotoku Denjro, and his wife. Twenty-four were condemned to death, but the sentences of twelve were commuted to imprisonment for life. Two others were given terms in prison.

RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY BALLINGER.

Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, resigned his position Jan. 19, 1912, but the fact was not made public and he was induced by President Taft to remain in office until after the close of the session of congress. The resignation was renewed March 6 and was accepted March 7 by the president in the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Secretary: I accept your resignation with great reluctance. I have had the fullest opportunity to know you, know your standard of service to the government and the public, to know your motives, to know how you have administered your office and to know the motives of those who have assailed you. I do not hesitate to say that you have been the object of one of the most scrupulous conspiracies for the defamation of character that history can show.

"I have deemed it my duty not only to the government, but to society in general, to fight out this battle to the end, confident that in the end your fellow citizens would see that the impressions of you as a man and as the administrator of a high public office were false and were the result of a malicious and unprincipled plan for the use of the press to misrepresent you and your actions and to torture every circumstance, however free from detrimental significance, into proof of corrupt motive.

"With the hypocritical pretense that they did not accuse you of corruption, in order to avoid the necessity that even the worst criminal is entitled to, to wit: that of a definitely formulated charge of some misconduct, they showered you with suspicion and by the most pettifogging methods exploited to the public matters which had no relevancy to an issue of either corruption or efficiency in office, but which, paraded before a hysterical body of headline readers, served to blacken your character and to obscure the proper issue of your honesty and effectiveness as a public servant.

"The result has been a cruel tragedy. You and yours have lost health and have been burdened financially. The conspirators, who have not hesitated in their pursuit of you to resort to the meanest methods, including the corruption of your most confidential assistant, plume themselves, like the Pharisees of old, as the only pure members of society actuated by the spirit of self-sacrifice for their fellow men.

"Every fiber of my nature rebels against such hypocrisy and nerves me to fight such a combination and such methods to the bitter end, lest success in this instance may form a demoralizing precedent. But personal consideration for you and yours makes me feel that I have no right to ask you for further sacrifice. Of course, it has been made evident that I was and am the ultimate object of the attack, and to insist, against your will, on your remaining in office with the prospect of further efforts against you is selfishly to impose on you more of a burden than I ought to impose.

"As I say farewell to you, let me renew my expression of affection and sincerest respect for you and of my profound gratitude for your hard work, your unvarying loyalty and your effective public service. I hope and pray that success may attend you and your profession and that real happiness will come to you and yours when you return to that community where you live and whose members know your worth as a man and a citizen and who will receive you again with open arms. Sincerely, yours,

WILLIAM H. TAFT."

In his original letter of resignation Mr. Ballinger gave ill-health as the reason why he desired to give up his office, but criticism of his attitude toward the Roosevelt policy of conservation of national resources in general and toward the Cunningham coal land claims in Alaska in particular had been severe, even after the investigation by congress, and exit from the cabinet was anticipated by many. The result of the congressional investigation was unsatisfactory, two reports being made. The minority of the committee, all democrats but one, found that the secretary was not deserving of public confidence and that he should be asked to resign. The majority report took the opposite view. No opportunity to consider the matter was given at the final session of the 61st congress.

On the same day that President Taft accepted Mr. Ballinger's resignation he appointed Walter L. Fisher of Chicago, an attorney, as secretary of the interior. Mr. Fisher was president of the Conservation League of America and later vice-president of the National Conservation association. His appointment, therefore, was regarded as due to his services in the cause of the conservation policy as well as to his high standing as a lawyer and citizen.

THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION.

The Pan-American union was established upon the recommendation of the first international American conference in 1890 for the purpose of maintaining closer relations between the republics of the western hemisphere. Its duties have been broadened since then and it is now a sort of clearing house of information concerning the nations of North, South and Central America. It publishes a monthly bulletin in which are given the latest official data concerning the resources, commerce and other features of the republics. The officers of the union occupy a fine building at the corner of 17th street and Potomac park in Washington, D. C. The structure, which was built with money given by Andrew Carnegie, was dedicated April 26, 1910. Following are the officers:

Director-General—John Barrett.
Assistant Director—Francisco J. Yanes.
Chief Statistician—William C. Wells.
Chief Clerk—Franklin Adams.

DEATH OF JUSTICE JOHN M. HARLAN.

John Marshall Harlan, associate justice of the United States Supreme court, died in Washington, D. C., Oct. 14, 1911, after a brief illness from acute bronchitis. Had he lived until June, 1912, he would have served longer on the Supreme bench than any other man. Stephen J. Field served thirty-four years six months and ten days; Chief Justice Marshall thirty-four years five months and five days, and Harlan thirty-three years ten months and twenty-five days. Justice Harlan wrote many opinions of importance in the history of American jurisprudence. The latest—concerning the Standard Oil and tobacco trust—will be found in full in this volume of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book. [See pages 45 and 62.]

OCEAN STEAMSHIP COMPANIES SUED UNDER SHERMAN ACT.

Jan. 4, 1911, the federal government brought suit in the United States Circuit court in New York, N. Y., under the Sherman antitrust law against thirteen of the principal transatlantic steamer lines, which are estimated to control 90 per cent of the steerage traffic, worth to them $55,000,000 a year. Twelve officers of the defendant companies, all resident in America, were named as co-defendants.

These thirteen companies, the government charged, entered into an illegal contract on Feb. 5, 1908, in London, by which they constituted themselves the Atlantic conference, with power to apportion all traffic pro rata, impose heavy fines on members of the conference for violation of any articles of agreement, and wage competition against all lines outside the conference.

The government asked that the defendants be enjoined from further combining to injure or destroy the business of any person or corporation engaged in carrying steerage passengers between points in Europe and the United States. The following companies were made defendants:

- Allan Steamship company.
 - International Mercantile Marine company.
 - International Navigation company.
 - Anchor line.
 - Canadian Pacific Railway company.
 - Cunard Steamship company.
 - British and North Atlantic Steam Navigation company.
 - Hamburg-American line.
 - Holland-American line.
 - North German Lloyd company.
 - Red Star line.
 - White Star line.
 - Russian East Asiatic Steamship company.
- The individual defendants were Philip A. S. Franklin, Emil L. Boss, Gustav H. Schwab, Gustav H. Schwab, Jr., Charles P. Sumner, Alexander E. Johnson, Bryce J. Allan, H. C. Van Post, William Coverly, John Lee, Adrian Gips and Max Straus.

OKLAHOMA'S 2-CENT PASSENGER RATE INVALID.

Oklahoma's 2 cent passenger rate was declared to be confiscatory and therefore invalid by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo., March 29, 1911. The opinion, written by Presiding Judge Sanborn, also held that the provision in the state constitution of Oklahoma giving the corporation commission power to fix railroad rates was in conflict with the constitution of the United States. It had, however, the power to exempt railroads from confiscatory rates.

3. Applicants for admission will be required to abide by all the rules and regulations made by the board of managers, perform all the duties required of them and obey all the lawful orders of the officers of the home.
4. A soldier or sailor to be admitted must forward with his application his discharge paper, his pension certificate, if he is a pensioner, and his discharge from a state home if he has been an inmate of such home. These papers are retained at the branch to which he is admitted to prevent their loss or fraud, but are returned to him when he is discharged. Soldiers or sailors whose pensions exceed $16 a month are not admitted to the home except for special reasons.

The National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers is supported by the United States government. The appropriation for that purpose for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, was $4,201,800.

HOME FOR REGULAR ARMY SOLDIERS.

The United States maintains a home for disabled and discharged soldiers of the regular army at Washington, D. C. All soldiers who have served twenty years in the army and all soldiers who have incurred such disability, by wounds, disease or injuries in the line of duty while in the regular army, as unfit them for further service are entitled to admission to the home. The home is in charge of a board of commissioners, consisting of the governor of the home, the adjutant-general of the army, the judge-advocate, the commissary-general, the quartermaster-general, the chief of engineers and the surgeon-general. The present governor is Lieut.-Gen. S. B. M. Young (retired).

CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS' HOME.

Confederate veterans of the civil war have a home at Beauvoir, near Biloxi, Miss. The residence there of Jefferson Davis in his last years was secured in 1902 as a refuge for helpless old southern soldiers by the United Sons of Confederate Veterans. It is supported by that society and the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

LARGEST CRANE IN THE WORLD.

What is declared to be the largest crane in the world was erected at Govan, on the River Clyde, Scotland, in 1910. The jibhead of the crane is of the hammer head type, built on the cantilever principle, and stands 160 feet above high water level, or to rail level 169 feet. The jib, with a total length of 270 feet, extends 169½ feet outward from the center and can be utilized within every point of a circle 336 feet in diameter. The motors for operating the gear vary from 60 to 90 horsepower. The crane, on slow gear, can elevate 200 tons extended 75 feet along the jib, and on quick gear it can manipulate a load of 100 tons at 133 feet. The maximum load of 200 tons can be lifted from 23 feet below wharf level to 140 feet above, a total of 170 feet. The three controlling brakes are worked by magnetic, mechanical and hydraulic action. The stability of the structure of the crane depends on four huge steel cylinders, one under each corner of the tower. These great tubes, 15 feet in diameter at their base, are filled with concrete and sunk 74 feet below ground.

UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY.

West Point, N. Y.

The United States military academy is a school for the practical and theoretical training of cadets for the military service of the United States. When any cadet has completed the course of four years satisfactorily he is eligible for promotion and commission as a second lieutenant in any arm or corps in the army in which there may be a vacancy, the duties of which he may have been judged competent to perform.

Appointments—Each congressional district and territory, including the District of Columbia and Porto Rico, is entitled to have one cadet at the academy. Each state is also entitled to have two cadets from the state at large and forty are allowed from the United States at large. The law provides that for six years from July 1, 1910, whenever any cadet shall have finished three years of his course at the academy his successor may be admitted. The appointment from a congressional district is made upon the recommendation of the representative in congress from that district and those from the state at large upon the recommendations of the senators of the state. The appointments for the United States at large are made by the president upon his own selection. The appointment from the District of Columbia is made on the recommendation of the district commissioners and that from Porto Rico on the recommendation of the resident commissioner. Appointments are made one year in advance of admission. For each candidate appointed two alternates should be nominated. Four cadets from the Philippines are admitted.

Examinations—On the second Tuesday in January of each year the candidate selected for appointment must appear for mental and physical examination before boards of army officers at such places as the war department may designate. Candidates who pass will be admitted to the academy on March 1 following.

Mental Requirements—Each candidate must show that he is well versed in algebra, to include quadratic equations and progressions, plane geometry, English grammar, composition and literature, descriptive and physical geography and general and United States history.

Physical Requirements—No candidate will be admitted who is under 17 or over 22 years of age, or less than five feet four inches in height at the age of 17, or five feet five inches at the age of 18 and upward, or who is deformed or afflicted with any disease or infirmity which would render him unfit for military service. Candidates must be unmarried.

Pay—The pay of a cadet is $600 a year and one ration a day, or commutation therefor at 30 cents a day. The total is $709.50, to begin with his admission to the academy. No cadet is allowed to receive money or other supplies from his parents or from any other person without the sanction of the superintendent.

Enlistment—Before receiving his warrant of appointment a candidate for admission is required to sign an engagement to serve in the army of the United States eight years from the time of his admission to the academy.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY.

Annapolis, Md.

The United States naval academy is a school for the practical and theoretical training of young men for the naval service of the United States. The students are styled midshipmen. The course of study is six years—four years at the academy and two years at sea—at the expiration of which time the examination for final graduation takes place. Midshipmen who pass are appointed to fill vacancies in the lower grade of the line of the navy, and occasionally to fill vacancies in the marine corps and in certain of the staff corps of the navy.

Appointments—Two midshipmen are allowed for each senator, representative and delegate in congress, two for the District of Columbia and five each year from the United States at large. The appointments from the District of Columbia and five each year at large are made by the president. One midshipman is allowed from Porto Rico, who must be a native of that island. The appointment is made by the president on the recommendation of the governor of Porto Rico. After June 30, 1913, each senator, representative and delegate in congress will be allowed to appoint but one midshipman instead of two. Candidates must be actual residents of the districts from which they are nominated.

Examinations—Two examinations for the admission of midshipmen are held each year. The first is held on the third Tuesday in April under the supervision of the civil service commission at certain specified points in each state and territory. All those qualifying mentally, who are entitled to appointment in order of nomination, will be notified by the superintendent of the naval academy when to report at the academy for physical examination, and if physically qualified will be appointed. The second and last examination is held on the third Tuesday in June at Annapolis, Md. Alternates are given the privilege of reporting for mental examination at the same time as the principals. Examination papers are all prepared at the academy and the examinations of candidates are finally passed upon by the academic board. Certificates from colleges and high schools will not be accepted in lieu of the entrance examinations at the naval academy.

Mental Requirements—Candidates will be examined in punctuation, spelling, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, United States history, world's history, algebra through quadratic equations and plane geometry (five books of Chauvenet's geometry or an equivalent).

Physical Requirements—All candidates must, at the time of their examination for admission, be between the ages of 16 and 20 years. A candidate is eligible for appointment the day he becomes 16 and is eligible on the day he becomes 20 years of age. Candidates are required to be of good moral character, physically sound, well formed and of robust constitution. GREAT LAKES NAVAL TRAINING STATION.

North Chicago, Ill.

The great lakes naval training station at North Chicago, Ill., was placed in commission July 1, 1911, and the work of fitting young men for service in the enlisted force of the United States navy was at once begun. By Aug. 15, 389 recruits had been enrolled as apprentice seamen, most of them coming from the central west and south. The total amount expended for buildings and grounds, before the station opened, was $3,475,000 and for maintenance $406,648.

Enlistment—The term of enlistment is four years, except minors under 18 years of age, who are enlisted for the period of minority. Only such persons are enlisted as can be reasonably expected to remain in the service, and when enlisted they must serve out the term specified. The age limit is 17 to 35 years.

Physical Requirements—For a minor enlisting as an apprentice seaman the following minimum heights (barefooted) and weights (without clothes) are required:

Age.	Height.	Weight.
17.....	62 inches.....	110 pounds
18.....	64 inches.....	115 pounds
19.....	64 inches.....	120 pounds
20.....	64 inches.....	125 pounds

Any one of the following conditions will be sufficient to cause the rejection of an applicant: Feeble constitution, general poor physique or impaired general health; any disease or deformity, either congenital or acquired, that would impair efficiency; any acute disease.

Mental Requirements—Applicants for enlistment must be able to read and write English.

Other Requirements—Applicants for enlistment must be American citizens, native or naturalized. A minor must present a certificate of birth or verified written statement by his parents, or either of them, or in case of their death, a similar statement by his legal guardian, showing the applicant to be of the age required by the navy regulations.

Pay—The pay of apprentice seamen is $17.60 per month. Each enlisted man is furnished with a free outfit of clothing, amounting to $60, on first enlistment.

How to enlist—Any one who wishes to enlist in the navy should write to the bureau of navigation, navy department, Washington, D. C., stating such desire, and the bureau will immediately reply, giving the address of the nearest recruiting station, where applicants are examined physically and either accepted or rejected. The government pays the expenses from the point of enlistment to the training station but not to the recruiting station.

There are similar training stations at Narragansett Bay, R. I., and San Francisco, Cal.

BIRD RESERVATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

For the purpose of preserving the native wild birds of the country from destruction, the United States in 1903 inaugurated the plan of setting aside regions that contain important colonies of breeding birds as bird reservations or "refuges." The first reserve created was that including Pelican Island, Florida, containing a colony of brown pelicans. Since then many other reserves have been established by executive order in various parts of the union. The localities set aside are under the supervision of the secretary of agriculture and of wardens appointed by him, one warden usually caring for all the reservations within a state.

THEATER PANIC AT CANONSBURG, PA.

While a picture show was in progress in the Canonsburg (Pa.) opera house on the evening of Aug. 26, 1911, a cry of fire was raised when the picture machine clicked and caused a bright flash to be thrown on the screen. This led to a panic and the spectators rushed to the narrow exit. One of the men in the crowd tripped and fell on the stairs. Others were pushed over him and in a moment the stairway was filled with a mass of struggling men and women, of whom twenty-six were killed and nearly sixty injured. There was no fire and the disaster was really inexcusable.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION OF 1912.

The next president and vice-president of the United States will be chosen Nov. 5, 1912. As is well known, these officials are not elected directly by the people, but by electors, who are voted for on the party tickets on the date named. The electors chosen will meet Monday, Jan. 13, 1913. In their respective states and vote by ballot for president and vice-president of the United States. The result will be transmitted to the president of the senate in Washington, Wednesday, Feb. 12, 1913, the electoral votes will be opened and counted in the presence of both houses of congress and the result announced by the president of the senate.

While the president and vice-president are thus formally elected in 1913, the actual choice is made in 1912. In the spring and summer of that year national party conventions will be held for the nomination of candidates for president and vice-president of the United States for the term beginning March 4, 1913. These conventions are not provided for by the constitution, but it has become the invariable rule that the candidates presented by them are voted for by the presidential electors. The latter are nominated at the state party conventions or primaries and are elected on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of every fourth year, preceding the end of the presidential term. Each state is entitled to as many electors as it has senators and representatives. No senator or representative or person holding an office of trust or honor under the United States may be an elector. The twelfth amendment to the constitution prescribes how the electors shall meet and cast their ballots and how congress shall count the votes. The article is as follows:

"The electors shall meet in their respective states and vote by ballot for president and vice-president, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as president, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as vice-president, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president and of all persons voted for as vice-president, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate.

"The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for president shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as president, the house of representatives shall choose immediately by ballot the president. But in choosing the president the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the house of representatives shall not choose a president, whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the 4th day of March next following, then the vice-president shall act as president, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the president.

"The person having the greatest number of votes as vice-president shall be the vice-president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list the senate shall choose the vice-president; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of president shall be eligible to that of vice-president of the United States."

Section 5, article II., of the constitution prescribes the qualifications of the president as follows:

"No person except a natural born citizen or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of the constitution shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of 35 years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States."

The qualifications of the vice-president are the same as those of the president.

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

The president and vice-president of the United States are not elected directly by the people, but by the members of an electoral college who are voted for at the regular presidential elections. Each state is entitled to as many representatives in the electoral college as there are congressional districts in the states and in addition one for each senator. Following is the electoral vote of the states, based upon the apportionment of representatives made by congress under the census of 1910:

NATIONAL PARTY PLATFORMS OF 1908.

Adopted at St. Louis, April 3.

The people's party advocates the issuance of money direct by the government to the people without the intervention of the national banks, to be distributed through federal and internal improvement; the public ownership of railroads and other public utilities; homesteading of land; the parcels post; governmental regulation of corporations by a general law regulating corporations doing an interstate business; initiative and referendum; direct vote for all public officers, with the power of recall; federal statute recognizing the principle of the initiative and referendum; giving the people power of instructing their national representatives in congress; abolition of child labor; the eight-hour day; an employers' liability law; condemnation of federal injunctions and gambling in futures.

UNITED CHRISTIAN.

Reaffirmed at Rock Island, Ill., May 1.

The platform of the united Christian party is based on the ten commandments and the golden rule and favors direct primary elections, the initiative, referendum, recall, uniform marriage and divorce laws, equal rights for men and women, government ownership of coal mines, oil wells and public utilities; the regulation of trusts and the election of the president and vice-president and senators of the United States by the direct vote of the people.

SOCIALIST.

Adopted at Chicago, May 17.

"We advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following programme:

"1. The immediate government relief for the unemployed workers by building schools, by reforesting of cutover and waste lands, by reclamation of arid tracts, and the building of canals, and by extending all other useful public works. All persons employed on such works shall be employed directly by the government under an eight-hour workday and at the prevailing union wages. The government shall also loan money to states and municipalities, without interest, for the purpose of carrying on public works. It shall contribute to the funds of labor organizations for the purpose of assisting their unemployed members, and shall take such other measures within its power as will lessen the widespread misery of the workers caused by the misrule of the capitalist class.

"2. The collective ownership of railroads, telegraphs, telephones, steamship lines and all other means of social transportation and communication, and all land.

"3. The collective ownership of all industries which are organized on a national scale and in which competition has virtually ceased to exist.

"4. The extension of the public domain to include mines, quarries, oil wells, forests and water power.

"5. The occupancy and use of land to be the sole title to possession. The scientific reforestation of timber lands and the reclamation of swamp lands. The land so reforested or reclaimed to be permanently retained as a part of the public domain.

"6. The absolute freedom of press, speech and assemblage.

"7. The improvement of the industrial condition of the workers—

(a). By shortening the workday in keeping with the increased productiveness of machinery.

(b). By securing to every worker a rest period of not less than a day and a half in each week.

(c). By securing a more effective inspection of workshops and factories.

(d). By forbidding the employment of children under 16 years of age.

(e). By forbidding the interstate transportation of the products of child labor, of convict labor and of all uninspected factories.

(f). By abolishing official charity and substituting in its place compulsory insurance against unemployment, illness, accidents, invalidism, old age and death.

"8. The extension of inheritance taxes, graduated in proportion to the amount of the bequests and to the nearness of kin.

"9. A graduated income tax.

"10. Unrestricted and equal suffrage for men and women, and we pledge ourselves to engage in an active campaign in that direction.

"11. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall.

"12. The abolition of the senate.

"13. The abolition of the power usurped by the Supreme court of the United States to pass upon the constitutionality of legislation enacted by congress. National laws to be repealed or abrogated only by act of congress or by a referendum of the whole people.

"14. That the constitution be made amendable by a majority vote.

"15. The enactment of further measures for general education and for the conservation of health. The bureau of education to be made a department. The creation of a department of public health.

"16. The separation of the present bureau of labor from the department of commerce and labor, and the establishment of a department of labor.

"17. That all judges be elected by the people for short terms, and that the power to issue injunctions shall be curbed by immediate legislation.

"18. The free administration of justice."

SOCIALIST LABOR.

Adopted at New York city, July 5.

The socialist labor party at its national convention in New York city, July 2-5, 1908, reaffirmed the platform adopted in 1904. This, in substance, advocates the ending of the present struggle between the capitalist and laboring classes by placing the land and the means of production, transportation and distribution into the hands of the people as a collective body and substituting the co-operative commonwealth for the present state of planless production, industrial war and social disorder—a commonwealth in which every worker shall have the free exercise and full benefit of his faculties, multiplied by all the modern factors of civilization.

DEMOCRATIC.

Adopted at Denver, July 10.

The platform denounces the waste of the people's money through extravagant appropriations by congress and the increase in the number of officeholders. It charges that the house of representatives has ceased to be a deliberative and legislative body, responsive to the will of the majority of its members, and has come under the absolute domination of the speaker. It pledges the democratic party to the enactment of a law preventing corporations from making campaign contributions and any individual from contributing an amount above a reasonable maximum and providing for the publication of contributions. It opposes the extension of the powers of the general government by judicial construction and insists that federal remedies for the regulation of interstate commerce and for the prevention of private monopoly shall be added to, not substituted for, state remedies.

"We favor immediate revision of the tariff by the reduction of import duties. Articles entering into competition with trust-controlled products should be placed upon the free list and material reductions should be made in the tariff upon the necessities of life, especially upon articles competing with such American manufactures as are sold abroad more cheaply than at home; and graduate reductions should be made in such other schedules as may be necessary to restore the tariff to a revenue basis. We demand the immediate repeal of the tariff on wood pulp, print paper, lumber, timber and logs and that these articles be placed upon the free list.

"A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We, therefore, favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against guilty trust magnates and officials, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. Among the additional remedies we specify three: First, a law preventing a duplication of directors among competing corporations; second, a license system which will, without abridging the right of each state to create corporations, or its right to regulate as it will foreign corporations doing business within its limits, make it necessary for a manufacturing or trading corporation engaged in interstate commerce to take out a federal license before it shall be permitted to control as much as 25 per cent of the product in which it deals, the license to protect the public from watered stock and to prohibit the control by such corporations of more than 50 per cent of the total amount of any product consumed in the United States; and third, a law compelling such licensed corporation to sell to all purchasers in all parts of the country on the same terms, after making due allowance for cost of transportation.

"We assert the right of congress to exercise complete control over interstate commerce and the right of each state to exercise like control over commerce within its borders. We demand such enlargement of the powers of the interstate-commerce commission as may be necessary to compel railroads to perform their duties as common carriers and prevent discrimination and extortion. We favor the efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads engaged in interstate commerce, and to this end we recommend the valuation of railroads by the interstate-commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the physical value of the property, the original cost, cost of production and all elements of value that will render the valuation fair and just. We favor such legislation as will prohibit the railroads from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their shippers, also legislation preventing the overissue of stocks and bonds by interstate railroads and legislation which will assure such reduction in transportation rates as conditions will permit, care being taken to avoid reductions that would compel a reduction of wages, prevent adequate service or do injustice to legitimate investment. We favor such legislation as will increase the power of the interstate-commerce commission, giving to it the initiative with reference to rates and transportation charges put into effect by the railroad companies and permitting the interstate-commerce commission on its own initiative to declare a rate illegal and as being more than should be charged for such service. We further declare in favor of a law providing that all agreements of traffic or other associations of railway agents affecting interstate rates, service or classification shall be unlawful unless filed with and approved by the interstate-commerce commission.

"We favor a postal savings bank, if the guaranteed bank cannot be secured, and believe that it should be so constituted as to keep the deposited money in the community where the depositors live. But we condemn the policy of the republican party in proposing postal savings banks under a plan of conduct by which they will aggregate the deposits of rural communities and re-deposit the same while under government charge in the banks of Wall street, thus depleting the circulating medium of the producing regions and unjustly favoring the speculative markets.

"We favor an income tax as part of our revenue system, and we urge the submission of a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing congress to levy and collect a tax upon individual and corporate incomes, to the end that wealth may bear its proportionate share of the burdens of the federal government.

"Experience has proved the necessity of a modification of the present law relating to injunctions, and we reiterate the pledges of our national platforms of 1896 and 1904 in favor of the measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, but which a republican congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt. Questions of judicial practice have arisen, especially in connection with industrial disputes. We deem that parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality and that injunctions should not be issued in any case in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved."

The platform further pledges the democratic party to the enactment of a general employers' liability law, to the creation of a federal department of labor, represented separately in the president's cabinet, to the upbuilding of the merchant marine without bounties and to the maintenance of an adequate navy. It favors a generous pension policy and advocates the organization of a national bureau of public health.

"We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and regard this reform as the gateway to other national reforms.

"We earnestly favor the immediate adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for improving every water course in the union which is justified by the needs of commerce, and, to secure that end, we favor, when practicable, the connection of the great lakes with the navigable rivers and with the gulf, through the Mississippi river, and the navigable rivers with each other, and the rivers, bays and sounds of our coasts with each other by artificial canals, with a view to perfecting a system of inland waterways, to be navigated by vessels of standard draft.

"We repeat the demand for internal development and for the conservation of our natural resources contained in previous platforms, the enforcement of which Mr. Roosevelt has vainly sought from a reluctant party; and to that end we insist upon the preservation, protection and replacement of needed forests, the preservation of the public domain for homeseekers, the protection of the nation's natural resources in timber, coal, iron and oil against monopolistic control, the development of our waterways for navigation and every other useful purpose, including the irrigation of arid lands, the reclamation of swamp lands, the clarification of streams, the development of water power and the preservation of electric power generated by this natural force from the control of monopoly; and to such end we urge the exercise of all powers, national, state and municipal, both separately and in co-operation.

"We condemn the experiment in imperialism as an inexcusable blunder which has involved us in an enormous expense, brought us weakness instead of strength, and laid our nation open to the charge of abandoning a fundamental doctrine of self-government. We favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippine Islands as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us as we guarantee the independence of Cuba, until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers. In recognizing the independence of the Philippines our government should retain such land as may be necessary for coaling stations and naval bases."

PROHIBITIONIST.

Adopted at Columbus, O., July 16.

The prohibition party of the United States, assembled in convention at Columbus, O., July 15-16, 1908, expressing gratitude to Almighty God for the victories of our principles in the past, for encouragement at present and for confidence in early and triumphant success in the future, makes the following declaration of principles and pledges their enactment into law when placed in power:

1. The submission by congress to the several states of an amendment to the federal constitution prohibiting the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation or transportation of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes.

2. The immediate prohibition of the liquor traffic for beverage purposes in the district of Columbia, in the territories and all places over which the national government has jurisdiction; the repeal of the internal revenue tax on alcoholic liquors and the prohibition of interstate traffic therein.

3. The election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

4. Equitable graduated income and inheritance taxes.
5. The establishment of postal savings banks and the guaranty of deposits in banks.
6. The regulation of all corporations doing an interstate-commerce business.
7. The creation of permanent tariff commissions.
8. The strict enforcement of law instead of official tolerance and practical license of the social evil which prevails in many of our cities, with its unspeakable traffic in girls.
9. Uniform marriage and divorce laws.
10. An equitable and constitutional employers' liability act.
11. Court review of postoffice department decisions.
12. The prohibition of child labor in mines, workshops and factories.
13. Legislation basing suffrage only upon intelligence and ability to read and write the English language.
14. The preservation of the mineral and forest resources of the country and the improvement of the highways and waterways.

REPUBLICAN.

Adopted at Chicago, June 18.

"The republican party declares unequivocally for a revision of the tariff by a special session of congress immediately following the inauguration of the next president, and commends the steps already taken to this end in the work assigned to the appropriate committees of congress which are now investigating the operation and effect of existing schedules. In all tariff legislation the true principle of protection is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries. We favor the establishment of maximum and minimum rates to be administered by the president under limitations fixed in the law, the maximum to be available to meet discriminations by foreign countries against American goods entering their markets and the minimum to represent the normal measure of protection at home; the aim and purpose of the republican policy being not only to preserve, without excessive duties, that security against foreign competition to which American manufacturers, farmers and producers are entitled, but also to maintain the high standard of living of the wage earners of this country, who are the most direct beneficiaries of the protective system. Between the United States and the Philippines we believe in a free interchange of products with such limitations as to sugar and tobacco as will afford adequate protection to domestic interests.

"We approve the emergency measures adopted by the government during the recent financial disturbance, and especially commend the passage by congress at the last session of the law designed to protect the country from a repetition of such stringency. The republican party is committed to the development of a permanent currency system responding to our greater needs, and the appointment of the national monetary commission by the present congress which will impartially investigate all proposed methods insures the early realization of this purpose.

"We favor the establishment of a postal savings bank system for the convenience of the people and the encouragement of thrift.

"The republican party passed the Sherman anti-trust law over democratic opposition, and enforced it after democratic dereliction. It has been a wholesome instrument for good in the hands of a wise and fearless administration. But experience has shown that its effectiveness can be strengthened and its real objects better attained by such amendments as will give to the federal government greater supervision and control over, and secure greater publicity in, the management of that class of corporations engaged in interstate commerce having power and opportunity to effect monopolies.

"We approve the enactment of the railroad rate law and the vigorous enforcement by the present administration of the statutes against rebates and discriminations, as a result of which the advantages formerly possessed by the large shipper over the small shipper have substantially disappeared, and in this connection we commend the appropriation by the present congress to enable the interstate-commerce commission to thoroughly investigate and give publicity to the accounts of interstate railroads. We believe, however, that the interstate-commerce law should be further amended so as to give railroads the right to make and publish traffic agreements subject to the approval of the commission, but maintaining always the principle of competition between naturally competing lines and avoiding the common control of such lines by any means whatsoever. We favor such national legislation and supervision as will prevent the future overissue of stocks and bonds by interstate carriers.

"The republican party will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, state and federal, and will ever insist that their powers to enforce their process and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate. We believe, however, that the rules of procedure in the federal courts with respect to the issuance of the writ of injunction should be more accurately defined by statute and that no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter should be granted.

"We endorse the movement inaugurated by the administration for the conservation of natural resources; we approve all measures to prevent the waste of timber; we commend the work now going on for the reclamation of arid lands, and reaffirm the republican policy of the free distribution of the available areas of the public domain to the landless settler. No obligation of the future is more insistent and none will result in greater blessings to posterity in line with this splendid undertaking is the further duty, equally imperative, to enter upon a systematic improvement upon a large and comprehensive plan, just to all portions of the country, of the waterways, harbors and great lakes, whose natural adaptability to the increasing traffic of the land is one of the greatest gifts of a benign Providence.

"We adhere to the republican doctrine of encouragement to American shipping and urge such legislation as will revive the merchant marine prestige of the country, so essential to national defense, the enlargement of foreign trade and the industrial prosperity of our own people.

"We reaffirm our former declarations that the civil-service laws enacted, extended and enforced by the republican party shall continue to be maintained and obeyed.

"We commend the efforts designed to secure greater efficiency in national public health agencies and favor such legislation as will effect this purpose.

"In the interest of the great mineral industries of our country we earnestly favor the establishment of a bureau of mines and mining.

"We favor the immediate admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states in the union."

INDEPENDENCE.

Adopted at Chicago, July 23.

"As of first importance, in order to restore the power of government to the people, to make their will supreme in the primaries, in the elections and in the control of public officials after they have been elected, we declare for direct nominations, the initiative and referendum and the right of recall.

"Representative government is made a mockery by the system of modern party conventions dominated by bosses and controlled by cliques. We demand the natural remedy of direct nominations by which the people not only elect but, which is far more important, select their representatives.

"We believe in the principles of the initiative and referendum and we particularly demand that no franchise grant go into operation until the terms and conditions have been approved by popular vote in the locality interested.

"We demand for the people the right to recall public officials from the public service. The power to make officials resides in the people and in them also should reside the power to unmake and remove from office any official who demonstrates his unfitness or betrays the public trust.

"Of next importance in destroying the power of selfish special interests and the corrupt political bosses whom they control is to wrest from their hands their main weapon, the corruption fund. We demand severe and effective legislation against all forms of corrupt practices at elections and advocate prohibiting the use of any money at elections except for meetings, literature and the necessary traveling expenses of candidates.

"From the foundation of our government down to 1872 the federal judiciary act prohibited the issue of any injunction without reasonable notice until after a hearing. We assert that in all actions growing out of a dispute between employers and employes concerning terms or conditions of employment no injunction should issue until after a trial upon the merits, that such trial should be had before a jury and that in no case of alleged contempt should any person be deprived of liberty without a trial by jury.

"The Independence party declares that the right to issue money is inherent in the government and it favors the establishment of a central governmental bank through which the money so issued shall be put into general circulation.

"We demand a revision of the tariff, not by the friends of the tariff, but by the friends of the people, and declare for a gradual reduction of tariff duties with just consideration for the rights of the consuming public and of established industry. There should be no protection for oppressive trusts which sell cheaply abroad and take advantage of the tariff at home to crush competition, raise prices, control production and limit work and wages.

"The parcels post system should be rapidly and widely extended, and government postal savings banks should be established where the people's deposits will be secure, the money to be loaned to the people in the locality of the several banks and at a rate of interest to be fixed by the government."

The platform also favored the passage of an exclusion act to protect American workmen from competition with Asiatic cheap labor; the building of a navy strong enough to protect at the same time both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States; the building of a ship canal from the lakes to the gulf; the protection of American citizens abroad; the popular election of United States senators and of judges, both state and federal, and a graduated income tax.

REPUBLICAN PROGRESSIVE LEAGUE.

Organized in Washington, D. C., Jan. 21, 1911.

President—Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., Oregon. First vice-president—Representative George W. Norris, Nebraska.

Second vice-president—Gov. Chase S. Osborn, Michigan.

Executive committee—Senator Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota; Senator Joseph L. Bristow, Kansas; Representative E. H. Hubbard, Iowa; Representative Irvine L. Leurot, Wisconsin; Representative William Kent, California; Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania; George L. Record, New Jersey; president, vice-presidents and treasurer members ex-officio.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

"We, the undersigned, associate ourselves together as the National Progressive Republican league.

"The object of the league is the promotion of popular government and progressive legislation.

"Popular government in America has been thwarted and progressive legislation strangled by the special interests, which control caucuses, delegates, conventions and party organizations, and through control of the machinery of government, dictate nominations and platforms, elect administrations, legislatures, representatives in congress and United States senators and control cabinet officers.

"Under existing conditions legislation in the public interest has been baffled and defeated. This is evidenced by the long struggle to secure laws only partially effective for the control of railway rates and service, the revision of the tariff in the interest of the producer and consumer, statutes dealing with trusts and combinations based on sound economic principles as applied to modern industrial and commercial conditions, a wise, comprehensive and impartial reconstruction of the banking and monetary laws, the conservation of coal, oil, gas, timber, water powers and other natural resources belonging to the people, and for the enactment of all legislation solely for the common good.

"Just in proportion as popular government has in certain states superseded the delegate convention system and the people have assumed control of the machinery of government has government become responsive to the popular will and progressive legislation been secured.

"The Progressive Republican league believes that popular government is fundamental to all other questions. To this end it advocates:

"The election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

"Direct primaries for the nomination of all elective officials.

"The direct election of delegates to national conventions, with opportunity for the voter to express his choice for president and vice-president.

"Amendment to state constitutions providing for the initiative, referendum and recall.

"A thorough general corrupt practice act.

"The league will co-operate with progressives in the several states, and, wherever acceptable, will render assistance in promoting the organization of state leagues.

"Whenever requested by any progressive state league or by progressive leaders in state legislatures the National Progressive Republican league will aid in the preparation of appropriate bills and resolutions and will furnish speakers and literature in support of legislative action upon the propositions enumerated in the five paragraphs set forth in the foregoing declaration of principles."

The declaration of principles is signed by:

Two hundred delegates attended a national progressive republican conference in Chicago Oct. 16 and 17, 1911, at which a declaration of principles was adopted and Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin sin was indorsed for the presidency. The resolutions passed were as follows:

"The progressive movement is a struggle to wrest the control of government in the nation and states from the representatives of special privileges and restore it to the control of the people. The issue is the same in all the states of the union, though the problem may be presented in different ways.

"In the national field the control of government by special privilege is evidenced by the influence and power of the reactionary leaders of both parties in checking or preventing the enactment of the progressive policies pledged by the republican party.

"The progressive movement aims to nominate and elect as candidates of the republican party men who will with sincerity and singleness of purpose represent its rank and file and carry out their will.

"The present condition of uncertainty in business is intolerable and destructive of industrial prosperity. It is worse than idle to leave the question of whether great business enterprises are legal or not merely to judicial determination.

"Industrial corporations should by affirmative legislative enactment be given definite rules of conduct by which business conducted in accordance therewith shall be made safe and stable while at the same time the interests of the public shall be fully safeguarded. We seek constructive legislation and not destructive litigation.

"We favor the ascertainment of the choice of republican voters as to candidates for president by a direct primary vote held in each state, pursuant to statute, and where no such statute exists we urge that the republican state committees provide that the people be given the right to express their choice for president.

"Constructive leadership being the urgent need of the present time, it is necessary that republicans support a candidate for president whose record gives the fullest assurance of the enactment and enforcement of sound progressive policies.

"Robert Marion LaFollette of Wisconsin years ago found conditions in his state not unlike those of the nation to-day. Under his leadership all opposition was overcome, and there has been enacted in Wisconsin a system of laws that stand as models for legislation in all states of the union. Laws have been passed in that state adequately regulating all public service corporations; equalizing the burdens of taxation; providing for direct nominations by the people; protecting legitimate business and capital honestly invested; promoting the welfare of labor—in short, real representative government has been restored.

"The record of Senator LaFollette in state and nation makes him a logical candidate for president of the United States. His experience, his character, his courage, his record of constructive legislation and administrative ability meet the requirements for leadership such as present conditions demand.

"This conference indorses him as a candidate for the republican nomination for president and urges that in all the states organizations be formed to promote his nomination."

UNITED CHRISTIAN PARTY CONVENTION.

The United Christian party held a national conference or convention at Black Hawk's Waich Tower, Rock Island, Ill., May 1, 1911, at which candidates for president and vice-president of the United States were nominated. John Fry of Rock Island was chairman and Daniel P. Turney of Decatur, Ill., secretary. Rudolph William Benkert of 2204 Ripley street, Davenport, Iowa, was elected national chairman and authorized to select a state chairman in each state. H. A. Simpson of Pana, Ill., was chosen first national vice-chairman and Rudolph Fotsch, second national vice-chairman. Ida McDaniel was elected national secretary and Kattie Benkert assistant national secretary. John Fry was chosen national treasurer.

The nominations for president and vice-president of the United States were made by acclamation. Daniel Braxton Turney of Decatur, Ill., was nominated for president, and S. P. Carter of Howard Lake, Minn., for vice-president.

The following platform was adopted: "We, the United Christian party, in annual national conference at the Watch Tower in Rock Island, Ill., May 1, 1911, reaffirm our platform and proclamation of 1910, in which the decalogue and Jesus' rule is the basis and measure of what the Christian party does and asks for, and knowing that God gave us this perfect standard as a measure for all laws and righteous government, of which Jesus' said, "Not one jot or tittle shall pass away until all be fulfilled."

And, because this standard is often set aside and ignored and sometimes willfully violated by many of our rulers, lawmakers and judges, by framing and executing laws which contravene the divine law, which is national sin, and believing that the national adoption of God's standard would end war and be to the glory of God and the benefit of humanity, and because it is hard for the common people to do right when asked to respect or obey laws that force men to sin, we ask the Hon. I. S. Pepper, congressman from Iowa, to present this resolution to our national congress, and ask for a standing vote from both house of representatives and our United States senate for the adoption of this resolution:

"Be it resolved by the congress of the United States of America, that the use of the decalogue and Jesus' rule be the standard measure for laws and regulations of the government of the United States, regardless of sex, nationality, creed or party."

The united prayer and co-operation of all Christians and patriots is asked for the adoption and use of the Lord's standard nationally as an expression and example to the world.

We, the Christian party, ask all lawmakers and rulers to adopt and use the decalogue and the golden rule formulated by Jesus Christ as the standard measure for all our laws and government.

We believe in a rightful ground and income tax. We disapprove of a standing army and the expense of further preparation for war.

We demand the divorcement of our government from the liquor traffic, that the manufacture of alcoholic beverages be stopped, and under a proper compensation for business losses, the suppression of the saloon system.

We protest against the unsettling of business by unjust tariff legislation.

We favor a direct vote of the people (women included) in electing all officers.

Relying upon God's blessing, in His name and under His authority, we seek the support and co-operation of all patriots, regardless of sex, nationality, creed, race or party, to His glory and for humanity, and for the overthrow of satan's kingdom on earth.

Knox of Pennsylvania, Henry M. Teller of Colorado, Hernando D. Money of Mississippi, Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, Frank P. Flint of California, James P. Taliaferro of Florida, Robert W. Bonyne of Colorado, and Representatives John W. Weeks

DISASTROUS FLOOD AT AUSTIN, PA.

Seventy-four lives were lost at Austin, Pa., on the afternoon of Sept. 30, 1911, by the bursting of the Bayliss Pulp and Paper company's dam, a mile and a half north of the town. Near the dam, which was of concrete, 700,000 cords of wood had been stored for future use by the company. This wood was swept away by the suddenly released waters and helped to overwhelm the frame buildings in the town. Nearly all structures on an area about half a mile wide by one and three-fourths miles long were destroyed either by the flood or by a fire which was caused by broken gas mains. It was at first reported that from 850 to 1,200 persons had been killed, but this proved a gross exaggeration. It was claimed that the dam had been considered unsafe, but that no adequate repairs had been attempted. It held back more than 500,000,000 gallons of water. The total property loss was estimated at $6,000,000.

Austin in 1910 had a population of 2,941. It is in Potter county, in the northern central part of Pennsylvania. Freeman run, a mill stream, flows through the town and empties into Sinnemahoning creek. The town is built in a narrow valley on the banks of the stream, down which the flood came.

In five states in 1892 the electoral vote was divided: California gave 8 electoral votes for Cleveland and 1 for Harrison and Ohio gave 1 for Cleveland and 22 for Harrison; in Michigan, by act of the legislature, each congressional district voted separately for an elector; in Oregon 1 of the 4 candidates for electors on the people's party ticket was also on the democratic ticket; in North Dakota 1 of the 2 people's party electors cast his vote for Cleveland, this causing the electoral vote of the state to be equally divided among Cleveland, Harrison and Weaver. In 1896 California gave 8 electoral votes to McKinley and 1 to Bryan; Kentucky gave 12 to McKinley and 1 to Bryan. In Maryland in 1904 7 of the presidential electors chosen were democrats and 1 republican. In 1908 Maryland elected 6 democratic and 2 republican electors.

MILITARY PENSIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Those who are now receiving allowances under the military pension laws of the United States include the following:

War of 1812—Widows.

Indian wars—Survivors and widows.

War with Mexico—Survivors and widows.

Civil war—Invalids, widows, minor and helpless children, mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters and army nurses (women).

War with Spain and in Philippines—Invalids, widows, minor and helpless children, mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters.

Regular army and navy—Invalids, widows, minor and helpless children, mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters.

The principal laws under which military pensions are now paid by the United States are the following:

War of 1812—The surviving widows of officers and enlisted and drafted men, including militia and volunteers, of the military and naval service of the United States, who served sixty days in the war with Great Britain, 1812, and were honorably discharged, and of such other officers and soldiers as may have been personally named in any resolution of congress for any specific service in that war, although their term of service may have been less than sixty days, shall be allowed the same pension that such persons themselves would have been entitled to receive if living Feb. 14, 1871. The rate, originally $8 a month, is now $12. (Act of March 9, 1878, and March 19, 1886.)

Indian wars—By the act of July 27, 1892, there were placed upon the pension rolls, the names of the surviving officers and enlisted men, including marines, militia and volunteers of the military and naval service of the United States who served for thirty days in the Black Hawk war, the Creek war, the Cherokee disturbances and the Florida war with the Seminoles, embracing a period from 1832 to 1842, who were honorably discharged, and of such other officers, soldiers and sailors as may have been named in any resolution of congress for any specific service in those wars, although their term of office may have been less than thirty days, and of the surviving widows of such officers and enlisted men. By the act of June 27, 1902, the provisions of the act of July 27, 1892, were extended to the surviving officers and enlisted men, including marines, militia and volunteers of the military and naval service of the United States who served for thirty days or more and were honorably discharged under the United States military, state, territorial or provisional authorities in the Florida and Georgia Seminole Indian war of 1817 and 1818; the Fevre river Indian war of Illinois of 1827; the Sac and Fox Indian war of 1831; the Sabine Indian disturbance of 1836 and 1837; the Cayuse Indian war of 1847 and 1848 on the Pacific coast; the Florida wars with the Seminole Indians from 1842 to 1858, inclusive; the Texas and New Mexico Indian war of 1849 to 1856; the California Indian disturbances of 1851 and 1852; the Utah Indian disturbances of 1850 to 1853, inclusive, and the Oregon and Washington territory Indian wars from 1851 to 1856, inclusive, and also to include the surviving widows of such officers and enlisted men. March 3, 1881, a law was passed making pension laws applicable to survivors of the Nez Perce Indian war in Montana. The pension for survivors and widows under the above acts is $3 a month. By the act of April 19, 1908, the rate for widows was raised to $12 a month. Under the act of May 30, 1908, the provisions of the acts relating to survivors of the Indian wars were extended to the surviving officers and enlisted men of the Texas volunteers who served in the defense of the frontier of that state against Mexican marauders and Indian depredations from 1855 to 1860, inclusive.

Mexican war—Under the act of Jan. 29, 1837, the secretary of the interior was directed to place on the pension roll the names of the surviving officers and enlisted men, including marines, militia and volunteers of the military and naval services of the United States, who actually served sixty days with the army or navy of the United States in Mexico, or on the coasts or frontiers thereof, or en route thereto, in the war with that nation, or were actually engaged in a battle in that war, and were honorably discharged, and such other officers and soldiers and sailors as may have been personally named in any resolution of congress for any specific service in that war, and the surviving widows of such officers and enlisted men: Provided, that every such officer or enlisted man or widow who is or may become 62 years of age, or who may become subject to any disability or dependency equivalent to some cause recognized by the pension laws as a sufficient reason for the allowance of a pension, shall be entitled to the benefits of the act. The pension under this act was $8 a month. Under the act of March 3, 1903, the rate was increased to $12 a month for survivors and under the act of April 19, 1908, the pension for widows was also made $12 a month. Under the act of Feb. 6, 1907, any person who served sixty days in the war with Mexico, who has reached the age of 62 years or over, is entitled to receive a pension as follows: In case such person has reached the age of 62 years, $12 per month; 70 years, $15 per month; 75 years or over, $20 per month.

Civil war—General law: Under the acts of July 14, 1862, and March 3, 1873, every person specified in the several classes herewith enumerated who has been since March 4, 1861, or who is hereafter disabled under the conditions stated, is placed on the list of invalid pensioners of the United States and is entitled to receive for a total disability, or permanent specific disability, such pension as is provided in such cases; and for an inferior disability, an amount proportionate to that provided for total disability, to continue during the existence of the disability.

1. Any officer of the army, including regulars, volunteers and militia, or any officer in the navy or marine corps or any enlisted man, however employed, in the military or naval service of the United States, or in its marine corps, whether regularly mustered or not, disabled by reason of any wound or injury received or otherwise incapacitated or disease contracted while in the service of the United States and in the line of duty.

2. Any master serving on a gunboat, or any pilot, engineer, sailor or other person not regularly mustered serving upon any gunboat or war vessel of the United States, disabled by any wound or injury received, or otherwise incapacitated, while in the line of duty, from procuring his subsistence by manual labor.

3. Any person not an enlisted soldier in the army, serving for the time being as a member of the militia of any state, under orders of an officer of the United States, or who volunteered for the time being to serve with any regularly organized military or naval force of the United States, or who otherwise volunteered and rendered service in any engagement with rebels or Indians, disabled in consequence of wounds or injury received in the line of duty in such volunteer service.

4. Any acting assistant or contract surgeon disabled by any wound or injury received or disease contracted in the line of duty while actually performing the duties of assistant surgeon or acting assistant surgeon with any military force in the field, in transit or in hospital.

5. Any provost marshal, deputy provost marshal or enrolling officer disabled by reason of any wound or injury received in the discharge of his duty from procuring a subsistence by manual labor.

Acts have been passed extending the pension laws to the Missouri state militia (March 3, 1873); David Beatty's company of independent scouts (July 14, 1870); officers and seamen of the revenue cutter service wounded or disabled while co-operating with the United States navy (April 18, 1874); masters, mates, pilots and engineers in the merchant marine when drafted into the service of the United States (May 28, 1896).

Section 4702 of the United States revised statutes provides that if any person embraced within the classes enumerated above has died since March 4, 1861, or hereafter dies by reason of any wound, injury or disease under conditions which would have entitled him to an invalid pension had he been disabled, his widow, or if there be no widow, or in the case of her death without payment to her of any part of the pension hereinafter provided, his child or children under 16 years of age, shall be entitled to receive the same pension as the husband or father would have been entitled to had he been totally disabled, to begin from the death of the husband or father, to continue to the widow during her widowhood and to the child or children until they are severally 16 years of age; and if the widow remarry, the child or children shall be entitled to the pension from the date of remarriage.

By special acts of congress the provisions of the pension laws are extended to include the widows and children of colored and Indian soldiers (March 3, 1873); of officers and privates of the Missouri state militia (March 3, 1873); of soldiers murdered by guerrillas at Certralia, Mo., in 1864 (March 3, 1875); of members of Missouri state militia murdered at same place (March 3, 1875); of the members of the Jeannette expedition who died on the retreat from the wreck of that vessel in the Arctic seas (Jan. 3, 1887); of those who were lost in the wreck of the United States steamer Ashuelot (Jan. 29, 1887); of masters, mates, pilots or engineers of merchant vessels drafted into the service of the United States (May 28, 1896), and of officers and privates of the militia in the service of the United States (Jan. 21, 1903).

Under section 4703 the pensions of widows are increased at the rate of $2 per month for each child under the age of 16 years. In cases where the children are orphans or where the mother has married again, the pension of such children is increased to the same amount per month as would be allowed to the widow if living and entitled to a pension.

Section 4707 provides that if any person entitled to an invalid pension under the general law dies without leaving a widow or child, but leaves a relative or relatives dependent upon him in whole or in part at the time of his death, such relative or relatives shall be entitled to receive his pension in the following order of precedence: First, the mother; secondly, the father; thirdly, orphan brothers and sisters under 16 years of age, who shall be pensioned jointly. The provisions of this section have been extended by special acts to cover dependent relatives in the Jeannette, Ashuelot and other cases enumerated in preceding paragraphs.

Civil war—Act of June 27, 1890, and amendments: Section 1 of the act of June 27, 1890, provides that dependent parents need only show that they are without other means of support than their own manual labor or the contributions of others not legally bound for their support. Section 2 provides that all persons who served ninety days or more in the military or naval service of the United States in the civil war, who have been honorably discharged and who are now or may hereafter be suffering from a mental or physical disability of a permanent character, not the result of their own vicious habits, which incapacitates them from manual labor in such a degree as to render them unable to earn a support, shall be entitled to receive a pension not exceeding $12 a month and not less than $5 a month, proportioned to the degree of inability. Section 3 provides that a widow without other means of support than her daily labor, or with a net income of less than $250 a year, shall be put on the pension roll without having to prove that her husband's death was the result of his army service. She is to receive $8 a month and $2 a month additional for each minor child. In case a minor child is insane or permanently helpless the pension shall continue during the life of such child. An amendment adopted May 9, 1900, provides that in determining the inability of a pensioner to earn a support, each and every disability shall be duly considered and the aggregate of the disabilities shall be rated. The pension bill of April 24, 1906, provided that the age of 62 years and over should be considered a permanent, specific disability within the meaning of the law.

Civil war—Pension to army nurses: Under the act of Aug. 5, 1862, all women employed by the surgeon-general of the army as nurses, under contract or otherwise, during the civil war, or who were employed or recognized as nurses by the war department, and who rendered actual service in attendance upon the sick and wounded in any regimental post, camp or general hospital of the armies of the United States for a period of six months or more, and who were honorably relieved from such service, and who are unable to earn a support, shall be entitled to a pension of $12 a month.

Civil War—Act of Feb. 6, 1907: Be it enacted, etc., that any person who served ninety days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the late civil war, or sixty days in the war with Mexico, and who has been honorably discharged therefrom, and who has reached the age of 62 years or over, shall, upon making proof of such facts, according to such rules and regulations as the secretary of the interior may provide, be placed upon the pension roll and be entitled to receive a pension as follows: In case such person has reached the age of 62 years, $12 per month; 70 years, $15 per month; 75 years or over, $20 per month. Rank in the service is not considered in applications filed under this act.

Civil War—Act of April 19, 1903: Be it enacted, etc., that from and after the passage of this act the rate of pension for widows, minor children under 16 years and helpless minors, as defined by existing acts, now on the roll or hereafter to be placed on the pension roll and entitled to receive a less rate than hereinafter provided, shall be $12 a month; and nothing herein shall be construed to affect the existing allowance of $2 per month for each child under 16 years and for each helpless child. If any officer or enlisted man who served ninety days or more in the army or navy of the United States during the late civil war and has been honorably discharged therefrom has died or shall hereafter die leaving a widow, such widow shall, upon due proof of her husband's death, without proving his death to be the result of his army or navy service, be placed on the pension roll at the rate of $12 per month during her widowhood, provided she shall have married the said soldier or sailor prior to June 27, 1890.

War with Spain and Insurrection in Philippines—The provisions of the acts of July 14, 1862, and March 3, 1873, also apply to those who served in the war with Spain in 1898 and to the subsequent insurrection in the Philippine Islands, including widows, minor and helpless children and dependent relatives.

Regular Army and Navy—The provisions of the acts of July 14, 1862, and March 3, 1873, are applicable to soldiers and sailors in the regular army and navy who have served at any time since March 4, 1861, and to those at present in the army and navy. There is also a naval pension fund, derived from certain penalties and forfeitures and from prizes taken in war, by means of which persons disabled by age or infirmity from sea service may be retired on half pay at the end of twenty years' service, or receive aid after ten years' service.

Pension Rates—Since the original invalid pension rates were established by the acts of July 14, 1862, and March 3, 1873, there have been numerous changes, chiefly in the nature of increases. Some of these have been noted in the preceding paragraphs. The expenditures for pensions were greatly increased by the so called arrears act of Jan. 25, 1879. This provided that all pensions which had been granted or might hereafter be granted should begin from the date of the death or discharge from the service of the person on whose account the claim has been or shall hereafter be granted. The following tables will show the various kinds and rates of pensions now paid.

HISTORICAL.

There are now no pensioners on account of the revolutionary war on the roll. Mrs. Phoebe M. Palmeter, who was pensioned by a special act of congress as the daughter of Jonathan Woolley, who served in a New Hampshire company, died at Brookfield, N. Y., April 30, 1911, aged 96 years. The last widow pensioner of that war was Esther S. Damon of Plymouth Union, Vt., who died Nov. 11, 1906, aged 92 years. The last survivor of the revolution was Daniel F. Bakeman, who died at Freedom, Cattaraugus county, N. Y., April 5, 1869, aged 109 years 6 months and 3 days.

The last surviving pensioned soldier of the war of 1812 was Hiram Cronk of Ava, N. Y., who died May 13, 1905, aged 105 years and 16 days. The names of 279 widows of the war of 1812 remained on the pension roll June 30, 1911.

Mrs. Britannia W. Kennon, who died Jan. 11, 1911, at Tudor place, N. W., in Washington, D. C., probably drew a pension as a widow longer than any other person. She was married to Beverley Kennon in Georgetown, D. C., Dec. 8, 1842. Her husband was a captain in the navy, and was killed Feb. 28, 1844, by the bursting of a cannon on the U. S. Princeton, two members of the cabinet of President Tyler having been killed at the same time. She was granted a pension under the laws existing at that time at the rate of $50 per month from the date her husband was killed, and she received such pension from that time until her death, a period of almost sixty-seven years. She was a great-granddaughter of Martha Washington, wife of the first president of the United States. She was born Jan. 28, 1815, and was 96 years of age at the time of her death.

The number of survivors of the civil war on the pension roll at the close of the fiscal year was 529,884. The number of survivors whose names were dropped from the roll during the year on account of death was 35,243. There were more than 2,000 certificates issued during the year to survivors of the civil war who had never been pensioned before. The net reduction during the year in the number of survivors on the roll was only 32,731. The number of individuals in the military and naval service of the United States during the civil war is estimated at 2,213,365. It is believed that only about 25 per cent of those who rendered service in the civil war are now living. The death rate of the survivors is now slightly in excess of 6 per cent per annum. The average age of the survivors is about 70 years.

LAKES-TO-GULF DEEP-WATERWAY PROJECT.

ACTION BY ILLINOIS.

Oct. 16, 1907, the legislature of Illinois passed a joint resolution providing for the submission to the electors of the state of an amendment to the constitution permitting the general assembly to provide for the construction of a deep waterway from Lockport to Utica and to authorize the issue of bonds to the amount of $20,000,000 for this purpose. At the election of Nov. 3, 1908, the people approved the proposed amendment by a vote of 652,622 for to 195,177 against. At the regular session of the legislature in 1909 the waterway project was considered, but no agreement could be reached as to the question of going ahead immediately with the work or waiting for federal aid and no bill was passed. The matter was included in the list of subjects to be considered at the extra session of the legislature in the winter and spring of 1909-1910, but no action was taken.

At the regular session in 1911 a waterway bill was passed by the senate, but in the house, Speaker Charles Adkins prevented any action being taken. Gov. Deneen called an extra session of the legislature, which began June 14, but adjourned without taking final action.

WATERWAY CONVENTION.

The sixth annual convention of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association was held in Chicago Oct. 12-14, 1911. Addresses were made by Gov. O. A. Eberhart of Minnesota, Gov. H. S. Hadley of Missouri, ex-Gov. Joseph W. Folk, O. P. Austin of the State of Arkansas in Washington, Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, R. R. McCormick of Chicago and others. Resolutions were adopted reaffirming the declaration of principles and purposes adopted at the convention in St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 26, 1910. "We reiterate our demand on the legislative and executive branches of the federal government for the speedy completion of the deep waterway connecting the great lakes with the Gulf of Mexico, as the main commercial artery of the country, and we declare our fixed determination to procure this inestimable source of natural prosperity, regardless of all opposition and despite the antagonism based on obsolete and ancient standards and ideals."

The convention will be held in Little Rock, Ark., in 1912.

FEDERAL CENSUS OF RELIGIOUS BODIES (1906).

There were in the United States in 1906, the period of the fifth United States census of the religious bodies in this country, according to census bulletin No. 103, issued in September, 1909, 136 religious denominations, 212,230 local religious organizations, 32,936,445 church members and $1,257,575,867 invested in church edifices.

MEMBERSHIP BY SEX.

The census of 1906 collected for the first time statistics of the membership by sex. Of the total number of members returned by sex, 43.1 per cent were male and 56.9 per cent female. For the protestant bodies as a whole the difference was greater, 39.3 per cent being male and 60.7 per cent female. For the Roman catholic church the membership was nearly equally divided between the sexes, 49.3 per cent being male and 60.7 per cent female. This is true also for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, which reports 48.6 per cent male. The largest percentage of males shown for any denomination was that for the Greek Orthodox church, 93.9, which is due to the fact that practically all the Greek immigrants have been males; The Lutheran bodies showed 46.1 per cent males; Disciples, 40 per cent; Methodist and Baptist bodies, 38.5 per cent each; Presbyterian bodies, 37.9 per cent, and Protestant Episcopal church, 35.5 per cent. The denominations showing the smallest percentage of males were the Christian Scientists, 27.6, and the Shakers, 21.3.

The property includes the buildings owned and used for worship by the organizations reporting, together with the value of their sites and of their furniture, organs, bells, etc. It does not include the value of rented buildings or his, nor of parsonages, parochial school buildings, theological seminaries, monasteries, convents or the like. The statistics, it may be added, are not complete, as some of the bodies were only partially represented. For example, for the Jewish congregations only 747 organizations, or considerably less than one-half the entire number, reported the value of church property owned by them, and, similarly, for the Church of Christ, Scientist, only 401 organizations, or not much more than three-fifths of the entire number, made a report. For the Roman catholic church only a little more than four-fifths of the total number of organizations made any report of property owned, while the eastern orthodox churches as a whole show a report for only about one-fifth of all their organizations.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH.

The Christian Science church was founded in 1879 by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer of Christian science and author of its text-book, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures." The church was organized "to commemorate the word and works of our Master, which should reinstate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing" (Church Manual). In 1892 the church was reorganized as the First Church of Christ, Scientist, known as the mother church, in Boston, Mass. The present officers of the mother church are:

President—Judge Clifford P. Smith,
Clerk—John V. Dittmore,
Treasurer—Stephen A. Chase,
Directors—Archibald McLellan, Allison V. Stewart, Stephen A. Chase, John V. Dittmore, Adam H. Dickey.

All Christian science churches and societies, of which there are now 1,260 in the United States and 135 in foreign countries, are branches of the mother church. Lesson-sermons compiled from the bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" are read at the services in Christian science churches. There are about 5,000 Christian science practitioners regularly devoting their time to the practice of Christian science mind healing.

Mrs. Eddy founded the Christian Science Journal, Sentinel, Quarterly, Der Herold der Christian Science and The Christian Science Monitor (a daily newspaper), all of which are published by the Christian Science Publishing Society in Boston.

There is in connection with the Christian science movement an official board of lectureship designed to furnish the public correct information concerning the fundamental teachings of Christian science. Lectures given by members of this board are free to the public.

There are in Chicago ten Christian science churches having an average total attendance of about 12,000. Each of these churches maintains a free reading room in addition to a joint reading room at 81 East Madison street, where the public may have free access to all authorized publications on the subject of Christian science.

The offices of the Christian science committee on publication and the Christian science committee for the distribution of literature in Chicago are in the Orchestra building, 220 South Michigan avenue.

EPIDEMICS IN 1911.

PNEUMONIC PLAGUE IN MANCHURIA.

Beginning in October, 1910, and continuing until February, 1911, a pneumonic plague of almost unexampled virulence raged in the northern provinces of China. It was especially violent in Manchuria, nearly 4,000 perishing in the city of Fuchlaten alone. In Harbin about 1,000 persons, including eighteen Europeans, died from the disease. The total number of victims was estimated at 46,000, practically all who were attacked died, as only five recoveries were recorded.

Business in the infected districts came to a standstill and for a time railway traffic in Manchuria was suspended. One or two cases of the plague occurred in Peking in January, causing a panic among the native and foreign residents of the capital. Many of the latter, including members of the diplomatic corps, fled from the city, while others shut themselves up in the legation quarter, around which a quarantine line was established. The disease did not spread, however, and the alarm subsided.

Beginning April 3 an international medical conference was held in Mukden to consider the causes of the plague and its possible cure. Forty delegates, representing eleven powers, including the United States, were present. It was generally agreed that the disease was communicated to human beings by a species of marmot called tarang, which is extensively hunted in Mongolia and Manchuria for its fur. It was clearly established that hunters were the first victims and that the plague was spread by the hunters going from place to place. There was some difference of opinion as to whether the disease was communicated by direct contact, but it seemed to be established that the exhalations and moist sputum of the victims were highly infective. The most effective preventive, it was agreed, was the establishment of strict quarantine. It was shown that rats did not carry the disease as in the case of the bubonic plague.

Though little is known of the action of the pneumonic plague bacillus, it is thought that the virulent toxin created by the bacillus during germination and quickly introduced into the system, acts upon the nerves, affecting the heart. After the first symptom appears the disease progresses with great rapidity, and it is supposed that the poison hardly has time to weaken the victim to an extremity. As death approaches a comatose state is brought on in which the sufferer becomes so weak as to stagger and fall wherever he may happen to be. Though there is pain in the lungs, it is not the pneumonia, but the poison in the blood that kills. Death may come in a few hours or in a day or two. The enlargement of the glands in the neck and groins, which is a characteristic symptom of bubonic plague, is absent in the pneumonic variety.

RELIGIONS OF THE WORLD.

According to the revised (1898) edition of Mulhall's Dictionary of Statistics there are 476,100,000 Christians in the world. The same authority places the number of Roman Catholics in Europe, America and Australia at 223,090,000; protestants, 157,050,000, and Greeks, 88,660,000. It has been estimated that there are in the world 256,000,000 followers of Confucius, 190,000,000 Hindus, 176,800,000 Mohammedans, 148,000,000 Buddhists, 118,000,000 polytheists, 43,000,000 Taoists, 14,060,000 Shintoists and 12,000,000 Jews. Of the Christians more than 230,000,000 are Catholics, 98,300,000 orthodox Greeks, 70,000,000 Lutherans, 21,000,000 episcopalians, 17,000,000 methodists, 11,000,000 baptists, 9,000,000 presbyterians and 4,500,000 congregationalists.

ASIATIC CHOLERA IN THE UNITED STATES.

In July, 1911, vessels arriving from infected ports in Italy brought a number of passengers suffering from Asiatic cholera to America. Most of them were immigrants or seamen, who had contracted the disease in the course of the voyage across the Atlantic. Strict precautions were taken at the quarantine stations in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other Atlantic seaports and most of the cases were confined to the quarantine hospitals. The disease in a few instances broke through the quarantine and several deaths occurred outside the detention hospitals. One of the earliest was that of Tomaso Braudi, an Italian youth, who died in Auburn, N. Y., June 20. Manuel Bermudez, a sailor from a tramp steamer, was removed from Bellevue hospital, New York, July 22, suffering from cholera and there was much fear that the disease would spread throughout the city. Patrick Cushing died in a hospital on Staten Island, N. Y., July 15. The greatest number of deaths occurred on Swinburne Island, New York, to which suspected cases from the Moltke, Perugia, Oceania and other steamers arriving from Italian ports were taken. Up to July 19 seven of the patients had succumbed out of the score or more treated. July 23, Mrs. T. Mastrodocco, who had taken as lodgers two Italian sailors, died from cholera at the detention hospital on Gallup's Island at Boston. The precautions taken by the authorities at the various ports proved effective and the disease was prevented from obtaining a foothold on the American side of the Atlantic.

CHOLERA IN ITALY.

While European Russia was practically exempt from cholera in 1911 the disease continued its ravages in Italy. The situation seemed to be worst in Palermo and Naples, where many cases and deaths were reported in June and July. The disease also claimed a considerable number of victims in Leghorn, Spezia, Brescia and Pisa. Between June 7 and Aug. 26, 800 cases were reported in Leghorn alone, the majority of the cases proving fatal. Between Aug. 20 and Aug. 26 there were 1,635 cases reported throughout Italy and 593 deaths.

PLAGUE IN INDIA.

In the half year ended June 30, 1911, deaths from the plague in India reached the enormous total of 650,890. The disease has become such a fixture in many of the provinces that but little is said of it and it is only heard of occasionally through official reports. The efforts of the British authorities to stamp out the epidemic have failed to produce any marked result for the better.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST STEEL CORPORATION.

Suit was brought by the federal government in the United States Circuit court at Trenton, N. J., Oct. 26, 1911, to dissolve the United States Steel corporation and all its constituent or subsidiary companies. The following men were made defendants:

J. Pierpont Morgan.	James Gayley.
John D. Rockefeller.	William H. Moore.
Andrew Carnegie.	J. H. Moore.
Charles M. Schwab.	E. C. Converse.
George W. Perkins.	Percival Roberts, Jr.
E. H. Gary.	Daniel G. Reid.
J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.	Norman B. Ream.
Henry C. Frick.	P. A. B. Widener.
Charles Steele.	William P. Palmer.

The subsidiary companies named in the suit as defendants were:

Carnegie Steel company.
 Carnegie Company of New Jersey.
 Federal Steel company.
 National Steel company.
 American Steel and Wire Company of New Jersey.
 National Tube company.
 Shelby Steel Tube company.
 American Tinplate company.
 American Sheet and Tinplate company.
 American Sheet Steel company.
 American Steel Hoop company.
 American Bridge company.
 Lake Superior Consolidated Iron mines.
 H. C. Frick Coke company.
 Tennessee Coal and Iron and Railroad company.
 Great Western Mining company.
 Louis W. Hill, James J. Hill, Walter J. Hill, E. T. Nichols and J. H. Gruber were named as trustees in connection with ore companies.

The government in its bill asked:

That the corporation and its alleged conspiracy and monopolization be adjudged unlawful.
 That each and all of the defendants, their officers, directors, stockholders or agents be perpetually enjoined from doing any act for carrying out the conspiracy and monopolization complained of.

That the United States Steel corporation of itself as well as each and all of the elements composing it, whether separate or individual, be decreed illegal and that the corporation be dissolved.

That the ore lease of the Great Northern properties in the Mesabie range be declared illegal.

The government's bill went minutely into the history of the United States Steel corporation and made a number of charges, of which the following is a summary:

The acquisition by the corporation of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company during the panic of 1907 was illegal. If President Roosevelt had been fully advised he would have known that a desire to stop the panic was not the sole moving cause, but there was a desire and purpose to acquire control of a dangerous competitor.

Henry C. Frick and E. H. Gary, when they went to the white house in 1907 to get President Roosevelt's approval of the plan to absorb the Tennessee concern, willfully misled the president when they told him that little benefit would accrue to the Steel corporation through the purchase.

The power and control that have been exerted by the Steel corporation, largely through the grasp of trustees thrown out upon consumers, competitors and capital, are incompatible with the healthy commercial life of the nation.

By its acquisition of the company the corporation eliminated a competitor and unlawfully gained a power which is a menace to the welfare of the country, and which should be destroyed.

By its system of interchangeable directorships the corporation is in direct touch with all the large railroad and steamship companies of the United States, and with such powerful concerns as the Standard Oil company, the Pullman company, the International Harvester company and the Western Union Telegraph company, as well as with the overwhelming majority in money and power in the banks and trust companies of the country. The possibilities of the power and control that may thus be exerted over trade and commerce are inestimable.

AMERICAN-EUROPEAN LOAN TO CHINA.

The papers providing for the loan of $50,000,000 to China by a group of American and European financiers were signed in Peking April 15, 1911. The money was to be used in furthering currency reform and other interests of the empire. By an imperial edict issued Oct. 29, 1910, American financiers alone were to make the loan, receiving in return bonds maturing in from forty to forty-five years and bearing 5 per cent interest. Later it was agreed that three banking groups in England, Germany and France should participate in the loan, which is secured by the provincial revenues. The banking houses concerned are the Morgan, the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking company, the Bank of Indo-China and the German East Asiatic bank.

RUSSO-CHINESE CONTROVERSY.

Feb. 16, 1911, Russia notified Great Britain, France and Germany of its intention to make a military demonstration on the Russo-Chinese frontier owing to China's persistent violation of the St. Petersburg treaty of 1881. This treaty was then about to expire and China was not willing to renew it until certain modifications had been made. The provisions of the convention which Russia claimed had been violated were these:

1. Russia's right to impose import and export duties unlimited, except in the fifty verst zone, which is free.

2. That the extraterritorial rights of Russians shall not be infringed; that legal suits involving Russians and Chinese shall be considered by a mixed jurisdiction.

3. That Russians shall enjoy special privileges of trade and duty free commerce in Mongolia and the extrawall provinces.

4. That Russian consulates can be immediately opened at Kobdo, Knaani and Guchen.

5. Due respect of the local authorities for Russian consuls.

6. Russians to enjoy the right to acquire real estate and erect structures in Mongolia and the extrawall provinces.

It was announced that the first demonstration would be made in the province of Ili (also called Kulja) in the western part of Mongolia. This province had been occupied by the Russians since 1871, but was restored to the Chinese by the treaty of 1881.

After some weeks of negotiations China finally announced that it would comply fully with the Russian demands and carry out the treaty as interpreted in St. Petersburg. The projected demonstration did not take place.

INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY MEET.

Picked teams representing the universities of Oxford and Cambridge on the one hand and Yale and Harvard on the other met at the Queen's club, London, July 11, 1911, and engaged in an athletic contest which resulted in a victory for England by a score of 5 to 4. The Oxford-Cambridge athletes won the hammer throw, 100-yard dash, 400-yard, 1-mile and 2-mile runs. The Americans took the 120-yard hurdle race, the ½-mile race and the high and broad jumps. Four international meets have been held by the same universities, as follows:

1899—At Queen's club, London, July 22; won by England, 5 to 4.

1901—At Berkeley oval, New York, Sept. 25; America won, 6 to 3.

1904—At Queen's club, London, July 23; America won, 5 to 3.

CONFERENCE INDOOR MEET.

Chicago university won the first annual indoor track and field meet of the Western Intercollegiate Athletic association, held in Patten gymnasium, Evanston, Ill., March 25, 1911, with 36 points. Illinois was second with 33, Minnesota third with 14, Purdue and Wisconsin were tied for fourth with 10 each, and Northwestern was fifth with 4. S. H. Whiting of Chicago won the 60-yard high hurdle race in 8 seconds, equaling the record of Forest Smithson, Hoffman of Purdue won the 60-yard dash in :06½, which equals the world's indoor record, but as the runners started on an incline the mark was not allowed.

INDOOR CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The Chicago Athletic association won the Central Amateur Athletic union track and field championships meet at Dexter Park pavilion, Chicago, March 11, 1911, with a score of 46 points. Notre Dame was second with 30 points. Unattached athletes and Ohio State university tied for third with 5 points each. The Illinois Athletic club had 4 points, the Chicago Irish Amateur Athletic club 3, the Sodality Athletic club of Milwaukee 1 and the Cincinnati Gymnastic and Athletic club, 1.

MOTORING.

[Compiled by C. G. Sinsabaugh.]

The season of 1911 goes down into history as the most active of all and the most remarkable, too. The speed of the automobile has been demonstrated in a most sensational manner and marks established that would have been deemed impossible a year or so ago. Every one thought the speed limit was reached when Barney Oldfield in the Blitzen Benz traveled a mile over the sands at Daytona, Fla., at the rate of 131.28 miles an hour, yet the man who stepped into his shoes when he was de-throned, Bob Burman, took the same car and cut Oldfield's mile mark from :27.33 to :25.40, equal to 141.73 miles per hour. Both the speedway and the dirt track mile records also were lowered by this same Burman, but not to such an appreciable extent. The speedway mile was reduced from :35.62 to :35.35, and the dirt track mile from :48.92 to :48.62.

In the way of long distance performances there were two that stood out above all others—the 500 mile race on the Indianapolis speedway on May 30, and the twenty-four hour race at the Los Angeles speedway. The 500 mile race was remarkable from the fact that the first prize was $10,000 in cash. Forty cars started and twelve finished, the winner being Ray Harroun of Chicago in the Marmon Wasp, who averaged 74.7 miles per hour; Mulford in the Lozier was second; David Bruce-Brown in the Flat was third; Spencer Wishart, Mercedes, fourth; Joe Dawson, Marmon, fifth; Ralph de Palma, Simplex, sixth; Charles Merz, National, seventh; C. Turner, Amplex, eighth; F. Belcher, Knox, ninth; H. Cobe, Jackson, tenth; Gil Anderson, Stutz, eleventh; Hugh Hughes, Mercer, twelfth.

The twenty-four hour race at Los Angeles was the only twice around the clock race of the year, the Flat winning with a mark of 1,491 miles, while the runner-up was a thirty horse power American car, the Cadillac, which covered 1,448 miles. This, by the way, is the only twenty-four hour race ever run on a speedway, the track itself being a one mile circular board affair.

More activity than ever was shown in a road racing way, there being twenty-seven of these events contested on American roads in 1911. The big meet of the year was at Savannah, where the Grand Prix, Vanderbilt, Savannah cup and Tiedeman trophy events were contested. The national stock chassis road races again were run at Elgin, Ill., by the Chicago Motor club. Len Zengel in a National won the Elgin national trophy, Donald Herr in a National took the Illinois cup, Hugh Hughes in a Mercer the Kane county cup and Mortimer Roberts in an Abbott-Detroit the Aurora cup. Sensational speed was shown in the road races at Los Angeles, where the world's record was beaten twice. Charles Merz in a National first beat Nazzero's mark of 74.3 miles per hour, raising it to 74.42, while in the free for all that followed Harvey Herrick in a National jumped this to 74.62 miles per hour, the distance covered being 202 miles. The annual Fairmount park road race was run at Philadelphia and the winner was Erwin Bergdoll, a young millionaire who races for the fun of it, in a Benz.

Racing on circular tracks built for horse racing received more than one black eye during 1911, because of the fatalities that attended this sport. Among the prominent drivers who were killed on the dirt ovals were Marcel Basle at Chicago, Walter Donnelly at Milwaukee and W. H. Pearce at Sloux City, Iowa. At Syracuse, Lee Oldfield (no relation of Barney) plunged through the fence and twelve spectators were killed.

CHICAGO COMPETITIONS.

The competition season in Chicago started with the fuel economy test at Milwaukee and back, promoted by the Chicago Motor club, which returned as winners the Moline in the touring car class, the Grout in the roadster class, the Corbin in the development class and the Brush in the free for all, with 19.3, 18.5, 27.4 and 35.2 miles per gallon, respectively. Then came the Chicago Motor club's annual club at Algonquin, June 9, in which the Algonquin cup was won by E. A. Hearne in a Benz, lowering the record on the morning hill to :16%.

The fourth annual reliability team match between the Chicago Athletic association and the Chicago Automobile club, to Janesville, Wis., and return, was run June 15-16 and was won by the Cherry circle with a score of 284.5 to 685, twenty-two cars representing the C. A. A. and thirteen the C. A. C. The Chicago Motor club followed with a team match on July 13-19 to St. Joseph, Mich., and return, the teams representing the amateurs and the tradesmen. The Banta trophy was won by the amateurs with a score of 225 against 329, the amateurs having fourteen cars and the tradesmen sixteen.

The national stock chassis road races were run at Elgin on Aug. 25-26 and returned as winners Zengel in the National, Herr in the National, Hughes in the Mercer and Roberts in the Abbott-Detroit. Following this the Chicago Motor club put on a three-day commercial motor vehicle demonstration Sept. 18-19-20, which proved a most successful affair. The season wound up with the Chicago Motor club's fifth annual reliability, which went 1,350 miles through five different states. The touring car class resulted in a tie between F. G. Salisbury in a Moline and E. Knudsen in a Staver-Chicago, both with perfect scores. The Van Sicklen cup in the roadster division was won for the second time by the Moline, J. A. Wicke driving. The fuel economy test for the Standard Oil trophy was won by the Grout and the team trophy by the Moline.

THE GLIDDEN TOUR.

Early in the spring of 1911 it looked as if there would be no more Glidden tours. Then it was arranged to run the classic from Washington, D. C., to Ottawa, the capital of Canada. Entries were scarce and after the trail had been laid a postponement was necessary. Then the good roads folk of the south got after the American Automobile association and induced it to change its plans and run the Glidden from New York city to Jacksonville, Fla. The rules were changed, the stock car proposition being abandoned. Instead of being an individual competition, as it was in 1910, when the Chalmers won it, it became a team event. There were sixty-four starters, and eighteen teams, representing various cities, took part. Forty-seven finished at Jacksonville, Fla., after a most strenuous run. The Tarrytown (N. Y.) team, made up of three Maxwell cars, won the Glidden trophy, while the Anderson trophy, put up for individual contest, went to No. 4 Maxwell. Class winners included the Ford, Flanders, Mitchell, Maxwell, Stevens-Duryen, Columbia and American. The tour was marred by an accident which resulted in the death of Samuel M. Butler, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile association, who was killed when the car in which he was riding turned turtle.

VANDERBILT CUP RACE.

The conditions of the Vanderbilt cup race in 1909 were changed. Racing cars were barred and the event was open only to stock cars up to 600 cubic inches piston displacement. This race was run Oct. 30 over the Long Island motor parkway course. It was won by Harry F. Grant in a sixty-horse-power Alco car in 4:25:42, or an average speed for the 278.08 miles of 65.85 miles an hour. In 1910 Grant won the Alco, again. Conditions again were changed and the race was open to cars under 600 cubic inches piston displacement. It virtually was a free-for-all, although the first five to finish were stock cars. In 1911 the Vanderbilt was run at Savannah, Ga.

FOREIGN ROAD RACES.

No longer do the foreigners support road racing on the gigantic scale of former years. Only two or three minor events were run in 1911, the contesting machines being mostly small cars. The James Gordon Bennett, the French Grand Prix, the Florio cup, the Emperor's cup—they're all memories of the days when France reigned almost supreme in the speed world. Those classics are only history now and the records show the following winners of the two most important, the Bennett and the Grand Prix:

The circular-track twenty-four-hour record was raised to 1,253 miles by Patschke and Poole in a Stearns at Brighton Beach track, New York, Aug. 19-20, 1910. The former record was 1,196 miles, made by Patschke and Mulford, in a Lozier, in 1909. An American competitive speedway twenty-four-hour record was created at Los Angeles, where a Flat covered 1,491 miles.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL RECORD.

A record of 10 days 18 hours 12 minutes from New York to San Francisco was made Aug. 8-18, 1910, by L. L. Whitman, driving a four-cylinder Reo, the fastest trip ever made across the continent in a motor car. The record from San Francisco to New York is 15 days 12 hours, made in a Franklin in 1906 by Whitman.

CHICAGO-NEW YORK RECORD.

The record by automobile between Chicago and New York is 29:53:00. It was made by a Franklin twenty-eight horsepower runabout Aug. 21-22, 1907. The route followed was via Elkhart, Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Newburgh and along the east side of the Hudson to New York. The distance was 1,050 miles. The previous record was 58:58:00, also made by a Franklin, a six-cylinder car.

GERMANY, FRANCE AND MOROCCO.

The conflicting interests of France and Germany in Morocco led to such strained relations between the two countries in 1911 that war seemed imminent on several occasions. The most critical time was July 1, when Germany notified France and the powers that it had sent the gunboat Panther to Agadir, the most southerly point of Morocco, on the plea that it might be necessary to land troops there for the protection of German merchants. This was accepted by France and its ally, Great Britain, as an act of defiance and the situation became critical. Premier Asquith made a statement in the house of commons July 27 in which he intimated that it might become the duty of the British government to intervene in defense of British interests.

The negotiations were conducted by Ambassador Cambon for France and by Herr Kiderlen-Waechter, foreign minister, for Germany. Slow progress was made on account of what France believed to be the extortionate demands of Germany, but an agreement was reached toward the end of October and the tension relieved. By the terms of the convention Germany recognized the existence of a French protectorate over Morocco. In return France gave Germany a portion of the French Congo in Africa and further guaranteed German commercial interests and equality of opportunity in Morocco. Both governments stipulated that difficulties arising out of the application of the agreement should be referred to the tribunal at The Hague for settlement.

The agreement caused great dissatisfaction in Germany among all parties and led to the resignation of a number of officials. Crown Prince Frederick William was among those who emphatically disapproved of the treaty.

AERONAUTICAL PROGRESS IN 1911.

AERONAUTICAL PROGRESS IN 1911.

Many wonderful achievements were placed to the credit of aviators in 1911, but these were chiefly in the line of long cross country flights or of altitude and duration records. The main thing demonstrated, however, was the fact that heavier-than-air machines are unsafe and that until greater stability has been secured they cannot be put to practical use except, perhaps, for scouting in time of war. Their utility for this purpose was shown in the Tripoli campaign, where the Italians were able to observe the movements of the Turks and Arabs by means of aeroplanes. Toward the close of the year the Wright brothers, pioneers in the science of aviation, conducted a series of experiments which indicated that the desired stability was in a fair way of being secured. Another advance may be noted, namely, the invention of aeroplanes that can alight on or rise from the water. Below will be found accounts of some of the more remarkable performances of the year, with the latest available records on both sides of the Atlantic, a list of casualties and a chronological record of aeronautical events in 1911.

LONG-DISTANCE FLIGHTS.

FROM ST. LOUIS TO NEW YORK.

Harry N. Atwood of Boston broke the world's record (up to Aug. 25, 1911) for cross country flying in an aeroplane when he traveled from St. Louis, Mo., to New York city, via Chicago, a distance of 1,265 miles, in twelve days. He left the Missouri city Aug. 14, 1911, and arrived at Governor's Island in New York harbor Aug. 25. His time in the air was 28 hours 9 minutes. For this feat he was given a prize of $10,000, offered by Victor J. Evans of Washington, D. C. The previous world's record for cross country flying was 1,164 miles, made in 30 days by Benno Koellig in Germany, June 11-July 10, 1911. Atwood's best performance was on the first day of his aerial journey, when he made the distance of 282 miles in less than six hours of flying time in one day. He had but one serious mishap to his machine, a break in the propeller, which compelled him to land at Nyack, N. Y., when only twenty-five miles from his goal. Atwood used a Wright-Burgess biplane. In Chicago he arrived at and started from Grant park, on the lake front, where the great aviation meet was being held.

FROM NEW YORK CITY TO PASADENA, CAL.

Callhrait P. Rodgers eclipsed all records for long distance aeroplane flying when he crossed the American continent from Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., to Pasadena, Cal., between Sept. 17 and Nov. 5, 1911. The distance covered was approximately 4,231 miles, the total time occupied 49 days, the actual flying time 82 hours 4 minutes, and the average distance per hour, 51.7 miles. His machine, a baby Wright biplane, was damaged on a number of occasions, but was quickly repaired, either by himself or by the mechanics who followed him by train. Bad weather was responsible for most of the delay. His general route was by way of Chicago, Kansas City, San Antonio, El Paso, Maricopa and Imperial Junction. Further details of the record breaking journey may be obtained from the following daily record of the flight:

BOSTON TO WASHINGTON.

Harry N. Atwood started from Boston, Mass., June 29, 1911, for New London, Conn., 135 miles away, arriving there the same day. June 30 he gave exhibitions of flying at the intercollegiate boat races on the New London course. Saturday, July 1, he started at 7:05 a. m., and flew over Bridgeport, Conn., at a height of 1,500 feet. Then he steered out over Long Island sound, passing South Norwalk and Port Chester. At Larchmont, which was reached at 9:15 a. m., he steered inland over Mount Vernon and then flew over the city of New York. Partly circling the lofty Singer building tower, he hovered over Wall street for a few moments and then proceeded to Governor's island where he landed. The total distance traveled was 122 miles and the time was 3 hours 20 minutes.

July 4 Atwood left Governor's island at 8:49 a. m., and at 2:30 p. m. landed at Atlantic City, N. J., the distance covered being about 115 miles. After a delay of nearly a week, due to unfavorable weather, the Boston aviator left Atlantic City, July 10, at 5:04 a. m., and descended at Stemmer's Run, Md., a few miles from Baltimore, at 9:23 a. m., being unable to proceed farther on account of the great heat and humidity. The flight of forty miles to College Park, Md., the military aviation field near Washington, D. C., was completed early on the morning of July 11. The total distance covered was approximately 525 miles.

FROM KEY WEST TO HAVANA.

Jan. 30, 1911, an attempt was made by J. A. D. McCurdy to fly in a Curtiss biplane from Key West to Havana to win a prize of $3,000. All the conditions were favorable and the flight was a success until a point some ten miles from Havana was reached, when something went wrong with the engine and the lubricating oil dropped out. McCurdy was compelled to descend to the water on which the biplane, which was supplied with pontoons, floated until a life boat from one of the accompanying torpedo boat destroyers came to the rescue. Neither man nor machine was injured in the least. The distance traveled was ninety-six miles and the time occupied 2 hours and 8 minutes. It broke the record for over water flights, but it only stood until March 5, when Lieut. Blague covered 140 miles over the Mediterranean sea, between Nice and Gorgona.

PARIS TO MADRID.

One of the most sensational aeroplane flights of 1911 was that from Paris, France, to Madrid, Spain, May 21-26. The Petit Parisien offered a prize of $20,900 to the winner of a race between the two capitals and some twenty machines were entered. When the start was made from the Issy-les-Moulineux aviation field one of the aeroplanes fell, killing M. Berteaux, minister of war, and seriously wounding Premier Moins. This caused most of the contestants to withdraw and only Pierre Vedrine, M. Gilbert and M. Garros started. The first stage was from Paris to Angoulême, the second from Angoulême to San Sebastian and the third from San Sebastian to Madrid. The three airmen succeeded in reaching San Sebastian, but Gilbert and Garros failed to clear the mountains in the last stretch and only Vedrine succeeded in reaching Madrid, where he landed at 8:06 o'clock on the morning of May 26. The total distance traversed was 721 miles and Vedrine's official flying time was 37 hours 27 minutes. This, however, included time for repairs and other delays and the actual time in the air was only 12 hours and 18 minutes. While crossing the mountains Vedrine was attacked by a large eagle, and Gilbert had the same experience. Vedrine's total winnings were $30,900, and he also received the cross of the Order of Alfonso XII.

PARIS TO ROME.

What was intended to be an aeroplane race from Paris to Turin by way of Rome was started May 23 with twenty-one entries, who were given until June 15 to reach the goal. Prizes aggregating $100,000 were offered. Andre Beaumont and Roland Garros took the lead from the start, most of the other competitors dropping out early in the race. The route was by way of Avignon, Nice, Genoa and Pisa. Beaumont was ahead at Avignon and Nice, but Garros arrived at Genoa first. Beaumont, however, made a fine flight from Allassio to Rome, covering the distance in less than seven hours, including stops in Genoa and Pisa, and arrived in Rome on the afternoon of May 31. Garros arrived the following day, having met with a mishap near Pisa. Frey, a German aviator, reached Rome June 3 and Vidart arrived June 5. Unfavorable weather conditions and injuries received by the men and machines caused all but Herr Frey to abandon the race at this point and he, after starting for Turin June 13, fell and was seriously injured at Lake Vico. Beaumont won the bulk of the prizes offered.

PARIS TO TOP OF PUY-DE-DOME.

M. Renaux, with M. Senouque as a passenger, flew from St. Cloud, a suburb of Paris, France, to the summit of Puy-de-Dome, 217 miles distant, March 7, 1911, in a Farman biplane. The start was made at 9:12 a. m. and in compliance with the conditions which had to be fulfilled in order to win the prize of $20,900 offered by M. Michelin for the first aviator who should accomplish the feat, the Arc de Triomphe in Paris was first circled. Nevers, 132 miles from Paris, was reached at 11:50 a. m., and here a stop of seventeen minutes was made. When Clermont-Ferrand was reached the aviator made a turn about the spires of the cathedral and then flew to the top of the mountain Puy-de-Dome, 4,800 feet above the sea. The time occupied was 5 hours 8 minutes; the rules allowed six hours.

M. HELEN'S LONG FLIGHT.

Saturday, Aug. 26, 1911, M. Helen, a French aviator, contesting for the international Michelin cup, covered 1,126.4 kilometers (700 miles) in 13 hours 47 minutes 19 seconds with only three stops of 24, 28 and 15 minutes for rest. His course was from Retheny to Somme-Vesle (near Mourmelon), France, 102.4 kilometers in length, which he covered eleven times, stopping at the end of each third lap for a short rest.

1,000 MILE CIRCUIT RACE.

Lieut. Conneau, whose racing name is Andre Beaumont, won a 1,000 mile international circuit aviation race beginning and ending at Vincennes, near Paris. It was in all respects one of the most remarkable contests in the history of air racing. The course took the flyers from Paris across Belgium, Holland, over the English channel to London, and back to Paris. Fifty aeroplanists started June 13 and nine arrived at the goal July 7. Three of the competitors were killed just as the race began and others met with more or less serious mishaps. The principal stops were at Liege and Brussels, Belgium; Utrecht, Holland; Calais and Roubaix, France, and Dover and Hendon (near London), England. The English channel was crossed July 3 from Calais to Dover by no less than eleven of the airmen. The return trip from Dover to Calais was made July 6, both crossings being made easily and without mishap. Prizes aggregating about $100,000 were given, of which Beaumont won $26,500. Garros was second in the race and Vidart third. The flying time for the entire circuit of the three leaders was: Beaumont, 58:36:45; Garros, 62:18:34; Vidart, 73:32:00.

UNITED KINGDOM CIRCUIT.

Lieut. Conneau, flying under the name of Andre Beaumont, won a prize of $50,000 offered by the London Daily Mail to the winner of an aviation race of 1,010 miles around the united kingdom. The course was from Brooklands to Edinburgh, Stirling, Glasgow, Manchester, Exeter, Brighton and back to Brooklands, with a number of intermediate stopping places or controlling stations. Neither machines nor parts of machines could be changed in the course of the contest. The start was made July 22 and the race was finished July 26. Conneau's flying time for the whole distance was 22:28:18.

Pierre Vadrines was second in 23:38:05. Both machines were intact, no changes of any kind having been made by their pilots. There were nineteen actual starters in the race, but most of them gave up before flying many miles.

GERMAN CIRCUIT RACE.

One of the most important aviation events of the year in Germany was a circuit race of about 1,140 miles, the route taking the contestants from Johannisthal, near Berlin, to Magdeburg, Kiel, Cologne, Hanover and back to Johannisthal. Prizes aggregating $25,000 were offered. Each aviator was required to carry a passenger over at least a part of the route. The start was made June 11 and the three chief prize winners finished July 10. Benno Koenig took first prize for the greatest mileage, Hans Volmueller took second and Bruno Buechner third. Koenig's record was 1,164 miles, the extra mileage being earned by passenger carrying.

CHICAGO AVIATION MEET.

Grant park, Chicago, was the scene of a highly successful international aviation meet Aug. 12-20, 1911. Financially it resulted in a deficit of about $50,000, but the flights were thrilling, many new records were made and the attendance enormous. A large proportion of the seats were free and the opportunities for witnessing the feats of the airmen from the adjoining buildings and streets were almost unlimited. It was estimated that the average daily attendance was at least 250,000. The flights were held under the auspices of the Aero Club of Illinois and were managed by a committee of the International Aviation Meet association, of which James E. Piew was president, Frank F. Wentworth secretary and Bernard J. Mullaney general manager. Thirty-eight well known aviators, representing America, France, England, Ireland and Poland, and flying with the leading types of biplanes and monoplanes were entered, and all but eight or ten took an active part in the meet. The prizes offered aggregated $80,000 and the aviators were guaranteed a minimum of $2 per minute for time consumed in actual flying. The flying hours each day were from 3:30 to 7 p. m.

The meet was marred by two fatal accidents, both occurring on the afternoon of Aug. 15. William R. Badger of Pittsburgh, in a Baldwin biplane, was descending swiftly when his machine collapsed and came to the ground in the sunken arena of Grant park. The aviator was hit by the engine and died within half an hour after he had been brought to a hospital. St. Croix Johnstone of Chicago, in a Moisant monoplane, fell into Lake Michigan about a mile from shore and was killed. Whether death was caused by a blow from the engine or from drowning could not be positively determined. Two other aviators fell into the lake, but were rescued. There were several minor mishaps which were attended by damage to machines only.

One of the interesting features of the meeting was the arrival Aug. 14 of Harry N. Atwood of Boston after having flown from St. Louis in one day, and his departure Aug. 15 for New York city, on the longest biplane journey attempted up to that time.

FIRST WATER AEROPLANE.

Jan. 26, 1911, for the first time in the history of aviation an aeroplane rose from the surface of the water, made a flight in the air and, returning to the starting point, alighted on the water as easily as a gull. This feat was accomplished by Glenn H. Curtiss on San Diego bay, California. Equipped with hydroplanes and a new arrangement of front surfaces, the aeroplane sailed along the surface of the water at a forty mile clip for a quarter of a mile, then rose to a height of fifty feet, remained in the air for one minute and 22 seconds and alighted with perfect ease. The feat was repeated a second time with even greater success.

FLIGHT OVER NIAGARA FALLS.

Lincoln Beachey, a California aviator, flew across Niagara falls in a biplane June 27, 1911, ending the flight on the Canadian side after he had swooped under the arches of the upper steel bridge and had flown down the gorge almost as far as the whirlpool. The start was made from a baseball field on the American side and after rising to a height of 2,000 feet the aviator made a number of sweeping circles downward until he was only about 200 feet above the Horseshoe fall. Then dropping still farther he dipped under the arch of the bridge and flew down the river above the rapids. The daring feat was witnessed by 150,000 persons.

RECORD FOR ALTITUDE.

The record for height reached by aeroplane was broken a number of times in 1911. Up to Nov. 7 the greatest altitude ever reached by a heavier-than-air machine was 13,943 feet. The man who made this record was Roland G. Garros, a French aviator, and the place was Parame, France. The American record is held (Nov. 7, 1911,) by Lincoln Beachey, who on Aug. 20, at the Chicago aviation meet, attained a height of 11,642 feet. Other aviators making notable altitude records include the following:

M. Legagneux, Pau, France, Dec. 9, 1910, 10,499 feet.

Arch Hoxsey, Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 26, 1910, 11,474 feet (unofficial).

Capt. Felix, Etampes, France, Aug. 5, 1911, 11,330 feet.

DURATION RECORD.

Sept. 2, 1911, G. Fournay at Buc, France, flying a Farman biplane, remained in the air continuously for eleven hours one minute, covering a distance of 720 kilometers, or about 450 miles.

INTERNATIONAL AVIATION CUP.

Charles T. Weymann, American, won the international aviation cup, at Eastchurch, England, July 1, covering 93.2 miles in 1:11:34½. His speed approximated 78 miles an hour. Winners of cup to date.

1909—Glenn H. Curtiss.

1910—Claude Grahame-White.

1911—Charles T. Weymann.

WINNERS OF MICHELIN CUP.

1909—Henry Farman, 126 miles in 4:15:00.

1910—Maurice Tabuteau, 367 miles in 7:45:00.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cromwell Dixon, 19 years of age, crossed the Rocky mountain divide between Helena and Blossburg, Mont., Sept. 30, 1911. The highest altitude above sea level reached by him was 7,100 feet. Dixon was the first to cross the continental divide in an aeroplane. He was killed a few days later by a fall at Spokane, Wash.

James J. Ward left New York, N. Y., Sept. 13, 1911, to fly to San Francisco, Cal., in an attempt to win a prize of $50,000 for the first aviator crossing the continent by aeroplane before a certain date. He met with several accidents to his machine and only got as far as Hornell, N. Y., where he gave up the race Sept. 22. The total distance covered was about 300 miles. In an effort to win the same prize Robert F. Fowler left San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 11, but he also met with mishaps and besides found that his machine was too light to carry him over the mountains. He gave up the attempt at Colfax, Cal.

Hugh Robinson undertook to fly along the Mississippi from Minneapolis to New Orleans, but financial obstacles compelled him to quit when he reached Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 23. He began the trip Oct. 17, using a hydro-aeroplane.

The first United States mail ever transported by aeroplane was carried Sept. 23, 1911, from the aviation field on Nassau boulevard, Long Island, to Garden City, a distance of five miles, by Earle L. Orvington in a Blériot machine.

FRENCH MINISTER OF WAR KILLED.

One of the worst accidents in the history of aviation took place at Issy-les-Moulineux, a suburb of Paris, France, Sunday, May 21, 1911. A crowd of 200,000 persons, including several members of the cabinet, had gathered to witness the start of an aeroplane race from Paris to Madrid. A monoplane, piloted by M. Train, had just left the ground when it got out of control and plunged into a group of spectators. Henry Maurice Berteaux, minister of war, was killed instantly, his body being badly mangled by the swiftly revolving propeller blades. Antoine E. E. Monis, premier and minister of the interior, was buried under the wreckage of the machine and received a number of serious injuries. Antoine Monis, his son, and Henri Deutsch de la Meurthe, a patron of aeronautics, were also injured. The aviator and a passenger with him escaped injury. M. Train claimed that his motor gave out just as he was trying to avoid a body of cavalry galloping across the field, and the machine fell.

CENTER OF POPULATION AND MEDIAN LINES

[From bulletin of the bureau of the census, 1911.]

The center of population, according to the bureau of the census, may be said to represent the center of the gravity of the population. If the surface of the United States be considered as a rigid plane without weight, capable of sustaining the population distributed thereon, individuals being assumed to be of equal weight, and each, therefore, to exert a pressure on any supporting pivotal point directly proportional to his distance from the point, the pivotal point on which the plane balances would, of course, be its center of gravity, and this is the point referred to by the term "center of population" as used by the census bureau in its reports.

The median point, which may be described as the numerical center of population, is in no sense a center of gravity. In determining the median point distance is not taken into account, and the location of the units of population is considered only in relation to the intersecting median lines—as being north or south of the median parallel and east and west of the meridian.

The position of the center of population and its movement during each decade since 1790 is shown in the following table:

lation has been noted, involving the location of median lines. A parallel of latitude is determined which evenly divides the population so that the population north of that parallel is the same as that south. Similarly, a meridian of longitude is determined which divides the population evenly as between east and west. In calculating these median lines it is necessary, in the case of the square degrees of latitude and longitude which are traversed by the lines themselves, to assume that the population is evenly distributed through these square degrees or to make an estimated adjustment where this is obviously not the case.

The eastern terminus of the median parallel, according to the census of 1910, is on the New Jersey coast near Seagirt. In its course west this line passes through central New Jersey, leaving the state near Burlington and entering Pennsylvania a few miles north of Philadelphia, thence passing through Norristown; and continuing through southern Pennsylvania and across the northern extremity of West Virginia, leaving the latter state at a point a few miles north of Wheeling. It nearly bisects Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, crossing about MEDIAN LINES.

In connection with the definition of the median point another method of presenting facts with regard to the geographical distribution of the popu-ten miles north of Columbus, O.; twenty-five miles north of Indianapolis, Ind., and about twenty miles north of Springfield, Ill. Through Missouri it runs about thirty miles south of the Iowa and Missouri line, thence passing through Nebraska about ten miles north of its southern boundary, and across the northern part of Colorado, passing about five miles north of Boulder City. Its location in Utah is about forty-five miles south of Salt Lake City. There are no large towns near its course across the northern part of Nevada and California. The western terminus of the median parallel is on the Pacific coast, in Humboldt county, California, about five miles north of Point Delgada and twenty miles south of Cape Mendocino, the point of continental United States extending farthest west.

The median meridian starts at Whitefish point, on the northern peninsula of Michigan, near the eastern end of Lake Superior, thence passing south about twenty-five miles west of Lansing and through Indiana about ten miles west of the Indiana-Ohio boundary and twenty-five miles west of Cincinnati. South of the Ohio river it bisects Kentucky, crosses eastern Tennessee and leaves that state twenty miles east of Chattanooga. Through Georgia it passes close to the Georgia-Alabama line, about two miles west of Columbus, Ga., leaving the state near the intersection of the Alabama, Georgia and Florida boundary lines. It then crosses the north-western part of Florida and terminates in the Gulf of Mexico at the city of Apalachicola. The following table shows the movement of the median lines from 1880 to 1910, inclusive:

CONSERVATION OF THE NATIONAL RESOURCES.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION ASSOCIATION.
The National Conservation association, with headquarters in the Colorado building, Washington, D. C., is now the organized head of the conservation movement in the United States. The association came into existence because of an urgent need for an organization open to every man and woman who stood for conservation, which would give them immediate opportunity for united and effective work.

On July 29, 1909, the first step was taken. A group of the men who had led in the fight for conservation met and organized the National Conservation association. Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, was made president of the association. Soon after Gifford Pinchot was removed from the government service by President Taft, Dr. Elliot presented his resignation and nominated Mr. Pinchot as his successor. Mr. Pinchot's election as president of the National Conservation association followed, the honorary presidency being accepted by Dr. Elliot.

In a booklet explaining the objects of the association, it is the following:

"The National Conservation association is fighting for the prompt and orderly development of our natural resources, for the welfare of ourselves and our children, and for the rights of the plain people. The association is found neither by political considerations nor official connections. It is free to speak the whole truth.

"That conservation means the use of our natural resources for the benefit of us all and not merely for the profit of a few is already household knowledge. The task which the National Conservation association has set itself is to get this principle put into practical effect."

The association is maintained by annual dues from membership, which is divided into the following classes:

Members	$2.00
Active members.....	5.00
Contributing members.....	25.00
Patrons	100.00
Life membership.....	1,000.00

The organization of the National Conservation association is as follows:

Gifford Pinchot, president, Washington, D. C.
Charles W. Elliot, honorary president, Cambridge, Mass.
Overton W. Price, vice-president and treasurer, Washington, D. C.; Thomas R. Shipp, secretary, Washington, D. C.; James R. Garfield, Cleveland, O., and Amos E. R. Pinchot, New York, N. Y., counsel.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION CONGRESS.

The third national conservation congress was held in Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 26-27, 1911. Addresses were made by Dr. Henry Wallace, Dr. Warren H. Wilson, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, William J. Bryan and others. Among the resolutions adopted was one recommending the bringing together as a department of health the various human health activities of the United States government as a co-ordinate branch of its administrative work. Another resolution recommended the early opening of the coal lands and other resources of Alaska on a leasing system, national ownership to be retained pending the creation of states within its area.

Officers for 1911-1912: President, J. B. White, Kansas City, Mo.; secretary, Thomas R. Shipp, Colorado building, Washington, D. C.; treasurer, D. Austin Latshaw, Kansas City, Mo.; recording secretary, James C. Gape, Clarks, La.

The distances of visibility given in the above table are those from which an object may be seen by an observer whose eye is at the lake level; in practice, therefore, it is necessary to add to these a distance of visibility corresponding to the height of the observer's eye above lake level.

THE UNITED STATES CENSUS BUREAU.

The bureau of the census in the department of commerce and labor, Washington, D. C., is charged with the duty of taking the periodical censuses of the United States and of collecting such special statistics as are required by congress, including statistics of births and deaths in registration areas, statistics of the cotton production of the country as returned by the ginners, the consumption of cotton and statistics of cities having 30,000 or more inhabitants.

The act passed at the extra session of the 61st congress and approved July 2, 1909, for the taking of the thirteenth and subsequent censuses provided that a census should be taken of the population, agriculture, manufactures and mines and quarries of the United States in 1910 and every ten years thereafter, and that it should include each state and territory on the mainland, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico. An assistant director, a geographer, a chief statistician and other officers and clerks in addition to the regular force in the census office were provided for.

FLOOD AT BLACK RIVER FALLS, WIS.

Black River Falls, Wis., a city of about 2,000 inhabitants, was visited by a disastrous flood Oct. 6 and 7, 1911. The Black river, on the banks of which the town stands, overflowed its banks after a period of heavy rains and washed away business houses and residences. Most of the structures stood on sandy foundations and were undermined, causing them to topple over and disappear in the rushing waters. Practically all of the inhabitants had to pass a night and a day without shelter and almost without food, but fortunately no lives were lost. The damage to property was estimated at $1,200,000.

FAMINE IN CHINA.

Famine conditions prevailed in the Anhui and Hupch provinces of China in the spring and summer of 1911. The harvests in the fall of 1910 were almost complete failures on account of heavy rains and floods and before the winter was over the greater part of the population was on the verge of starvation. Missionaries and local officials did what they could to alleviate the suffering, distributing supplies of flour and other articles received from America and Japan, but thousands of the people had to subsist on roots and grasses. At Shayank in Hupch province twenty-one persons were trampled to death while the missionaries were trying to distribute food. The Rev. E. C. Lebenstine, who made a trip of inspection through the famine district in Anhui province, estimated that 2,500,000 persons were practically starving. How many died from want was not reported, but the number was thought to be very large.

DESTRUCTION OF BATTLE SHIP LIBERTE.

Fire followed by a series of explosions destroyed the first class French battle ship Liberte in the harbor of Toulon, France, Sept. 25, 1911, with a loss of 235 lives. The fire was discovered at 5 o'clock in the morning and at first was not thought to be serious, but it made rapid progress and soon penetrated to the ammunition magazines, which had not been flooded. Several terrific explosions occurred which opened up fissures in the armor and framework of the vessel, which soon sank. The Liberte carried a crew of 793 officers and men, and of these many were killed in their berths. Besides the 235 who were lost, eighty-eight were wounded. The cost of the vessel was about $7,000,000.

NOTE—Owing to imperfect data the above figures are only approximately correct, but being based on the same method of enumeration they are of some value for comparative purposes. The true annual birth rate for the whole of the United States, as shown by the natural increase of population between 1890 and 1900, is within 2 per cent either way of 35.1 per 1,000 of mean population.

DEATHS AND BIRTHS BY DIVISIONS OF TIME.

Assuming that the total population of the world is 1,600,000,000 and the average annual death rate 20 per 1,000 of population, the total number of deaths in a year is about 32,000,000. This is at the rate of 87,671 per day, 3,653 per hour, 61 per minute and 1 per second.

As the population of the world increases by about 7,000,000 per year, the total births must be that number in excess of the deaths, or about 39,000,000. This is at the rate of 106,849 births per day, 4,462 per-hour, 74 per minute and 1.2 per second.

Assuming that the population of the United States is 87,000,000 and the death rate 16 per 1,000, the total number of deaths in a year is 1,392,000. This is at the rate of 3,814 per day, 159 per hour and 2.6 per minute. With a birth rate of 34 per 1,000, the total number of births in a year in the United States will approximate 2,958,000, or at the rate of 8,104 per day, 338 per hour and 5.6 per minute.

BATTLE SHIP MAINE SUNK BY A MINE.

The wreck of the battle ship Maine, sunk in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, on the night of Feb. 15, 1908, was almost completely uncovered in 1911, though lack of a sufficient appropriation hampered the work. A large cofferdam was built around the vessel and the water pumped out gradually. Much of the hull was sunk deep in the mud and this was cleared away with considerable difficulty. The double bottom of the ship with parts of the keel was found standing in an upright position and some twenty-eight feet higher than the natural position. Experts expressed the belief that such a tearing of the vessel could not have been produced by an interior explosion, but that some unusually large mine must have been used. Rear-Admiral W. L. Capps, formerly constructor of the navy, submitted a report to the secretary of the navy, which tended to confirm the opinion of the court of inquiry that the battle ship was destroyed by an external explosion.

The remains of sixteen of the victims of the disaster were found in the wreckage, but could not be identified.

THE JOHN R. WALSH CASE.

John R. Walsh, Chicago banker, was released on parole from the Leavenworth federal penitentiary Oct. 14, 1911, after serving one year eight months and twenty-six days of the five-year sentence which he was given by Judge Albert B. Anderson in the United States District court in Chicago, March 13, 1908. He began serving his term Jan. 19, 1910, and died Oct. 23, 1911, a few days after his return home on parole. The Chicago National bank, of which he was president, was closed Dec. 16, 1905, and it was charged that his failure was caused by Mr. Walsh's illegal transference of $2,000,000 to his railroad enterprises.

STEPHENSON INVESTIGATION.

Aug. 15, 1911, the United States senate adopted the following resolution reported from the committee on privileges and elections:

"That the senate committee on privileges and elections, or any subcommittee thereof, be authorized and directed to investigate certain charges preferred by the legislature of Wisconsin against Isaac Stephenson, a senator of the United States from the state of Wisconsin, and to report to the senate whether in the election of said Isaac Stephenson as a senator of the United States from the said state of Wisconsin there were used or employed corrupt methods or practices; that said committee or subcommittee be authorized to sit during the recess of the senate, to hold its session at such place or places as it shall deem most convenient for the purposes of the investigation, to employ stenographers, to send for persons and papers and to administer oaths; and that the expenses of the inquiry shall be paid from the contingent fund of the senate upon vouchers to be approved by the chairman of the committee or chairman of the subcommittee."

Senators Heyburn, Sutherland, Pomerene, Bradley and Paynter were appointed a special committee to conduct the investigation, which began in Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 2 and continued until Nov. 1. Senator Stephenson testified that he had spent $107,793 in the primary campaign of 1908 to secure the nomination. He said he had not handled the money himself, but had given most of it to his campaign manager, E. A. Edmonds, to use as he saw fit. He denied that any of the money had been corruptly used to secure his nomination. Mr. Edmonds declared that the money was spent legitimately for brass bands, lithographs, buttons, advertising and other customary campaign expenses. No detailed accounts were kept. State Senator John J. Blaine, the senator's principal accuser, admitted on the stand that he had relied chiefly upon newspaper reports, political speeches and rumors in formulating his charges.

UNITED STATES POSTAL SAVINGS LAW.

The act of congress, approved June 25, 1910, authorizes the establishment of postal savings depository offices and creates a board of trustees, consisting of the postmaster-general, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney-general, severally, acting ex officio, with power to designate such post-offices as it may select to be postal savings depository offices. This board has control and supervision of all postal savings offices and of the funds deposited in them, and has authority to make all necessary regulations for the receipt, custody, deposit, investment and repayment of such funds.

Any person, 14 years of age or over, may open an account, in his or her own name, in any postal savings depository, but no person can have more than one such account in his or her own right. Deposit accounts may be opened, first, by the deposit of $1 or a larger amount in multiples thereof; second, by purchasing for 10 cents a postal savings card and attaching thereto 10 cent postal saving stamps and depositing the card and the stamps in the amount of $1, or any multiple thereof. Additional deposits may be made in cash in amounts of $1 or multiples thereof, or by card and 10 cent stamps in corresponding amounts, but no person is permitted to deposit more than $100 in any calendar month, and the balance to the credit of any person can never exceed $500.

Interest at the rate of 2 per cent per annum is allowed on all deposits, and any person may withdraw the whole or any part of his or her deposit, with accrued interest, upon demand and under such rules as the board of trustees prescribe.

Of the postal savings bank fund, 5 per cent is deposited as a reserve with the treasurer of the United States. The remaining funds are deposited in national or state banks at a rate of interest of not less than 2½ per cent.

The faith of the United States is pledged to the payment of any deposit made in postal savings bank depository offices.

The banks were a success from the start. During the period from Jan. 3 to Feb. 25, 1911, the number of accounts opened in the forty-eight depositories first established was 3,923 and the net amount on deposit was $138,869. Many additional postal savings banks were established in the course of the year and the pressure of work incident to the extension of the system delayed the compilation of statistics for the fiscal year 1911, so that the figures were not available in time for publication in this edition of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book.

The first postal bank in Chicago was opened in the main office Aug. 1. The number of depositors on the first day was 461 and the total amount deposited $9,421. Postal banks were also opened Aug. 1 in New York, Boston and St. Louis.

WILLIAM LORIMER'S ELECTION AS UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The right of William Lorimer, republican, of Chicago, to hold his seat in the United States senate to which he was elected May 26, 1909, by a combination of democrats and republicans in the Illinois legislature, was challenged in the upper house of congress Jun. 9, 1911. Two resolutions were introduced, both declaring his election illegal. One, presented by Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, was as follows:

"Resolved, That William Lorimer was not duly and legally elected to a seat in the senate of the United States by the legislature of Illinois."

The other, which was introduced by Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, was as follows:

"Resolved, That the so-called election of William Lorimer on May 26, 1909, by the legislature of the state of Illinois was illegal and void."

Senator Beveridge, as a member of the committee on privileges and elections submitted a report dissenting from the views of the majority of the committee, which, in December, 1910, had declared that the charges of bribery in connection with Mr. Lorimer's election were not sustained. [See The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book for 1911, page 404.] Senator Beveridge contended that if only one case of bribery had been established it invalidated the whole election. "The testimony is overwhelming," he declared, "not only that four members of the general assembly were bribed, but that three of their fellow members paid them their money. But these seven votes were not all of the tainted votes cast in this putrid transaction. The testimony shows that at least three additional corrupt votes were cast—those of Clark, Shepard and Luke."

In the course of the long and acrimonious debate which followed and lasted until March 1 speeches against the legality of Mr. Lorimer's election were made by Senators Root, Borah, Crawford, Cummins and others, while among those championing the Illinois Senator's cause most ardently were Senators Bailey, Burrows, Payner and Heyburn. Mr. Lorimer made a lengthy speech in his own defense, alleging that he was elected in part through his personal popularity among democrats. Senator Cullom spoke in defense of the honor of Illinois generally, though he said nothing about the case pending before the senate. The final vote was taken March 1 and resulted in the defeat of the Beveridge resolution by forty-six nays to forty yeas, as follows:

SENATE'S ACTION RESENTED.

The action of the senate in affirming the legality of Mr. Lorimer's election was followed immediately by criticism and protest in various parts of the country. March 2 the Missouri senate adopted a resolution commending Senators Stone and Warner for voting against Lorimer. March 4 the California senate rebuked Senators Flint and Perkins for "humiliating" the nation by voting for William Lorimer. March 10 the Wisconsin assembly adopted a resolution deploring the action of the United States senate in refusing to unseat Lorimer, commending Senator LaFollette for voting against him and censuring Senator Stephenson for voting for him. Similar action was taken or attempted in Kansas, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. Ministers in many places, collectively or individually, condemned the action of the senate.

In Illinois the citizens of many towns united in showing their disapproval of the manner of Lorimer's election by holding mass meetings and passing resolutions denouncing the action of the senate and demanding the resignation of both Senators Lorimer and Cullom. Such meetings were held in Rockford, March 5; in Elgin, Lincoln, Lake Forest and Galena, March 7; in Charleston, March 9, and in Hoopston, March 11. Similar action was taken at public meetings or by representative associations in numerous other places in the state.

LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATION.

In the Illinois state senate a committee, of which Douglas W. Helm of Metropolis was made chairman, was appointed Jan. 27, 1911, to inquire into corruption in the 46th general assembly. It began taking testimony March 28, but nothing new was developed until H. H. Kohlsaat, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald, was called to the stand March 29. Mr. Kohlsaat testified that a friend had told him in confidence that a fund of $100,000 had been raised to bring about the election of Lorimer as United States senator. The name of this friend he declined to give to the committee. However, the man, who was Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, voluntarily released Mr. Kohlsaat from the pledge of secrecy and appeared before the committee in Springfield April 5. The substance of his story was as follows: Shortly after Lorimer's election in May, 1909, the witness met Edward Hines, the lumberman, at the Union League club in Chicago.

"He (Hines) said that I was just the fellow he had been looking for and trying to see," continued Mr. Funk. "and he said he wanted to talk to me a minute. We went away and sat down on one of the leather couches at the side of the room. Without any preliminaries and quite as a matter of course, he said: 'Well, we put Lorimer over down there at Springfield, but it cost us about $100,000 to do it.' He went on to say that they had had to act quickly when the time came, that they had no chance to consult anybody beforehand, and I think his words were these: 'We had to act quickly when the time came, so we put up the money.'

"He (Hines) said: 'Now we are seeing some of our friends so as to get it fixed up.' We had some discussion back and forth and finally I asked him how much he (Hines) was getting from his different friends and he said: 'Well, of course, we can only go to a few big people, and if about ten of us will put up $10,000 apiece that will clean it up.' Edward Tillen, connected with the stockyards in Chicago is the man to whom I was told to send the money."

Mr. Funk said he had promptly declined to give the money asked for and had informed Cyrus H. McCormick, president, and Edgar A. Bancroft, general counsel of the International Harvester company, of the occurrence. He added that shortly after an editorial had appeared in the Record-

Herald (Feb. 15, 1911) referring to the $100,000 fund, Mr. Hines had called on him for the purpose of "refreshing his recollection" about the Union League club interview. Mr. Hines said no mention had been made of the use of money in connection with the Lorimer case. Mr. Funk said he was unable to "refresh" his memory in that way.

April 20 William Burgess of Duluth, Minn., appeared before the committee and testified that a few days after Mr. Lorimer had been exculpated by the United States senate he had had a conversation, on a train between Duluth and Virginia, Minn., with C. F. Wiehe, secretary and director of the Edward Hines Lumber company. Wiehe, continued the witness, said Lorimer had not spent a dollar of his own money, but that a check got was raised for his election. Wiehe added: "I know what I am talking about, for I subscribed $10,000 myself."

Wirt H. Cook, also of Duluth and a lumberman, formerly associated with Mr. Hines, testified April 26 that shortly before the senatorial election in May, 1909, he had a talk in the Grand Pacific hotel, Chicago, with Mr. Hines in which the latter said it had been all fixed up to elect Lorimer senator, as he had agreed to "stand pat" on the lumber duty. Mr. Cook further testified that he and one William O'Brien of St. Paul, Minn., met Mr. Hines by appointment in the latter part of May in the same hotel and that while they were together Mr. Hines called up Springfield, Ill., by long distance telephone and talked with a man whom he addressed as "governor." He said, according to the witness: "Is this you, governor. Well, I just left President Taft and Senator Aldrich last night in Washington. Now, they tell me that under no consideration shall Hopkins be returned to the senate. Now, I will be down on the next train. Don't leave anything undone. I will be down prepared to furnish all the money that is required." The witness thought Mr. Wiehe was present in the room when this telephone conversation took place.

Mr. Cook also testified that about a year later, in May or June, 1910, when the grand jury was in session in Chicago investigating the legislative scandal, C. F. Wiehe came to his room in the hotel along about midnight and asked him and O'Brien, who was with him again, to get out of town at once or the grand jury would summon them. Wiehe said that Mr. Hines had called him up and asked him to get the witness and O'Brien out of the city.

Mr. Wiehe, on being called before the committee, denied the alleged conversation with Mr. Burgess. He admitted he had been present in the hotel room when Mr. Hines had his telephone conversation with the "governor" in Springfield, but had heard nothing about the use of money. He further admitted that he had paid a midnight visit at the request of Hines to the hotel to get Cook and O'Brien out of town. Hines, he said, did not want his reference to Aldrich and Taft to become known.

In pursuance of the information obtained from Mr. Funk, the committee asked Edward Tilden to appear before the committee with certain books and documents that might throw light upon the alleged Lorimer fund. George M. Benedict and William C. Cummings were asked to produce certain bank accounts kept by Mr. Tilden at the time the fund was supposed to have been collected. These men refused to appear or to produce the documented proofs sought, whereupon the committee ordered their arrest. Warrants were served upon them, but they were immediately released upon writs of habeas corpus issued by Judge Adelo Pettit of the Circuit court of Cook county, who, after a hearing, denied the right of the senate or a committee thereof to require the attendance of these witnesses or the production of the proof demanded. In effect, Judge Pettit held that the committee had no power or authority to take proof or to subpoena witnesses because of the fact that the scope of the inquiry under the resolution creating the committee included not only members of the senate but of the house as well, the senate thereby seeking to embark upon an inquiry over which it had no jurisdiction.

Finding its further progress blocked the committee concluded its examination of witnesses and May 17 made a report to the senate, reciting the foregoing and other facts. The essence of its finding was expressed in the following words:

"Your committee has reached the conclusion that the election of William Lorimer before the last general assembly would not have occurred had it not been for bribery and corruption."

May 18 the following resolutions were adopted by the senate by a vote of thirty-nine to ten:

"Whereas, under senate resolution number 17 a committee was appointed to investigate charges of corruption and official misconduct against members of this senate, and

"Whereas, said committee has reported the result of its investigation to this senate, from which it appears that there were important and material witnesses without the state of Illinois whose attendance it could not legally compel and which witnesses refused voluntarily to appear, and

"Whereas, said committee was seriously impeded in the performance of its duties by what we believe to be the unwarranted action of a certain judge, and

"Whereas, it appears from the report of said committee that, despite its inability to compel the attendance of such foreign witnesses and the adverse action of said judge, sufficient evidence was procured to show that without bribery and corruption, and by reason of the failure of certain senators and representatives during the different roll calls to carry out the will of the people, as expressed at the polls, in the choice of a United States senator, which action we deem most reprehensible, and which should be condemned, and which we hereby condemn, the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate would not have occurred."

"Resolved, That it is the opinion of this senate, based upon the report and findings of the said committee, that the election of William Lorimer to a seat in the United States senate was brought about by bribery and corruption, and

"Resolved, That the gravity of the situation, involving as it does the integrity and good name of this state and the welfare of the nation, demands a further investigation and determination of this matter by a body possessing broader jurisdiction and greater powers than does this senate, and be it further

"Resolved, That the secretary of this senate be and he is hereby authorized and directed to transmit to the senate of the United States a copy of the evidence taken by the said committee, together with the report and findings of that committee and a copy of this resolution, for such action as the senate of the United States may deem proper."

"Resolved, That the findings of said committee, as set forth in the report heretofore filed, be and the same are hereby ratified and approved."

CASE REOPENED IN UNITED STATES SENATE.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin reopened the Lorimer election case in the United States senate April 6 by introducing a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to make a new investigation of the whole matter. This resolution, after citing the fact that the Illinois senate had undertaken a new inquiry from which it appeared that witnesses who were not called by the United States senate committee had appeared and given important testimony tending to show that $100,000 was corruptly expended to secure the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate, provided for the appointment of Senators John D. Works, Charles E. Townsend, George P. McLean, John W. Kern and Atlee Pomerene as a special committee to investigate and report to the senate whether in the election of William Lorimer there were used corrupt methods and practices.

Senator LaFollette supported his resolution with a long argument, but June 1, by a vote of forty-eight to twenty, the senate adopted a substitute offered by Senator Thomas S. Martin of Virginia. The vote for making a new inquiry was unanimous. The Martin resolution was as follows:

"Whereas, the senate adopted a resolution on June 20, 1910, directing the committee on privileges and elections to investigate the charges relating to the election of William Lorimer to the senate of the United States, and

"Whereas, since the senate voted on the report of that committee it is represented that new material testimony has been discovered in reference to such matter; and

"Whereas, the senate of the state of Illinois on May 13, 1911, adopted a resolution, for the reasons therein stated, requesting the senate of the United States to institute further investigation of the election of William Lorimer to the senate, it is therefore

Resolved, That the committee on privileges and elections sitting en banc be and are hereby authorized and directed forthwith to investigate whether in the election of William Lorimer as a senator of the United States from the state of Illinois there were used and employed corrupt methods and practices; that said committee be authorized to sit during the sessions of the senate and during any recess of the senate or of congress; to hold sessions at such place or places as it should deem most convenient for the purposes of the investigation; to employ stenographers, counsel and accountants; to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, and as early as practicable to report the results of its investigation, including all testimony taken by it, and that the expenses of the inquiry shall be paid from the contingent fund of the senate upon vouchers to be approved by the chairman of the committee.

"The committee is further and specially instructed to inquire fully into and report upon the alleged 'jack pot' fund in its relation to and effect, if any, upon the election of William Lorimer to the senate."

The following subcommittee was named by the committee on privileges and elections June 5 to conduct the investigation: Republicans—Dillingham, Vermont, chairman; Gamble, South Dakota; Jones, Washington; Kenyon, Iowa. Democrats—Johnston, Alabama; Kern, Indiana; Lea, Tennessee; Fletcher, Florida.

The selection of the subcommittee was approved by a resolution in the senate June 7 and that body was clothed with the same powers as those conferred by the Martin resolution upon the committee on privileges and elections.

The examination of witnesses was begun June 20 in room 301 of the senate office building in Washington. Those who appeared before the committee included, among others, Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the International Harvester company; Herman H. Kohlsaat, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald; Clarence S. Fuok, general manager of the International Harvester company; Wirt H. Cook, Edward Tilden, Edward Hines, Gov. Charles S. Deneen, Christian F. Wiehe, Nelson W. Aldrich and Boies Penrose. The testimony was substantially the same as that given before the Illinois senate committee, except that additional information was given John H. Marble and John J. Healy were counsel for the committee while Mr. Lorimer was represented by Elbridge Haneey and William J. Hynes. The committee did not, as at the first hearing, adhere to the strict rules of evidence, but permitted great latitude in the investigation. The hearing continued in Washington until Aug. 9, when a recess was taken until Oct. 10. The committee then met in the federal building in Chicago and resumed the examination of witnesses. It adjourned Nov. 22 to meet in Washington, D. C.

WAR BETWEEN ITALY AND TURKEY.

Italy declared war upon Turkey Sept. 29, 1911. Its reasons for this step were given in an ultimatum sent by Sig. di San Giulan, the foreign minister, to the government in Constantinople Sept. 26. This was as follows:

"Throughout a long series of years the Italian government has never ceased to represent to the porte the absolute necessity that the state of disorder and neglect in which Tripoli and Cyrenaica are left by Turkey should come to an end, and that these regions should be allowed to enjoy the same progress as that attained by other parts of northern Africa. This transformation, which is required by the general exigencies of civilization, constitutes, so far as Italy is concerned, a vital interest of the very first order, by reason of the small distance separating these countries from the coasts of Italy.

"Notwithstanding the attitude maintained by the Italian government, which has always loyally accorded its support to the imperial government on the different political questions of recent times, notwithstanding the moderation and patience displayed by the Italian government hitherto, not only have its views in regard to Tripoli been misunderstood by the imperial government, but, what is more, all enterprises on the part of Italians, in the aforesaid regions, constantly encounter a systematic opposition of the most obstinate and unwarranted kind.

"The imperial government, which has thus up to now displayed constant hostility toward all legitimate Italian activity in Tripoli and Cyrenaica, quite recently, at the eleventh hour, proposed to the royal government to come to an understanding, declaring itself disposed to grant any economic concession compatible with the treaties in force and with the higher dignity and interests of Turkey; but the royal government does not now feel itself in a position to enter upon such negotiations, the uselessness of which is demonstrated by past experience, and which, far from constituting a guaranty for the future, could but afford a permanent cause of friction and conflict.

"On the other hand, information received by the royal government from its consular agents in Tripoli and Cyrenaica represents the situation there as extremely dangerous on account of the agitation prevailing against Italian subjects, which is very obviously fomented by officers and other organs of the authorities. This agitation constitutes an imminent danger not only to Italian subjects but also to foreigners of any nationality who, justly perturbed and anxious for their safety, have begun to embark and are leaving Tripoli without delay. The arrival at Tripoli of Ottoman military transports, the serious consequences of the sending of which the royal government had not failed to point out previously to the Ottoman government, cannot but aggravate the situation and impress on the royal government the strict and absolute obligation of providing against the perils resulting therefrom.

"The Italian government, therefore, finding itself forced to think of the guardianship of its dignity and its interests, has decided to proceed to the military occupation of Tripoli and Cyrenaica. This solution is the only one Italy can decide upon, as the royal government expects that the imperial government will in consequence give orders so that it may meet with no opposition from the present Ottoman representatives, and that the measures which will be the necessary consequence may be effected without difficulty. Subsequent agreements would be made between the two governments to settle the definite situation arising therefrom. The royal ambassador in Constantinople has orders to ask for a peremptory reply on this matter from the Ottoman government within twenty-four hours from the presentation of the present document, in default of which the Italian government will be obliged to proceed to the immediate execution of the measures destined to insure the occupation.

"Pray add that the reply of the porté within the aforesaid limit of twenty-four hours must be communicated to us through the intermediary of the Turkish embassy in Rome also."

"SAN GIULIANO."

DECLARATION OF WAR.

The ultimatum was officially delivered to the porté Sept. 28. On the following day the Italian charge in Constantinople handed the following communication to the porté:

"The Italian embassy, carrying out the orders of the king, has the honor to notify you that the delay accorded by the royal government to the porté, with a view to the realization of certain necessary measures, has expired without a satisfactory reply reaching the Italian government. The lack of this reply only confirms the bad will, or want of power, of which the Turkish government and authorities have given such frequent proof, especially with regard to the rights and interests of Italians in Tripoli and Cyrenaea.

"The royal government consequently is obliged itself to safeguard its rights and interests, as well as its honor and dignity, by all means at its disposal. Events which will follow can only be regarded as the necessary consequence of conduct followed so long by the Turkish authorities. The relations of peace and friendship being therefore interrupted between the two countries, Italy considers herself from this moment in a state of war with Turkey.

"I have, therefore, the honor to make known to your highness that passports will be placed at the disposal of the charge d'affaires at Rome, and I beg your highness to hand passports to the representative of the royal government. Ottoman subjects may continue to reside in Italy without fear of an attack upon their persons, property or affairs."

In further explanation of the situation which led to the declaration of war it may be said the differences between the Italians and Turks in Tripoli were of long standing. A large proportion of the 6,000 or 7,000 foreigners in the Turkish vilayet are Italians and these for many years had been subjected to systematic annoyances of the worst kind. Diplomatic protests were of no avail, being answered simply with promises which never were fulfilled. In addition to this, Italy had made no secret of its desire to possess Tripoli in the event that the Ottoman empire should be dissolved.

The European press generally criticised Italy for its sudden action, calling it piracy and robbery, but this opinion was changed in a measure when the facts in the case became better known. Besides, it was pointed out that Austria-Hungary had seized Bosnia-Herzegovina, Germany, France and Spain had invaded Morocco and England had often engaged in similar enterprises, so that Italy could claim that it had plenty of precedents for its course. The efforts of the great powers were immediately directed toward localizing the war and preventing its spread, especially to the Balkan states. In this they were successful, and in spite of Turkish appeals for intervention they maintained a neutral attitude.

Before declaring war Italy had made all preparations, naval and military, for prompt and energetic action, so that no time was lost. It immediately established a blockade on the Tripolitan coast and proceeded to clear the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas of Turkish warships, particularly destroyers, which might do damage to Italian commerce. The blockade was entrusted to a strong fleet under Vice-Admiral Favarelli, while Vice-Admiral the Duke of the Abruzzi had charge of the operations designed to checkmate such naval operations as the Turks might undertake with their few war vessels. Both performed their tasks successfully. On the same afternoon when war was declared the duke of the Abruzzi, with a squadron of torpedo boats, attacked some Turkish gunboats and torpedo boats in the harbor of Prevesa and soon put them out of commission. He moved with equal energy at other points, and whatever semblance of Turkish naval power there had been on the Adriatic and Mediterranean speedily disappeared.

The fleet on the Tripolitan coast had a harder task, but performed it with equal success. The city of Tripoli, which was held by a garrison of Turkish soldiers, was called upon to surrender within twenty-four hours. It refused to do so and when the time limit expired at 2 p. m., Oct. 3, twelve Italian war vessels, headed by the flagship Benedetto Brin, began to bombard the forts. The latter returned the fire without effect, the Turkish cannon being antiquated and the ammunition defective. The bombardment continued until the morning of Oct. 5, by which time the forts were in ruins and the garrison had retired into the interior. Twelve Turks were killed and twenty-three wounded by the shell fire. Troops were landed without opposition and the city was taken possession of by Vice-Admiral Borea d'Olmo, who had been appointed governor of Tripoli in advance. Chiefs of the Arab tribes adjacent to the city offered their submission to the Italians.

Within a few days the Italians had occupied the seaports along the coast of Tripoli. These included Benghazi, Derna, Cyrene and Tobruk. The last named place was shelled by the first Italian squadron under Rear-Admiral Aubrey on the morning of Oct. 8, and after a brief resistance by a small Turkish force surrendered.

Meanwhile the mobilization of troops in Italy was quickly effected and an expeditionary force of some 35,000 men organized for the conquest and occupation of the interior of Tripoli. These troops, which were commanded by Gen. Caneva, left Naples and other ports Oct. 5 and on succeeding days. The first detachment, consisting of infantry, cavalry and engineers, landed at Tobruk Oct. 10. The next day a large force landed in Tripoli, where they relieved the marines who had been on duty since the capture of the city.

The Italians were not permitted to retain possession of Tripoli without severe fighting. The Turkish forces, with the aid of hostile Arabs, made constant attacks on the outposts and in some of these engagements many men on both sides were killed or wounded. One of the most serious of these battles occurred Oct. 30, when the Italians were assailed in force by the Turks. At the same time armed Arabs in the city opened fire upon them from the rear, causing many casualties and much confusion. The Italian troops beat off the enemy and summarily shot all the treacherous Arabs within the city on whom they could lay their hands. It was reported that they spared neither women nor children and the affair was described by English correspondents as a massacre. Turkey, in a note addressed to the American secretary of state Nov. 5, called the attention of the government to the alleged atrocities in Tripoli and asked for "prompt and efficacious intervention." The Italian authorities emphatically denied all stories of inhumanity, declaring that only Arabs found with arms in their possession were shot.

Fighting of a more or less serious character also occurred at Derna and Benghazi, the Turks claiming victories.

NEW TUNNEL UNDER THE ALPS.

The Loetschberg railway tunnel through the Bernese Alps was completed in 1911 after five and a half years' work and the expenditure of $20,000,000. It is the third longest in Europe, measuring approximately nine miles. It gives the Simplon Tunnel railway a direct connection with railways which traverse Switzerland from north to south and shortens the route from Milan to Calais by about eighty miles.

FOREST FIRES IN ONTARIO.

Forest fires swept over a large district in the northern part of Ontario, Canada, the second week in July, 1911, causing the loss of more than 100 lives and a large amount of property. The greater part of the casualties occurred at South Porcupine, where many miners were surrounded by flames and perished in the mine shafts where they took refuge. The townships of Langmuir, Eldorado, Shaw, Deloro, Ogdon, McArthur and Cripple Creek were swept clean, and the towns of Cochrane, South Porcupine and Pottsville destroyed.

Forest fires also did much damage in July in northern Michigan and in parts of Maine and New Hampshire. The towns of Au Sable and Oscoda in Michigan suffered severely.

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The opening of the Panama canal and the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific ocean will be celebrated by an international exposition in San Francisco, Cal., in 1915. Sites with that end in view were taken in 1910, when a guaranty fund of $17,500,000 was raised. Of this amount $5,000,000 is provided by a special tax levied by the legislature upon all the property in California, an additional $5,000,000 through the issuance of bonds by the city of San Francisco and the balance of $7,500,000 by popular subscription. No government aid was asked. New Orleans was also a contender for the honor of holding the canal celebration and a fund of $7,500,000 was authorized to be raised, $6,500,000 through a state tax and $1,000,000 through subscription in New Orleans. The matter came before congress and the following joint resolution was passed by the house Jan. 31 and by the senate Feb. 11, and was signed by the president Feb. 15, 1911.

Resolved, etc., That whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the president of the United States that a suitable site has been selected and that the sum of not less than $15,000,000 will be available to enable the Panama-Pacific International Exposition company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of California for the purpose of inaugurating, carrying forward and holding an exposition at the city and county of San Francisco, Cal., on or about the 1st day of January, 1915, to celebrate the completion and opening of the Panama canal, and also the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific ocean, the president of the United States be, and he is hereby authorized and respectfully requested, by proclamation or in such manner as he may deem proper, to invite all foreign countries and nations to such proposed exposition, with a request that they participate therein."

Charles G. Moore is president of the exposition company.

PANAMA-CALIFORNIA EXPOSITION IN SAN DIEGO.

Ground was broken July 19, 1911, for the Panama-California exposition which is to be held in San Diego, Cal., during the entire year 1915. The buildings, which are to be of the Spanish-Colonial type of architecture and to be known collectively as the Mission City, will be erected on a site of 1,400 acres in Ballon park. The city has raised by subscription $2,500,000 for the promotion of the plan. Following are the chief officers: President, U. S. Grant, Jr.; first vice-president, John D. Spreckels; director-general, Col. D. C. Collier; director of publicity, Joseph W. Sefton, Jr.; secretary, Levi G. Moore.

LOS ANGELES TIMES DYNAMITE CASE.

John J. McNamara, secretary and treasurer of the International Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' union, was arrested in Indianapolis, Ind., April 22, 1911, on the charge of being implicated in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building Oct. 1, 1910. His arrest followed that of Ortie E. McManigal and James B. McNamara in Detroit, Mich., April 12, for the same offense. It was not until April 23, however, that the facts were made known by William J. Burns, head of the Bureau of Investigation, who for many months had been investigating not only the Los Angeles Times affair, but many other mysterious explosions in widely separated localities. These in practically all instances occurred where nonunion or open shop labor had been employed in the construction of buildings, bridges and other structures. The same kind of dynamite bombs and the same methods were used as a rule and the conclusion was reached that they were the work of the same men. Before the arrests were made more than 100 lives had been lost and some $3,000,000 worth of property destroyed through the explosions.

For the discovery and apprehension of the men who blew up the Los Angeles Times building, with the loss of twenty-one lives and $500,000 worth of property, rewards aggregating $500,000 were offered. The grand jury of Los Angeles county examined many witnesses and returned indictments against twenty-three persons alleged to have been implicated in the affair. These included one "I. E. Bryce," Harry Kaplan and Matt Schmidt. "Bryce" it was subsequently alleged, was an alias assumed by James B. McNamara, who was supposed to be the man who bought the dynamite from the Giant Powder company in Los Angeles with which the Times building was blown up. McNamara is a brother of John J. McNamara and his home was in Cincinnati, O. He and Ortie E. McManigal, an ironworker in Chicago, were accused of being the "wrecking crew" of the Iron Workers' union. Kaplan and Schmidt, who were said to have assisted them, were classed by the detectives as anarchists. It was further asserted that John J. McNamara furnished the funds for the dynamite and other expenses of the wreckers.

Following clues given, it was reported, by Ortie McManigal, the detectives found materials for the manufacture of bombs in several places. In the room occupied by James B. McNamara and McManigal in Detroit were a number of small alarm clocks, batteries and dynamite. In a barn a mile west of Indianapolis were seventeen sticks of dynamite and two quarts of nitroglycerin. In the basement of the Central Life building, Indianapolis, occupied in part as the headquarters of the Iron Workers' union, were sixty-four sticks of dynamite, 200 feet of fuse, 500 dynamite caps and a dozen small alarm clocks. In a shed in the rear of the home of James McManigal, father of Ortie E. McManigal, in Tiffin, O., were 400 pounds of dynamite. It was also reported that a considerable quantity of electric wire and an electric battery tester were found in the home of Mrs. J. A. McNamara, mother of John J. and James B. McNamara, in Cincinnati, O. A suitcase belonging to J. B. McNamara was seized in the union station at Columbus, O., and was found to contain twine and wrapping paper similar to that used in wrapping up the dynamite found in Indianapolis. Most of the dynamite discovered was reported to have been stolen. Although the arrest of John J. McNamara was made upon a warrant and requisition papers from the governor of California were honored by Gov. Marshall of Indiana, it was charged by the defendant's friends and the labor leaders in Indianapolis that McNamara had been given no opportunity to resist extradition and that he had been "railroaded" out of the state. Warrants were sworn out charging Detective William J. Burns, Walter Drew, W. J. Ford and Frank Fox with kidnaping. Mr. Drew was attorney for the National Erectors' association, which had been investigating the dynamiting of many structures in which its members were interested. W. J. Ford was assistant district attorney of Los Angeles county and Frank Fox was a chauffeur who had assisted the officers in getting McNamara out of the city. The arrests were made and the men were held in bonds to await the action of the grand jury.

The two McNamaras and McManigal were taken at once to Los Angeles, where they arrived April 26. Great precautions were taken to prevent their escape or rescue by legal or other means while making the journey.

The case came up in court Oct. 11 and James B. McNamara was the first of the defendants to be placed on trial. The chief counsel for the defense was Clarence Darrow of Chicago.

Weeks were spent in efforts to secure a jury to try the case and the necessary number of men had not yet been secured when, on the afternoon of Dec. 1, it was suddenly announced that the two principal defendants, James Boyd McNamara and his brother, John J. McNamara, had decided to plead guilty. They were called into court and both confirmed the announcement. James B. McNamara pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree in having caused the explosion in the Los Angeles Times office. His brother pleaded guilty to having caused the explosion in the Llewellyn iron works. Judge Walter Bordwell, who presided in the case, fixed Dec. 5 as the day on which he would pronounce sentence, and on the date named he fixed the punishment of James B. McNamara at imprisonment for life in St. Quentin prison. To John J. McNamara he gave fifteen years in the same prison.

Prior to being sentenced James B. McNamara made a written statement in which he said that on the night of Sept. 30, 1910, he placed in "ink alley," a portion of the Times building, a suitcase containing sixteen sticks of 80 per cent dynamite, set to explode at 1 o'clock the next morning. It was, he declared, his intention to injure the building and scare the owners, but not to take the life of any one.

The cases against the McNamaras were prosecuted by District Attorney John D. Fredericks. Sensational charges of attempts at jury bribing were made just prior to the entering of pleas of guilty by the defendants.

Between May 31, 1906, and April 5, 1911, sixty-seven dynamite explosions occurred which were believed to be due to the wrecking crews of structural iron workers. Among those for which the McNamaras and McManigal were thought to be responsible were the following:

Oct. 24, 1909—New telephone exchange, saw mill and garage destroyed in Indianapolis, Ind.

March 23, 1910—Courthouse in Omaha, Neb., and plant of Caldwell & Drake at Columbus, Ind., partly destroyed. Caldwell & Drake were contractors for the Omaha building.

Sept. 4, 1910—Plant of Lucas & Sons iron works in Peoria, Ill., and bridge under construction wrecked.

Oct. 1, 1910—Los Angeles Times building wrecked and twenty-one persons killed. Attempt made to blow up home of publisher, Gen. Harrison Gray Otis.

Dec. 18, 1910—Plant of Llewellyn Iron company in Los Angeles damaged.

Feb. 24, 1911—Iroquois iron works in South Chicago damaged.

March 25, 1911—Coal hoisting plant in Milwaukee being erected by the Hyle & Patterson Construction company of Pittsburgh, Pa., damaged to the extent of $200,000.

April 5, 1911—Tower of municipal building in Springfield, Miss., wrecked.

FORESTS AND FORESTRY.

[By Herbert A. Smith of the United States Forest Service.]

Our forests now cover 550,000,000 acres, or about one-fourth of the United States. Forests publicly owned contain one-fifth of all timber standing. Forests privately owned contain at least four-fifths of the standing timber. The timber privately owned is not only four times that publicly owned, but it is generally more valuable. Forestry is now practiced on 70 per cent of the forests publicly owned and on less than 10 per cent of the forests privately owned, or on only 18 per cent of the total area of forests.

The original forests of the United States contained timber in quantity and variety far beyond that upon any other area of similar size in the world. They covered 850,000,000 acres, with a stand of not less than 5,200,000,000 board feet of merchantable timber, according to present standards of use. There were five great forest regions—the northern, the southern, the central, the Rocky mountain and the Pacific.

The present rate of cutting is three times the annual growth of the forests of the United States. The great pineries of the lake states are nearing exhaustion, and heavy inroads have been made upon the supply of valuable timber throughout all parts of the country. The heavy demands for timber have been rapidly pushing the great centers of the lumber industry toward the south and west. In consequence, the State of Washington has led for several years in lumber production, now followed in order by Louisiana, Mississippi and Oregon. In 1910 the production of yellow pine lumber amounted to fourteen and one-eighth billion feet; the Douglas fir of the northwest held second place with four and three-fourths billion feet, while oak came third with four and one-half billion feet. We take from our forests yearly, including waste in logging and in manufacture, 20,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood.

We use in a normal year 90,000,000 cords of firewood, 45,000,000 board feet of lumber, 148,500,000 ties, 1,750,000,000 staves, over 125,000,000 sets of heading, nearly 300,000,000 barrel hoops, 3,200,000 cords of native pulp wood, 165,000,000 cubic feet of round mine timbers and 1,500,000 cords of wood for distillation.

In 1910 about 4,002,000 cords of wood were used in the manufacture of paper, of which 948,000 cords were imported from Canada. The demand for pulp wood is making a severe drain on the spruce forests which furnish the principal supply. The forest service of the United States department of agriculture is conducting investigations to determine what other woods, such as scrub pine, white fir, tupelo and the like, can be successfully used.

A larger drain upon our forest resources is made by the demand for railroad ties, of which 148,231,000, equivalent to nearly five billion board feet, were used in 1910. White oak, hitherto the chief source of supply, is not plentiful enough to meet this demand indefinitely, and in many parts of the country the supply of chestnut, cedar and cypress is dwindling; however, seasoning and treating methods are being found, largely through the work of the forest service, by which cheaper and more plentiful woods, such as lodgepole pine in the northwest and loblolly pine in the south, are made fit for use as ties. A great saving has been effected in the naval stores industry, also largely through the work of the forest service, by the introduction of the so-called "cnp" systems of turpentine in place of the old destructive system of "boxing." The new systems insure a larger product of better quality, and prolong the life of the longleaf pine forests upon which the industry depends.

UNITED STATES FOREST SERVICE.

The forest service is one of the bureaus of the department of agriculture. It has charge of the administration and protection of the national forests and also promotes the practice of forestry generally through investigations and the diffusion of information.

The work of the government in forestry was initiated by the appointment of Dr. Franklin Hough in 1875 as special agent in the department of agriculture. In 1881 a division of forestry was created in that department. In 1901 this division became the bureau of forestry, and in 1905, when the care of the national forests was given to this bureau, its name became the forest service.

Previously the care of the national forests had been in the hands of the department of the interior. A law authorizing the president to set apart forest reserves was passed in 1891, but no provision for their administration and use was made until 1897. Previous to 1905 the bureau of forestry merely gave expert advice, on request, to the department of the interior concerning the application of forestry to the forest reserves. The change of name from "forest reserves" to "national forests" was made in 1906, to correct the impression that the forests were, as "reserves," withdrawn from use. Since the forest service took charge of them the fundamental aim has been to open them to the widest use consistent with their proper protection.

The reserves were set aside as follows: By President Harrison, 13,416,710 acres; by President Cleveland, 25,686,320 acres; by President McKinley, 7,050,089 acres; by President Roosevelt, 148,346,924 acres.

During the administration of President Taft 3,391,800 acres have been eliminated from the national forests, making their area at the close of the fiscal year 1911 190,608,243 acres. The eliminations threw out land which was found to be better suited for agricultural and other purposes than for forestry. An act of congress, passed in 1907, prohibits any additions by the president to the national forest area in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

The following tables show the national forest expenditures and receipts for the fiscal year 1911, compared with those of the fiscal year 1910:

Fiscal year.	Administration and protection for—		Permanent improvements.
	Total.	Per acre.	Total.	Per acre.

1911.....	76,290.18	0.00040	2,026,906.15	0.01063

Under the law 25 per cent of the gross receipts are paid to the states in which the national forests are located, to be expended for roads and schools. The amount to be paid to the states in this way from the receipts in 1911 is about $506,000.

The grazing receipts for 1911 were paid by the holders of 20,499 permits to graze 1,351,922 cattle, horses and hogs, and of 5,105 permits to graze 7,449,415 sheep and goats. The receipts from timber sales were paid by approximately 5,000 purchasers, who cut the equivalent of 374,678,000 board feet of timber. The receipts from special uses were paid by the holders of about 5,000 permits. In other words, these receipts represent profitable use of the forests by some 30,000 individuals or concerns. To the use for which payment was made must be added the heavy free use of the forests by the public. Figures for free use of timber are as follows:

Fiscal year.	Number of permittees. (board feet).		Value.
	Number of permittees.	Value.
1910.....	35,364	104,796,000	$176,166.51
1911.....	40,660	123,488,000	196,930.24

In issuing permits for reservoirs, conduits, power lines and transmission lines for commercial power development, the forest service has steadfastly insisted on conditions designed to prevent speculative or perpetual holdings and to secure the full development of available power and the payment of reasonable charges for the use of land.

The total stand of timber on the national forests, exclusive of Alaska, is estimated at over five hundred billion board feet.

The following table shows the total-cut of timber from the national forests in the fiscal year 1911:

The average price on the stump for the timber sold in 1911 was $2.56 per thousand board feet.

The value of the public property administered by the forest service is estimated at over $2,000,000,000.

The great areas contained in the national forests have now been brought to a condition where they are beginning to serve the purposes of the west. The conservation of timber and forage through wise use and the protection of stream flow are the means of sustaining many industries which have contributed materially to the prosperity of the country.

At the head of the forest service are Forester Henry S. Graves and Associate Forester A. F. Potter. The work is organized under the following branches: Operation, and also lands, James B. Adams, in charge; silviculture, W. B. Greeley, in charge; grazing, A. F. Potter, in charge; products, laboratory, McGarvey Cline, in charge; acquisition of land under the Weeks law, William L. Hall, in charge.

The 153 national forests are distributed in six districts, with a district forester in charge of each, and headquarters as follows: District 1 (Montana, northeastern Washington, northern Idaho, northwestern South Dakota, northern Michigan, northern Minnesota and southern North Dakota), Missoula, Mont., F. A. Silcox, district forester; district 2 (Colorado, Wyoming, the remainder of South Dakota, Nebraska and western Kansas), Denver, Col., Smith Riley, district forester; district 3 (most of Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, New Mexico and Oklahoma), Albuquerque, N. M., A. C. Ringland, district forester; district 4 (Utah, southern Idaho, western Wyoming, eastern and central Nevada and a small portion of northwestern Arizona), Ogden, Utah, E. A. Sherman, district forester; district 5 (California and southwestern Nevada), San Francisco, Cal., Coert DuBois, district forester, and district 6 (Washington, Oregon and Alaska), Portland, Ore., George H. Cecl, district forester.

On July 1, 1911, the force employed by the forest service numbered 3,356. Of these 2,696 were employed upon the national forests and 670 were engaged in administrative, scientific and clerical work at the Washington and district headquarters. Of the employees on the national forests the force engaged principally in protective work numbered 1,952 men, as follows: Forest rangers, 250; assistant forest rangers, 1,174; forest guards, 526; game wardens, 2; hunters and trappers, 8. The protective force was therefore about one man for every 104,000 acres, or 163 square miles. (Prussia has one man for every 1,700 acres and Baden one for every 750.)

BRANCH OF SILVICULTURE.

The branch of silviculture directs the management of the national forests as regards both the systems of cutting mature timber and the work of forest planting, supervises their protection, co-operates with states in developing forest policies adapted to their requirements, co-operates with private forest owners who desire to practice forestry on their lands, and carries on silvicultural investigations of the important tree species of the United States. Its most important work is in connection with the management of the national forests, where the chief problem, after fire protection, is to replace the mature timber as it is sold and cut by young growth of valuable species.

In planting within the national forests, the primary object is to produce commercial timber, although in a number of cases planting has been done chiefly with the view of reforesting denuded watersheds, in order to control and regulate the flow of streams directly supplying cities and towns. During the year ended June 30, 1911, 25,230 acres in national forests were sown or planted to trees, chiefly Douglas fir, western yellow pine, Austrian pine and Engelmann spruce, in comparison with 7,400 acres the previous year; in fact, the areas planted in 1911 exceeded, by 10,000 acres, all the planting that previously had been done since the forests were created. There are forty-six government nurseries which supply the national forests. These have a present stock of about 38,800,000 plants and are capable of supplying 22,700,000 a year. In the east forest planting has been done mainly in co-operation with states and private owners, though experiments have been made with the French maritime pine for turpentine production, and with cork oak and Australian eucalyptus, in the Florida national forest.

At the request of the states the forest service makes examinations of their forest conditions, suggests remedial legislation for giving the states a wise forest policy, etc. The cost of such work is shared by the states and the service. The service co-operates with private owners by sending its experts to examine timber tracts and report on the proper methods for managing and protecting them. The cost of such an examination is borne by the owner. During 1911 examinations were made of timber tracts aggregating 370,000 acres.

BRANCH OF GRAZING.

The branch of grazing supervises the grazing of live stock upon the national forests, the principal lines of work being: The allotment of grazing privileges, the issuance of grazing permits, the division of the ranges between different classes of stock or their owners and the regulation of the stock grazed under permit upon the ranges, and the development of the forage-producing capacity of the national forests by the restoration of depleted areas through systematic control of the stock grazed upon them or by artificial means, through the eradication of noxious range-destroying rodents and through the institution of new methods of range control. By co-operation with federal and state authorities in the enforcement of quarantine regulations, the national forests have been practically freed from infectious or contagious diseases fatal to live stock, and by an active campaign against predaceous animals destructive to live stock the annual loss from this source within the national forests has been reduced by several hundred thousand dollars.

The number of stock grazed during the last season (1911), under permit, and by settlers without permit, was 1,347,933 head of cattle, horses and swine and 7,449,415 head of sheep and goats. The annual productive value of this number of stock is more than $20,000,000. The number of persons holding permits to graze live stock during the last year was in excess of 20,000.

BRANCH OF PRODUCTS.

The branch of products carries on studies, tests and demonstrations to further the more complete utilization of the products of the forest. A forest products laboratory is operated at the University of Wisconsin, where experiments are made to determine the properties of American woods, to ascertain cheap and effective treatments to prevent decay, to test the adaptability of untried woods for specific uses such as paper pulp, to develop uses for the material wasted in sawmill operations and to discover processes of obtaining valuable chemical by-products from the waste which cannot be otherwise utilized. An office of wood utilization is maintained at Chicago to promote the economic use of wood among the timber-consuming industries. Studies are made to find the kind, quantity and cost of timber consumed in different states and regions and also where the material comes from and what amount is lost through waste. The wood-consuming industries are aided in finding the most suitable raw material and in developing methods of utilizing their waste product. In the western states all products work centers in the district offices at Denver, San Francisco and Portland.

DENDROLOGICAL STUDIES.

An important part of the dendrological studies which are carried on by the service is the making of an accurate forest map of the distribution of tree species in the United States, to show the extent, composition and economic possibilities of our forest resources. Others of these studies concern the cedar forests of Texas and important but little known trees indigenous to the United States, the growth of which may profitably extend to new localities for economic purposes. Prominent among the latter are the desert pines of California. An investigation is being made of the present and probable future supply of western tanbark oak, as well as of other trees the barks of which are used to adulterate tanbark, and the tannin contents of the barks are being determined by the bureau of chemistry. Included also is a study of basket willows. Attention is given especially to the conditions under which high-grade basket rods may be produced. Approved basket willow cuttings are distributed free each spring to applicants interested in willow culture.

The dendrologist also gives technical information about trees, in response to inquiries, including the identification of the wood, seeds, foliage, etc., of native and exotic trees.

EASTERN NATIONAL FORESTS.

The act of March 1, 1911, commonly known as the Weeks law, provides for the acquisition of forest lands on the watersheds of navigable streams. Its purpose is to promote and protect the navigability of the streams by preserving the forest on the upland portions of their watersheds. Through this act means is afforded of extending the national forest system to regions where the government has hitherto owned no forest lands and taken no direct part in forest preservation.

The act imposes upon the forest service new duties in the selection, examination and valuation of areas for purchase, and this work required a new unit of organization. Immediate control was placed in charge of an assistant forester.

From April 1 to June 30, 1911, proposals were received covering 1,250,641 acres, of which 832,464 acres were within the general areas in the White mountains and the Southern Appalachians, which had been selected for purchase.

The examinations of the forest service prior to June 30, 1911, covered 140,787 acres. The service was ready to submit reports to the National Forest Reservation commission on this area of lands, but since the law requires reports also from the geological survey, and since the geological survey succeeded in examining only 89,590 acres, the commission could consider reports on only that area. The purchase of one tract of 31,377 acres was authorized.

At the beginning of the year 1912 the service has a force of thirty-five examiners working and will undoubtedly be able to complete reports and recommend purchase of lands to the full amount of the $2,000,000 available.

FOREST POLICY OF THE STATES.

New York has purchased and set aside 1,642,000 acres in the Adirondack and Catskill mountains as forest preserves, under the control of the forest, fish and game commission of the state. These lands and private lands in the preserve counties are protected from fire by an adequate system of wardens. Unfortunately, the constitution of the state prohibits the cutting of timber from state lands. In 1909 the commission distributed at cost to private owners 1,005,325 forest tree seedlings, and the waste and open land on the preserve is being gradually planted to trees under the supervision of trained foresters.

Pennsylvania has purchased more than 921,000 acres of land for state forest reserves, and the forestry commission has the right to purchase additional forest lands at a price not to exceed $5 an acre. The reserves are situated chiefly on the mountains of the central part of the state and located with special reference to protecting the water supply of cities and towns. The state forest reserves are not only protected from fire, but are managed according to forestry principles, the mature timber being cut and sold. A school for training forest rangers for the reserves is maintained at Mont Alto. There is a well-organized forest fire protective system in the state. The state distributes forest trees for planting and gives advice in the management of forest lands to private owners.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan have well-organized state forest departments. Minnesota has 61,000 acres reserved; Wisconsin, 385,000 acres, and Michigan, 232,000. These are protected from fire and the open land is being planted and the mature timber cut and sold. Each of these states protects the forest land of private owners as well as that of the state forest reserves from fire and distributes tree seedlings for planting to land owners at cost. Ohio, New Hampshire and Vermont also distribute planting material to private owners and give them advice in regard to methods of forestry management. The following states have forestry departments which seek to protect from fire by means of an organized warden system all or the greater portion of the forest lands of the state: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland, Oregon and California, while Washington and Idaho provide for such protection through legal associations of land owners. Maine supports a very efficient forest fire service covering the unorganized townships in the northern part of the state. In the remaining townships the selectmen are ex officio wardens. Most of these states also have small state forests, that of New Jersey being 14,000 acres. Other states which have forest officers charged with forest interests are Rhode Island, Indiana, Kansas, Montana, North Carolina and West Virginia. South Carolina, Alabama and Louisiana have recently passed or have under consideration advanced forestry legislation. The recently adopted law of Louisiana is especially noteworthy in that it provides for a forest fire protective organization by means of a tax of 3/4 of a cent on every 1,000 board feet of lumber sawed in the state.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION TREATIES.

What was regarded as a long step toward the goal of universal peace was taken Aug. 3, 1911, when representatives of the United States, Great Britain and France signed arbitration treaties providing for the peaceful settlement of all questions arising between them, including those affecting the "vital interest, independence and honor" of the contracting parties. This important exception in former arbitration treaties was ignored in the new conventions, which were so broad as to cover practically all contingencies.

The proposal to remove the old limitations to arbitration treaties was first made by President William H. Taft in a speech at a dinner of the American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes, in Washington, Dec. 17, 1910. He later reiterated his belief in the possibility of arbitrating all kinds of questions, and March 13, 1911, Sir Edward Grey, minister of foreign affairs in the British cabinet, made a speech in the house of commons, strongly commending the stand taken by President Taft. The utterances of the statesmen met with public approval on both sides of the Atlantic and the work of embodying the idea in actual treaties was at once begun. France assented to the general proposition from the start and the negotiations included that country as well as Britain and the United States. The original draft of the new form of arbitration treaty was drawn by Secretary of State Knox, but in perfecting the document he had the assistance of Ambassador James Bryce of Great Britain and Ambassador Jusserand of France.

The text of the treaty with Great Britain is herewith given in full, that with France being identical in terms except as to names of contracting parties and plenipotentiaries: "The United States of America and his majesty the king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, emperor of India, being equally desirous of perpetuating the peace, which has happily existed between the two nations, as established in 1814 by the treaty of Ghent, and has never since been interrupted by an appeal to arms, and which has been confirmed and strengthened in recent years by a number of treaties whereby pending controversies have been adjusted by agreement or settled by arbitration or otherwise provided for so that now for the first time there are no important questions of difference outstanding between them, and being resolved that no future differences shall be a cause of hostilities between them or interrupt their good relations and friendship;

"The high contracting parties have, therefore, determined, in furtherance of these ends, to conclude a treaty extending the scope and obligations of the policy of arbitration adopted in their present arbitration treaty of April 4, 1908, so as to exclude certain exceptions contained in that treaty and to provide means for the peaceful solution of all questions of difference which it shall be found impossible in future to settle by diplomacy.

"For that purpose they have appointed as their respective plenipotentiaries:

"The president of the United States of America, the Hon. Philander C. Knox, secretary of state of the United States, and

"His Britannic majesty, the Rt.-Hon. James Bryce, O. M., his ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary at Washington, "Who, having communicated to one another their full powers, found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

"All differences hereafter arising between the high contracting parties, which it has not been possible to adjust by diplomacy, relating to international matters in which the high contracting parties are concerned by virtue of a claim of right made by one against the other under treaty or otherwise, and which are justiciable in their nature by reason of being susceptible of decision by the application of the principles of law or equity, shall be submitted to the permanent court of arbitration established at The Hague by the convention of Oct. 18, 1907, or to some other arbitral tribunal as may be decided in each case by special agreement, which special agreement shall provide for the organization of such tribunal if necessary, define the scope of the powers of the arbitrators, the question or questions at issue, and settle the terms of reference and the procedure thereunder.

"The provisions of articles 37 to 90, inclusive, of the convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes concluded at the second peace conference at The Hague on Oct. 18, 1907, so far as applicable, and unless they are inconsistent with or modified by the provisions of the special agreement, to be concluded in each case, and excepting articles 53 and 54 of such convention, shall govern the arbitration proceedings to be taken under this treaty.

"The special agreement in each case shall be made on the part of the United States by the president of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the senate thereof, his majesty's government preserving the right before concluding a special agreement in any matter affecting the interests of a self-governing dominion of the British empire to obtain the concurrence therein of the government of that dominion.

"Such agreement shall be binding when confirmed by the two governments by an exchange of notes.

ARTICLE II.

"The high contracting parties further agree to institute, as occasion arises, and as hereinafter provided, a joint high commission of inquiry, to which, upon the request of either party, shall be referred for impartial and conscientious investigation any controversy between the parties within the scope of article I., before such controversy has been submitted to arbitration, and also any other controversy hereafter arising between them, even if they are not agreed that it falls within the scope of article I.; provided, however, that such reference may be postponed until the expiration of one year after the date of the formal request therefor in order to afford an opportunity for diplomatic discussion and adjustment of the questions in controversy, if either party desires such postponement.

"Whenever a question or matter of difference is referred to the joint high commission of inquiry, as herein provided, each of the high contracting parties shall designate three of its nationals to act as members of the commission of inquiry for the purposes of such reference, or the commission may be otherwise constituted in any particular case by the terms of reference, the membership of the commission and the terms of reference to be determined in each case by an exchange of notes.

"The provisions of articles 9 to 26, inclusive, of the convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes concluded at The Hague Oct. 18, 1907, so far as applicable, and unless they are inconsistent with the provisions of this treaty, or are modified by the terms of reference agreed upon in any particular case, shall govern the organization and procedure of the commission.

ARTICLE III.

"The joint high commission of inquiry, instituted in each case as provided for in article II., is authorized to examine into and report upon the particular questions or matters referred to it for the purpose of facilitating the solution of disputes by elucidating the facts and to define the issues presented by such questions, and also to include in its report such recommendations and conclusions as may be appropriate.

"The reports of the commission shall not be regarded as decisions of the questions or matters so submitted, either on the facts or on the law, and shall in no way have the character of an arbitral award.

"It is further agreed, however, that in cases in which the parties disagree as to whether or not a difference is subject to arbitration under article I. of this treaty, that question shall be submitted to the joint high commission of inquiry, and if all or all but one of the members of the commission agree and report that such difference is within the scope of article I, it shall be referred to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of this treaty.

ARTICLE IV.

"The commission shall have power to administer oaths to witnesses and take evidence on oath whenever deemed necessary in any proceeding, or inquiry, or matter within its jurisdiction under this treaty; and the high contracting parties agree to adopt such legislation as may be appropriate and necessary to give the commission the powers above mentioned, and to provide for the issue of subpoenas and for compelling the attendance of witnesses in the proceedings before the commission.

On the inquiry both sides must be heard, and each party is entitled to appoint an agent, whose duty it shall be to represent his government before the commission and to present to the commission, either personally or through counsel retained for that purpose, such evidence and arguments as he may deem necessary and appropriate for the information of the commission.

ARTICLE V.

"The commission shall meet whenever called upon to make an examination and report under the terms of this treaty, and the commission may fix such times and places for its meetings as may be necessary, subject at all times to special call or direction of the two governments. Each commissioner, upon the first joint meeting of the commission after his appointment, shall, before proceeding with the work of the commission, make and subscribe a solemn declaration in writing that he will faithfully and impartially perform the duties imposed upon him under this treaty, and such declaration shall be entered on the records of the proceedings of the commission.

The United States and British sections of the commission may each appoint a secretary, and these shall act as joint secretaries of the commission at its joint sessions, and the commission may employ experts and clerical assistants from time to time as it may deem advisable. The salaries and personal expenses of the commission and of the agents and of counsel and of the secretaries shall be paid by their respective governments and all reasonable and necessary joint expenses of the commission incurred by it shall be paid in equal moieties by the high contracting parties.

ARTICLE VI.

"This treaty shall supersede the arbitration treaty concluded between the high contracting parties on April 4, 1903, but all agreements, awards and proceedings under that treaty shall continue in force and effect and this treaty shall not affect in any way the provisions of the treaty of Jan. 11, 1909, relating to questions arising between the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

ARTICLE VII.

"The present treaty shall be ratified by the president of the United States of America, by and with the advice and consent of the senate thereof, and by his Britannic majesty. The ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington as soon as possible, and the treaty shall take effect on the date of the exchange of its ratifications. It shall thereafter remain in force continuously, unless and until terminated by twenty-four months' written notice given by either high contracting party to the other.

"In faith whereof, the respective plenipotentiaries have signed this treaty in duplicate and have hereto affixed their seals.

"Done at Washington, the third day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eleven."

OPPOSITION IN SENATE.

The treaties were, immediately upon their conclusion, transmitted to the United States senate for ratification. The committee on foreign relations, to which it was referred, submitted a majority and a minority report. The majority report, presented by Senator Lodge, recommended that the treaties be ratified only with certain amendments safeguarding the prerogatives of the senate. The most important amendment proposed striking out of article 3 the stipulation to refer to a joint commission the question whether a difference is arbitrable. The minority report, presented by Senator Root for himself and Senators Culom and Burton, recommended that the treaties be ratified with an accompanying express declaration that they did not embrace questions of governmental policy.

Up to the time this edition of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book went to press the treaties had not been ratified.

THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT.

The boy scout movement was started in England by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell in 1903. Boys were enrolled in a uniform corps, properly officered, for the purpose of training them in patriotism, chivalry, self-reliance, woodcraft, tracking, healthful exercises and good citizenship. The plan was successful from the start and thousands of boys in all parts of the British empire belong to the organization. Similar corps have been started in the United States, Germany, Argentina, Chile, Smyrna, China and other countries. The movement is nonmilitary.

RAILWAY STRIKES IN ENGLAND AND IRELAND.

Dissatisfied with the scale of wages paid and working conditions generally, the railway employes of the united kingdom went on a strike Aug. 15, 1911. For a time the passenger and freight traffic on many of the lines was seriously affected and business generally was much disturbed. Riots attended by bloodshed and loss of life occurred in a number of places. In Liverpool troops had to be called out to restore order. It was estimated that between 150,000 and 200,000 men obeyed the order of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants to quit work. The strike continued for four days and food supplies were beginning to get scarce and dear in London and other large cities when on Aug. 19 a compromise was reached and peace restored. The settlement was made at a conference between Chancellor Lloyd-George and representatives of the railroad employes and was consented to by the railway managers. It was agreed that a committee should be appointed to look into the workings of the conciliation act of 1907, which the men claimed to be the root of all their grievances. The government also promised to help the men and the railroads so that more adequate wages would be possible.

In Ireland, Sept. 22, the railway employes' union attempted to bring about a general strike, but it proved a fizzle and lasted only a few days. Some of the lines in the southern part of the country were tied up, but most of the roads continued business as usual.

STRIKE OF SEAMEN IN EUROPE.

The International Seamen's union called a strike at the principal ports of Europe June 14, 1911. The order was generally obeyed and shipping experienced considerable delay, particularly as the coal porters were on strike at the same time. Many steamers were temporarily tied up in English, Dutch and German ports and sailing schedules were disarranged to some extent, but in the course of a few weeks new men were secured and business proceeded as usual. The strike, which was for better wages and working conditions, proved a failure.

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENTS IN CHINA.

Aug. 27, 1908, an imperial decree was issued in Peking, China, announcing the convocation of a parliament and the proclamation of a constitution in the ninth year from that date. Oct. 31, 1909, a decree was issued fixing the classes from which the upper house of parliament or the senate was to be elected and Oct. 3, 1910, this body met for the first time. It was composed of 262 members, ninety-eight of whom were nominated by the emperor, the remainder representing the provincial assemblies, the grand council and various boards. The provincial assemblies were instituted in 1908 with purely consultative functions. The senate continued in session until Jan. 11, 1911, when it was dissolved.

May 8 an edict was issued providing for a cabinet and a privy council. The cabinet consisted of a president and ministers of foreign affairs, finance, interior, war, navy, justice, agriculture, commerce, and dependencies. The duty of the cabinet was to assist the emperor in the responsibilities of government, but as the president was given the right of veto over the other members and was the direct means of communication with the throne the ministry possessed but little real power. The privy council was made up of forty-four personal advisers of the emperor. Prince Ching was made president or premier and minister of foreign affairs.

These measures did not have the effect intended. The delay in establishing a real constitutional government on modern lines and the general hatred of Manchu rule, with its corruption, inefficiency and tyranny, caused great dissatisfaction among progressive Chinamen. Disturbances in various parts of the empire increased in number and seriousness. The enemies of the government began to organize, first secretly and then openly, and they found sympathizers not only among the common people, but among merchants, statesmen and non-Manchu officials. Even soldiers from the imperial regiments joined their ranks. While not entirely agreed upon any policy except, possibly, that of overthrowing the dynasty, many of the revolutionaries declared themselves in favor of establishing a republic modeled after that in the United States.

The first outbreaks were mainly confined to the provinces of Szechuan, Hupeh and Hunan, but they spread rapidly to nearly every part of the empire. One large city after another fell into the hands of the rebels, and by the middle of October the government was in a panic and was preparing to abandon the struggle. Then Prince Chun, the regent, summoned to the assistance of the throne Yuan Shih-kai, an influential statesman whom he had stripped of power in 1909 because of his efforts on behalf of popular government. At the same time the government announced that it would grant the Chinese a parliament not dominated by Manchurian princes and also a responsible ministry without further delay. This had the effect of postponing, if not preventing, the fall of the dynasty, though the fighting between the imperialist troops and the rebels continued with undiminished energy.

Following is a brief chronological summary of the principal events in the rebellion up to the time this edition of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book goes to press:

Prince Chun's mind reported to have fallen under strain of revolution. Negotiations for $50,000,000 foreign loan for the reorganization of the currency broken off and not to be resumed until after a stable government has been established; Russia and Japan to demand representation in future loans.

ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT CACERES.

Ramon Caceres, president of the republic of Santo Domingo, was assassinated by Luis Tejera and Jaime Mote, Jr., in Santo Domingo city, Nov. 20, 1911. He had made a call at the residence of Leonte Vasquez when he was shot by the two men, dying half an hour later in the American legation, to which he was taken. The killing was the result of personal enmity and not of politics. Caceres was elected president in June, 1908, to serve six years. Dec. 2 Senator Eladio was elected to fill the vacancy.

NUMBER OF WORDS IN THE BIBLE.

According to Prof. Albert S. Cook of Yale university only about 6,000 words are used in the authorized version of the bible. Milton used about 13,000 and Shakespeare something like 21,000 words. These facts were brought out in connection with the bible tercentenary, which was celebrated in 1911. It was generally supposed in view of its great influence upon literature that the bible contained many more words.

FIRE CALAMITY IN NEW YORK CITY.

One hundred and forty-one persons were killed in a fire which burned out a ten story factory building at the northwest corner of Washington place and Greene street, New York, N. Y., Saturday afternoon, March 25, 1911. Most of the victims were girls or young women employed by the Triangle Waist company, which occupied the three upper floors of the structure. The fire started on the eighth floor in a scrap heap under a cutting table and was probably caused by a lighted cigarette thrown into the waste. It was 5:30 o'clock and some of the 700 employes were at the cashier's window waiting for their pay checks when the flames caused an instant panic. Some escaped by the elevators, which were kept running as long as possible, and others got away by climbing to the roof, whence they succeeded in reaching the adjoining building. Several of these were helped by members of a law class. Some came down the narrow stairways or by a fire escape in an interior court. The flames made rapid headway and the three floors were filled with black smoke, making it impossible for those who remained to find their way to safety. Many of these were found dead on the floor near the sewing machines at which they had been working. Finding escape by stairways and elevators cut off, bewildered by the smoke and made frantic by the heat, scores of the young women and some of the male employes rushed for the windows opening to the street. One after another, and sometimes two or three together, they jumped and were dashed to death on iron and glass canopies and stone sidewalks below. A few were saved by means of life nets, but the strands were weak and most of those who jumped into them broke through and were killed. A large number of the victims were of foreign birth and could speak only Yiddish or Italian. The bodies of those who were burned to death were so badly charred or disfigured that in many cases they could not be identified.

LAKE FRONT SITE FOR FIELD MUSEUM.

At the meeting of the city council held Dec. 11, 1911, it was announced by Mayor Harrison that an agreement had been reached between the south park commissioners and the Illinois Central company by which the people of the city regained possession of the lake front from Park row to 51st street, making it possible to erect the permanent buildings of the Field Museum of Natural History on the lake front between Park row and 12th street. The railroad corporation agreed to abandon the Park row station and build a new one on the south side of the widened 12th street, facing north and abutting on Michigan avenue. The plan further provided for the building of a boulevard by the park commissioners connecting Jackson park with Grant park, and the construction of bathing beaches and pleasure islands. In return for surrendering its riparian rights and turning over the land occupied by the passenger station and other property to the east of it, the Illinois Central company, it was agreed, should be permitted to widen and straighten its right of way between 12th and 50th streets.

The whole plan, which was made in accordance with the "city beautiful" scheme, was submitted to the city council for approval.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE (NO. 1).

To the Senate and House of Representatives: This message is the first of several which I shall send to congress during the interval between the opening of its regular session and its adjournment for the Christmas holidays. The amount of information to be communicated as to the operations of the government, the number of important subjects calling for comment by the executive and the transmission to congress of exhaustive reports of special commissions make it impossible to include in one message of a reasonable length a discussion of the topics that ought to be brought to the attention of the national legislature at its first regular session.

THE ANTITRUST LAW—THE SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

In May last the Supreme court handed down decisions in the suits in equity brought by the United States to enjoin the further maintenance of the Standard Oil trust and of the American Tobacco trust and to secure their dissolution. The decisions are epoch making and serve to advise the business world authoritatively of the scope and operation of the antitrust act of 1890. The decisions do not depart in any substantial way from the previous decisions of the court in construing and applying this important statute, but they clarify those decisions by further defining the already admitted exceptions to the literal construction of the act. By the decrees they furnish a useful precedent as to the proper method of dealing with the capital and property of illegal trusts. These decisions suggest the need and wisdom of additional or supplemental legislation to make it easier for the entire business community to square with the rule of action and legality thus finally established and to preserve the benefit, freedom and spur of reasonable competition without loss of real efficiency or progress.

The statute in its first section declares to be illegal "every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations," and in the second declares guilty of a misdemeanor "every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce of the several states or with foreign nations."

In two early cases, where the statute was invoked to enjoin a transportation rate agreement between interstate railroad companies, it was held that it was no defense to show that the agreement as to rates complained of was reasonable at common law, because it was said that the statute was directed against all contracts and combinations in restraint of trade, whether reasonable at common law or not. It was plain from the record, however, that the contracts complained of in those cases would not have been deemed reasonable at common law. In subsequent cases the court said that the statute should be given a reasonable construction and refused to include within its inhibition certain contractual restraints of trade which it denominated as incidental or as indirect.

These cases of restraint of trade that the court excepted from the operation of the statute were instances which, at common law, would have been called reasonable. In the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, therefore, the court merely adopted the tests of the common law, and in defining exceptions to the literal application of the statute only substituted for the test of being incidental or indirect that of being reasonable, and this without varying in the slightest the actual scope and effect of the statute. In other words, all the cases under the statute which have now been decided would have been decided the same way if the court had originally accepted in its construction the rule at common law.

It has been said that the court, by introducing into the construction of the statute common law distinctions, has emasculated it. This is obviously untrue. By its judgment every contract and combination in restraint of interstate trade made with the purpose or necessary effect of controlling prices, by stifling competition, or of establishing in whole or in part a monopoly of such trade, is condemned by the statute. The most extreme critics cannot instance a case that ought to be condemned under the statute which is not brought within its terms as thus construed.

The suggestion is also made that the Supreme court by its decision in the last two cases has committed to the court the undefined and unlimited discretion to determine whether a case of restraint of trade is within the terms of the statute. This is wholly untrue. A reasonable restraint of trade at common law is well understood and is clearly defined. It does not rest in the discretion of the court. It must be limited to accomplish the purpose of a lawful main contract, to which, in order that it shall be enforceable at all, it must be incidental. If it exceed the needs of that contract it is void.

The test of reasonableness was never applied by the court at common law to contracts or combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade whose purpose was or whose necessary effect would be to stifle competition, to control prices or to establish monopolies. The courts never assumed power to say that such contracts or combinations or conspiracies might be lawful if the parties to them were only moderate in the use of the power thus secured and did not exact from the public too great and exorbitant prices. It is true that many theorists, and others engaged in business violating the statute, have hoped that some such line could be drawn by courts; but no court of authority has ever attempted it. Certainly there is nothing in the decisions of the latest two cases from which such a dangerous theory of judicial discretion in enforcing this statute can derive the slightest sanction.

We have been twenty-one years making this statute effective for the purposes for which it was enacted. The Knight case was discouraging and seemed to remit to the states the whole available power to attack and suppress the evils of the trusts. Slowly, however, the error of that judgment was corrected, and only in the last three or four years has the heavy hand of the law been laid upon the great illegal combinations that have exercised such an absolute dominion over many of our industries. Criminal prosecutions have been brought and a number are pending, but juries have felt averse to convicting for jail sentences, and judges have been most reluctant to impose such sentences on men of respectable standing in society whose offense has been regarded as merely statutory. Still, as the offense becomes better understood and the committing of it partakes more of studied and deliberate defiance of the law, we can be confident that juries will convict individuals and that jail sentences will be imposed.

THE REMEDY IN EQUITY BY DISSOLUTION.

In the Standard Oil case the Supreme and Circuit courts found the combination to be a monopoly of the interstate business of refining, transporting and marketing petroleum and its products, effected and maintained through thirty-seven different corporations, the stock of which was held by a New Jersey company. It, in effect, commanded the dissolution of this combination, directed the transfer and pro rata distribution by the New Jersey company of the stock held by it in the thirty-seven corporations to and among its stockholders; and the corporations and individual defendants were enjoined from conspiring or combining to restore such monopoly; and all agreements between the subsidiary corporations tending to produce or bring about further violations of the act were enjoined.

In the Tobacco case the court found that the individual defendants, twenty-nine in number, had been engaged in a successful effort to acquire complete dominion over the manufacture, sale and distribution of tobacco in this country and abroad, and that this had been done by combinations made with a purpose and effect to stifle competition, control prices and establish a monopoly, not only in the manufacture of tobacco, but also of tinfoil and licorice used in its manufacture and of its products of cigars, cigarettes and snuffs. The Tobacco suit presented a far more complicated and difficult case than the Standard Oil suit for a decree which would effectuate the will of the court and end the violation of the statute. There was here no single holding company as in the case of the Standard Oil trust. The main company was the American Tobacco company, a manufacturing, selling and holding company. The plan adopted to destroy the combination and restore competition involved the re-division of the capital and plants of the whole trust between some of the companies constituting the trust and new companies organized for the purposes of the decree and made parties to it, and numbering, new and old, fourteen.

SITUATION AFTER READJUSTMENT.

The American Tobacco company (old), readjusted capital, $92,000,000; the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco company (new), capital, $67,000,000; the P. Lorillard company (new), capital, $47,000,000, and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company (old), capital, $7,525,000, are chiefly engaged in the manufacture and sale of chewing and smoking tobacco and cigars. The former, one tinfol company is divided into two, one of $825,000 capital and the other of $400,000. The one snuff company is divided into three companies, one with a capital of $15,000,000, another with a capital of $8,000,000 and a third with a capital of $8,000,000. The licorice companies are two, one with a capital of $5,758,300 and another with a capital of $2,000,000. There is also the British-American Tobacco company, a British corporation, doing business abroad with a capital of $26,000,000; the Porto Rican Tobacco company, with a capital of $1,800,000, and the corporation of United Cigar Stores, with a capital of $9,000,000.

Under this arrangement each of the different kinds of business will be distributed between two or more companies, with a division of the prominent brands in the same tobacco products, so as to make competition not only possible but necessary. Thus the smoking tobacco business of the country is divided so that the present independent companies have 21.39 per cent, while the American Tobacco company will have 33.08 per cent, the Liggett & Meyers 20.05 per cent, the Lorillard company 22.82 per cent and the Reynolds company 2.66 per cent.

The stock of the other thirteen companies, both preferred and common, has been taken from the defendant American Tobacco company and has been distributed among its stockholders. All covenants restricting competition have been declared null and further performance of them has been enjoined. The preferred stock of the different companies has now been given voting power, which was denied it under the old organization. The ratio of the preferred stock to the common was as 73 to 40. This constitutes a very decided change in the character of the ownership and control of each company.

In the original suit there were twenty-nine defendants who were charged with being the conspirators through whom the illegal combination acquired and exercised its unlawful dominion. Under the decree these defendants will hold amounts of stock in the various distributee companies ranging from 41 per cent as a maximum to 23 1/4 per cent as a minimum, except in the case of one small company, the Porto Rican Tobacco company, in which they will hold 45 per cent. The twenty-nine individual defendants are enjoined for three years from buying any stock except from each other, and the group is thus prevented from extending its control during that period. All parties to the suit, and the new companies who are made parties, are enjoined perpetually from in any way effecting any combination between any of the companies in violation of the statute by way of resumption of the old trust. Each of the fourteen companies is enjoined from acquiring stock in any of the others. All these companies are enjoined from having common directors or officers, or common buying or selling agents, or common offices, or lending money to each other.

SIZE OF NEW COMPANIES.

Objection was made by certain independent tobacco companies that this settlement was unjust because it left companies with very large capital in active business, and that the settlement that would be effective to put all on an equality would be a division of the capital and plant of the trust into small fractions, in amount more nearly equal to that of each of the independent companies. This contention results from a misunderstanding of the antitrust law and its purpose. It is not intended thereby to prevent the accumulation of large capital in business enterprises in which such a combination can secure reduced cost of production, sale and distribution. It is directed against such an aggregation of capital only when its purpose is that of stifling competition, enhancing or controlling prices and establishing a monopoly. If we shall have by decree defeated these purposes and restored competition between the large units into which the capital and plant have been divided, we shall have accomplished the useful purpose of the statute.

CONFISCATION NOT THE PURPOSE OF THE STATUTE.

It is not the purpose of the statute to confiscate the property and capital of the offending trusts. Methods of punishment by fine or imprisonment of the individual offenders, by fine of the corporation or by forfeiture of its goods in transportation, are provided, but the proceeding in equity is a specific remedy to stop the operation of the trust by injunction and prevent the future use of the plant and capital in violation of the statute.

EFFECTIVENESS OF DECREE.

I venture to say that not in the history of American law has a decree more effective for such a purpose been entered by a court than that against the Tobacco trust. As Circuit Judge Noyes said in his judgment approving the decree:

"The extent to which it has been necessary to tear apart this combination and force it into new forms, with the attendant burdens, ought to demonstrate that the federal antitrust statute is a drastic statute, which accomplishes effective results; which, so long as it stands on the statute books, must be obeyed, and which cannot be disobeyed without incurring far reaching penalties. And, on the other hand, the successful reconstruction of this organization should teach that the effect of enforcing this statute is not to destroy, but to reconstruct—not to demolish, but to recreate in accordance with the conditions which the congress has declared shall exist among the people of the United States."

COMMON STOCK OWNERSHIP.

It has been assumed that the present pro rata and common ownership in all these companies by former stockholders of the trust would insure a continuance of the same old single control of all the companies into which the trust has by decree been disintegrated. This is erroneous and is based upon the assumed inefficacy and innocuousness of judicial injunctions. The companies are enjoined from co-operation or combination, they have different managers, directors, purchasing and sales agents. If all or many of the numerous stockholders, reaching into the thousands, attempt to secure concerted action of the companies with a view to the control of the market, their number is so large that such an attempt could not well be concealed, and its prime movers and all its participants would be at once subject to contempt proceedings and imprisonment of a summary character. The immediate result of the present situation will necessarily be activity by all the companies under different managers, and then competition must follow, or there will be activity by one company and stagnation by another. Only a short time will inevitably lead to a change in ownership of the stock, as all opportunity for continued co-operation must disappear. Those critics who speak of this disintegration in the trust as a mere change of garments have not given consideration to the inevitable working of the decree and understand little of the personal danger of competition to evade or set at naught the solemn injunction of a court whose object is made plain by the decree and whose inhibitions are set forth with a detail and comprehensiveness unexampled in the history of equity jurisprudence.

The effect of these two decisions has led to decrees dissolving the combination of manufacturers of electric lamps and a southern wholesale grocers' association, an interlocutory decree against the powder trust, with directions by the Circuit court compelling dissolution, and other combinations of a similar history are now negotiating with the department of justice looking to a disintegration by decree and reorganization in accordance with law. It seems possible to bring about these reorganizations without general business disturbance.

MOVEMENT FOR REPEAL OF THE ANTI-TRUST LAW.

But now that the antitrust act is seen to be effective for the accomplishment of the purpose of its enactment, we are met by a cry from many different quarters for its repeal. It is said to be obstructive of business progress, to be an attempt to restore old fashioned methods of destructive competition between small units and to make impossible those useful combinations of capital and the reduction of the cost of production that are essential to continued prosperity and normal growth.

In the recent decisions the Supreme court makes clear that there is nothing in the statute which condemns combinations of capital or mere bigness of plant organized to secure economy in production and a reduction of its cost. It is only when the purpose or necessary effect of the organization and maintenance of the combination or the aggregation of immense size are the stifling of competition, actual and potential, and the enhancing of prices and establishing a monopoly that the statute is violated. Mere size is no sin against the law. The merging of two or more business plants necessarily eliminates competition between the units thus combined, but this elimination is in contravention of the statute only when the combination is made for the purpose of ending this particular competition in order to secure control and enhance prices and create a monopoly.

The complaint is made of the statute that it is not sufficiently definite in its description of that which is forbidden to enable business men to avoid its violation. The suggestion is that we may have a combination of two corporations, which may run on for years, and that subsequently the attorney-general may conclude that it was a violation of the statute, and that which was supposed by the combiners to be innocent then turns out to be a combination in violation of the statute. The answer to this hypothetical case is that when men attempt to amass such stupendous capital as will enable them to suppress competition, control prices and establish a monopoly, they know the purpose of their acts. Men do not do such a thing without having it clearly in mind. If what they do is merely for the purpose of reducing the cost of production, without the thought of suppressing competition by use of the bigness of the plant they are creating, then they cannot be convicted at the time the union is made, nor can they be convicted later, unless it happen that later on they conclude to suppress competition and take the usual methods for doing so, and thus establish for themselves a monopoly. They can, in such a case, hardly complain if the motive which subsequently is disclosed is attributed by the court to the original combination.

NEW REMEDIES SUGGESTED.

Much is said of the repeal of this statute and of constructive legislation intended to accomplish the purpose and blaze a clear path for honest merchants and business men to follow. It may be that such a plan will be evolved, but I submit that the discussions which have been brought out in recent days by the fear of the continued execution of the antitrust law have produced nothing but glittering generalities and have offered no line of distinction or rule of action as definite and as clear as that which the Supreme court itself lays down in enforcing the statute.

I see no objection—and indeed I can see decided advantages—in the enactment of a law which shall describe and denounce methods of competition which are unfair and are badges of the unlawful purpose denounced in the antitrust law. The attempt and purpose to suppress a competitor by underselling him at a price so unprofitable as to drive him out of business, or the making of exclusive contracts with customers under which they are required to give up association with other manufacturers, and numerous kindred methods for stifling competition and effecting monopoly, should be described with sufficient accuracy in a criminal statute on the one hand to enable the government to shorten its task by prosecuting single misdoers instead of an entire conspiracy, and, on the other hand, to serve the purpose of pointing out more in detail to the business community what must be avoided.

FEDERAL INCORPORATION RECOMMENDED.

In a special message to congress on Jan. 7, 1910, I ventured to point out the disturbance to business that would probably attend the dissolution of these offending trusts. I said:

"But such an investigation and possible prosecution of corporations whose prosperity or destruction affects the comfort not only of stockholders but of millions of wage earners, employees and associated tradesmen, must necessarily tend to disturb the confidence of the business community, to dry up the now flowing sources of capital from its places of hoarding and produce a halt in our present prosperity that will cause suffering and strained circumstances among the innocent many for the faults of the guilty few. The question which I wish in this message to bring clearly to the consideration and discussion of congress is whether, in order to avoid such a possible business danger, something cannot be done by which these business combinations may be offered a means, without great financial disturbance, of changing the character, organization and extent of their business into one within the lines of the law under federal control and supervision, securing compliance with the antitrust statute.

"Generally, in the industrial combinations called 'trusts,' the principal business is the sale of goods in many states and in foreign markets; in other words, the interstate and foreign business far exceeds the business done in any one state. This fact will justify the federal government in granting a federal charter to such a combination to make and sell in interstate and foreign commerce the products of useful manufacture under such limitations as will secure a compliance with the antitrust law. It is possible so to frame a statute that while it offers protection to a federal company against harmful, vexatious and unnecessary invasion by the states, it shall subject it to reasonable taxation and control by the states with respect to its purely local business.

"Corporations organized under this act should be prohibited from acquiring and holding stock in other corporations (except for special reasons, upon approval by the proper federal authority), thus avoiding the creation under national auspices of the holding company with subordinate corporations in different states, which has been such an effective agency in the creation of the great trusts and monopolies.

"If the prohibition of the antitrust act against combinations in restraint of trade is to be effectively enforced, it is essential that the national government shall provide for the creation of national corporations to carry on a legitimate business throughout the United States. The conflicting laws of the different states of the union with respect to foreign corporations make it difficult, if not impossible, for one corporation to comply with their requirements so as to carry on business in a number of different states."

I renew the recommendation of the enactment of a general law providing for the voluntary formation of corporations to engage in trade and commerce among the states and with foreign nations. Every argument which was then advanced for such a law and every explanation which was at that time offered to possible objections have been confirmed by our experience since the enforcement of the antitrust statute has resulted in the actual dissolution of active commercial organizations.

It is even more manifest now than it was then that the denunciation of conspiracies in restraint of trade should not and does not mean the denial of organizations large enough to be intrusted with our interstate and foreign trade. It has been made more clear now than it was then that a purely negative statute like the antitrust law may well be supplemented by specific provisions for the building up and regulation of legitimate national and foreign commerce.

The drafting of the decrees in the dissolution of the present trusts, with a view to their reorganization into legitimate corporations, has made it especially apparent that the courts are not provided with the administrative machinery to make the necessary inquiries preparatory to reorganization, or to pursue such inquiries, and they should be empowered to invoke the aid of the bureau of corporations in determining the suitable reorganization of the disintegrated parts. The Circuit court and the attorney-general were greatly aided in framing the decree in the Tobacco trust dissolution by an expert from the bureau of corporations.

FEDERAL CORPORATION COMMISSION PROPOSED.

I do not set forth in detail the terms and sections of a statute which might supply the constructive legislation permitting and aiding the formation of combinations of capital into federal corporations. They should be subject to rigid rules as to their organization and procedure, including effective publicity, and to the closest supervision as to the issue of stock and bonds by an executive bureau or commission in the department of commerce and labor, to which in times of doubt they might well submit their proposed plans for future business. It must be distinctly understood that incorporation under a federal law could not exempt the company thus formed and its incorporators and managers from prosecution under the antitrust law for subsequent illegal conduct, but the publicity of its procedure and the opportunity for frequent consultation with the bureau or commission in charge of the incorporation as to the legitimate purpose of its transactions would offer it as great security against successful prosecutions for violations of the law as would be practical or wise.

Such a bureau or commission might well be invested also with the duty already referred to, of aiding courts in the dissolution and re-creation of trusts within the law. It should be an executive tribunal of the dignity and power of the comptroller of the currency or the interstate commerce commission, which now exercise supervisory power over important classes of corporations under federal regulation.

The drafting of such a federal incorporation law would offer ample opportunity to prevent many manifest evils in corporate management to-day, including irresponsibility of control in the hands of the few who are not the real owners.

INCORPORATION VOLUNTARY.

I recommend that the federal charters thus to be granted shall be voluntary, at least until experience justifies mandatory provisions. The benefit to be derived from the operation of great businesses under the protection of such a charter would attract all who are anxious to keep within the lines of the law. Other large combinations that fail to take advantage of the federal incorporation will not have a right to complain if their failure is ascribed to unwillingness to submit their transactions to the careful official scrutiny, competent supervision and publicity attendant upon the enjoyment of such a charter.

ONLY SUPPLEMENTAL LEGISLATION NEEDED.

The opportunity thus suggested for federal incorporation, it seems to me, is suitable constructive legislation needed to facilitate the squaring of great industrial enterprises to the rule of action laid down by the antitrust law. This statute as construed by the Supreme court must continue to be the line of distinction for legitimate business. It must be enforced, unless we are to banish individualism from all business and reduce it to one common system of regulation or control of prices like that which now prevails with respect to public utilities, and which when applied to all business would be a long step toward state socialism. The antitrust act is the expression of the effort of a freedom loving people to preserve equality of opportunity. It is the result of the confident determination of such a people to maintain their future growth by preserving uncontrolled and unrestricted the enterprise of the individual, his industry, his ingenuity, his intelligence and his independent courage.

For twenty years or more this statute has been upon the statute book. All knew its general purpose and approved. Many of its violators were cynical over its assumed impotence. It seemed impossible of enforcement. Slowly the mills of the courts ground, and only gradually did the majesty of the law assert itself. Many of its statesmen-authors died before it became a living force, and they and others saw the evil grow which they had hoped to destroy. Now its efficacy is seen; now its power is heavy; now its object is near achievement. Now we hear the call for its repeal on the plea that it interferes with business prosperity, and we are advised, in most general terms, how by some other statute and in some other way the evil we are just stamping out can be cured, if we only abandon this work of twenty years and try another experiment for another term of years.

It is said that the act has not done good. Can this be said in the face of the effect of the Northern Securities decree? That decree was in no way so drastic or inhibitive in detail as either the Standard Oil decree or the Tobacco decree, but did it not stop for all time the then powerful movement toward the control of all the railroads of the country in a single hand? Such a one-man power could not have been a healthful influence in the republic, even though exercised under the general supervision of an interstate commission.

Do we desire to make such ruthless combinations and monopolies lawful? When all energies are directed, not toward the reduction of the cost of production for the public benefit by a healthful competition, but toward new ways and means for making permanent in a few hands the absolute control of the conditions and prices prevailing in the whole field of industry, then individual enterprise and effort will be paralyzed and the spirit of commercial freedom will be dead.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.
The White House, Dec. 5, 1911.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE (NO. 2).

To the Senate and House of Representatives: The relations of the United States with other countries have continued during the last twelve months upon a basis of the usual good will and friendly intercourse.

ARBITRATION.

The year just past marks an important general movement on the part of the powers for broader arbitration. In the recognition of the manifold benefits to mankind in the extension of the policy of the settlement of international disputes by arbitration rather than by war, and in response to a widespread demand for an advance in that direction on the part of the people of the United States and of Great Britain and of France, new arbitration treaties were negotiated last spring with Great Britain and France, the terms of which were designed, as expressed in the preamble of these treaties, to extend the scope and obligations of the policy of arbitration adopted in our present treaties with those governments. To pave the way for this treaty with the United States, Great Britain negotiated an important modification in its alliance with Japan, and the French government also expedited the negotiations with signal good will. The new treaties have been submitted to the senate and are awaiting its advice and consent to their ratification. All the essentials of these important treaties have long been known, and it is my earnest hope that they will receive prompt and favorable action.

CLAIM OF ALSOP & CO. SETTLED.

I am glad to report that on July 5 last the American claim of Alsop & Co. against the government of Chile was finally disposed of by the decision of his Britannic majesty George V., to whom, as amiable compositeur, the matter had been referred for determination. His majesty made an award of nearly $1,000,000 to the claimants, which was promptly paid by Chile. The settlement of this controversy has happily eliminated from the relations between the republic of Chile and the United States the only question which for two decades had given the two foreign offices any serious concern and makes possible the unobstructed development of the relations of friendship which it has been the aim of this government in every possible way to further and cultivate.

In further illustration of the practical and beneficial application of the principle of arbitration and the underlying broad spirit of conciliation, I am happy to advert to the part of the United States in facilitating amicable settlement of disputes which menaced the peace between Panama and Costa Rica and between Haiti and the Dominican republic.

Since the date of their independence Colombia and Costa Rica had been seeking a solution of a boundary dispute, which came as an heritage from Colombia to the new republic of Panama upon its beginning life as an independent nation. Although the disputants had submitted this question for decision to the president of France under the terms of an arbitration treaty, the exact interpretation of the provisions of the award rendered had been a matter of serious disagreement between the two countries, both contending for widely different lines even under the terms of the decision. Subsequently and since 1903 this boundary question had been the subject of fruitless diplomatic negotiations between the parties. In January, 1910, at the request of both governments, the agents representing them met in conference at the department of state and subsequently concluded a protocol submitting this long pending controversy to the arbitral judgment of the chief justice of the United States, who consented to act in this capacity. A boundary commission, according to the international agreement, has now been appointed, and it is expected that the arguments will shortly proceed and that this long standing dispute will be honorably and satisfactorily terminated.

Again, a few months ago it appeared that the Dominican republic and Haiti were about to enter upon hostilities because of complications growing out of an acrimonious boundary dispute which the efforts of many years had failed to solve. The government of the United States, by a friendly interposition of good offices, succeeded in prevailing upon the parties to place their reliance upon some form of pacific settlement. Accordingly, on the friendly suggestion of his government, the two governments empowered commissioners to meet at Washington in conference at the state department in order to arrange the terms of submission to arbitration of the boundary controversy.

CHAMIZAL ARBITRATION NOT SATISFACTORY.

Our arbitration of the Chamizal boundary question with Mexico was unfortunately abortive, but with the earnest efforts on the part of both governments which its importance commands, it is felt that an early practical adjustment should prove possible.

During the past year the republic of Venezuela celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of its independence. The United States sent, in honor of this event, a special embassy to Caracas, where the cordial reception and generous hospitality shown it were most gratifying as a further proof of the good relations and friendship existing between that country and the United States.

The recent political events in Mexico received attention from this government because of the exceedingly delicate and difficult situation created along our southern border and the necessity for taking measures properly to safeguard American interests. The government of the United States, in its desire to secure a proper observance and enforcement of the so-called neutrality statutes of the federal government, issued directions to the appropriate officers to exercise a diligent and vigilant regard for the requirements of such rules and laws. Although a condition of actual armed conflict existed, there was no official recognition of belligerence involving the technical neutrality obligations of international law.

On the 6th of March last, in the absence of the secretary of state, I had a personal interview with Mr. Wilson, the ambassador of the United States to Mexico, in which he reported to me that the conditions in Mexico were much more critical than the press dispatches disclosed; that President Diaz was on a volcano of popular uprising; that the small outbreaks which had occurred were only symptomatic of the whole condition; that a very large per cent of the people were in sympathy with the insurrection; that a general explosion was probable at any time, in which case he feared that the 40,000 or more American residents in Mexico might be assailed, and that the very large American investments might be injured or destroyed.

After a conference with the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, I thought it was wise to assemble an army division of full strength at San Antonio, Tex., a brigade of three regiments at Galveston, a brigade of infantry in the Los Angeles district of southern California, together with a squadron of battle ships and cruisers and transports at Galveston and a small squadron of ships at San Diego. At the same time, through our representative at the City of Mexico, I expressed to President Diaz the hope that no apprehensions might result from unfounded conjecture as to these military maneuvers, and assured him that they had no significance which should cause concern to his government.

The mobilization was effected with great promptness, and on the 15th of March, through the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, in a letter addressed to the chief of staff, I issued the following instructions:

"It seems my duty as commander in chief to place troops in sufficient number where, if congress shall direct that they enter Mexico to save American lives and property, an effective movement may be promptly made. Meantime the movement of the troops to Texas and elsewhere near the boundary, accompanied with sincere assurances of the utmost good will toward the present Mexican government and with larger and more frequent patrols along the border to prevent insurrectionary expeditions from American soil, will hold up the hands of the existing government and will have a healthy moral effect to prevent attacks upon Americans and their property in any subsequent general internecine strife. Again, the sudden mobilization of a division of troops has been a great test of our army and full of useful instruction, while the maneuvers that are thus made possible can occupy the troops and their officers to great advantage.

"The assumption by the press that I contemplate intervention on Mexican soil to protect American lives or property is of course gratuitous, because I seriously doubt whether I have such authority under any circumstances, and if I had I would not exercise it without express congressional approval. Indeed, as you know, I have already declined, without Mexican consent, to order a troop of cavalry to protect the breakwater we are constructing just across the border in Mexico at the mouth of the Colorado river to save the Imperial valley, although the insurgents had scattered the Mexican troops and were taking our horses and supplies and frightening our workmen away. My determined purpose, however, is to be in a position so that when danger to American lives and property in Mexico threatens and the existing government is rendered helpless by the insurrection, I can promptly execute congressional orders to protect them, with effect.

"Meantime I send you this letter, through the secretary, to call your attention to some things in connection with the presence of the division in the southwest which have doubtless occurred to you, but which I wish to emphasize.

"In the first place, I want to make the mobilization a first-class training for the army, and I wish you would give your time and that of the war college to advising and carrying out maneuvers of a useful character, and plan to continue to do this during the next three months. By that time we may expect that either Ambassador Wilson's fears will have been realized and chaos and its consequences have ensued, or that the present government of Mexico will have so readjusted matters as to secure tranquillity—a result devoutly to be wished. The troops can then be returned to their posts. I understood from you in Washington that Gen. Aleshire said that you could probably meet all the additional expense of this whole movement out of the present appropriations if the troops continue in Texas for three months. I sincerely hope this is so. I observe from the newspapers that you have no blank cartridges, but I presume that this is an error, or that it will be easy to procure those for use as soon as your maneuvers begin.

"Second, Texas is a state ordinarily peaceful, but you cannot put 20,000 troops into it without running some risk of a collision between the people of the state, and especially the Mexicans who live in Texas near the border and who sympathize with the insurgents, and the federal soldiers. For that reason I beg you to be as careful as you can to prevent friction of any kind. We were able in Cuba, with the army of pacification there of something more than 5,000 troops, to maintain them for a year without any trouble, and I hope you can do the same thing in Texas. Please give your attention to this and advise all the officers in command of the necessity for very great circumspection in this regard.

"Third, one of the great troubles in the concentration of troops is the danger of disease, and I suppose that you have adopted the most modern methods for the preventing and, if necessary, for stamping out epidemics. That is so much a part of a campaign that it hardly seems necessary for me to call attention to it.

"Finally, I wish you to examine the question of the patrol of the border and put as many troops on that work as is practicable, and more than are now engaged in it, in order to prevent the use of our borderland for the carrying on of the insurrection. I have given assurances to the Mexican ambassador on this point.

"I sincerely hope that this experience will always be remembered by the army and navy as a useful means of education, and I should be greatly disappointed if it resulted in any injury or disaster to our forces from any cause. I have taken a good deal of responsibility in ordering this mobilization, but I am ready to answer for it if only you and those under you use the utmost care to avoid the difficulties which I have pointed out.

"You may have a copy of this letter made and left with Gen. Carter and such other generals in command as you may think wise and necessary to guide them in their course, but to be regarded as confidential."

I am more than happy to record here the fact that all apprehensions as to the effect of the presence of so large a military force in Texas proved groundless; no disturbances occurred; the conduct of the troops was exemplary and the public reception and treatment of them was all that could have been desired, and this notwithstanding the presence of a large number of Mexican refugees in the border territory.

From time to time communications were received from Ambassador Wilson, who had returned to Mexico, confirming the view that the massing of American troops in the neighborhood had had good effect. By dispatch of April 3, 1911, the ambassador said:

"The continuing gravity of the situation here and the chaos that would ensue should the constitutional authorities be eventually overthrown, thus greatly increasing the danger to which American lives and property are already subject, confirm the wisdom of the president in taking those military precautions which, making every allowance for the dignity and the sovereignty of a friendly state, are due to our nationals abroad.

"Charged as I am with the responsibility of safeguarding these lives and property, I am bound to say to the department that our military dispositions on the frontier have produced an effective impression on the Mexican mind, and may, at any moment, prove to be the only guarantee for the safety of our nationals and their property. If it should eventuate that conditions here require more active measures by the president and congress, sporadic attacks might be made upon the lives and property of our nationals, but the ultimate result would be order and adequate protection."

The insurrection continued and resulted in engagements between the regular Mexican troops and the insurgents, and this along the border, so that in several instances bullets from the contending forces struck American citizens engaged in their lawful occupations on American soil.

Proper protests were made against these invasions of American rights to the Mexican authorities. On April 17, 1911, I received the following telegram from the governor of Arizona:

"As a result of to-day's fighting across the international line, but within gunshot range of the heart of Douglas, five Americans wounded on this side of the line. Everything points to repetition of these casualties on to-morrow, and while the federals seem disposed to keep their agreement not to fire into Douglas, the position of the insurrectionists is such that when fighting occurs on the east and southeast of the intrenchments people living in Douglas are put in danger of their lives. In my judgment radical measures are needed to protect our innocent people, and if anything can be done to stop the fighting at Agua Prieta the situation calls for such action. It is impossible to safeguard the people of Douglas unless the town be vacated. Can anything be done to relieve situation, now acute?"

After a conference with the secretary of state, the following telegram was sent to Gov. Sloan, on April 18, 1911, and made public:

"Your dispatch received. Have made urgent demand upon Mexican government to issue instructions to prevent firing across border by Mexican federal troops, and am awaiting reply. Meantime I have sent direct warning to the Mexican and insurgent forces near Douglas. I infer from your dispatch that both parties attempt to heed the warning, but that in the strain and exigency of the contest wild bullets still find their way into Douglas. The situation might justify me in ordering our troops to cross the border and attempt to stop the fighting, or to fire upon both combatants from the American side. But if I take this step I must face the possibility of resistance and greater bloodshed, and also the danger of having our motives misconstrued and misrepresented, and of thus inflaming Mexican popular indignation against many of our Americans now in Mexico and jeopardizing their lives and property. The pressure for general intervention under such conditions it might not be practicable to resist. It is impossible to foresee or reckon the consequences of such a course, and we must use the greatest self-restraint to avoid it. Pending my urgent representation to the Mexican government, I cannot therefore order the troops at Douglas to cross the border, but I must ask you and the local authorities, in case the same danger recurs, to direct the people of Douglas to place themselves where bullets cannot reach them and thus avoid casualty. I am loath to endanger Americans in Mexico, where they are necessarily exposed, by taking a radical step to prevent injury to Americans on our side of the border who can avoid it by a temporary inconvenience."

I am glad to say that no further invasion of American rights of any substantial character occurred.

The presence of a large military and naval force available for prompt action near the Mexican border proved to be most fortunate under the somewhat trying conditions presented by this invasion of American rights. Had no movement theretofore taken place and because of these events it had been necessary then to bring about the mobilization it must have had sinister significance. On the other hand, the presence of the troops before and at the time of the unfortunate killing and wounding of American citizens at Douglas made clear that the restraint exercised by our government in regard to this occurrence was not due to a lack of force or power to deal with it promptly and aggressively, but was due to a real desire to use every means possible to avoid direct intervention in the affairs of our neighbor, whose friendship we valued and were most anxious to retain.

The policy and action of this government were based upon an earnest friendliness for the Mexican people as a whole, and it is a matter of gratification to note that this attitude of strict impartiality as to all factions in Mexico and of sincere friendship for the neighboring nation, without regard for party allegiance, has been generally recognized and has resulted in an even closer and more sympathetic understanding between the two republics and a warmer regard one for the other. Action to suppress violence and restore tranquility throughout the Mexican republic was of peculiar interest to this government in that it concerned the safeguarding of American life and property in that country. The government of the United States had occasion to accord permission for the passage of a body of Mexican rurales through Douglas, Ariz., to Tia Juana, Mexico, for the suppression of general lawlessness which had for some time existed in the region of northern Lower California.

On May 25, 1911, President Diaz resigned and Senor de la Barra was chosen provisional president. Elections for president and vice-president were thereafter held throughout the republic, and Senor Francisco I. Madero was formally declared elected on Oct. 15 to the chief magistracy. On Nov. 6 President Madero entered upon the duties of his office.

Since the inauguration of President Madero a plot has been unearthed against the present government, to begin a new insurrection. Pursuing the same consistent policy which this administration has adopted from the beginning, it directed an investigation into the conspiracy charged, and this investigation has resulted in the indictment of Gen. Bernardo Reyes and others and the seizure of a number of officers and men and horses and accoutrements assembled upon the soil of Texas for the purpose of invading Mexico. Similar proceedings have been taken during the insurrection against the Diaz government, resulting in the indictment and prosecution of persons found to be engaged in violating the neutrality laws of the United States in aid of that uprising.

The record of this government in respect of the recognition of constituted authority in Mexico therefore is clear.

As to the situation in Central America, I have taken occasion in the past to emphasize most strongly the importance that should be attributed to the consummation of the conventions between the republics of Nicaragua and of Honduras and this country, and I again earnestly recommend that the necessary advice and consent of the senate be accorded to these treaties, which will make it possible for these Central American republics to enter upon an era of genuine economic national development. The government of Nicaragua, which has already taken favorable action on the convention, has found it necessary, pending the exchange of final ratifications, to enter into negotiations with American bankers for the purpose of securing a temporary loan to relieve the present financial tension. In connection with this temporary loan and with the hope of consummating, through the final operation of the convention, a complete and lasting economic regeneration, the government of Nicaragua has also decided to engage an American citizen as collector-general of customs.

The claims commission, on which the services of two American citizens have been sought, and the work of the American financial adviser should accomplish a lasting good of inestimable benefit to the prosperity, commerce and peace of the republic. In considering the ratification of the conventions with Nicaragua and Honduras, there rests with the United States the heavy responsibility of the fact that their rejection here might destroy the progress made and consign the republics concerned to still deeper submergence in bankruptcy, revolution and national jeopardy.

Our relations with the republic of Panama, peculiarly important, due to mutual obligations and the vast interests created by the canal, have continued in the usual friendly manner, and we have been glad to make appropriate expression of our attitude of sympathetic interest in the endeavors of our neighbor in undertaking the development of the rich resources of the country. With reference to the internal political affairs of the republic, our obvious concern is in the maintenance of public peace and constitutional order and the fostering of the general interests created by the actual relations of the two countries, without the manifestation of any preference for the success of either of the political parties.

THE PAN AMERICAN UNION.

The Pan American union, formerly known as the bureau of American republics, maintained by the joint contributions of all the American nations, has during the last year enlarged its practical work as an international organization and continues to prove its usefulness as an agency for the mutual development of commerce, better acquaintance and closer intercourse between the United States and her sister American republics.

THE FAR EAST.

THE CHINESE LOANS.

The past year has been marked in our relations with China by the conclusion of two important international loans, one for the construction of the Hukuang railways, the other for the carrying out of the currency reform to which China was pledged by treaties with the United States, Great Britain and Japan, of which mention was made in my last annual message.

It will be remembered that early in 1909 an agreement was consummated among British, French and German financial groups whereby they proposed to lend the Chinese government funds for the construction of railways in the provinces of Hunan and Hupeh, reserving for their nationals the privilege of engineering the construction of the lines and of furnishing the materials required for the work. After negotiations with the governments and groups concerned an agreement was reached whereby American, British, French and German nationals should participate upon equal terms in this important and useful undertaking. Thereupon the financial groups, supported by their respective governments, began negotiations with the Chinese government which terminated in a loan to China of $30,000,000, with the privilege of increasing the amount to $50,000,000. The co-operative construction of these trunk lines should be of immense advantage, materially and otherwise, to China and should greatly facilitate the development of the bountiful resources of the empire. On the other hand, a large portion of these funds is to be expended for materials, American products having equal preference with those of the other three lending nations, and as the contract provides for branches and extensions subsequently to be built on the same terms, the opportunities for American materials will reach considerable proportions.

Knowing the interest of the United States in the reform of Chinese currency, the Chinese government, in the autumn of 1910, sought the assistance of the American government to procure funds with which to accomplish that all important reform. In the course of the subsequent negotiations there was combined with the proposed currency loan one for certain industrial developments in Manchuria, the two loans aggregating the sum of $50,000,000. While this was originally to be solely an American enterprise, the American government, consistently with its desire to secure a sympathetic and practical co-operation of the great powers toward maintaining the principle of equality of opportunity and the administrative integrity of China, urged the Chinese government to admit to participation in the currency loan the associates of the American group in the Hukuang loan. While of immense importance in itself, the reform contemplated in making this loan is but preliminary to other and more comprehensive fiscal reforms which will be of incalculable benefit to China and foreign interests alike, since they will strengthen the Chinese empire and promote the rapid development of international trade.

When these negotiations were begun it was understood that a financial adviser was to be employed by China in connection with the reform, and in order that the absolute equality in all respects among the lending nations might be scrupulously observed, the American government proposed the nomination of a neutral adviser, which was agreed to by China and the other governments concerned. On Sept. 23, 1911, Dr. Vissering, president of the Dutch Java bank and a financier of wide experience in the orient, was recommended to the Chinese government for the post of monetary adviser.

Especially important at the present, when the ancient Chinese empire is shaken by civil war incidental to its awakening to the many influences and activities of modernization, are the co-operative policy of good understanding which has been fostered by the international projects referred to above and the general sympathy of view among all the powers interested in the far east. While safeguarding the interests of our nationals, this government is using its best efforts in continuance of its traditional policy of sympathy and friendship toward the Chinese empire and its people, with the confident hope for their economic and administrative development, and with the constant disposition to contribute to their welfare in all proper ways consistent with an attitude of strict impartiality as between contending factions.

For the first time in the history of the two countries, a Chinese cruiser, the Haichi, under the command of Admiral Ching, recently visited New York, where the officers and men were given a cordial welcome.

NEW JAPANESE TREATY.

The treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and Japan, signed in 1894, would by a strict interpretation of its provisions have terminated on July 17, 1912. Japan's general treaties with the other powers, however, terminated in 1911, and the Japanese government expressed an earnest desire to conduct the negotiations for a new treaty with the United States simultaneously with its negotiations with the other powers. There were a number of important questions involved in the treaty, including the immigration of laborers, revision of the customs tariff and the right of Americans to hold real estate in Japan. The United States consented to waive all technicalities and to enter at once upon negotiations for a new treaty on the understanding that there should be a continuance throughout the life of the treaty of the same effective measures for the restriction of immigration of laborers to American territory which had been in operation with entire satisfaction to both governments since 1908. The Japanese government accepted this basis of negotiation, and a new treaty was quickly concluded, resulting in a highly satisfactory settlement of the other questions referred to.

A satisfactory adjustment has also been effected of the questions growing out of the annexation of Korea by Japan.

The recent visit of Admiral Count Togo to the United States as the nation's guest afforded a welcome opportunity to demonstrate the friendly feeling so happily existing between the two countries.

SIAM.

There has been a change of sovereigns in Siam and the American minister at Bangkok was accredited in a special capacity to represent the United States at the coronation ceremony of the new king.

EUROPE AND THE NEAR EAST.

In Europe and the near east, during the past twelvemonth, there has been at times considerable political unrest. The Moroccan question, which for some months was the cause of great anxiety, happily appears to have reached a stage at which it need no longer be regarded with concern. The Ottoman empire was occupied for a period by strife in Albania and is now at war with Italy. In Greece and the Balkan countries the disquieting potentialities of this situation have been more or less felt. Persia has been the scene of a long internal struggle. These conditions have been the cause of uneasiness in European diplomacy, but thus far without direct political concern to the United States.

In the war which unhappily exists between Italy and Turkey this government has no direct political interest, and I took occasion at the suitable time to issue a proclamation of neutrality in that conflict. At the same time all necessary steps have been taken to safeguard the personal interests of American citizens and organizations in so far as affected by the war.

COMMERCE WITH THE NEAR EAST.

In spite of the attendant economic uncertainties and detriments to commerce, the United States has gained markedly in its commercial standing with certain of the nations of the near east. Turkey, especially, is beginning to come into closer relations with the United States through the new interest of American manufacturers and exporters in the possibilities of those regions, and it is hoped that foundations are being laid for a large and mutually beneficial exchange of commodities between the two countries. This new interest of Turkey in American goods is indicated by the fact that a party of prominent merchants from a large city in Turkey recently visited the United States to study conditions of manufacture and export here and to get into personal touch with American merchants, with a view to co-operating more intelligently in opening up the markets of Turkey and the adjacent countries to our manufactures. Another indication of this new interest of America in the commerce of the near east is the recent visit of a large party of American merchants and manufacturers to central and eastern Europe, where they were entertained by prominent officials and organizations of the large cities, and new bonds of friendship and understanding were established which cannot but lead to closer and greater commercial interchange.

CORONATION OF KING GEORGE V.

The 22d of June of the present year marked the coronation of His Britannic Majesty King George V. In honor of this auspicious occasion I sent a special embassy to London. The courteous and cordial welcome extended to this government's representatives by his majesty and the people of Great Britain has further emphasized the strong bonds of friendship happily existing between the two nations.

SETTLEMENT WITH GREAT BRITAIN.

As the result of a determined effort on the part of both Great Britain and the United States to settle all of their outstanding differences a number of treaties have been entered into between the two countries in recent years, by which nearly all of the unsettled questions between them of any importance have either been adjusted by agreement or arrangements made for their settlement by arbitration. A number of the unsettled questions referred to consist of pecuniary claims presented by each country against the other, and in order that as many of these claims as possible should be settled by arbitration a special agreement for that purpose was entered into between the two governments on the 18th day of August, 1910, in accordance with article II. of the general arbitration treaty with Great Britain of April 4, 1903. Pursuant to the provisions of this special agreement a schedule of claims has already been agreed upon, and the special agreement, together with this schedule, received the approval of the senate when submitted to it for that purpose at the last session of congress. Negotiations between the two governments for the preparation of an additional schedule of claims are already well advanced, and it is my intention to submit such schedule as soon as it is agreed upon to the senate for its approval, in order that the arbitration proceedings may be undertaken at an early date. In this connection the attention of congress is particularly called to the necessity for an appropriation to cover the expense incurred in submitting these claims to arbitration.

PRESENTATION OF VON STEUBEN STATUE.

In pursuance of the act of congress, approved June 23, 1910, the secretary of state and the joint committee on the library entered into a contract with the sculptor, Albert Jaegers, for the execution of a bronze replica of the statue of Gen. von Steuben erected in Washington, for presentation to his majesty the German emperor and the German nation in recognition of the gift of the statue of Frederick the Great made by the emperor to the people of the United States.

The presentation was made on Sept. 2 last by representatives whom I commissioned as the special mission of this government for the purpose.

The German emperor has conveyed to me by telegraph, on his own behalf and that of the German people, an expression of appreciative thanks for this action of congress.

RUSSIA AND AMERICA.

By direction of the state department our ambassador to Russia has recently been having a series of conferences with the minister of foreign affairs of Russia with a view to securing a clearer understanding and construction of the treaty of 1832 between Russia and the United States and the modification of any existing Russian regulations which may be found to interfere in any way with the full recognition of the rights of American citizens under this treaty. I believe that the government of Russia is addressing itself seriously to the need of changing the present practice under the treaty and that sufficient progress has been made to warrant the continuance of those conferences in the hope that there may soon be removed any justification of the complaints of treaty violation now prevalent in this country.

I expect that immediately after the Christmas recess I shall be able to make a further communication to congress on this subject.

LIBERIA.

Negotiations for the amelioration of conditions found to exist in Liberia by the American commission, undertaken through the department of state, have been concluded and it is only necessary for certain formalities to be arranged in securing the loan which it is hoped will place that republic on a practical financial and economic footing.

RECOGNITION OF PORTUGUESE REPUBLIC.

The national constituent assembly, regularly elected by the vote of the Portuguese people, having on June 19 last unanimously proclaimed a republican form of government, the official recognition of the government of the United States was given to the new republic in the afternoon of the same day.

SPITZBERGEN ISLANDS.

Negotiations for the betterment of conditions existing in the Spitzbergen islands and the adjustment of conflicting claims of American citizens and Norwegian subjects to lands in that archipelago are still in progress.

The supplementary protocol to The Hague convention for the establishment of an international prize court, mentioned in my last annual message, embodying stipulations providing for an alternative procedure which would remove the constitutional objection to that part of The Hague convention which provides that there may be an appeal to the proposed court from the decisions of national courts, has received the signature of the governments parties to the original convention and has been ratified by the government of the United States, together with the prize court convention.

The deposit of the ratifications with the government of the Netherlands awaits action by the powers on the declaration, signed at London on Feb. 25, 1909, of the rules of international law to be recognized within the meaning of article VII. of The Hague convention for the establishment of an international prize court.

The fur seal controversy, which for nearly twenty-five years has been the source of serious friction between the United States and the powers bordering upon the north Pacific ocean, whose subjects have been permitted to engage in pelagic sealing against the fur seal herds having their breeding grounds within the jurisdiction of the United States, has at last been satisfactorily adjusted by the conclusion of the north Pacific sealing convention entered into between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Russia on the 7th of July last. This convention is a conservation measure of very great importance, and if it is carried out in the spirit of reciprocal concession and advantage upon which it is based there is every reason to believe that not only will it result in preserving the fur seal herds of the north Pacific ocean and restoring them to their former value for the purposes of commerce, but also that it will afford a permanently satisfactory settlement of a question the only other solution of which seemed to be the total destruction of the fur seals. In another aspect, also, this convention is of importance in that it furnishes an illustration of the feasibility of securing a general international game law for the protection of other mammals of the sea, the preservation of which is of importance to all the nations of the world.

The attention of congress is especially called to the necessity for legislation on the part of the United States for the purpose of fulfilling the obligations assumed under this convention, to which the senate gave its advice and consent on the 24th day of July last.

INDUSTRIAL PROPERTY UNION.

The conference of the International Union for the Protection of Industrial Property, which, under the authority of congress, convened at Washington on May 16, 1911, closed its labors on June 2, 1911, by the signature of three acts, as follows:

(1) A convention revising the Paris convention of March 20, 1883, for the protection of industrial property, as modified by the additional act signed at Brussels on Dec. 14, 1900;

(2) An arrangement to replace the arrangement signed at Madrid on April 14, 1891, for the international registration of trade marks, and the additional act with regard thereto signed at Brussels on Dec. 14, 1900; and

(3) An arrangement to replace the arrangement signed at Madrid on April 14, 1891, relating to the repression of false indication of production of merchandise.

The United States is a signatory of the first convention only, and this will be promptly submitted to the senate.

INTERNATIONAL OPIUM COMMISSION.

In a special message transmitted to the congress on the 7th of January, 1911, in which I concurred in the recommendations made by the secretary of state in regard to certain needful legislation for the control of our interstate and foreign traffic in opium and other menacing drugs, I quoted from my annual message of Dec. 7, 1909, in which I announced that the results of the international opium commission held at Shanghai in February, 1909, at the invitation of the United States, had been laid before this government; that the report of that commission showed that China was making remarkable progress and admirable efforts toward the eradication of the opium evil; that the interested governments had not permitted their commercial interests to prevent their co-operation in this reform; and, as a result of collateral investigations of the opium question in this country, I recommended that the manufacture, sale and use of opium in the United States should be more rigorously controlled by legislation.

Prior to that time and in continuation of the policy of this government to secure the co-operation of the interested nations the United States proposed an international opium conference with full powers for the purpose of clothing with the force of international law the resolutions adopted by the above mentioned commission, together with their essential corollaries. The other powers concerned cordially responded to the proposal of this government, and, I am glad to be able to announce, representatives of all the powers assembled in conference at The Hague on the first of this month.

Since the passage of the opium exclusion act more than twenty states have been animated to modify their pharmacy laws and bring them in accord with the spirit of that act, thus stamping out, to a measure, the intrastate traffic in opium and other habit forming drugs. But, although I have urged on the congress the passage of certain measures for federal control of the interstate and foreign traffic in these drugs, no action has yet been taken. In view of the fact that there is now sitting at The Hague so important a conference, which has under review the municipal laws of the different nations for the mitigation of their opium and other allied evils, a conference which will certainly deal with the international aspects of these evils, it seems to me most essential that the congress should take immediate action on the antinarcotic legislation to which I have already called attention by a special message.

BUENOS AIRES CONVENTIONS.

The four important conventions signed at the fourth Pan American conference at Buenos Aires, providing for the regular of trade marks, patents and copyrights, and for the arbitration of pecuniary claims, have, with the advice and consent of the senate, been ratified on the part of the United States and the ratifications have been deposited with the government of the Argentine republic in accordance with the requirements of the conventions. I am not advised that similar action has been taken by any other of the signatory governments.

One of the notable advances in international morality accomplished in recent years was an arrangement entered into on April 13 of the present year between the United States and other powers for the repression of the circulation of obscene publications.

In my last annual message I referred to the tariff negotiations of the department of state with foreign countries in connection with the application, by a series of proclamations, of the minimum tariff of the United States to importations from the several countries, and I stated that, in its general operation, section 2 of the new tariff law had proved a guaranty of continued commercial peace, although there were, unfortunately, instances where foreign governments dealt arbitrarily with American interests within their jurisdiction in a manner injurious and inequitable. During the past year some instances of discriminatory treatment have been removed, but I regret to say that there remain a few cases of differential treatment adverse to the commerce of the United States. While none of these instances now appears to amount to undue discrimination in the sense of section 2 of the tariff law of Aug. 5, 1909, they are all exceptions to that complete degree of equality of tariff treatment that the department of state has consistently sought to obtain for American commerce abroad.

While the double tariff feature of the tariff law of 1909 has been amply justified by the results achieved in removing former and preventing new undue discriminations against American commerce, it is believed that the time has come for the amendment of this feature of the law in such way as to provide a graduated means of meeting varying degrees of discriminatory treatment of American commerce in foreign countries as well as to protect the financial interests abroad of American citizens against arbitrary and injurious treatment on the part of foreign governments through either legislative or administrative measures.

It would also seem desirable that the maximum tariff of the United States should embrace within its present the free list, which is not the case at the present time in order that it might have reasonable significance to the governments of those countries from which the importations into the United States are confined virtually to articles on the free list.

The fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, shows great progress in the development of American trade. It was noteworthy as marking the highest record of exports of American products to foreign countries, the valuation being in excess of $2,000,000,000. These exports showed a gain over the preceding year of more than $300,000,000.

FACILITIES FOR FOREIGN TRADE.

There is widespread appreciation expressed by the business interests of the country as regards the practical value of the facilities now offered by the department of state and the department of commerce and labor for the furtherance of American commerce. Conferences with their officers at Washington who have an expert knowledge of trade conditions in foreign countries and with consular officers and commercial agents of the department of commerce and labor who, while on leave of absence, visit the principal industrial centers of the United States, have been found of great value. These trade conferences are regarded as a particularly promising method of governmental aid in foreign trade promotion. The department of commerce and labor has arranged to give publicity to the expected arrival and the itinerary of consular officers and commercial agents while on leave in the United States, in order that trade organizations may arrange for conferences with them.

As I have indicated, it is increasingly clear that to obtain and maintain that equity and substantial equality of treatment essential to the flourishing foreign trade, which becomes year by year more important to the industrial and commercial welfare of the United States, we should have a flexibility of tariff sufficient for the give and take of negotiation by the department of state on behalf of our commerce and industry.

NEED FOR AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE.

I need hardly reiterate the conviction that there should speedily be built up an American merchant marine. This is necessary to assure favorable transportation facilities to our great ocean borne commerce as well as to supplement the navy with an adequate reserve of ships and men. It would have the economic advantage of keeping at home part of the vast sums now paid foreign shipping for carrying American goods. All the great commercial nations pay heavy subsidies to their merchant marine, so that it is obvious that without some wise aid from the congress the United States must lag behind in the matter of merchant marine in its present anomalous position.

Legislation to facilitate the extension of American banks to foreign countries is another matter in which our foreign trade needs assistance.

CHAMBERS OF FOREIGN COMMERCE.

The interests of our foreign commerce are non-partisan, and as a factor in prosperity are as broad as the land. In the dissemination of useful information and in the co-ordination of effort certain unofficial associations have done good work toward the promotion of foreign commerce. It is cause for regret, however, that the great number of such associations and the comparative lack of co-operation between them fails to secure an efficiency commensurate with the public interest. Through the agency of the department of commerce and labor, and in some cases directly, the department of state transmits to reputable business interests information of commercial opportunities, supplementing the regular published consular reports. Some central organization in touch with associations and chambers of commerce throughout the country and able to keep purely American interests in closer touch with different phases of commercial affairs would, I believe, be of great value. Such organization might be managed by a committee composed of a small number of those now actively carrying on the work of some of the larger associations, and there might be added to the committee, as members ex officio, one or two officials of the department of state and one or two officials from the department of commerce and labor and representatives of the appropriate committees of congress. The authority and success of such an organization would evidently be enhanced if the congress should see fit to prescribe its scope and organization through legislation which would give to it some such official standing as that, for example, of the National Red Cross.

With these factors and the continuance of the foreign service establishment (departmental, diplomatic and consular) upon the high plane where it has been placed by the recent reorganization, this government would be abreast of the times in fostering the interests of its foreign trade, and the rest must be left to the energy and enterprise of our business men.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE.

The entire foreign service organization is being improved and developed with especial regard to the requirements of the commercial interests of the country. The rapid growth of our foreign trade makes it of the utmost importance that governmental agencies through which that trade is to be aided and protected should possess a high degree of efficiency. Not only should the foreign representatives be maintained upon a generous scale in so far as salaries and establishments are concerned, but the selection and advancement of officers should be definitely and permanently regulated by law so that the service shall not fail to attract men of high character and ability. The experience of the past few years with a partial application of civil service rules to the diplomatic and consular service leaves no doubt in my mind of the wisdom of a wider and more permanent extension of those principles to both branches of the foreign service. The men selected for appointment by means of the existing executive regulations have been of a far higher average of intelligence and ability than the men appointed before the regulations were promulgated. Moreover, the feeling that under the existing rules there is reasonable hope for permanence of tenure during good behavior and for promotion for meritorious service has served to bring about a zealous activity in the interests of the country, which never before existed or could exist.

It is my earnest conviction that the enactment into law of the general principles of the existing regulations cannot fail to effect further improvement in both branches of the foreign service by providing greater inducement for young men of character and ability to seek a career abroad in the service of the government, and an incentive to those already in the service to put forth greater efforts to attain the high standards which the successful conduct of our international relations and commerce requires.

I therefore again commend to the favorable action of the congress the enactment of a law applying to the diplomatic and consular service the principles embodied in section 1753 of the revised statutes of the United States, in the civil service act of Jan. 16, 1883, and the executive orders of June 27, 1906, and of Nov. 26, 1909. In its consideration of this important subject I desire to recall to the attention of the congress the very favorable report made on the Lowden bill for the improvement of the foreign service by the foreign affairs committee of the house of representatives. Available statistics show the strictness with which the merit system has been applied to the foreign service during recent years and the absolute nonpartisan selection of consuls and diplomatic service secretaries, who, indeed, far from being selected with any view to political consideration, have actually been chosen to a disproportionate extent from states which would have been unrepresented in the foreign service under the system which it is to be hoped is now permanently obsolete. Some legislation for the perpetuation of the present system of examinations and promotions upon merit and efficiency would be of greatest value to our commercial and international interests.

GOVERNMENT OF ILLINOIS.

Legislative power is vested in a general assembly, consisting of a senate and house of representatives, both elected by the people. The state is divided into fifty-one senatorial districts, each of which elects a senator and three representatives. The general assembly makes laws and appropriates money for the government of the state, elects United States senators to represent the state and in general stands in the same relation to the state as congress does to all the states as a whole. The powers and duties of the chief executive officers are as follows:

Governor—The governor is vested with the chief executive power of the state. He is the commander in chief of the military and naval forces and may call out the militia to maintain the peace. He is required to inform the general assembly, by message, of the condition of affairs of the state and to recommend needed legislation. He may, by proclamation, call a special session of the assembly or adjourn it in case of disagreement between the two houses. He has the power to appoint certain officers and during a recess of the senate may fill vacancies or remove certain officers and may call special elections to fill vacancies in certain offices. He may make regulations upon the governors of other states for the return of fugitives from justice or offer rewards for the arrest of offenders against the laws of the state. He exercises a general supervision over the penitentiaries and may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons and may restore the rights of citizenship to ex-convicts. He may approve acts of the legislature and exercise the veto power.

Lieutenant-Governor—This officer is ex-officio president of the senate and has the power to cast the deciding vote in case of a tie. In case of the death, conviction on impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation, absence from the state or other disability on the part of the governor, the lieutenant-governor succeeds to the office to the close of the term.

Secretary of State—The secretary of state is charged with the safekeeping of the original laws and resolutions of the general assembly, with all books, bills and documents deposited with him by either house, and with all bonds, records and papers filed in his office. He keeps a record of the official acts of the governor, furnishes certified copies of the same to the assembly on request and certified copies of any of the records of his office on the payment of the statutory fees. He countersigns and affixes the seal of the state to all proclamations and commissions issued by the governor; issues licenses for incorporations and certificates of organization to cities and villages and incorporated towns. He has charge of most of the buildings and grounds belonging to the state in Springfield, furnishes supplies for the general assembly and supervises the printing and distribution of all the public documents of the state. He calls the house of representatives to order at the beginning of each general assembly and presides over the same until the election of a speaker. He is the keeper of the great seal of the state and is the custodian and sealer of weights and measures.

Auditor—The auditor is required to keep all the accounts of the state; to audit the accounts of all officers or other persons authorized to receive moneys from the state treasury; to personally sign all warrants drawn on the treasury; to institute suits wherein the state is a plaintiff, and to make a biennial report of the business of his office to the governor. With the governor and treasurer he determines the state tax rate. He exercises a general supervision over state banks, building, loan and homestead associations.

State Treasurer—The state treasurer is custodian of the revenues and public moneys of the state. He must make monthly settlements with the auditor and a biennial report to the governor.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—The superintendent exercises a general supervision over all the public schools of the state. He is the general and legal adviser of the county superintendents and must report biennially to the governor the general condition of all the schools of the state, the amount raised by taxation for school purposes and the manner of its expenditure and the general condition of all the school funds. He may grant state certificates to teachers or cause them to be withheld and must visit charitable institutions which are educational in character.

Attorney-General—It is the duty of the attorney-general to represent the state in the Supreme court in all cases in which the state is interested; to act as counsel for all state officials; to be the legal adviser of the governor and other state officers in matters relating to their official duties, and, on request, to furnish them, as well as either branch of the general assembly, with written opinions upon constitutional or legal questions.

ILLINOIS TAX COMMISSION.

Appointed by governor March 11, 1910.

John P. Wilson, Chicago; Charles E. Merriam, Chicago; Alfred M. Craig, Galesburg; Ben F. Caldwell, Springfield; Prof. David Felmley, Urbana; A. P. Grout, Winchester; B. L. Winchell, Chicago.

Duties of the commission:

1. To make a careful compilation of all state laws relating to taxation and Supreme court decisions thereon.
 2. To classify and tabulate statistics relating to the totals raised by taxation in state, counties and municipalities.
 3. To investigate all complaints which may be made to them of illegal, unjust or excessive taxation.
 4. To secure information as to taxing methods in other states.
 5. To formulate a report "which shall be as plain, concise and comprehensive as possible."
- The commission met nine times and gave three public hearings, at which numerous suggestions for changes in the laws were urged. A compilation of the tax laws and judicial decisions of Illinois thereon was made by Prof. Albert M. Kales of the Northwestern university and Elmer M. Leissman and published by the commission. At its request Prof. John M. Fairlie of the University of Illinois published a descriptive and statistical report on the "Taxation and Revenue System of Illinois." The report of the commission was presented to the general assembly in January, 1911, but no action was taken by that body with reference to the recommendations made. One of these proposed the submission of an amendment to the state constitution removing from the general assembly the present restrictions in regard to the taxation of personal property. It provided that any tax levied upon personal property must be uniform as to persons and property of the same class within the jurisdiction of the body imposing the same, and that all exemptions should be by general law, revocable by the general assembly at will. The commission also recommended bills for important changes in the machinery of the tax administration, such, for example, as the establishment of a permanent state tax commission in place of the present state board of equalization.

REVENUE FROM THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL.

Since March 24, 1855, the Illinois Central Railroad company, in accordance with the terms of its charter, accepted March 15, 1851, has been paying into the Illinois state treasury semiannually a certain percentage of the gross receipts from its charter lines. This percentage up to 1857 was 5 and since then has been 7. The total amount paid by the road to the state up to April 30, 1911, was $30,321,894.68. The gross receipts and the semi-annual payments to the state since April 30, 1905, have been:

In 1905, under the administration of Gov. Charles S. Deneen, an investigation of the accuracy of the semiannual statements made by the Illinois Central Railroad company to the state of Illinois was begun and as a result a suit for an accounting was brought by the state against the corporation at the February term of the state Supreme court. It was, however, dismissed for want of jurisdiction, the state being given leave to withdraw its bill without prejudice. It was thereupon filed in the Circuit court of LaSalle county, to the June term, 1907. After various legal processes and arguments the court dismissed the bill for want of equity and from that decree the state appealed to the state Supreme court. Oct. 23, 1910, that tribunal handed down a decision reversing the decision of the Circuit court and remanding the case.

The opinion of the Supreme court, which was delivered by Chief Justice Carter, held that the accounts between the state and the railroad company prior to the year 1905, having been either expressly approved by the governor or accepted by him without objection, were closed or stated accounts which could not be opened up; that the state had no just cause for complaint on account of the diversion of traffic from charter to noncharter lines, and that interest received by the railroad company upon bank deposits and loans formed no part of the gross receipts of the charter lines upon which it must pay a percentage to the state. On the other hand the opinion sustained many of the contentions of the state. Among some of the more important of these were:

That the accounts between the state and the company are open for the years 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909 and that the burden of proof is upon the company to show that the semiannual statements furnished to the governor since 1904 are just and true.

That in the division of earnings and payment of expenses, charter and noncharter lines must be treated as distinct and independent.

That the company must pay into the state treasury 7 per cent of the charter line receipts from interstate traffic.

That all joint earnings of charter and noncharter lines must be divided upon such an equitable basis that the state shall receive the full percentage to which it is entitled under the charter. That where switching or drayage charges incurred by the company in Chicago are paid by the company in the performance of its duty as a common carrier, they cannot be deducted from the charter lines' gross receipts before the state's per centum is computed.

That the income derived from hotels, restaurants and dining cars is part of the gross income of the company and must be accounted for in the semi-annual statements to the state.

That unlawful rebates cannot be deducted from charter line receipts, and that whenever a rebate is so deducted the burden of proving its lawfulness is upon the company.

That whenever traffic moves between points on noncharter lines south of the Ohio river and Cairo and Mounds in Illinois, the charter lines must be awarded their just proportionate share of the joint earnings.

That the railroad company is entitled to deduct a reasonable charge or bridge arbitrary for the use of the Cairo bridge, but that whenever the total amount so deducted in any one year shall exceed $180,000 (the annual rental stipulated in the company's lease) that fact shall tend to prove that the bridge arbitraries are unreasonable.

That the company must answer the seventy-four interrogatories attached to the bill and furnish to the state the information called for as to all the years since 1904.

When the time for filing a petition for a rehearing had expired, a remanding order was filed in the Circuit court of LaSalle county. Nov. 26, 1910, Attorney-General W. H. Stead entered a motion in the Circuit court of LaSalle county for a rule on the Illinois Central company to answer the amended bill of the state and the seventy-four interrogatories propounded therein. The court entered a rule and required it to answer the amended bill and the interrogatories by June 1, 1911.

Shortly prior to June 1 the attorney-general was notified by the attorneys of the company that an application would be made for a further extension of time to answer the bill and interrogatories, and on June 12 the matter of granting such further extension of time was heard before Judge Stough of the Circuit court of LaSalle county. Upon this hearing the attorneys for the company represented to Judge Stough that a force of between eighty and ninety accountants had been at work upon the books continuously since June 1, 1911, and had only been able to obtain about 10 per cent of the information essential to answer the amended bill and the seventy-four interrogatories contained therein. They further represented that they had recently increased their force, but that it would be impossible to obtain all the necessary information before Jan. 1, 1912. Judge Stough agreed with them and entered an order allowing the defendant until Jan. 1, 1912, to answer the amended bill and interrogatories, the understanding being that no further extension of time would be asked.

When the bill and interrogatories are fully answered a special master will be appointed by the court and the work of an accounting will be entered upon at once.

In his annual message to the general assembly, Jan. 4, 1911, Gov. Deneen called attention to the fact that since the beginning of the investigation the amounts due to the state, as shown by the semiannual accounts of the Illinois Central Railroad company, had shown a marked increase and that the increase so far received greatly exceeded the total expenses so far incurred of the investigation.

As against an expenditure up to Dec. 15, 1910, of $68,709.06, the increased revenue accruing to the state as shown by the reports of the certified public accountants employed was as follows:

Proportion of freight tolls over Duquaque bridge in excess of $150,000 per annum (of which not one cent was paid into the state treasury by the railroad company prior to the six months' period ending April 30, 1906) from 1906 down to and including Oct. 31, 1910, $792,796.24, of which there has been paid into the state treasury 7 per cent, or $53,489.43.

Increased revenue from express earnings as shown by increase of receipts for:

The period ending Oct. 31, 1887, over the preceding period.....	$70,536.50
The period ending April 30, 1892, over preceding period.....	71,470.12
The period ending April 30, 1896, over preceding period.....	150,980.60
The period ending April 30, 1901, diminished revenues over preceding period.....	7,682.84
The period ending Oct. 31, 1905, increase over preceding period.....	235,982.20
The period ending April 30, 1910, increase over preceding period.....	973,862.29

The largest percentage of increase prior to the period between 1905 and 1910, was 29.43 per cent. Using this as a basis of calculation, the revenue for the period between 1905 and 1910, estimated in advance, would have been $1,343,352.19, whereas it was in fact $2,011,768.85, a gain of over $668,000 on which the state treasury received an additional payment of $48,000.

Still another increase of revenue resulted from the payment into the state treasury of additional sums since the discontinuance by the railroad company of arbitrary deductions from charter line earnings on account of allowances made to the Big Muddy Coal company. These wrongful deductions, made prior to the beginning of the investigation, had amounted to $13,362.33, 7 per cent of which, or $935, was paid into the state treasury by the railroad company for the first time in April, 1907.

If, therefore, the expenses of the investigation were set off against this increase in revenue due to the investigation, the account would stand:

Amount recovered on account of Dubuque bridge tolls.....	$53,458.48
Increased revenue from express earnings.....	48,000.00
Amount recovered on account of Big Muddy Coal company.....	935.00
	102,424.48
From which deducting the total cost of investigation to Dec. 15, 1910.....	68,709.06
Leaves a net gain to the credit of the state of.....	33,715.42

Of the appropriation of $100,000 made to the executive department for the conduct of this investigation, there was still in the state treasury Jan. 4, 1911, an unexpended balance of $70,623.05.

COOK COUNTY FOREST PRESERVE ACT INVALID.

Under an act of the Illinois legislature, approved June 16, 1909, the following proposition was submitted to the voters of Cook county at the election of Nov. 8, 1910:

"For the adoption of an act to provide for the creation and management of forest preserve districts and repealing a certain act therein named and creating under said act a forest preserve district, the boundaries of which to coincide with and comprise the whole of the territory of Cook county, Illinois."

The proposition was approved by a majority of those voting upon it and under the provisions of the law the following were appointed to serve as the first commissioners:

Lewis Rinaker, Rep., four years; Charles H. Wacker, Dem., two years; Gustavus J. Tatge, Dem., two years; Nelson A. Cool, Rep., four years; Samuel Insull, Rep., four years.

To test the validity of the steps by which the Cook county forest preserve district was created an application for quo warranto proceedings was filed by State's Attorney Wayman in the Superior court, directed against the commissioners, whom he charged with illegally holding office. The court decided against him and the matter was then laid before the state Supreme court. That tribunal announced, June 20, 1911, that the creation of the forest preserve district was illegal on the ground that, instead of the whole of Cook county being given an opportunity to vote upon the proposition, only the voters of Chicago and Cicero were permitted to do so. The validity of the forest preserve act was not involved; it was merely the creation of the district itself which was declared void.

CHICAGO VICE COMMISSION REPORT.

The first report of the vice commission of the city of Chicago, appointed by Mayor Fred A. Busse July 5, 1910, was made to the city council April 3, 1911. The main facts set forth were these:

Chicago spends $15,000,000 annually for vice.

The traffic in women annually demands and destroys the lives and souls of 5,000 young girls.

Graft flourishes under the system that exploits vice.

"Red light districts" breed criminals and offer them havens of refuge.

Vice surrounds innocent girls who come to Chicago to earn a living with almost irresistible temptations.

Negroes are contaminated by the proximity of vice to the neighborhoods in which they live.

Oct. 26, 1910, there were in Chicago 506 places, including houses, flats and hotels, classed as evil resorts, in which 1,830 women were harbored.

The main remedies suggested by the commission were these:

State laws and city laws should be enacted making resorts public nuisances and expressly giving to any citizen the right to institute summary proceedings against them.

There should be relentless pursuit and prosecution of professional procurers.

There should be constant prosecution of all keepers and inmates of existing houses as well as owners of the property.

An identification system for women in resorts should be established by the state courts.

A law should be enacted providing a penalty for sending any messenger under 21 years of age into a disorderly house.

Protection should be given to immigrant girls arriving in Chicago.

The sale of liquor should be forbidden at public dances. Municipal dance halls should be established.

The city should acquire a farm on which a trade school and hospital can be established for unfortunate women.

For the immediate initiation of a reform policy the commission asked the council to pass two ordinances.

First—Providing for the appointment of a morals commission.

Second—Providing for the establishment of a morals court.

The president of the commission was Dean W. T. Sumner and the secretary Edwin W. Sims.

CHICAGO CHARTER MOVEMENT.

What was known as the Chicago charter convention was organized in 1905, the first session being held Dec. 12, that year. Milton J. Foreman was president, Alexander H. Revell vice-president, M. L. McKinley secretary and Henry Barrett Chamberlin assistant secretary. The convention was made up of delegates chosen by or representing the mayor, city council, governor, assembly, board of education, sanitary trustees, county board, public library board and the Chicago park boards. Its purpose was to frame a comprehensive, simple and elastic charter for the city of Chicago to be submitted to the state legislature for consideration. The work was completed and the charter taken to Springfield in the early part of 1907, where it was introduced in each house of the legislature and referred to the appropriate committees.

Some of the main features of the charter were these: Consolidation in the municipal government of Chicago of the power vested in the board of education, township, park and other local governments within the city; submission of propositions to popular vote; aldermen to be elected once in four years; the raising of adequate revenue by the issue of bonds and by other means; the power to own, maintain and operate all public utilities in the city, including intramural railroads, subways and tunnels, and telephone, telegraph, gas, electric lighting, heating, refrigerating and power plants; the parks to be under the management of a city department of parks; the public-school system to be a department of the city government and under the control of a board of education of fifteen members appointed by the mayor for terms of three years; the public library to be managed by a board of nine directors appointed by the mayor for terms of six years.

Several radical changes were made by the legislature, one of the most important being the substitution of the old primary system for the one proposed. Another was the redistricting of the city into fifty wards, one alderman to be elected from each. These and other changes aroused much opposition, but the charter was passed May 12, 1907. According to the terms of the act it was submitted to the voters of Chicago at a special election held Sept. 17, 1907, when it was defeated by a vote of 121,935 nays to 59,736 yeas.

Early in 1909 the charter convention resumed work and prepared eleven bills for submission to the legislature, in the hope that some at least might be enacted into law. These separate bills included the principal points in the charter defeated by the referendum vote of 1907.

The charter bills encountered opposition from the start, not only from the senators and assemblymen representing districts outside of Chicago, but also from some of the city members, and, while favorable action was taken in committee and also in each house on the consolidation measure and on one or two of the other propositions, no legislation was secured and the work of the convention again went for nothing.

The Chicago public library is a free public institution, established under the Illinois library law of 1872. It derives its revenue from an annual library tax of approximately four-tenths of a mill. A board of directors of nine members is appointed by the mayor, three annually for terms of three years. The library occupies the site formerly known as Dearborn park, bounded by Michigan avenue, Washington street, Garland court and Randolph street. The cost of the building was about $2,000,000, including the furniture, book stacks and machinery.

The right of drawing books from the public library belongs to all who reside in the city of Chicago, and also to those who make their homes in the suburbs within the limits of Cook county and are regularly employed in the city. In order to become a book borrower it is necessary only to file an application giving the name and residence of the applicant and bearing the signature of a second person, who must be an actual resident of the city, appearing as such in the latest city directory. This person becomes the guarantor to the library for the proper observance of the library regulations on the part of the applicant. These regulations merely provide that books drawn for home use must be returned within the stated period and must not be defaced or injured.

At the close of May 31, 1911, the public library contained 448,078 volumes. The aggregate circulation for the year ending May 31, 1911, was 2,256,022 volumes, which does not include the use of books kept on the open shelves at the main library or its branches or the periodicals or newspapers used in the reading rooms. This use would bring the total book issues to 2,882,773.

FIELD MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY.

President—Stanley Field.

Vice-Presidents—Martin A. Ryerson, Watson F. Blair.

Director of the Museum and Secretary—Frederick J. V. Skiff.

Treasurer—Byron L. Smith.

Auditor and Assistant Secretary—D. C. Davies.

The Field museum of natural history, established in 1894 at the close of the World's Columbian exposition of 1893, occupies the temporary building erected for fine arts in Jackson park, the exposition site. The founding of a scientific institution of this character in Chicago was made possible by the gift of $1,000,000 by Marshall Field, who on his death (Jan. 16, 1906) bequeathed the institution a further $8,000,000, $4,000,000 for the erection of a permanent building and $4,000,000 for endowment. In addition $500,000 has been donated by other individuals and there is an annual income from other sources than endowment of about $25,000. The citizens of Chicago have confirmed legislative provision for the levy of a tax for the maintenance of the museum when a new building shall have been erected, which it is estimated will eventually produce approximately $100,000 per annum.

The nucleus of the exhibition material was gathered by gift and purchase at the World's Columbian exposition. Most of this material, however, has since been rearranged, readapted or discarded. Several departments created at the organization have been abandoned, until, after the lapse of eleven years and the expenditure of over $2,000,000, the museum is now divided into four departments—namely, anthropology, botany, geology and zoology. Many expeditions for the purpose of obtaining study, exhibition and exchange material and data have been dispatched to all parts of North America and to different countries. The results of these expeditions, investigations and researches have been published by the museum from time to time, which publications have been distributed to kindred societies and institutions both at home and abroad. Two courses of free lectures are given annually. The museum has a working library of about 53,000 titles, an extensive exchange system, fully equipped departmental laboratories, a herbarium of 260,000 sheets, study collections in mammals and birds reaching many thousand specimens, a large two-story taxidermy section, a well-equipped printing shop, illustration studios and assaying and lapidary rooms. In North American ethnology. In the world's mineralogy, in economic botany the museum is particularly prominent, while its series of mounted mammals furnish examples of advanced museum methods. The present main building covers nine acres and is open to the public on all days except Christmas and Thanksgiving. An admission fee of 25 cents is charged except on Saturdays and Sundays, when admission is free to all. Students, scholars and teachers are admitted free on all days between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The museum is incorporated under state law and the administrative control rests in a board of trustees with president, secretary, etc. The executive of the museum is the director, under whom there are four head curators with divisional assistant curators, preparators, etc. The entire museum records, the accessions system, the historical files, publications and supplies are in charge of a recorder.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK.

The postal savings bank is a new feature of the Chicago postoffice. The bank was opened at the main postoffice Aug. 1, 1911. Any one 10 years old or over may open an account. No account may be opened for less than $1.00, nor will fractions of a dollar be accepted for deposit. No person is permitted to deposit more than $100 in any one calendar month, nor to have a total balance to his credit at one time of more than $500, exclusive of accumulated interest.

Deposits are evidenced by postal savings certificates issued in denominations of $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100.

Depositors of the postal savings system may exchange the whole or a part of their deposits on Jan. 1 or July 1 of each year for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100 and $500, bearing interest at the rate of 2½ per cent per annum, payable semiannually, and redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after one year from the date of issue, both principal and interest payable twenty years from that date in United States gold coin.

Up to Nov. 15, 1911, banks had been established at the following postal stations: Ravenswood, Lake View, Logan Square, North Halsted, Carpenter, Pilsen, Wicker Park, Garfield Park, Hawthorne, Stockyards, 51st Street, Englewood, Jackson Park, South Chicago, Pullman and Hegewisch.

THE BEATTIE MURDER CASE.

Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., a young man of good family, shot and killed his wife, Louise, on the night of July 18, 1911, while they were out in an automobile five miles from Richmond, Va. He claimed that the shot had been fired by a highwayman, but was arrested after the inquest and held for murder. His trial began Aug. 19 at Chesterfield, Va., and attracted wide attention. He steady-ly maintained that he was innocent, but the jury brought in a verdict Sept. 8, finding him guilty.

He was electrocuted in the penitentiary at Richmond Nov. 24, after having confessed in the presence of three clergymen that he was guilty of the crime for which he had been sentenced to death.

CHICAGO STREET GRADES.

The grade of the streets in the central portion of Chicago has been raised three times. In 1835 it was raised from 2½ to 3 feet above the then existing surface, and it was again raised by about the same amount in 1857 and 1872, making the present level fourteen feet above "city datum," which is the low-water mark of the lake in 1847,

CHICAGO SCHOOL CENSUS OF MAY 2, 1910.

Taken under the supervision of W. L. Bodine for the board of education.

ADULT POPULATION.

Owing to the fact that 1910 was the year of the decennial census of the United States taken by the government, the board of education did not take a count of the inhabitants 21 years of age and over. The supervisor of the school census, however, estimated the total population of the city at 2,100,000, exclusive of the large number of people living in the suburbs. He arrived at this result by making deductions for deaths and using a multiple of a trifle over 2½ applied to the minor population of $14,116 to include all the inhabitants, plus 1 per cent of the total population of 1908 for possible skips.

HOUSE-NUMBER SYSTEM IN CHICAGO.

Sept. 20, 1910, the city council passed an amendment to the house number ordinance (of Sept. 1, 1909), the effect of which was to include the downtown district in the new system of numbers, making the same complete for the entire city, the change becoming effective, so far as the downtown district was concerned, April 1, 1911.

The system is laid out on two base lines, State street dividing the east and west streets and Madison street dividing the north and south streets, the numbers being assigned on the basis of 300 numbers to each mile or 100 numbers to the prevailing city block of 660 feet or one-eighth of a mile. An exception to this assignment, however, is made on the north and south streets between Madison street and 31st street, in which territory 1,200 numbers are assigned between Madison and 12th streets, 1,000 between 12th and 22d streets and 900 between 22d and 31st streets. This was necessitated by reason of the fact that it was not deemed expedient or advisable to interfere with the system of numbered streets on the south side.

The system further provides for the use of the prefixes "North," "South," "East" and "West" on all streets which either cross or are open on either side of the base lines and on all streets of numerical nomenclature, whether open on either side of the base line or not. Names of streets open only on one side of either of the base lines do not carry the prefix, the result of this being that all of the east and west streets north of North avenue, at about which point the line of State street runs into Lake Michigan, do not require the use of the prefix "West." This, of course, also applies to such streets as Plymouth court, Polk street and all other named streets open on only one side of either of the base lines.

In the assignment of numbers in the downtown district it was not possible to have 100 numbers to each block by reason of the fact that the blocks, instead of being laid out on the basis of one-eighth of a mile or 660 feet long, are approximately only 400 feet. The assignment, however, was made in as systematic a manner as possible. On the east and west streets downtown, commencing at State street and running west, we get numbers 1 and 2 at State, 50 Dearborn, 100 Clark, 150 LaSalle, 200 5th avenue, 300 Franklin, 350 Market, the terminating numbers at the river picking up those heretofore assigned on the same streets west of the river. On the east and west streets running east of State street we get numbers 1 and 2 at State, 50 at Wabash, the terminating numbers at the west side of Michigan avenue being something less than 100. On the north and south streets, going north from Madison street, we get 1 and 2 at Madison, 100 Washington, 150 Randolph, 200 Lake and 300 South Water street, the terminating numbers at the river picking up with those heretofore assigned to the same streets north of the river. Going south from Madison street on the north and south streets we commence with 1 and 2 at Madison street, 100 Monroe, 200 Adams, 300 Jackson, 400 Van Buren, 500 Congress, 800 Polk, 1000 Taylor and 1200 12th street, all of those numbers being in conformity with those for the same streets as heretofore assigned west of the river. In the business district downtown an individual number is assigned to each entrance on the street level.

GREENEBAUM SONS BANK AND TRUST COMPANY

Corner Clark and Randolph Streets
Chicago

A lifetime of success has placed the banking house of Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust Company in the forefront of Chicago monetary institutions. Founded in 1855 by Elias Greenebaum, three generations have contributed to the growth and solidity of the business, and to-day no institution in the banking world is more highly regarded.

From 1877 to 1911 the business founded by Elias Greenebaum was known under the name of Greenebaum Sons, Bankers, and when the grandsons of the man who laid the broad foundations of the structure were ready to take their places in the management of the great banking and investment business, which had expanded to such large proportions, it was reorganized as a state bank and trust company, with a capital of $1,500,000, in 1911.

Conducting, as it does, a banking department, mortgage loan department, investment, foreign and trust departments, it is adequately equipped to supply the Chicago business world with financial assistance in any of the varied lines specified.

Recognized as the banking house best able to handle large or small first mortgage bond issues, it has proved its supremacy in the matter of the bonds for the Chicago central business buildings now under construction. Among the issues recently taken by Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust Company may be mentioned the bonds of the great new Hearst Building, that modern, high-class, all-steel skyscraper built as the new home for the Chicago Examiner and the American; the new Rothschild State Street Building, the Rogers & Hall Building, Franklin Building, the Kiper Buildings, and various office, warehouse and manufacturing buildings have been negotiated through this bank.

These First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds were issued in units of $1,000 and $500, bearing 5½% to 6% interest, and were all quickly bought by the large number of investment clients who place their funds through Greenebaum Sons.

At the same time it maintains a department for loans on improved real estate and building loans on moderate sized residences, flats and business buildings.

The banking departments are similar to those in any well-equipped institution in a metropolitan city and transact a general banking business.

City Hall Square Building

LOCATION

This building occupies the premises, new numbers 127 to 139 North Clark Street. The location, in the heart of the Loop, makes office space unusually desirable for Lawyers, Builders, Contractors, Architects, Financial and Bonding Companies, Building Material Firms, etc.

CONSTRUCTION

This building is a thoroughly modern twenty-one story, fire-proof office building and will be ready for occupancy on or before the first of April, 1912. The building has a frontage of one hundred and eleven feet on Clark Street and a depth of seventy feet on Court Place, with an open light court in the rear one hundred and eleven feet wide and ninety feet deep. Every office is an outside room with plenty of sunshine and light. The exterior of the first four floors is polished granite and Bedford stone, the stonework treated in a decorative manner. Above the stonework the main shaft of the building is a specially selected vitrified red brick. The upper four stories are ornamented terra cotta. The lobby has Italian marble wainscoting and floor, bordered in Verde Antique marble. Corridors and stairways above the first floor are wainscoted in Italian marble with floors of Italian marble. Finish is highly polished San Domingo mahogany throughout.

ELEVATORS

There are five unusually large latest improved type of Otis elevators with a speed of 600 feet per minute, equipped with all the modern safety devices and electric signals, insuring quick and reliable service at all times.

EQUIPMENT

A thoroughly modern system of steam vacuum heating with thermostat regulation is installed. Particular attention is paid to ventilation and sanitation and a vacuum system is utilized for cleaning. Hot and cold water is furnished to every office in the building. Commodious and well-appointed lavatory and barber shop are located on the eleventh floor. Retiring-room with toilet and rest-room, suitably furnished for ladies, are provided on the twelfth floor.

The most efficient service will be maintained in all departments, and every means for the comfort, convenience and accommodation of the tenants will be adopted.

The building has been erected under the personal supervision of the Architect, Mr. C. A. Eckstorm.

On the 15th of December, 1911, approximately 60 per cent of the office space was leased.

The Art Institute of Chicago was incorporated May 24, 1879, for the "founding and maintenance of schools of art and design, the formation and exhibition of collections of objects of art and the cultivation and extension of the arts of design by any appropriate means." The museum building upon the lake front, first occupied in 1893, has never been closed for a day. It is open to the public every week day from 9 to 5, Sundays from 1 to 5. Admission is free to members and their families at all times, and free to all upon Wednesdays, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. Upon other days the entrance fee is 25 cents.

All friends of art are invited to become members. Annual members pay a fee of $10 a year. Life members pay $100 and are thenceforth exempt from dues. Governing members pay $100 upon election and $25 a year thereafter. Upon the payment of $400 governing members become governing life members and are thenceforth exempt from dues. All receipts from life memberships are invested and the income only expended. All members are entitled, with their families and visiting friends, to admission to all exhibitions, receptions, public lectures and entertainments given by the Art Institute and to the use of the Ryerson reference library upon art.

MUSEUM.

The Art museum now ranks among the first three or four in the country. It contains excellent examples of the old masters and of the modern painters. There is also a large and comprehensive collection of sculptures, including reproductions of the work of the greatest sculptors, ancient and modern. There is an extensive collection of architectural casts. Other fields of art are represented by collections of etchings, engravings, textiles, oriental art, Egyptian and classical antiquities, etc. There is a constant succession of passing exhibitions, thirty or more in a year. All students enjoy the full use of the collections and the library.

The number of visitors to the art gallery during the year ending June 1, 1911, was 704,239.

The school of instruction in the practice and theory of art includes departments of painting, sculpture, decorative designing, illustration, architecture and normal instruction. There are day and evening classes for beginners and for advanced pupils and special classes on Saturdays. The instructors number about 80 and the pupils average about 3,000 a year. The principle upon which the school is founded is to maintain in the highest efficiency the severe practice of academic drawing and painting, from life, from the antique and from objects, and around this practice, as a living stem, to group the various departments of art education.

The school is conducted upon the most modern methods and has grown to be the most comprehensive and probably the largest fine arts school in the United States. Constant communication and interchange are kept up with European art centers and distinguished teachers from a distance are called in from time to time. Students may enter at any time. The tuition rates are as follows:

AMERICAN FENCE

Square Mesh Hinged Joints (patented), with Flexible Stays

A square mesh fence of weight, great strength and durability. Large wires in both the horizontals and the uprights, and the whole fabric woven together with the American hinged joint (patented), making the most substantial and flexible union mechanically possible. Both wires are positively locked and firmly held against side slip and yet are free to act like a hinge in yielding to pressure and returning quickly to place without bending or injuring the metal. Many years of the hardest usage in the field have demonstrated the value of the American forms of construction, justly entitling it to be called a resilient wall of steel, solid and enduring.

ELLWOOD FENCE

Diamond Mesh, Elastic Cables

The steel in Ellwood fence is especially made for the purpose from carefully selected stock; it is hard, elastic, tough and springy. The line wires, composed of two or more wires twisted into cables, give each individual wire the shape of an elongated coiled spring. The fence is therefore sufficiently elastic to take care of expansion and contraction, and yet so rigid when properly stretched as to prevent sagging. The small and permanent mesh is made by weaving one continuous wire throughout the fabric. The mesh or stay wires are so interwoven that slipping is impossible. The triangular truss is the strongest form of construction known; for this reason, Ellwood fence will stand the hardest usage and still retain its shape.

ROYAL FENCE

Square Mesh, Continuous Stays, with Royal Loop

Is made of heavy, hard, stiff steel wire, the strongest and best possible to produce for fencing purposes. The stay or upright wires are continuous from top to bottom of the fence and secured to the horizontal wires by the Royal loop. Being wrapped around the horizontal wires entirely within the tension curves, the stays are rigidly held in place and side slipping prevented. The whole forms a fabric of the greatest strength and ample flexibility, the best of the continuous stay fences.

ANTHONY FENCE

Square Mesh, Rigid Stays, with Anthony Knot

The upright and horizontal wires are tied with the famous Anthony knot, the smallest fence knot made. Machinery of special design has been brought to such a degree of perfection that the most nicely balanced woven wire fabric is produced, each wire drawing with mathematical precision under equal tension and uniformly even with the others. This brings into play, under stress of action, all the wires within a considerable radius of the center of contact, affording to an extraordinary degree great resistance combined with flexibility.

The valuation since 1875 is the equalized valuation fixed by the state board of equalization. From 1867 to 1875 the valuation was made by the city for the city tax. From 1898 to 1908, inclusive, the assessed value was one-fifth of the actual value. In 1909 the rate was fixed at one-third. The amounts in the personal property column include the railroad valuation. The separate figures in 1911 were: Personal property, $196,967,023; railroads, $17,305,282.

TAXING BODIES IN CHICAGO.

- STATE TAX—For state purposes. The governor, auditor and treasurer constitute the board which ascertains the rate per cent required to produce the amount of taxes levied by the general assembly. The "state school tax" is levied in the same manner.
 - COUNTY TAX—The county board levies the taxes for all county purposes.
 - CITY TAX—The city council, acting with the mayor, levies the taxes for all city purposes.
 - SCHOOL TAX—The city council and the mayor make a separate levy for this purpose.
 - LIBRARY TAX—The city council and the mayor make a separate levy for this purpose.
 - SANITARY DISTRICT—The tax is levied by the board of trustees.
 - SOUTH PARK SYSTEM—The south park commissioners levy for park purposes in the towns of South Chicago, Hyde Park and Lake.
 - WEST PARK SYSTEM—The West Chicago park commissioners levy for park purposes in the town of West Chicago.
 - LINCOLN PARK—The Lincoln park commissioners are not "corporate authorities," the Lincoln park act not having been adopted by popular vote. The levy for Lincoln park is made by the county treasurer, acting as ex officio supervisor.
 - RIDGE PARK—A small park district in Rogers Park, organized under the law providing for local park districts by popular vote. The board of five commissioners levies for the district.
 - THE NORTH SHORE PARK DISTRICT—Organized the same as Ridge Park.
- By an act of the legislature approved May 11,

1901, and by the vote of the people at the spring election in 1902 the townships lying within the limits of Chicago were consolidated and the powers of the town boards transferred to the city council. This reduced the taxing boards in Chicago from eighteen to eleven as above.

CHICAGO STOCK YARDS FIRE CALAMITY.

Twenty-four men were crushed to death under a falling wall at a fire in Morris & Co.'s meat storage house in the Union stockyards, Chicago, early on the morning of Dec. 22, 1910. The victims included Fire Marshal James Horan Second Assistant Fire Marshal William J. Burroughs, twenty other city firemen, a private fireman and a railway clerk. The fire started at 4:09 a. m. from some unknown cause and was followed soon afterward by an explosion, resulting, it is supposed, from hot air expansion. A part of the east wall was blown out, the brick and beams falling upon and smashing a canopy covering a loading platform. The chief and his men were at work on the platform, trying to get at the fire, which was in the basement, when the crash came. They were caught as in a trap and all were killed, probably instantly. It took many hours of hard work to recover their bodies. The money lost caused by the fire was $750,000.

Following is a list of the men killed:

Horan, James, chief fire marshal, 722 South Ashland avenue.

Burroughs, William J., second assistant fire marshal, 4019 Michigan avenue.

Brandenberg, Herman, lieutenant truck company No. 11, 3902 Princeton avenue.

Collins, Patrick J., captain engine company No. 59, 5605 Drexel avenue.

Costello, Thomas, pipeman engine company No. 29, 3446 Emerald avenue.

Crane, Nicholas, truckman truck company No. 18, 4803 South Union avenue.

Danis, Edward J., lieutenant engine company No. 61, 442 West 59th street.

Doyle, Dennis N., captain engine company No. 39, 1634 West 33d street.

Doyle, Nicholas D., truckman truck company No. 11, 2949 Hayne court.

Dymuran, Andrew, fireman employed by Morris & Co., 4801 South Winchester avenue.

Enthoff, George C., pipeman engine company No. 23, 1757 West 21st street.

Fitzgerald, James, lieutenant engine company No. 23, 2917 Lexington street.

Lannon, Alexander D., captain engine company No. 50, 5735 Emerald avenue.

Leen, Stephen, clerk for Chicago Junction railway, 513 West 42d place.

McInerney, Michael, truckman truck company No. 11, 4822 Princeton avenue.

Moore, Charles, truckman truck company No. 18, 5253 Emerald avenue.

Moriarty, Albert, truckman truck company No. 11, 3902 South State street.

Murawski, George F., pipeman engine company No. 49, 4814 South Wood street.

Powers, Peter J., truckman truck company No. 11, 3316 Dearborn street.

Reaph, Patrick, fireman employed by Morris & Co., 5427 South Paulina street.

Schonsted, Edward D., truckman truck company No. 11, 3558 Princeton avenue.

Sturm, William G., lieutenant engine company No. 64, 6218 South Lavin street.

Walters, Frank, pipeman engine company No. 59, 311 West 26th street.

Weber, William F., driver engine company No. 59, 724 South Morgan street.

For the relief of the widows, children and other dependent relatives of the victims of the fire a fund of $211,000 was raised by popular subscription and placed in the hands of a citizens' relief committee headed by Harlow N. Higginbotham. The committee desired to invest the money so as to provide an income for the children during their minority, but suit was brought on behalf of the beneficiaries and Judge W. F. Cooper of the Superior court decided Aug. 25, 1911, that the fund should be distributed at once. Chief Horan's widow was to receive $17,000, Assistant Chief Burroughs' widow $11,536 and the others sums ranging from $1,000 to $5,253 each. The money was distributed in December.

SOUTH SIDE ELEVATED RAILROAD.

All the main points of interest on the south side are reached by the various branches of the South Side Elevated Railroad.

The main line runs south just east of State street, to 40th street, and between Prairie and Calumet avenues from 40th street to 63d street, and east along 63d street to Jackson park,

The Englewood branch leaves the main line at 59th street, running west to 63d street and Loomis boulevard.

The Normal Park branch leaves the Englewood division at 63d street and Stewart avenue, running southerly and westerly to 69th street and Normal avenue.

From 40th street and Indiana avenue the Kenwood branch extends to the east, with a terminus at East 42d street and the lake.

Indiana avenue and 40th street is also the junction of the stockyards branch extending to the west. This line crosses Halsted street and forms a loop in the heart of the stockyards. A panoramic view of the yards can be had from the windows of the trains that cannot be had in any other manner.

An excellent express service is afforded by reason of a third track for the exclusive use of express trains, extending from 43d street to 12th street. Along this track trains are whirled at full speed for over four miles without a stop, fully protected by the latest type of block signals and interlocking plants, equipped with safety devices.

All possible precautions are taken to make the South Side Elevated Railroad safe, comfortable and rapid, with frequent service, and clean, well heated cars, elevated above the dust and mud of the city, and it is therefore the most popular of any means of transportation on the south side.

THE METROPOLITAN WEST SIDE ELEVATED RAILWAY

The Metropolitan West Side Elevated Railway, through its industrial department, has been instrumental in locating numerous large and small industries outside the loop and near the outskirts of the city.

These industries also have the best of steam road facilities by reason of their location being upon the Chicago & Western Indiana-Belt, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago Terminal, and the Chicago Burlington & Quincy railroads.

All four branches operate over the main line around the Union Loop during the entire twenty-four hours of the day.

The main line parallels Van Buren street from the loop to Marshfield avenue.

Garfield Park branch leaves the main line at Marshfield avenue and parallels Van Buren street to 52d avenue, then on the surface through Austin, Oak Park and Forest Park (Harlem).

Douglas Park branch leaves the main line at Marshfield avenue, thence southerly and westerly to 21st street and 43d avenue, thence on the surface to 52d avenue and 22d street.

The Logan Square branch leaves the main line at Marshfield avenue and runs northerly and northwesterly to Robey street and Milwaukee avenue and then parallel to Milwaukee avenue to Logan Square.

The Humboldt Park branch extends west from Robey street and Milwaukee avenue, paralleling North avenue, passing Humboldt park and Humboldt boulevard, to Lawndale avenue.

The running time from the terminus of the three branches to the loop is about twenty-seven minutes.

The company has built a large terminal station on 5th avenue, between Jackson and Van Buren street. Into and out of this terminal station during the morning and evening rush a regular service is maintained on all the branches of the Metropolitan system.

This station is also used as the Chicago terminal of the Aurora, Elgin & Chicago Railway, which taps the Fox river valley.

NORTHWESTERN ELEVATED RAILROAD.

The Northwestern Elevated railroad is the four track route of the Chicago Elevated railroads. It also maintains an express service; both day and night, over its lines.

The Main Line leaves the loop at 5th avenue and Lake street and runs northerly over Wells street bridge and along Franklin street to Chicago avenue, thence northerly and westerly over its own right of way to Wilson and Evanston avenues, the terminus of the Main Line.

The Evanston Division commences at Wilson avenue and runs down upon the surface through Edgewater and Rogers Park, passing Calvary Cemetery just beyond the City Limits, and runs through Evanston to a short distance from its northern limits.

At Central street, the northern terminus, connection is made with the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Railroad for all cities and towns along Lake Michigan as far as Milwaukee.

The running time of express trains from Central street station to the Loop is 42 minutes.

The Ravenswood Division runs westerly and northerly from Belmont avenue station to Lawrence and Kimball avenues in West Ravenswood.

The running time of express trains from the terminus of the Ravenswood Division to the Union Loop is 33 minutes.

THE CHICAGO AND OAK PARK ELEVATED RAILROAD

The Chicago and Oak Park Elevated Railroad runs west on Lake street through Austin and Oak Park.

It is three track route west from Rockwell street to 52d avenue, a distance of three and one-half miles, which permits of express service during the rush hour periods of the morning and evening.

A branch running south on the surface in Oak Park from the Main Line to Harrison street taps the territory of the Metropolitan Elevated in South Oak Park.

The Chicago and Oak Park line makes direct connection with the Suburban Electric Railway to Riverside, Brookfield and LaGrange, at 52d avenue and Lake street.

CHICAGO INTERURBAN TROLLEY LINES.

Following are the principal electric Interurban lines with terminals in or near Chicago, with the names of the principal points reached by them:

Chicago & Milwaukee—Terminal in Evanston; makes connection with Northwestern elevated and surface lines to Chicago; runs north to Waukegan, Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee; branch from Lake Bluff to Libertyville and Rockfeller. Electric lines run from Milwaukee to Burlington, to East Troy, to Waukesha, Pewaukee, Oconomowoc and Watertown and to Sheboygan and Elkhart lake.

The Keeley Institute

The Keeley treatment, or, as it has been named by the public, "The Keeley Cure," has now been in continuous and successful administration for more than thirty years. Doctor Keeley began treating patients in Dwight in the early seventies in connection with his practice, but later in 1880 he abandoned general practice and devoted himself exclusively to the treatment of drunkenness, drug and narcotic addictions. The first Keeley Institute was in a modest one-story wooden building in Dwight, whereas at the present day the Keeley Institute is housed in the establishment an illustration of which is seen above. These buildings are fireproof and equipped with every modern convenience. The Livingston Hotel, where the Keeley patients board, is first class in every particular and enjoys the distinction of being the best in the State of Illinois outside of Chicago.

The growth of the Keeley Institute system is not represented merely by this growth at Dwight. The business has spread now until there is a Keeley Institute in nearly every state in the Union and some have more than one. Besides these there has been one in successful operation in England for the past twenty years and there are two in Canada.

The Keeley system of treatment involves no confinement nor restraint. Patients are looked after carefully in order to see that medicines are taken with the utmost regularity and this is accomplished in such a manner as not to irritate or annoy the patient. Liquor and drugs are not discontinued abruptly, but their use is permitted in connection with the Keeley treatment until such time as patients can get along comfortably without these things.

Sometimes a mistaken impression prevails that the Keeley treatment accomplishes its work by nauseating patients and creating a disgust for liquor. Nothing can be farther from the truth. There is no nausea nor other sickness caused by or attendant upon the Keeley treatment. Common sense would indicate that an alleged cure obtained in such a manner is a fraud and would last no longer than the deception would continue. It is easy to nauseate a patient and persuade him that he cannot drink liquor, but this impression does not last because he soon finds out that he can. Nothing of this kind is practiced at Dwight. Cures are accomplished by building up and strengthening the nervous system and restoring it to its original unpoisoned condition so that liquor and drugs are no longer necessary for the patient's comfort and convenience.

The Keeley treatment has received endorsements from a great many corporations, firms and individuals and in addition to that it has been administered in the Soldiers' Homes with marvelous success as well as in the regular army. The treatment has also been administered to patients taken from workhouses and such an experiment tried at Minneapolis resulted in proving what an economic advantage it would be to cure drunkards rather than confine them.

The work of the Keeley Institute was looked at askance in the beginning by physicians who had learned to distrust specifics and so-called "cures." They have realized, however, that no medical fraud can possibly survive as long as the Keeley treatment has; hence a large proportion of the patients received now are sent by physicians. The work of the Keeley Institute can be summarized very briefly and truthfully by saying that with the aid of the Keeley treatment the inebriate who desires to do so can get along comfortably without liquor or drugs for the remainder of his life.

It should be borne in mind that every establishment where they claim to treat drunkenness and drug addictions is not a Keeley Institute, whatever may be claimed for them by other people. The Keeley treatment is administered only in establishments known by the uniform name "The Keeley Institute." We have nothing to say in relation to other establishments, but those desiring to take the Keeley treatment should bear this fact in mind. This has sometimes been a great injustice to us to have to bear the blame for something of which we know nothing.

Patients at the Keeley Institutes are allowed the utmost freedom not only as regards going about the village, walking, exercising, etc., but their friends are permitted to visit them every day in the week if desired. All correspondence is strictly confidential.

COMISKEY'S NEW HOME FOR THE WHITE SOX.

COMISKEY PARK

HOME OF THE

“WHITE SOX”

The new ball grounds of the Chicago American league baseball club are located on 35th street between Wentworth and Shields avenues, and contain close to fourteen acres, making one of the largest fields devoted to baseball in the United States.

The new grand stand is one of the finest in the country and close to 35,000 persons are able to find seats in the stands and bleachers. The grand stand alone will seat 15,000 and boxes 6,000.

Twelve hundred tons of steel were used in the construction of the plant, which is re-enforced with concrete.

Every modern device in the construction of baseball plants is installed in the plant, and clubhouses for home and visiting teams are fitted out with all the luxuries that money can buy. Spacious offices for President C. A. Comiskey and the other officials of the club are arranged at the grounds and provision is made for taking care of automobiles in an up-to-date garage.

VALUE OF WATERWORKS PROPERTY.

The total appraised value of the Chicago waterworks property Dec. 31, 1910, was $4,534,200.87, divided as follows: Real estate, $4,064,296; buildings, $2,499,226.16; equipment, $2,602,672.88; cribs, tunnels, mains, etc., $37,348,055.83.

CHICAGO'S BRIDGE SYSTEM.

The first ferry across the river was established in 1829, where the Lake street bridge now is. In 1833 a floating bridge of logs was in operation just north of the present Randolph street bridge. A foot bridge over the north branch was built in 1832 at Kinzie street. The first drawbridge over the main branch of the river was placed at Dearborn street in 1834. In 1854 a pivot bridge was built at Clark street. These and other bridges of that time were built by the persons most directly benefited by them. It was not until 1857 that a bridge was built entirely at the city's expense. This was the structure over the south branch at Madison street. It cost $30,000. Until 1872 the swing bridges were turned by hand, but in the year named steam power was installed on the Dearborn street structure and later on most of the other bridges in the downtown section were similarly equipped. In 1895 the Rush, Lake and Van Buren street bridges were operated by electric motors. The last named structure, which was opened for traffic in that year, was the first of the Scherzer rolling type. The Haisted street lift bridge, the first and only one of its kind, was opened in 1894 and was operated by steam. It cost the city $242,830.

There are at the present time in Chicago ninety bridges over the river, of which sixty-eight are maintained by the city and twenty-two by railroad companies. Of those operated by the city thirty-four are movable and the others fixed. Thirty-four of the movable bridges are operated by electricity, one by steam and fourteen by hand power. Twenty-four are bascule bridges of various types, one is a vertical lift bridge and twenty are swing bridges.

FARM POWER.

By L. W. Chase, Professor of Agricultural Engineering, University of Nebraska.

Most farmers have learned that a gasoline engine is an automatic machine when properly handled. If the farmer himself does not know that a four-cycle engine requires a suction stroke, a compression stroke, an expansion stroke, and an exhaust or clearance stroke, before the cycle of gases is complete, his son is quite apt to, so what is the difference?—it is all in the family. This same son knows that the charge which is drawn into the engine must be of the proper mixture, he knows that the charge must be compressed to the proper number of pounds per square inch or it will not explode. He knows that ignition must take place a certain distance before the piston reaches dead center in order to get the proper power from the charge, and he knows that the burnt charge must be removed from the cylinder before a new charge is taken in. These four fundamentals of a gasoline engine he knows, and he also knows that if any one of these is off the engine will not run.

NOT DANGEROUS.

Some say that gasoline engines are dangerous because they will explode. This is an erroneous idea. Gasoline engines do explode, or at least should explode about 150 to 300 times per minute, and there has been far more trouble caused because they do not explode than because they do explode. Gasoline itself will not explode. If you do not believe it, fill a bottle full of the liquid and hold a match to it. You do not need to scringe or blink; it will do nothing but slowly burn, throwing off a yellowish blue flame. It is not the gasoline which explodes and does harm, but it is the gasoline vapors which have escaped into the open air that explode. Take a pint fruit jar and drop about ten drops of gasoline into it. Stir the air up within the jar, then turn the jar over and hold a match to the mouth. A small explosion occurs—and this is what happens every time a charge of gas explodes in the engine, and also every time gasoline vapors are ignited in a room. Roughly it takes 1,700 to 2,000 times its own volume of air mixed with gasoline to make it explode. Try exploding the charge of gasoline vapor in the fruit jar once more, but this time put in about twenty-five drops of gasoline instead of ten. It doesn't explode—simply burns with a slow flame as long as the jar is turned over. Set the jar up straight and the flame dies out. The second charge did not explode because there was too much gasoline in the jar to unite with the air in a proportion which would make an explosion.

Apply the above principle to a gasoline engine and you will have the cause of 50 per cent of the troubles of the amateur. He floods his engine, and after working over it for an hour or so trying to start it, goes away in disgust. Perhaps in an hour or so some one gives it a try and it starts right off. The reason for this is that the first man flooded the engine and kept on flooding it. But when he left the engine the vapors within the cylinders deteriorated. So when the next man came along the mixture of gasoline and air was of such consistency that the engine started at once.

It is always better to have the needle valve open too small a distance than too large a distance. If the engine does not start the first time close the needle valve, hold open the inlet valve, and turn the wheels around a time or two. This will clear the cylinder of the previous unburnt charge so that the try can be made again without danger of flooding.

IGNITION.

The ignitor of a gasoline engine is a simple affair when one understands its principle.

If a nonconductor gets between the points of the ignitor a spark is not made, and if a conductor gets across the points a spark is also not made, hence it is absolutely essential that the ignitor and all binding posts be kept clean, and the latter must be kept tight.

Since gasoline gas does not burn instantly, ignition should take place some time before the piston reaches dead center. A slow speed engine should ignite when the crank is about 10 degrees below center, while some extremely high speed engines should ignite about 70 degrees below or before dead center.

The farmer who knows the principle of the action of the gases in his engine and understands his ignitor will have no trouble other than those which come up because of wear and poor adjustment or lack of care, and these troubles he must learn to adjust as they come about.

The following table shows about the amount of gasoline required when using a 3 horse power gasoline engine for the work about the farm. Some of the figures are from actual tests and some are computations:

One gallon of gasoline will pump
2,454 gallons of water from well 43 feet deep.
1,720 gallons of water from well 158 feet deep.
Will shell 262 bushels of corn.
Will grind 48.6 bushels of corn.
Will separate the milk from 300 cows.
Will do about 20 weekly washings without wringing.

Will grind about 20 sickles, and, if harvester is pulled by horses, will cut about 4 acres of grain.

The limit of usefulness of a gasoline engine on a farm depends upon the ingenuity of the farmer.

Besides the subjects mentioned, it should be made to cut the ice, put the ice in the ice-house, the hay in the barn, the corn in the crib, cut the alfalfa, the ensilage, do the threshing, sharpen the plows and the disks, sweep the floors of the house, saw the wood, light the buildings, and do many other kinds of work.

SIZE OF ENGINE.

What size of engine to purchase depends entirely upon the farm and farmer. On the whole, it seems that most farmers are purchasing too small an engine, and overlooking the medium sizes. A good 4 or 5 horse power engine will do anything on the farm, except thresh or fill the silo, and do it as economically as a large engine which would require a large force to keep it supplied with work. This same engine will do all the small work about the farm, and requires only a trifle more gasoline for the work than a 1 or 2 horse power engine.

With modern machines and a good gasoline engine a farmer should use his mental ability in such a way that he and his farm hand can do all his work, and then thereby drop the old time shelling bee and threshing day. By stacking the grain and using a small separator, a farmer can choose his own time to thresh, and by that means keep a good hand who would otherwise be lost. This method of doing the work will also take a burden from his wife's shoulders, because she will not need to cook for such a large number of extra men as is usual at threshing time. Whenever a farmer gets a gasoline engine he should arrange to do without an equivalent value of horse flesh or man labor.

A Modern Columbus.

The I H C Gasoline Engine is a modern Columbus. It is re-discovering America, opening up new avenues of opportunity, making possible new economies and improvements, abolishing the back-breaking drudgeries which drive young men and women from the farm, and setting a new standard of comfort for rural life in America. It is a familiar sight, both in city and country, wherever a comparatively small unit of power is desired. It is specially valuable as a portable engine. It carries its own fuel supply in compact form and is self-contained in every way.

I H C Gasoline Engines

USE AND CARE OF THE FARM SEPARATOR.

By J. H. Franson, M.S.A., Professor of Dairying, University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho.
Reprinted by permission of Metropolitan and Rural Home.

In recent years no piece of farm machinery has been more universally used and accepted than has the farm separator. In the western states, especially, it is now the exception rather than the rule to find a single dairy that does not claim a hand separator as part of its equipment. This marvelous growth has been made in spite of a great deal of bitter opposition from those who, in many respects, should have been its best friends. There is no doubt that it has materially increased the profits and reduced the labor of the dairy farm, and thus has helped to solve some of the most serious economic problems confronting the dairy farmer. Even in the middle west, where the whole milk creameries so stubbornly fought the advance of the separator, they are now used to the extent that hardly a creamery can be found that has not been forced to accept farm separator cream. The merits of the separator, whether factory or hand separator, are now so well known that the dairy hardly need a defense, though there is still a class of dairy men who stick to the shallow pan, or worse, to the dilution separator. If this class of farmers would make a careful study of the work which has been done by several of our experiment stations to determine the efficiency of the various methods of skimming they would find some very interesting results in favor of the centrifugal separator.

A COMPARISON OF DIFFERENT METHODS OF SKIMMING.

The Indiana experiment station made comparative tests of the skim milk from three different methods of skimming. It determined the relative loss of butterfat in each case as follows:

	Butterfat.
By "dilution separator" (the tin can kind) skim milk contained.....	0.57 per cent
By shallow pan skim milk contained	0.50 per cent
By centrifugal separator skim milk contained	0.05 per cent

Taking this table as a basis it will be interesting to note what the loss would be on a dairy farm of ten cows, considering a cow to yield about 5,600 pounds of skim milk annually. Basing the percentage of loss on the experiment carried on at the Indiana station and converting the butterfat into butter, we have the following table:

By "dilution separator" method on yield of 10 cows annually a loss of 382 lbs. of butter at	30c	$114.00
By shallow pan method on yield of 10 cows annually a loss of 335 lbs. of butter at	30c	100.50
By centrifugal separator method on yield of 10 cows annually a loss of 33.5 lbs. of butter at	30c	10.05

A study of this table should convince the reader that by the use of a good separator he should be able to make an additional saving of from $80 to $100 a year on a herd of ten cows, a saving more than sufficient to pay for the separator in one year. In addition to this direct saving it is well to keep in mind the greatly enhanced value of the skim milk for feeding purposes when fed in a sweet, wholesome, undiluted condition.

There are many things about the hand separator that appeal strongly to the former patron of the whole milk creamery. He finds it easier and less expensive to deliver the comparatively small bulk of cream than to haul the whole milk as formerly, which also necessitated hauling the skim milk. Then again, there is the advantage of having the sweet milk for feeding to calves, pigs and poultry. The use of the hand separator on the farm also does away with the danger of having the skim milk mixed and perhaps contaminated with disease-infected milk received at the creamery.

SELECTION OF SEPARATORS.

In selecting the separator the farmer should use the same good judgment that is so necessary in the selection of any kind of machinery. From a practical standpoint there is but little difference in the skimming efficiency of any of the standard makes of centrifugal separators now on the market. Durability, ease of running, ease with which they are cleaned, are the points of primary importance in buying a new separator. There are many cheaply constructed machines now on the market that are dear at any price, and with which the dairyman cannot afford to take any chances.

SETTING OF MACHINE.

After having purchased some good standard make of separator the first thing of interest is to have the machine well set. It is desirable to have a good, substantial foundation for the support of the machine. Concrete foundation, of course, is highly desirable. If it is found necessary to place the machine on a wooden floor this should be braced underneath by planks placed crosswise under the flooring where the separator is to stand. When fastening the separator down it should be leveled as directed by the manufacturer, generally on the surface of the frame. The separator bowl spinning around as it does like a top, will try to run perpendicular, and if the machine is not level there will be more or less useless wear on the sides of the bowl as it pushes in that direction. This not only shortens the life of the machine but results in poor skimming as well.

Next to having the machine set perfectly comes the question of having it well oiled. Use only the best grade of a thin oil, one that will not stick or gum on any of the parts. In case any of the parts should become gummed, it is a good plan to flush them occasionally with kerosene, which also will remove the dust and grit that may accumulate from time to time.

As most manufacturers have carefully tested their machines and know exactly under what conditions they do maximum and most satisfactory work, it is always safe and highly desirable for the operator to follow strictly the directions given by the manufacturer as regards the care and speed of the machine.

CLEANING THE SEPARATOR.

Washing the separator is not a very difficult job if done soon after separation. To thoroughly clean the separator, the bowl and all its parts should first be rinsed with cool water to remove all particles of milk. Then they should be thoroughly scrubbed with a brush in warm water containing a liberal quantity of good washing powder. The water for washing should be warm, but not hot enough to cook the curd on any of the parts. After washing, they should be steamed or at least rinsed in boiling water. No wiping cloth of any kind should be allowed to come in contact with them after the scalding process. Sunlight is one of the best disinfectants, and when possible all the utensils should be given the benefit of pure air and sunlight. If it is not convenient to wash the machine immediately after separating, the bowl can, at least, be taken apart and immersed in water. This will loosen all the curd and make washing comparatively easy.

No one should place much confidence in any agent's claim of separators being able to wash themselves by simply running water through them. Such claims are not made by men who have the dairyman's interests at heart.

Cream Separator Essentials

Men who know dairy farm needs are agreed that the three essentials of a good cream separator are reliability, easy running, and ease of thorough cleansing; and the first of these is reliability.

Reliability—meaning the capacity to skim closely for a very long time without undue expense for repairs—is a strong feature of I H C separators.

It is secured by the use of the finest material for all parts, put together carefully by skilled workmen, according to the most approved mechanical design. The result is an lasting—easy running—easy to clean.

I H C Cream Harvesters have dirt arresters in the bowls, which exclude all foreign matter from the skimming bowl. They have spiral cut gears, which insure steady motion and long wear. All bearing bushings are phosphor bronze—essential to a high-grade machine. Gears and working parts are easy to get at, to keep clean, and to oil.

With all these advantages in their favor, I H C Cream Harvesters deserve your careful consideration. See the I H C local dealer or write direct for catalogues.

DISK HARROW, ITS USE AND ABUSE.

By H. W. Campbell.

Editor's note:—Mr. H. W. Campbell has done more than any other man, living or dead, to reclaim the semi-arid districts. His method of farming has demonstrated beyond doubt that farmers can raise reasonably good crops on an annual rain fall of twelve inches.

In 1883 Mr. Campbell was a farmer in Brown county, S. D. Peculiar conditions in that year, when 260 acres of his farm gave almost no crop and forty acres gave a good crop, forced Mr. Campbell to begin thinking why. Since that time his experiments and practical demonstrations have been scattered from Central Texas to Alberta, Canada. He has demonstrated beyond any doubt that it is possible to farm successfully in the semi-arid regions. That he has awakened interest along this line of farming is evidenced by the tenor of utterances of such men as James J. Hill of the Great Northern railway and W. C. Brown, president of the New York Central railway.

"Tillage, better tillage, of the right kind and at the right time, is the keynote to-day of all successful farming," says Mr. Campbell.

There is no agricultural implement more important to the western farmer than the disk harrow. But like other farm implements, from its first conception it has undergone changes—some have been improvements, others have been disadvantages; the principal reason that all changes have not been improvements is that from its first conception to the present time its usefulness has been more or less misunderstood. Thousands of acres of wheat have been put in by the use of the disk harrow alone that have not turned the farmer any profit, and many times a loss of not only his labor, but seed. The great value of the disk harrow lies in its adaptability to the protection of moisture, the destruction of weeds, the preparation of the surface soil for the encouragement of rapid percolation of the rain water, and in thoroughly pulverizing a somewhat cloddy plowed field and obtaining an improved physical or mechanical condition of the soil. It has been used on thousands of acres instead of plowing when it should have been used to precede the plow. We have noted instances where the early spring use of the disk for the sole purpose of preventing evaporation and preparing the surface to receive and utilize further rains has resulted in giving the farmers increased yields of corn, as high as twenty bushels to the acre. Think of twenty bushels of corn per acre for only 50 cents of extra expense!

In handling of fields for summer culture there is no tool that can take the place of the disk harrow, cost of labor and value of work considered. Bear in mind this fact, that the great value of summer culture is not alone in the storing and conserving of the rain water, but in obtaining a soil condition for the promotion of nitrification and other chemical actions, for the development of the necessary elements to promote a vigorous, prolific growth of all plants. To promote nitrification every possible effort must be put forth to prevent the loss of moisture from the firm soil beneath the mulch. In doing this, three detrimental conditions must be carefully watched and as far as possible prevented. First, the growth of weeds and all foreign vegetation; second, the getting of the soil mulch too fine by the sometimes necessary frequent cultivation of the soil; third, to have the mulch too light and loose. No tool ever in use on our fields has accomplished the above as effectually as the disk harrow with the small diameter of disk.

The disk harrow may be used to prepare a field for a crop in the spring on autumn plowed land, because of the complete pulverizing and thorough separating of the soil into small coils in its rotating action, and when the proper diameter of disk is used, the work is perfect; but here, too, the small disk is by far the most effective, as the larger disk cuts too deeply.

We most urgently advise the use of the disk early in the spring on all stubble ground that may have been left over the winter without plowing. No time should be lost after the soil has become sufficiently thawed and dry so that it will not stick to the disk. This is especially true where corn is to be put in with a lister. For best results, double disk the ground by lapping one-half, the object being to thoroughly pulverize and loosen the surface, for reasons above referred to, as well as to break the hard, crusted surface to promote a more rapid and complete soaking into the soil below of the early spring rains. For this work the diameter of the disk is not so vital.

In still another season of the year we find the disk harrow of great value, and that is immediately after the small grain or any other crop is removed. It is advisable whenever possible to follow behind the harvester and not allow the packed, crusted soil to be exposed for a single day to the sun's rays after the crop is gathered. It is very difficult to explain, the value and importance of this work in sufficiently strong terms to permit the reader to grasp its full force and meaning. We will endeavor, however, to give three reasons.

First: There is no time in the year when water, held in the soil near the surface in sufficient quantities, will bring about so many valuable chemical changes as during the months of July and August, and these changes mean additional bushels to the next crop. But they will not take place if the per cent of moisture is too low or there is a crust over the surface or under the mulch. The surface must be loose and the soil must carry the necessary quantity of both air and water. The better the farmer understands these facts the greater will his yield per acre continue from year to year.

Second: If there is any moisture in the soil at harvest time, though it be a few inches down below, by preparing a mulch of liberal thickness this moisture will accumulate by capillary attraction, which nature has provided under these conditions shall be largely upward as far as the soil is firm, stopping beneath the mulch or loosened soil. If no rains come, your ground in a few days is in perfect condition to plow because of this increased moisture. If you wish to list your corn and not plow in the fall, this moisture can be carried over until the next spring; then by early disking, and in case of a dry spring your field can be planted and the seed will immediately germinate and grow, while your neighbor who has not taken the advantage of these scientific principles is worrying about a dry country, and immediately becomes pessimistic on all questions. Luck was against him; everybody and everything was against him. But really the only thing against him was his lack of knowledge regarding the merits of the disk harrow and the true principles of scientific soil culture.

Third: In case you wish to sow fall wheat this disking behind the harvester may mean ten to twenty bushels more per acre in your crop next year. By holding the moisture as shown above, it will be seen that any subsequent rain will percolate more quickly and deeper. If the rain be a heavy one, sufficient to dissolve and pack the loosened surface, the common spike tooth harrow should be thoroughly used as soon as the soil is dry enough not to stick. If the soil is made quite firm, then the disk harrow should be used again, unless you are able to soon finish your plowing, in which case the second disking would not be advisable, as the common harrow would loosen enough to hold the moisture for a short time.

$500.00 for Three Days' Work

A boy in Edwards County, Kansas, made $500 by three days' work following the binder with a disk harrow; i. e., the ground he treated in this manner with a disk harrow produced 42 bushels and 10 pounds of wheat to the acre, while that of the rest of the farm, planted in the ordinary way, without disking, produced only 25 bushels.

A farmer in Decatur County, Iowa, raised 109 bushels and 40 pounds of corn to the acre because he disked the ground.

These are two instances—one a grain grower and the other a corn grower. In both cases the increased yield was due to the use of the disk harrow. The grain grower was in a district where rainfall is not so abundant as it is where the corn grower lives, but both raised bumper crops.

No matter whether it is a wet year or dry year, the disk harrow properly used will increase the yield, because disking prevents surface evaporation and conserves the sub-surface moisture needed by growing crops.

I H C Disk Harrows give good service in all conditions of ground. This is absolutely necessary if the best results are to be obtained. The disks are made to both penetrate and pulverize the ground in the best possible manner. The frames are strong, holding the gangs to the work at all times.

The I H C line of tillage implements includes disk harrows, spring tooth harrows, vineyard harrows, combination harrows, peg tooth harrows, and cultivators. These are made in various styles and sizes, so that no matter in what section you farm, we can give you the tillage implement designed for your special needs.

INCREASING FERTILITY.

By Cyril G. Hopkins, Professor of Agronomy, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

If he who made two blades of grass grow where only one grew before is a public benefactor, then he who reduces the fertility of the soil so that only one ear of corn grows where two have been grown before is a public curse.

Agriculture is the fundamental support of the American nation, and soil fertility is the absolute support of agriculture.

THE TWO FUNCTIONS OF THE SOIL.

The soil has two distinct functions to perform in crop production: First, the soil must furnish a home for the plant, where the roots can penetrate the earth upon which the plant must stand; second, the soil must furnish plant food, or nourishment, for the growth, development and maturing of the plant.

To improve the physical condition of the soil is to improve the home of the plant; while to add to the soil, or to liberate from the soil fertilizing materials, is to increase the available supply of plant food.

One soil may furnish an excellent home for the plant, but a very insufficient supply of plant food; while another soil may contain abundance of plant food, but the physical conditions (such as imperfect drainage, or inadequate aeration) may be such as to make an unfit lodging place for the plant.

THE TEN ESSENTIAL PLANT FOOD ELEMENTS.

There are ten different elements of plant food, each of which is absolutely essential to agricultural plants. These elements are carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, iron and sulphur.

Carbon, hydrogen and oxygen, which constitute more than 90 per cent of most agricultural plants, are contained in air and water, the supply being unlimited. The two elements, iron and sulphur, although absolutely essential to plant growth, are required in very small amounts, while they are provided by nature in practically inexhaustible quantities.

On the other hand, the five elements, nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium and magnesium, are required by plants in very considerable amounts, and soils are frequently found which are so deficient in one or more of these five elements as to limit the yields of crops. It should be understood that soils are never found which are entirely devoid of these elements. Even the poorest and most unproductive soils still contain at least some small supply of each of these elements, and as a general rule such so-called exhausted soils contain at least one, and frequently two or three, of these valuable elements in large amount, the low productive capacity being due to the deficiency of one or two elements only.

Sometimes the element which the plant fails to obtain in sufficient quantity for its normal growth, the element which positively limits the yield of the crop, is actually present in the soil in very large amount. In such cases the practice should not be to add to the soil more of this plant food element, but to adopt methods of soil treatment and management by which we can liberate a sufficient amount of this element for maximum profitable crop yields.

THE VALUE OF FARM MANURE.

Farm manure always has been and probably always will be one of the most important and abundant materials for soil improvement. It is a necessary product on every farm, and on stock farms a product which accumulates in very large amounts. If not used for soil improvement, it becomes a worthless nuisance about the stables, whether in the city or in the country.

A conservative estimate places the annual production of farm manure in the United States at a billion tons. The actual agricultural value of fresh farm manure containing both the liquid and solid excrements is not less than $2 a ton, whether the value is measured in terms of plant food elements actually contained in the manure as determined by chemical analysis of the manure and the market values of the elements or whether the value is measured by the actual increase in crop yields produced by the use of the manure on ordinary long cultivated soils.

WASTE OF FARM MANURE AND LAND RUIN.

If fresh farm manure is thrown out and exposed to the weather for six months in summer, one-half of its total weight of dry matter is lost, and more than one-half of its value as a fertilizer is lost. In most newer countries there is enormous and shameful if not wicked waste of farm manure. In older countries it is the rule to save all possible farm manure with very great care, although this rule is too frequently broken by the careless, ignorant, or short sighted.

As a whole, the unnecessary waste and loss of farm manure which occurs in the United States each year is equal in value to several times the value of all commercial fertilizers used in this country. Sometimes the waste of farm manure and the purchase of commercial fertilizers occur upon the same farm. In such cases the commercial fertilizer used is usually a so-called "complete" fertilizer, containing acid phosphate with a trace of nitrogen and potassium too small to add appreciably to its value, and it is commonly applied in amounts which supply less plant food than the crops actually remove, the small amount of soluble plant food applied being supplemented by that which the soil would naturally give up, together with what can be forced from the soil by the stimulating action of the soluble corrosive acid salts and manufactured land plaster contained in such fertilizers.

One of the most common commercial fertilizers used in the United States contains the equivalent of 2 per cent of ammonia, 8 per cent of falsely so-called "phosphoric acid," and 2 per cent of potash, corresponding to less than four pounds of nitrogen, seven pounds of phosphorus, and less than four pounds of potassium in 200 pounds, the most common application per acre; whereas a 100 bushel crop of corn removes from the soil not four, but 150 pounds of nitrogen, not seven, but twenty-three pounds of phosphorus, and not four, but seventy-five pounds of potassium.

SAVING FARM MANURE.

In order to retain the full amount and full value of farm manure, it should be removed directly from the stall or covered feed lot and spread at once upon the land. Where the winters are moderately cold and free from heavy rains there is little loss if the manure is allowed to accumulate during such weather in a small, uncovered feed lot, provided it is hauled out and spread upon the land in the early spring. Manure may be allowed to accumulate without much loss in deep stalls for several weeks if plenty of absorbent bedding is used, and then it may be hauled from the stall directly to the field and spread.

It should be the rule never to handle manure more than once. When taken from the stable or feeding shed it should be at once loaded onto the spreader and hauled to the field. If manure is produced at the rate of two loads or more a week, the convenience and importance of taking this manure directly from the stable and spreading it at once upon the field will certainly justify providing a manure spreader or special wagon to be used solely for this purpose.

Farm Land Demands Fair Treatment

Farm land is like a factory. It is supplied with raw material in the form of seed. From this raw material it manufactures a finished product called a crop.

In the process of manufacturing a crop, the land uses certain elements which pass from it into the growing grain. When the grain is harvested, these elements are lost to the soil. They must be returned if the soil is to continue to raise profitable crops.

Nature has provided a medium for the return of plant food to the soil. Fresh stable manure contains all the elements needed to preserve soil fertility. When it is applied properly, it returns to the soil nearly, if not quite, all the plant food which was removed by the growing crop.

READY-TO-LAY Burmite FLEXIBLE-CEMENT-BURLAP INSERTED MATERIAL

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) For ROOFING and SIDING

Buildings—be they NEW or OLD, of any construction, is being specified by Architects, recommended, used and sold by Contractors, Builders, Roofing Experts and Dealers, because it is

Practical—Durable—Artistic—Inexpensive
GUARANTEED for 10 YEARS WITHOUT COATING

A practical roofer, with thirty years' experience in selling and applying other makes, recently used our "Burmite" for roofing his own building—which, by the way, was a flat roof—although he had on hand at the time a large stock of the other kinds he had been selling. In speaking of the many advantages of "Burmite" he writes us:—"It is not necessary to take off your shoes for fear of damaging the storm-resisting and fire-retarding surface of a "Burmite" Roof—the strongest and most durable made."

WRITE TODAY for Samples, Printed Literature and Booklet,
"Burmite Quality Counts"

Illustrated with Residences, Summer Homes, Cottages, Bungalows, Garages, Barns, etc., beautifully printed in colors, showing effect of "Burmite" applied as a Roofing and Siding.

Birmingham & Seaman Co., Roofing Mfrs. Chicago
 Gen. Offices: 1208-1226 Tribune Bldg. Plant: 56th, Armitage and Grand Aves.

"There is no other paper in the city which will spend as much money for news as will THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS. During the Japanese-Russian war it had a number of special correspondents at the scene of the strife, who had at their constant disposal a special boat to aid in collecting the news and furnishing it to the Chicago public quickly. THE DAILY NEWS dispatch boat was the only one in commission for an American newspaper. It is not to be wondered at where a newspaper has so many excellent features that it becomes the strongest and best liked paper in the community."—Mail Order Journal.
